PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

Important changes in corporation practice following the adoption of the no-par value stock law require a new edition of this work.

Other statutory additions and changes affecting corporations generally, made since the first edition was published in 1913, include the following:

The federal capital stock tax law.

The federal Clayton Act, sections 7 and 8.

The inheritance tax law, which prohibits corporations from registering transfers of stock standing in the name of a deceased holder, without the written consent of the tax commission.

The requirement of a certificate from the county treasurer that all personal property taxes of the corporation have been paid, as a condition precedent to the filing of a certificate of dissolution (G. C. No. 5521).

The relaxing of the requirement that the name of a corporation for profit begin with the word "The" and end with the word "Company". (G. C. No. 8625).

Valuable contributions to the corporation law of the state have been made by a number of decisions of the supreme court and courts of appeals, especially with respect to stockholders' voting rights and procedure at stockholders' meetings.

The author has continued, in this edition, the annotations from the opinions of the attorney general, whose interpretations of new statutes are often of great value.

ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS FOR PROFIT.

§ 1. Scope of chapter. In this chapter it is attempted to treat the subjects from a practical standpoint, and to present in a concise form suggestions and statements of the rules of law which should be taken into consideration in the various proceedings of organization and management.

The federal income tax is mentioned in several places as a subject for investigation, but little or no attempt is made to discuss such problems in detail. Income taxes are important considerations in a number of corporate transactions, such, for instance, as sales of corporate property, mergers and issues of stock for property. Brief discussions of such problems are usually unsatisfactory and there are a number of excellent publications and exhaustive text books on the subject.

This chapter is intended to be read or used in connection with the forms immediately following. All of the statements in this chapter are not applicable to banking, insurance, public utility and other corporations which in many respects are governed by special statutes.

§ 2. Advantages of corporation. The usual forms under which several individuals may unite for business purposes are the corporation, partnership, limited partnership, the limited partnership association, and the "Massachusetts trust," so-called. In practice, corporations greatly outnumber all other forms of business association. Limited partnerships, at one time frequently met with in Ohio, are now comparatively rare. The organization of limited partnership associations is authorized by statute,¹ but these statutes are wholly unadjudicated by the courts and but little advantage has been taken of them.

"Massachusetts trusts" with transferable shares and limited liability are in use in many states but, according to the attorney general of Ohio, are unauthorized in this state.²

The corporate form of organization possesses distinct advantages, among which are the following:

a. Limited liability. A subscriber to stock in a corporation is liable to the extent of the par value of the stock purchased but no further. Having once paid for his stock, a stockholder is not liable for the debts or obligations of the corporation, nor can the corporation make additional assessments on him. The amount of his subscription is risked in the enterprise, but no more.³

When stock is transferred the new holder is not liable for more than the original holder. When stock has once been paid in full no holder is liable.

The liability of a member of a partnership, however, is not limited to the amount of his investment. If a partnership becomes insolvent, the individual property of the partners may be subjected to the payment of firm obligations.

Limited partnerships provide some features of limited liability but a limited partnership must have at least one general partner whose liability is unlimited.

b. Transferable shares. The capital stock of a corporation is divided into equal shares either with, or (in the case of common stock) without, par value, so that funds for the enterprise may be contributed by few or by many persons, as may be desired.

Paid up shares in a corporation are evidenced by certificates on which a blank assignment is usually printed. This enables a stockholder to easily transfer his interest in the corporation. A stockholder may not only sell his shares but may use them as collateral security in obtaining loans or credit.

The facility with which a stockholder's interest in a corporation may be transferred and utilized is a feature which is lacking in other forms of organization. The interest of a in all Ohio corporations were formerly subject to a similar double liability, but this was abolished in November, 1903. The double liability of state bank stockholders was restored in 1912.

partner is not easily transferred and can not be pledged as security for loans.

c. Corporate entity. A corporation has a separate legal existence without regard to its individual members. Its membership may be completely changed without affecting the corporate existence.⁴

A member of a partnership can not enter into contracts with his firm, nor bring suits against it. A corporation, however, may make contracts with its stockholders, and may sue and be sued by them.

d. Continuous existence. The existence of a corporation is not affected by the death of one or more of its stockholders, nor by their bankruptcy, insanity or other incapacity, nor by disagreements between them. The corporate organization continues intact whereas a partnership under such circumstances would in many instances have been dissolved and the enterprise seriously interrupted.

The duration of the life of a corporation is not limited, except in the case of real estate corporations.⁵

Nominally a corporation has a perpetual existence, but it may be terminated, (1) by failure to make annual reports or to pay taxes,⁶ (2) by voluntary surrender of its charter by unanimous consent of its stockholders,⁷ (3) by dissolution through judicial proceedings, because of insolvency of the corporation or other conditions which render impracticable the accomplishment of its purposes,⁸ or (4) by forfeiture of its charter by the state for misuse or nonuse of corporate rights.⁹

Until a corporation has been terminated by one of such methods it continues to exist unaffected by vicissitudes or changing conditions among its stockholders.

⁷ G. C., § 8740. Where no instalments of capital stock have been paid, and there are no investments or unpaid debts, the charter may be surrendered by action of the holders of a majority of the stock. G. C., § 8738.

⁹ G. C., § 12323.

e. Administrative system. Each member of a partnership is impliedly authorized to act for the firm and to bind it by transactions within the scope of its business. With corporations, however, the rule is different. A stockholder, as such, has no authority to act as agent for the corporation. Representatives of the stockholders are selected, by vote, to conduct the corporate business and affairs.

The stockholders elect a board of directors which has the management and control of the business. It is possible for minority stockholders, by cumulative voting, to elect one or more directors and be represented in the management. The board of directors selects officers and agents who transact the business under the control and supervision of the board.

During their term of office, the directors, acting as a board, are supreme in the management of the corporate business and so long as they conduct the business lawfully and within the limits of the articles of incorporation, they are not subject to interference or control by the stockholders, even by a majority.

This system of representative management, when properly used, is practical and efficient, and is especially advantageous where the capital stock of a corporation is distributed among numerous holders.

§ 3. Disadvantages of corporation. The disadvantages of the corporation lie mainly (a) in the special taxes or fees imposed for the privilege of doing business as a corporation; (b) in the burdensome reports which are required from corporations; (c) in governmental surveillance of corporations; and, (d) in some instances, increased taxes.

a. Special fees or taxes. In addition to the initial cost of incorporation the following special taxes must be paid annually:

- (1) The Ohio franchise fee (Willis law tax).
- (2) The federal capital stock tax.¹
- (3) A franchise fee in each state other than Ohio in which the corporation has a place of business or transacts business other than interstate commerce.

There is also the federal stamp tax on original issues, sales and transfers of stock.

b. Reports. The following reports are required from corporations:

- (1) Ohio franchise (Willis) tax, annually.
- (2) Federal capital stock tax, annually.
- (3) Franchise tax in each state other than Ohio in which the corporation has a place of business, or transacts business other than interstate commerce.
- (4) When required by order of the Federal Trade Commission, reports of organization, management, business, etc.²
- (5) A corporation may be required by the Federal Commissioner of Internal Revenue to report dividends paid by it to stockholders.³
- (6) If the corporation has issued bonds, or other similar obligations, it may be required by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to report the interest paid thereon, regardless of amount. If the amount exceeds $1,000, the report must be made by individuals as well as by corporations, without demand from the commissioner, and must include payments of rent, wages, annuities, etc., as well as interest.⁴
- (7) If the corporation has issued bonds containing a tax free covenant, it must report the interest paid, annually.⁵

The Ohio inheritance tax law imposes certain duties on corporations. Where a stockholder dies, the corporation is prohibited from transferring his stock on the corporate books, without the written consent of the state tax commission.⁶

The federal estate tax regulations require notice to be given by a corporation, to which stock of a deceased stockholder is presented for transfer, if the deceased stockholder was a non-resident of the United States and the transfer is not on the order of an executor or administrator appointed in the United States.

c. Governmental surveillance. The Ohio Blue Sky Law places the issue and disposal of corporate stock, bonds and other securities under the supervision of the Department of Securities of the Department of Commerce.

The Federal Trade Commission has broader powers to investigate the organization, management and business of corporations engaged in interstate commerce than it has to investigate partnerships or individuals engaged in like business.

d. Increased taxes. It is sometimes asserted that general property tax laws are enforced more rigorously against corporations than against individuals or partnerships. This is probably true in some communities.⁷

The question of federal income taxes is important and should always be taken into consideration before a corporation is organized. Under former federal laws, the amount of the tax was, under some circumstances, a serious disadvantage to the corporation.⁸ But that disadvantage has very largely been removed by the Revenue Act of 1921. Indeed, under some circumstances, where the profits are not distributed to the stockholders, but, because of the reasonable needs of the business, are retained by the corporation, the total taxes payable by the corporation and its stockholders may be less under the corporate form than if the business were conducted as a partnership.⁹

§ 4. Selection of state for incorporation purposes.

a. Ohio. Where the principal business of a proposed corporation is to be transacted in Ohio it should, in general, be formed or availed of for the purpose of avoiding surtaxes on the stockholders. The fact that the corporation is a mere holding company or that its profits are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business is made prima facie evidence of a purpose to escape the tax, if the Commissioner of Internal Revenue certifies that in his opinion the accumulation is unreasonable.

organized under the laws of this state. A private business corporation may be organized in another state, and may transact all of its business in Ohio upon compliance with requirements imposed by statute upon foreign corporations. In former years, when stockholders in Ohio corporations were subject to double liability, many companies were incorporated in other states to transact business in this state. But since the abrogation of the double liability in 1903, foreign incorporation is less frequently resorted to. Foreign incorporation increases the cost. Organization fees and annual franchise taxes must be paid in the state of incorporation and also the license fee and annual franchise tax to the state of Ohio. An additional expense is the maintaining of an office in the state of incorporation, which is required by the laws of many states.

Where the stock will be held by residents of Ohio, and the property and business of the corporation will be in another state, incorporation in this state may be advantageous. Stock in such foreign corporations, held by residents of Ohio, is taxable in Ohio, while stock in Ohio corporations is exempt from taxation. By Ohio incorporation, tax on the stock is avoided. If the stock is valuable, the entrance and franchise taxes paid by the corporation, in the state where its business is located, are usually less than the Ohio tax on the stock would amount to, under present laws.

Another objection to foreign incorporation is the possibility that the state of incorporation may increase the fees or impose additional restrictions on corporations. Both West Virginia and New Jersey made radical changes in their corporation laws, and many companies which had incorporated in those states found it advisable to surrender their charters and obtain charters in other states.

The state of Ohio has power to place additional restrictions on the right of foreign corporations to do business thereon and may increase the fees payable by foreign corporations.¹

b. Foreign incorporation. There are limitations in the Ohio laws which, in some instances, render foreign incorporation necessary in order to accomplish the desired purposes. For instance, a holding company can not be incorporated under Ohio laws. A holding company may, however, be incorporated in any one of several states and may hold stock in an Ohio corporation and vote such stock at stockholders meetings held in Ohio,² but its place of business should be located outside of Ohio. It is not entitled to a license to do business in Ohio.³

An Ohio corporation may have only one main purpose, while the laws of several states authorize unlimited purposes.

If stock of the corporation is to be issued for property, the laws of several other states are well settled to the effect that the valuation at which the property is accepted by the directors is conclusive in the absence of fraud, while the law of Ohio on the subject is not equally well settled. If the stock is to be issued for patents, good will, services, or property located outside of Ohio, the Blue Sky Law must be complied with. In such cases the state authorities have usually required that such stock be deposited in escrow with the department to be held until the corporation is a demonstrated commercial success, under an agreement whereby the stock held in escrow will not share in the distribution of assets, in the event of liquidation while the stock is held in escrow, until all stock held by cash investors has been paid in full. These requirements have occasionally interfered with plans of business men who desired to invest their own money to exploit a patent or take over a business and good will, with full knowledge of how much stock was to be issued for the patent or good will, and without any purpose of selling stock to the public, directly or indirectly. Under such circumstances, incorporation in a state which has no Blue Sky Law has sometimes been resorted to, the entire transaction of offering the property to the corporation, and issuing the stock, being accomplished in the state of incorporation. In such cases the stock subscriptions by the cash investors should also be made by the investors, either in person or by proxy, outside of Ohio, and preferably in the state of incorporation.⁴

⁴ See Sec. 15, "Blue Sky" Law.

If the proposed corporation will operate plants or do business in several states, including Ohio, it may be advantageous to incorporate in one of the other states or even in a state in which it will not transact business, except that pertaining to the corporate organization. Among the states having so-called liberal incorporation laws are Maine, Delaware, Massachusetts, New York, Arizona and South Dakota.

In selecting a state, the laws of which are best adapted to the purposes of the proposed corporation, the following are proper subjects for investigation:

Amount of organization fees and taxes.

Amount of annual franchise tax, if any.

Is there a state income tax? If so, is it limited to corporate income arising from business transacted and capital invested in the state?

Is there a state inheritance tax? If so, how does it affect non-resident stockholders?

Is there a state stock transfer tax?

Is there a "Blue Sky" Law?

Are the corporation laws well adjudicated?

Is the charter perpetual?

Corporate objects and purposes permitted.

Are nonresidents eligible as directors?

May stockholders' and directors' meetings be held outside of the state?

May the principal office be located outside of the state?

Are books required to be kept in the state?

Limitations and restrictions on amount of capital stock.

May no-par-value stock be issued?

May preferred stock be issued?

Amount of capital (subscribed and paid in) with which corporation may commence business.

Amount of capital required to be paid in money.

Power to issue stock in consideration for property, services, etc.

Conclusiveness of judgment of directors as to value of property, services, etc., received by the corporation as payment for stock.

May a voting trust be formed?

Liability of directors.

Liability of stockholders for corporate debts.

Protection of the minority. Cumulative voting.

Publicity of affairs required.

A careful investigation of these questions requires a visit to a law library containing the reports, statutes and most recent session laws of each state. Valuable information, however, may be found in Parker's Corporation Manual, which is published annually and contains a summary of the corporation laws of each state, and also in the publications of the Corporation Trust Company.

The corporation laws of several of the states require that an office be maintained in the state; that one director be a resident of the state; that the stock book and transfer book be kept in the office, and that stockholders' annual meetings be held in the state. In several of such states there are incorporating agencies which make a business of furnishing, for a moderate charge, office conveniences to corporations organized therein, but transacting all their business outside. In such cases an officer of the agency usually acts as resident director or agent.

§ 5. Expense of incorporation. In estimating the cost of incorporation the annual franchise fees, both state and federal, and other special taxes should be taken into consideration as well as the initial expense of organization.

a. Initial organization expense. The expense of organization includes the state filing fees, fees of acknowledgment, etc., equipment of books and seal, and counsel fees.

In Ohio the state fees required of a corporation with an authorized capital stock of $50,000 or less are reasonable in amount as compared with the fees charged in other states. It is different, however, where the capitalization is large. For instance, the amount required of a corporation having an authorized capital of $1,000,000 in Ohio is $1,002; while in New Jersey it is $210; in Maine $117; in Delaware $115; and in South Dakota $25.

The initial expense of incorporating a company in Ohio with a capital stock of $10,000, or less, may be estimated substantially as follows:

Secretary of State, filing articles of incorporation.....	$10.00
Secretary of State, filing certificate of subscription.....	2.00
Notary fee, articles of incorporation.....	.40
Clerk's certificate, articles of incorporation.....	.35
Equipment of record book, stock ledger, transfer book, stock certificate book, and seal.....	$18.50 and upwards
Attorney's fee	$100.00 and upwards
Total.....	$131.25

Where the capital exceeds $10,000, the fee for filing the articles is one-tenth of one percent of the authorized capital stock ($1 per $1,000).¹

For no-par-value common stock, the filing fee is five cents per share, plus one-tenth of one percent of the par value of the preferred stock, if any. The minimum filing fee for a corporation having no par value common stock is $25.²

b. Annual State franchise tax. The annual Ohio franchise tax, for the privilege of continuing business under the corporate form, popularly known as the Willis law tax, is based on capital stock which has been subscribed or issued and outstanding, and amounts to three-twentieths of one percent ($1.50 per $1,000) of stock having a par value,³ and five cents per share on no-par-value common stock.⁴ The minimum annual franchise tax is $10.

Public utility companies pay taxes based on gross receipts instead of on capital stock.

c. Federal capital stock tax. A franchise tax is also imposed by the federal government known as the capital stock tax. It is not based upon the par value or number of shares, but upon the fair average value of the capital stock, including surplus and undivided profits, and amounts to $1 for each full $1,000 of the fair average value in excess of $5,000.⁵

d. Stamp taxes on stock. The federal stamp tax on original issues of stock amounts to five cents per share on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, and, on no-par-value stock, five cents per share on each $100 of actual value, or fraction thereof. If the actual value is less than $100 per share the tax is one cent on each $20 of actual value or fraction thereof.⁶

On sales and transfers of stock, and agreements to sell stock, the tax is two cents on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, and, on no-par-value stock, two cents per share.

On original issues the stamps must be affixed to the stock books and not to the certificates issued. On transfers of certificates, the stamps should be affixed to the certificates.

e. Foreign corporations. Initial expense of entering State. There are two laws applying to foreign corporations entering Ohio. To enter the state for the purpose of doing business a foreign corporation must pay a license fee according to the amount of its capital stock, ranging from $15 where the capital stock is less than $100,000 to $50 where the capital stock is $1,000,000 or more. If the corporation owns or uses a portion of its capital or plant in Ohio, it must pay in addition to the foregoing license fee, an initial franchise tax of one-tenth of one percent upon the proportion of property owned and used and business done within the state.⁷

An annual franchise tax is imposed on foreign corporations amounting to three-twentieths of one percent upon the proportion of its authorized capital stock represented by property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio; minimum $10.⁸

§ 6. Transactions before organization. A corporation is not "organized" until directors have been elected by the stockholders.¹ The business and property of a corporation are conducted and controlled by its board of directors.² Prior to organization no one is authorized to bind the corporation by any act or transaction.³

Agreements entered into by promoters prior to organization may become binding on the corporation if, after organization, such acts are expressly adopted and ratified by the board of directors, or if the corporation accepts the benefits of the acts.

b. Contracts by promoters with third persons. Assuming to represent proposed corporations, promoters sometimes enter into agreements with third persons. They engage attorneys to attend to the incorporation; they secure leases on property, and make contracts of purchase, frequently advancing money for such purposes. If, after organization, the corporation accepts the benefit of such a transaction, or expressly assumes it, it becomes the obligation of the corporation.⁴

But if there be a failure to incorporate, or if the corporation after organization neither accepts the benefits of the transaction nor expressly assumes it, the corporation is not bound. The promoter under such circumstances has no redress against the corporation, and may in some cases be personally liable to third persons on the contracts made with them.⁵

Where there are several promoters, one who has been held liable to third persons on such a contract may compel the others to pay their proportionate share of the losses.

Fraud of a promoter may invalidate his contracts which are adopted by the corporation in ignorance thereof. The corporation may rescind a contract of purchase of property, negotiated on its behalf by the promoter, who received secret commissions from the seller.⁶

c. Agreements of promoters between themselves. An agreement between individuals to form a corporation and providing for its future control is valid, as between the parties to it, if the corporation is created according to statutory requirements, and the objects contemplated are lawful and proper.⁷ Such an agreement, however, is not binding on the corporation or future stockholders, although after the corporation is organized it may make binding employment contracts and other contracts, to carry out the preliminary agreement.

§7. Subscriptions to stock before incorporation. No subscriptions to the capital stock or other preliminary agreements need be made prior to the filing of articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. After the articles have been filed and recorded it is the duty of the incorporators to open books for subscriptions.

It is sometimes desirable, however, to definitely commit, and, if possible, to legally bind the parties interested in a proposed enterprise, before the expense of preparing and filing articles is incurred.

A mutual agreement between individuals to become stockholders in a corporation thereafter to be organized is valid,¹ and has been held to bind the persons executing it from the time it is made, provided incorporation is perfected within a reasonable time.²

Such an agreement should be distinguished from an ordinary subscription to capital stock, made before incorporation. The latter is a continuing offer, merely, and not a present contract. Prior to incorporation there is no authority in any person to accept the subscription. There is a want of mutuality. A mere subscription may be withdrawn or cancelled, by the person making it, if he acts before the corporation is organized and his subscription accepted.³

If the subscription is not withdrawn, but is permitted to stand until the corporation is organized and the subscription accepted, the contract, according to the rule prevailing in a majority of the states, becomes complete and enforceable by the corporation.*

In Ohio, however, it has been held that subsequent incorporation and acceptance of the subscription does not render a prior subscription enforceable.⁵

§ 8. Stockholders' rights and powers. a. In general. Stockholders have very limited powers and functions in the active management of the affairs of a corporation. The business and property are managed and controlled by the board of directors. Even a majority of stockholders can not interfere with or control the actions of directors so long as the affairs are conducted lawfully, within the limits of the articles of incorporation and in accordance with the corporate regulations.¹ When the holders of a majority of the stock of a corporation become dissatisfied with the management, the usual remedy is to elect other directors at the succeeding annual election. But majority stockholders may bring about an immediate change in the policy of management by increasing the number of directors at a special meeting of the stockholders.²

Among the rights and powers possessed by stockholders are the following:

b. Election of directors. Directors are elected by the stockholders and every owner of full paid stock has a right to be present at elections and to vote. By cumulative voting minority stockholders are sometimes enabled to elect one or more directors and to secure representation on the board.

c. Information. A stockholder has a right to examine the books and records of the corporation at all reasonable times. A corporation is required by statute to make an annual statement of its financial condition and to furnish a copy to each of its stockholders.³

d. Prevention of breach of trust. Stockholders may, under some circumstances, enjoin the directors from fraudulent dealings with the corporate property or from committing acts beyond the limits of the charter of the corporation.

e. Regulations. Stockholders have a right to adopt regulations for the government of the corporation. Regulations should not be confused with by-laws, which are adopted by the directors and are for the government of the directors only.⁴

The corporation laws of many other states provide for by-laws only, which are adopted by the stockholders and are similar to the regulations of Ohio corporations.

Although the "corporate powers, business and property must be exercised, conducted and controlled by the board of directors,"⁵ the stockholders are expressly authorized by statute to adopt regulations providing for "the duties and compensation of officers" and "the manner of election, or appointment, and the tenure of office, of all officers other than the trustees or directors."⁶

This authorizes the stockholders to place restrictions upon the salaries of the officers and directors, and to reserve the right to elect subordinate officers.

f. Certificates of stock. The holders of stock, which has been fully paid, are entitled to certificates evidencing the same. It is the duty of the president and secretary, on demand, to issue such certificates.

Upon any transfer of full paid stock the transferee is entitled to have it transferred to his name on the books of the company and to receive new certificates issued in his name.⁷

g. Right to dividends and increased stock. When dividends have been declared by directors each stockholder is entitled to be paid his share. When the capital stock is increased each stockholder has a right to subscribe for and take his pro rata share of the increase.

h. Certain acts of directors must be ratified by stockholders. The entire property and assets of a corporation can not be sold unless the proposition has been submitted at a meeting of the stockholders called for the purpose and the proposition ratified by the holders of three-fourths of the stock. In such case minority stockholders who are dissatisfied with the sale are entitled to be paid the value of their stock.⁸

Bonds convertible into stock can not be issued by a corporation without the written assent of three-fourths of the stockholders representing three-fourths of the capital stock actually paid.⁹

i. Changes in capital stock or corporate name or purpose. The capital stock of a corporation can not be increased or reduced, nor can its articles of incorporation be amended, without the favorable action of the holders of at least a majority of its capital stock. Some changes require the consent of the owners of three-fourths or three-fifths of its stock.¹⁰

§ 9. Liability of stockholders. Where stock has been fully paid up, in cash or property, its holder is under no liability (except as to debts incurred by the corporation prior to November 23, 1903). A subscriber to stock is liable to the extent of the par value of his stock but no further. The corporation can not make additional assessments on him, nor is he liable for debts of the corporation.

A person to whom "watered stock" is issued by a corporation may, under some circumstances, be liable to creditors of the corporation for the amount of "water," that is, the difference between the par value of the stock and the amount actually paid for it.¹

Where "watered stock" is purchased from a stockholder for value, by a person having no notice that the stock is not fully paid up, the purchaser is not liable. The purchaser may rely on the representation of the corporation that the stock is full paid. The statement "full paid and nonassessable" on a stock certificate is a representation by the corporation that the stock has been paid up and the purchaser need not inquire further.²

A subscriber to stock which has no par value is liable to the extent of the price or consideration fixed by the incorporators (or, after organization by the directors or stockholders), but no further.

Double liability. Prior to the year 1903 a stockholder in an Ohio corporation who had paid for his stock was, in case of insolvency of the corporation, liable for an additional amount equal to the par value of his stock. This double liability was abolished by an amendment to the constitution. Stockholders are now subject to such double liability for debts incurred prior to November 23, 1903, but are under no liability for debts incurred subsequent to that date,³ except stockholders in banks, both state and national, who are subject to the double liability. The double liability of State bank stockholders was added by an amendment to the constitution adopted September 3, 1912, to take effect January 1, 1913.⁴

§ 10. Stock. The term "capital stock" is variously used to indicate (1) the nominal or authorized capital stock, (2) the paid up and issued capital stock (3) the capital or property of the corporation and (4) the common stock only, exclusive of the preferred stock.¹

a. The nominal or authorized capital stock is the amount specified in the articles of incorporation as the limit of capital which may be subscribed and paid in by stockholders.²

In taxation and certain other statutes the term capital stock has been used as meaning the capital or property of the corporation.³

A clear distinction, however, is recognized between the capital stock and the capital of a corporation.

The amount of the capital stock remains fixed while the actual property or capital fluctuates in value and continually increases or diminishes in amount.⁴

b. A share of stock is a right which entitles its owner to participate in the profits of the corporation, in its assets upon liquidation, and to vote at elections of directors, and upon certain matters required by statute to be submitted to stockholders.⁵

In this chapter the term "stock" is used as meaning shares of stock which is its generally accepted meaning at the present time. Formerly the word "stock" was used as the equivalent of capital stock.

c. Issued stock is that part of the nominal or authorized capital stock which has been subscribed for, or sold, and for which payment has been made. A certificate is not necessary to constitute a person, who has subscribed and paid for stock, a stockholder,⁶ as a certificate of stock is not the stock itself, but merely evidence of its ownership. Issued stock, however, is usually represented by certificates, and stockholders who have paid for their stock are entitled to have certificates issued to them.⁷

When originally issued by an Ohio corporation, stock must be fully paid for in cash, services, or property.⁸

d. Unissued stock is that part of the nominal or authorized capital stock which has not been subscribed for, or sold, and in which no property rights have been acquired.

Unissued stock is sometimes confused with treasury stock, but it differs widely from the latter. Unissued stock is not an asset of the corporation. It is merely the right in the corporation to issue stock.

e. Treasury stock is stock originally issued and full paid, which has been acquired by the corporation through gift, in liquidation of a debt, or otherwise, and which is held subject to disposal by the directors.⁹

The term treasury stock is sometimes wrongly applied to unissued stock. Treasury stock is an asset of the corporation and may be sold below par. Treasury stock can not be voted.

f. Preferred stock is that which is given a preference over the other stock of the same corporation. It is issued in many different forms with various preferences and restrictions. The usual preference relates to dividends, and entitles its owner to dividends at a specified rate before any dividends are paid on common stock.

The Ohio statute¹⁰ prohibits the issuing of preferred stock in excess of "two-thirds of the actual capital paid in." If the corporation has common stock without par value the number of shares of preferred stock outstanding may not be more than two-thirds of the total number of shares, common and preferred, outstanding.¹¹

The priority dividend rate on preferred stock is limited to eight per cent. Priority in assets, on liquidation of the corporation, is given by the statute.

Preferred stock may be issued, subject to redemption at a fixed time and price, which must be stated on the certificate of such stock. The right to vote preferred stock may be limited or entirely withheld.

All preferences and restrictions should be set forth in the articles of incorporation and also on the certificates of stock.

After organization the capital stock of a corporation may be increased by an issue of preferred stock.¹²

Dividends on preferred stock may be made cumulative or noncumulative. If cumulative, all arrears must be paid in succeeding years before any dividend is paid on common stock. If noncumulative, no deficiency need be made up in subsequent years.

Whether preferred stockholders are entitled to dividends in excess of the stipulated rate, where the articles of incorporation are silent on the subject, is an unsettled question, on which the decisions of common pleas courts are in conflict.¹³ To avoid uncertainty, it should be clearly stated in the articles of incorporation and on the certificates of preferred stock, either that the holders of preferred stock are not entitled to dividends in excess of the stipulated rate, or that they are entitled to participate. Where preferred stockholders are entitled to such additional dividends, the stock is sometimes called participating preferred stock.

g. Common stock is all the capital stock of a corporation to which no advantage, preference or priority is given over other stock. An Ohio corporation may have common stock with, or without, par value.

h. Full paid stock is stock, the entire par value (or, in the case of no-par-value stock, the properly authorized price or consideration) of which has been paid, in money or property, and on which there is no liability to the corporation or to creditors.

i. "Watered stock" or "fictitiously paid stock" is stock having a par value which has been issued as full paid stock when in fact the entire par value has not been received by the corporation.

Before Ohio corporations were authorized by law to have no-par-value common stock, watered stock was frequently issued and sometimes persons receiving such stock from the corporation were, upon insolvency of the corporation, held liable to creditors for the amount of the "water," viz., the difference between the par value of the stock and the amount actually paid for it. Because of the possible liability watered stock was usually issued by some method whereby the records of the corporation were made to show that full value had been given for the stock. The method most frequently adopted was that of issuing stock for property or services at an overvaluation. That property has been fraudulently overvalued was usually difficult of proof, and this method was regarded as the most effectual in concealing the real character of the stock.

Since the enactment of the no-par-value stock law, it is possible to accomplish, by proper and ethical methods, the purposes which were previously accomplished by means of watered stock.

§ 11. Capitalization—Meaning of term. Stock and bonds distinguished. The term “capitalization” is variously used. (1) In one acceptation it includes the entire authorized capital stock of a corporation, both common and preferred, whether issued or not, but does not include bonds. (2) In another acceptation the term capitalization represents the par value of stock which has been issued. (3) In its usual financial acceptation, the term includes both stock and bonds, but only to the extent they have been issued.

In financial practice, stocks and bonds are both treated as securities “issued against” the property of a corporation, but there is an important distinction between them. Bonds are evidences of debt. A bondholder is a creditor of the corporation. An issue of bonds is usually secured by a mortgage on all or a part of the property of the corporation. Interest on bonds falls due at fixed intervals, irrespective of whether profits have been earned, and if not paid, the corporate property may be swept away by foreclosure proceedings under the mortgage.

A stockholder, however, is not a creditor. The return on his investment is in the form of dividends, not interest; and dividends even on preferred stock can be declared only out of surplus profits.¹

§ 12. Amount of capitalization. Considerations affecting.

(A) No-par-value stock corporation. In organizing a corporation under the no-par-value stock law, it is sufficient to set out the total number of authorized shares of common stock, without stating, in the articles of incorporation, the price or consideration for which they are to be disposed of, or any face or par value. But the amount of "common capital" with which the corporation will begin to carry on business must be stated. This may be fixed at any sum not less than $500. Practical considerations require that the amount fixed be high enough for credit purposes, and to provide a proper equity below the bonds or preferred stock, if either are to be issued. On the other hand, the amount of such stated common capital must be fully paid in cash or property at its "actual value" before business is commenced. Directors who assent to the creation of debts before such common capital is fully paid, are personally liable for such debts. Where the common capital is to be paid in property, the amount should be fixed low enough to protect the directors, for they are, in effect, guarantors that such common capital has been paid in property "taken at its actual value."¹

(B) Par value stock corporation. The term "capitalization" is here used as representing the par value of the stock which has been issued.

a. Actual value. The basis of capitalization contemplated by the law of Ohio is the amount of cash, or the actual value of property, for which stock is issued.²

There are certain classes of corporation, notably banks and financial institutions, which have rigidly adhered to this rule and are capitalized on the basis of actual values. The rule is also followed, in many instances, in the organization of trading or mercantile corporations.

In estimating the actual value of property, as a basis for capitalization, intangible assets may be included. Where an established business is taken over by a corporation, the good will and other intangible property are often exceedingly valuable.

Before issuing stock for good will, however, the Blue Sky Law should be considered. Approval from the department must be obtained before stock is issued for good will, patents, services or property not located in Ohio, and the department usually requires that such stock must be placed in escrow until the corporation is a demonstrated commercial success.

57 O. S. 60.

b. Exceeding actual value. Earning power. Numerous corporations have been capitalized not on the amount of money or the value of property invested (including intangible property at a fair appraisement) but on the basis of the prospective earning capacity. Bonds or preferred stock, and sometimes both, were issued up to the cost or value of the property and common stock was issued in such additional amounts as the estimated profits would pay dividends upon.

The practice of capitalizing in excess of property values was followed, in perhaps a majority of cases, in good faith and without fraudulent intent.

The persons to whom the stock was issued, in many cases, derived no personal gain from it, but immediately assigned it to the corporation or to trustees, to be treated as treasury stock and given as a bonus to the purchasers of bonds, or sold at a discount or otherwise used in raising funds for corporate purposes.

Since the enactment of the no-par-value stock law, it is rarely, if ever, necessary or advisable to resort to the device of "watering" par value stock.

In Ohio, capitalization at par values in excess of property values is contrary to the legal requirement that all stock issued must be fully paid for in money, services, or property.³

To avoid the liability imposed by this rule resort has been had, in organization proceedings, to fiction, by which it was made to appear that the stock has been fully paid. Usually property or services were accepted in payment by the directors at valuations which were inflated. As long as the corporation remains solvent there is but little danger of personal liability to creditors arising from the transaction. If there are stockholders who dissented from the transaction, the stock issue may be set aside,⁴ but as it was usually consummated at the time of organization of the corporation and with the consent of the original stockholders, the corporation is bound by the transaction.⁵

³ Gates v. Tippecanoe Stone Co., 57 O. S. 60. chinery Co., 5 C. C. n. s. 540; 17 C. D. 107 (affirmed without report

But in case of insolvency of the corporation, personal liability to subsequent creditors may result. If it is proved that stock was issued for property or services at a fraudulent overvaluation, persons who received the stock may be held liable for the difference between the actual value of the property and the par value of the stock.⁶

Whether the stock received for property constitutes taxable income to the person receiving it is a question which should receive careful consideration.⁷

c. Less than actual value. Where a corporation is organized to conduct a business of comparatively small proportions, and it is intended that the stock shall be held by few persons, and not sold to the public, it is sometimes advantageous to fix the capitalization at less than the actual value of the investment. By this means a saving is effected in the amount of state organization fees and annual franchise (Willis) taxes. In practice the excess of the property values over the capital stock is sometimes covered by a bond issue.

The former federal excess profits tax was measured by invested capital, excluding bonds. Capitalization at less than actual values was usually imprudent, prior to the repeal of the excess profits tax law in 1921.

d. Capitalization of public utility companies and railroads. Stocks and bonds issued by railroads and public utility companies are void unless the issue is authorized by the public utilities commission of Ohio after a hearing. The application to the commission for authority to issue stock or bonds must specify the amount, character and purpose of the issue, and certain information in detail. The money or property derived from the issue must be applied to the authorized purpose. The application must be signed and verified by the president and secretary and penalties are provided for false statements.⁸

§ 13. Form of capitalization. When all the stock is to be taken by the individuals who will be active in the business, common stock alone will in many instances answer the purpose. But if outside capital is to be obtained, it is often necessary to promise a definite return to the investor. The owner of common stock has no assurance of a definite return. He is entitled to his pro rata share of the dividends which have been declared by the directors out of surplus profits. But the directors have discretionary power to declare or to withhold dividends. It is only in exceptional cases that a stockholder can compel the declaration of a dividend, although there are surplus profits. Directors may, and often do, use the profits to enlarge and develop the business instead of making a division among the holders of common stock. In cases of bad faith or abuse of discretion on the part of directors, courts will interfere, but not otherwise.

To attract investors, bonds or preferred stock are usually resorted to. Unless the enterprise is an established one with a record of earnings over a period of years, a bonus of common stock is often given to purchasers of the bonds or preferred stock.

a. Bonds constitute a debt of the corporation, and are usually secured by a mortgage on the corporate property. Bonds have some advantages to the corporation. Interest paid on bonds is an expense and a proper deduction from profits for income tax purposes, whereas dividends paid on preferred stock are not. The prevailing interest rates on bonds, under normal business conditions, are usually less than the prevailing dividend rates on preferred stocks. On the other hand, if it is uncertain whether the earnings of the corporation will be sufficient to pay interest on the bonds, regularly and promptly when due, in addition to operating expenses, a bond issue is dangerous because of the right of foreclosure of the mortgage upon a default of interest.

The amount of bonds which may be issued by an Ohio corporation (except a corporation formed to buy and sell real estate) is limited. The corporation is not authorized to borrow money in excess of "its capital stock."¹ This limit, however, does not apply to corporations organized or reorganized under the no-par-value stock law.²

On liquidation of the corporation, mortgage bonds have priority over general debts and over preferred stock.

b. Preferred stock. If conditions are such that preferred stock can be sold, it is usually safer for the corporation than bonds, for the reason it is not a debt, and there is no danger of foreclosure although dividends on the preferred stock are not paid when due. Dividends on preferred stock are payable out of surplus profits only, and if there are no surplus profits, dividends are not authorized.

Preferred stocks have some advantages to the investor. Ohio laws impose a property tax on bonds, while preferred stock in Ohio corporations is exempt from the tax. Dividends received by a stockholder are not "income" under the Federal Income Tax Law, for the purposes of the normal tax, although subject to the surtax. The rate of return is usually higher on preferred stocks than on bonds. Preferred stock has, under Ohio laws, priority in assets over common stock, in the event of liquidation of the corporation. And directors may generally be relied on to pay dividends on preferred stocks, when there are surplus profits, for the credit of the corporation would be injured by non-payment of dividends under such circumstances.

Because of these advantages counsel for investment houses expended great pains and effort, some years ago, to draft protective provisions intended to give the utmost safety consistent with the nature of preferred stock. Among other things, the protective provisions (1) required that a certain percentage of earnings be set aside as a sinking fund to redeem the preferred stock, (2) restricted the amount of dividends that could be paid on the common stock until all the preferred stock was redeemed, (3) required the corporation to maintain net assets equal to a certain percentage of the preferred stock outstanding, (4) prohibited any issue of bonds or other preferred stock, or any mortgage or lien or long term indebtedness, having priority over the preferred stock without consent of the holders of 75 percent of the preferred stock, and (5) gave voting rights to the preferred stock upon default of the dividends.

Investment brokers and some banks sold to Ohio investors large amounts of preferred stocks in companies having a record of earnings, under the impression that the interests of the investors were well secured by the protective provisions above referred to.

But during a subsequent period of business depression, the inherent weakness of preferred stocks, considered as investments, became manifest. Debts incurred in operating the business of the corporation have priority over preferred stock. It is practically impossible to give preferred stock priority over such indebtedness.³ In many cases of bankruptcy, or other forced liquidation, corporate assets proved insufficient to pay creditors, and the preferred stockholders received nothing. Because of such experiences, it is difficult, at the present time, to sell large issues of preferred stocks as "investments," except in enterprises having unusual earnings for a period of years.

It is often possible, however, to finance a corporation by means of a preferred stock issue, if the corporation is willing to give to the purchasers a reasonable share of the expected profits in addition to the stipulated preferred dividend. This may be accomplished by one of several different methods. (1) A bonus of no-par-value common stock may be given to purchasers of the preferred. (2) The preferred stock may be made "participating"; that is, after the stipulated dividend has been paid on the preferred, and an equal amount paid on the common, further dividends are declared pro rata on the preferred and common stock without distinction. (3) The holders of preferred stock may probably be granted the privilege of converting it into common stock.⁴

⁴ G. C., § 8669 does not expressly authorize the grant of an option in advance to holders of preferred stock to convert it into common stock, although it authorizes conversion "upon such terms as from time to time may be proposed by the board of directors and accepted by the holders thereof." But in general, such an option may be

c. Common stock. No-par-value stock. Prior to 1919 all common stock was required to have a par or face value, but at the present time, common stock in shares without par or face value may be provided for.⁵

The no-par-value stock law makes it possible to give a bonus of common stock to purchasers of bonds or preferred stock, and to issue stock for good will, patents and other property of uncertain value, without liability. It is difficult to use par value stock for bonus purposes. If a corporation gives its unissued par value stock as a bonus, and subsequently becomes insolvent, the purchasers of bonds or preferred stock who received the bonus may be liable to the creditors up to the par value of the bonus stock received by them.⁶ To avoid this liability, it was common practice, in former times, to issue par value common stock for intangible property, such as patents or good will. The stock being thus "paid up," the person to whom it was issued returned it to the corporation to be used as treasury stock for bonus purposes. But this did not completely remove the risk of liability. If it could be proved that the intangible property was fraudulently overvalued, the individual to whom the stock was issued could be held liable. Under the no-par-value stock law, however, a bonus of common stock may be given to purchasers of bonds or preferred stock, without risk of liability, if the bonus is properly authorized by the directors or stockholders.

Likewise, no-par-value stock may be issued for patents, good will or other property of uncertain value, without risk of liability.⁷ The use of no-par-value stock for this purpose has largely superseded the unsatisfactory device of issuing "watered" or "fictitiously paid" stock.

⁵ G. C., §§ 8728-1 to 8728-11. Two excellent papers on the Ohio no-par-value stock law have been published: one by Isador Grossman of the Cleveland Bar in 18 O. L. R. 269, 289, and the other by Frank H. Shaffer of the Cincinnati Bar in 19 O. L. R. 70. Some of the defects of the law pointed out in these papers have been removed by the 1921 amendments.

⁶ Hoffard v. Shoe Co., 95 O. S. 376, 381.

⁷ Property of uncertain value should not, of course, be used to pay up the amount of "common capital" stated in the articles of incorporation as that with which the corporation will begin business. Such "common capital" must be paid in cash or property at "actual value." G. C. § 8728-2.

No-par-value common stock has other advantages. Where bonds or preferred stock are issued, the law requires a substantial equity or capital to be represented by common stock, if the common stock has par value. Bonds are not authorized in excess of the paid-in capital stock.⁸ "The amount of preferred stock at par value" may not "exceed two-thirds of the actual capital paid in cash or property."⁹ Neither of these requirements applies to corporations organized under the no-par-value stock law,¹⁰ which requires merely that the number of preferred shares shall not exceed two-thirds of the total number of shares, preferred and no-par-value common, outstanding.¹¹

Therefore, by organizing under the no-par-value law, it is possible to keep control of the corporation with a small amount of capital. It sometimes happens that one or two men see an opportunity for a promising venture. Their own funds are limited, but friends have faith in their ability and are willing to invest money in the project, although unwilling to devote time or to assume any responsibility. The active men will do the work and bear the responsibility for the enterprise and very justly desire that the organization be effected in such a manner that its control can not be taken away from them if they make a success of it. This can not be accomplished by organizing a corporation with par value common stock, unless the active managers put a substantial amount of money into common stock. If the friends are to contribute $75,000, and it is desired to issue bonds to them, the paid up capital stock must be $75,000. Although $50,000 of this could be preferred stock, it would be necessary to have a paid up par value common stock of $25,000. If, instead of bonds, it is desired to issue preferred stock for the $75,000, a paid up par value common stock of $37,500 would be required.

But the corporation may be organized under the no-par-value law with a comparatively small amount of money invested in common stock. The only requirements are:

(1) At least $500 must be raised from the sale of the no-par-common stock.

¹⁰ Limit as to borrowing money inapplicable. G. C., § 8728-2.

¹¹ G. C. § 8728-1; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 260.

(2) The number of preferred shares must not exceed two-thirds of the total number of shares, preferred and common, outstanding. If $75,000 preferred stock is issued, divided into 750 shares of $100 each, there must be at least 375 shares of no-par-common.

No-par-value common stock may be divided into classes, one class having no voting power or restricted voting power.

Before organizing a corporation under the no-par-value stock law, the personal liability which it imposes on the directors should be given careful consideration. The amount of "common capital" with which the corporation will begin business must be stated in the articles of incorporation. Directors may be liable if they assent to the creation of debts before the amount of "common capital," as stated in the articles, has been fully paid in cash or in property taken at its "actual value." If the "common capital" is paid in property at less than "actual value" the directors may suffer personal loss although they acted in good faith and believed that they had accepted the property at its actual value.

This liability may be avoided by fixing the "common capital" with which the corporation will begin business at a sum which may be paid in cash. The "common capital" with which the corporation will begin business need not represent the entire consideration received for its no-par-value common stock. Such "common capital" may be fixed at any sum desired not less than $500. The probable credit requirements of the corporation must, of course, be given great weight in determining the amount of stated common capital, but for the complete protection of the directors the amount decided upon should be paid in cash, or, at least in property of unquestionable value.

The amount of fees, both on initial organization and annual franchise, payable by Ohio no-par-value stock corporations should also be taken into consideration before organization, especially where the issue of a large number of shares is contemplated. Par stock corporations pay an annual franchise fee of $1.50 on each $1,000 of par value stock, issued or outstanding, irrespective of the number of shares. No-par stock corporations pay an annual fee of five cents per share of no-par-value stock issued or outstanding. Where no bonus of common stock is to be given with bonds or preferred stock, and no stock is to be issued for property of uncertain value, organization under the no-par-value stock law may be considerably more expensive and have no compensating advantages.

Under the earlier Ohio no-par-value corporation law, it was possible to effect a considerable saving in fees by incorporating in Delaware, even where all the corporate business was to be transacted in Ohio. In 1921, however, the Ohio law was amended, the fees payable by Ohio no-par-value stock corporations being reduced and the fees payable by similar foreign corporations being increased.¹²

If the corporate business is to be transacted entirely in Ohio, no saving in fees can be effected by foreign incorporation, but if a substantial part of the business is to be transacted in other states, incorporation under the no-par-value law of Delaware or some other state may be less expensive.

§ 14. Capitalization. General considerations. In planning the capitalization of a corporation, in addition to the matters already discussed, the following should be taken into consideration:

(a) The Ohio Blue Sky Law and the Blue Sky Laws of the other states, if any, in which it is expected to sell stock or bonds.¹

(b) The possibility that additional financing may be necessary in the future. The amount of capital required is frequently underestimated, especially in the case of new enterprises. The form and amount of the original capitalization should, if possible, be planned so as to facilitate future financing.

(c) The expense, including organization fees, franchise taxes, both state and federal, and the federal stamp tax on issues and transfers of stock.²

(d) Future control of the corporation.

§ 15. Disposal of stocks and bonds. "Blue Sky" Law. It is difficult to describe the Ohio Blue Sky Law in a brief space, partly because of the numerous exceptions to its general requirements.¹ Speaking generally, and temporarily disregarding the exceptions, the law regulates the sale and disposal of corporate securities by (1) requiring a license to be taken out by sellers of securities, including a corporation which sells stock or bonds of its own issue, and (2) requiring issues of stocks and bonds to be approved and certified by the department² before the same are offered for sale. Before an issue of stock or bonds will be certified, detailed information³ must be furnished to the department on blanks which are furnished on request.

The consequences of overlooking or ignoring the Blue Sky Law may be serious. Violations are punishable by fine or imprisonment.⁴ And subscriptions to stock and contracts for the sale of corporate stock and bonds, made without complying with the law, are illegal and unenforceable.⁵

The law has occasionally been evaded by incorporating in a state which has no Blue Sky Law. This is usually possible only where the stock and other securities are taken by a small group, and where no stock is to be sold to the public, either directly or indirectly. In such cases, the subscriptions to stock by cash investors should be made, either in person or by proxy, outside of Ohio, in a state having no Blue Sky Law. If stock is to be issued for property, the entire transaction of offering the property to the corporation, accepting the offer, and issuing the stock, should be effected in the state of organization.⁶

There are three matters over which organizers of corporations have frequently had difficulty with the department: (a) promotion stock, and stock issued for patents, good will, etc.; (b) the amount of commissions to be paid for selling the securities; and (c) bonus stock to cash investors.

(a) The amount of stock issued for services, good will, patents, leases, contracts and property located outside of Ohio is closely scrutinized by the department, which in some cases has refused to certify the securities unless the amount of stock issued for the property was reduced, and in other cases has required such stock to be wholly eliminated. In all cases where stock is issued for intangible property, the patents must have been granted and assigned to the corporation, all contracts must have been properly executed and all leases properly recorded, before the security will be certified.⁷

The department has usually required all stock issued for patents, services, etc., to be placed in escrow with the department, or a trust company designated by it, to be held until the corporation is a demonstrated commercial success, and under an agreement that the stock held in escrow will not share in a distribution of assets of the corporation, in the event of liquidation while the stock is held in escrow, until all stock held by cash investors has been paid in full.⁸

(b) The amount of commissions payable for selling the stock is also scrutinized. Copies of all contracts with underwriters, brokers and agents must be filed with the application for certification of a security, and an irrevocable contract by each broker and salesman must be filed to the effect that the corporation will receive in cash not less than 85 percent of the proceeds of each sale of securities, without liability to pay any additional commission.⁹

(c) In some instances the department has required an increase in the amount of common stock bonus given to purchasers of preferred stock.

These three matters are, of course, not the only ones over which organizers of corporations have had difficulty with the department, but they have been frequent occasions of trouble and delay.

Exemptions. An Ohio corporation may dispose of securities, issued by it, without a license and without certification of the securities, under certain conditions. The disposal must be made in good faith and not for the purpose of evading the law, and must be for the sole account of the corporation, without any commission and at a total expense of not more than two percent of the proceeds realized plus $500. No part of the issue to be disposed of may be issued, directly or indirectly, for patents, services, good will, or for property not located in Ohio.

A statement of the existence of the above facts, and that the company is formed for the purpose of doing business in Ohio, must be made by the president and secretary, or by the incorporators if done before organization, and filed, before the securities are offered for disposal.¹⁰

Other exemptions in the law include the following:

(a) Exempt from obtaining a license.

1. National banks.
2. Any owner, not the issuer of the security, who disposes of his own property for his own account, when the disposal is not made in the course of repeated and successive transactions; a natural person, other than the underwriter of the security, who is the bona fide owner, and disposes of it for his own account.
3. One, who in a trust capacity created by law of the United States or Ohio or any other state, disposes of trust property.
4. An Ohio bank or trust company, not a regular dealer in securities, selling a security for a licensee, other than the issuer or underwriter, for a commission of not more than two percent.
5. One, not the issuer, who disposes of securities to a licensee or a company which regularly deals in or holds securities.
6. A pledgee, selling securities pledged to him as security for a debt, in good faith and not to avoid the law.¹¹

(b) Securities exempt from certification:

1. Securities issued by Ohio corporations not for profit.¹²
2. Securities, actual current sales of which, at prices quoted, have been from time to time for not less than six months next preceding the disposal, published in regular market reports in news columns of a daily newspaper of general circulation in Ohio.

3. Securities of manufacturing or transportation companies, common carriers and other public utilities, issued and outstanding in the hands of bona fide purchasers for value prior to March 1, 1914; if the companies were on said date, and are at the time of sale, actual going concerns, either directly or through lessees, and there is no default in the payment of any interest or principal, at the time of sale.
4. Where detailed information as to the security, other than the approximate selling price, is contained in a standard manual, approved by the department.
5. Where the disposal is made for a commission of less than one percent of the par value, by a licensed dealer who is a member of a regularly organized stock exchange, having an established and lawfully conducted place of business in Ohio, regularly open for public patronage as such.¹³
6. Securities authorized by the public service commission or like body of any state or Canadian province.
7. Securities sold by or on behalf of an underwriter who, in good faith and not for the purpose of avoiding the Blue Sky Law, has purchased said securities for cash or its equivalent, at not less than 90 percent of the price at which the securities are thereafter sold by him.
8. Securities of a common carrier or an Ohio corporation engaged principally in the business of manufacturing, transportation, coal-mining, or quarrying, and the whole or a part of the property upon which the securities are predicated is located in Ohio, provided the company is an actual going concern, having been engaged in its principal business for one year or more, and having no obligations which are past due and unpaid.

¹³ Exemptions under 1 to 5 inclusive. G. C., §§ 6373-10, 6373-14.

9. Securities of a real estate or building company, all of whose property upon which the securities are predicated is located in Ohio.¹⁴

(c) Securities exempt from the law, if there is no default in interest or principal at the time of sale, and if the same have not been judicially declared invalid:

1. Corporate bonds and notes, secured by first mortgage on real estate, if more than fifty percent of the entire issue is included in a sale to one purchaser.
2. Securities of quasi-public corporations, issued by authority of the public utilities commission.
3. Stock or obligations of a national bank, or a state bank, trust company or building and loan association, organized under Ohio laws, subject to state supervision.¹⁵

Although securities may be exempt from certification, they must be disposed of through a licensed dealer or by one exempt from obtaining a dealer's license.¹⁶

The law apparently does not contemplate that claims for exemptions be submitted to the department, except in the case of a corporation selling securities of its own issue, without commission, etc., mentioned above, in which case a statement must be filed by the president and secretary on Form No. 1 provided by the department.

However, Form No. 4 provided by the department, contains questions relating to some of the exemptions, and although it is probably unnecessary to answer them, it is usually advantageous to furnish the information. The opinion of experienced department officials is thus obtained, in advance of a sale of the securities, as to whether the exemption is a proper one. In view of the general tendency of governmental bureaus and commissions to determine doubtful cases in favor of the government, an opinion favorable to an exemption would be entitled to respect, although it would not be binding on future officials of the department or on courts which in the future might be called on to determine the legality of the securities.

Before certifying a security, the department may examine the books and property of the issuer, and if, in its discretion, all or any part of the expense of examination should be paid by the applicant for certification, it may require the applicant to deposit money for such purpose. Each issuer of securities to whom a certificate is issued must file with the department a financial statement as of June 30th of each year.¹⁷

Following is a partial list of the forms which have been prepared by the department. These may be obtained on application to the Division of Securities, Department of Commerce, Columbus, Ohio. Forms having no relation to private corporations are omitted.

4. Information as to securities to be sold, including information as to exemption from certification.

8. Application to amend license by adding names of agents.
10. Application to amend license by striking out names of agents.

§ 16. Organization. Outline of procedure. The formal proceedings by means of which a corporation is organized are briefly outlined as follows:

(1) An instrument styled in the Ohio statutes "articles of incorporation," is prepared and executed by five or more incorporators.

(2) This instrument is filed in the office of the secretary of state, where it is recorded and a certified copy furnished to the incorporators.

(3) Books for subscriptions to the capital stock are opened by the incorporators and notice thereof either published or waived by the incorporators.

¹⁷ G. C., § 6373-16.

(4) Subscriptions for stock are received by the incorporators, whose duty it is to then collect from each subscriber ten percent of his subscription.

(5) When ten percent of the entire capital stock has been subscribed the incorporators so certify in writing to the secretary of state. In the case of a corporation organized with no-par-value common stock, the incorporators' certificate may be made when five or more persons have subscribed for at least one share each.

(6) The first meeting of stockholders is then called by the incorporators, who publish notice of the meeting, unless notice is waived by all the subscribers.

(7) At the first meeting of stockholders the number of directors is determined, directors elected and usually a code of regulations adopted and a time fixed for the first meeting of directors.

(8) Before meeting the directors qualify by taking an oath. At their first meeting the directors elect officers and usually enact by-laws. This perfects the organization.

§ 17. Incorporators. a. Qualifications. Only natural persons may act as incorporators. Corporations, firms, and associations are not qualified.¹ Incorporators must be sui juris. Infants are not competent to act.²

At least five incorporators must act in every case. A majority must be citizens of Ohio.

Incorporators are not required to become subscribers to stock or to have any financial interest in the corporation.³ It is a frequent practice for the attorneys who are employed to incorporate a company, or their clerks, to act as the incorporators. This is sometimes done because the real parties in interest do not desire to be known in that connection. At other times it is for the purpose of convenience or to expedite the organization.

b. Functions. Incorporators have in charge the formal organization proceedings. They sign and acknowledge the articles of incorporation, receive subscriptions to the capital stock and receive payment of the first instalment of ten percent. When ten percent has been subscribed (or, in the case of a corporation organized with no-par-value common stock, when five or more persons have subscribed for at least one share each) they so certify in writing to the secretary of state and call and give notice of the first meeting of stockholders.

c. Liability. A person may become involved in liability by acting as an incorporator unless care is taken in one important particular. By signing a "certificate of subscription" and filing it with the secretary of state, the incorporators certify, in effect, not only that certain capital stock has been subscribed, but also that ten percent on each share subscribed for has been paid, and incorporators may be held personally liable for any deficiency in its actual payment.⁴

d. Dummy directors. Persons without financial interest in the corporation, who participate as incorporators in the formal organization proceedings, sometimes go further and act as temporary directors and transact business of importance on behalf of the corporation. When stock is to be issued for property, the owners of the property are disqualified from acting as directors in the transaction. In such cases the nominal parties usually subscribe for the small amount of stock necessary to qualify them, are elected directors and pass resolutions authorizing the issuance of stock for the property. In such cases it is prudent for the nominal parties to pay for the stock which they subscribe for, using their own money for the purpose. If the stock is paid for by the owners of the property, the validity of the transaction is doubtful unless the stock is clearly an outright gift by them to the nominal parties.⁵

The terms "dummy incorporators" and "dummy directors" are sometimes applied to the persons who act as incorporators and directors without financial interest.

§ 18. Articles of incorporation. "A charter is the instrument which creates the corporation."¹

In Ohio the formation of corporations is provided for by general laws. The charter of an Ohio corporation consists of the instrument known as "articles of incorporation" together with the general laws of the state.² Persons who fully comply with the general laws are entitled, as a matter of right, to organize a corporation. When articles of incorporation showing compliance with the general laws are presented to the secretary of state, with the proper fee, it is the duty of that officer to file and record the articles. He has no discretion except as to the form of the articles.³

Form. The matters to be set forth in articles of incorporation are specified by statute.⁴

The form of the articles is prescribed by the secretary of state. The better practice is to use the blank which is furnished without charge by that officer. If for any reason that is impracticable the language of such blank should be exactly followed.

Suggestions as to filling in and completing the blank forms are given in the paragraphs following.

When completed the instrument must be subscribed by the incorporators and acknowledged by them before a notary public or other officer authorized to take acknowledgments. The official character of such notary public or other officer must be certified by the clerk of the court of common pleas, and the instrument filed in the office of the secretary of state.

§ 19. Articles of incorporation. Statements in. Name of corporation. The name of a corporation for profit may begin with the word "the" and must end with the word "company," "corporation," "incorporated" or "inc."

When the business of a corporation is once established its name sometimes becomes of great value. The name is often inseparable from the good will.² It is therefore important, especially in manufacturing and mercantile enterprises, to select a name for the corporation which is distinctive and in which trade-name rights may be acquired and protected.

The secretary of state is prohibited from accepting and filing articles of incorporation in which the name is that already assumed by an existing corporation, either an Ohio corporation or a foreign corporation which has qualified to do business in Ohio,³ or so similar thereto as to mislead the public, without the written consent of the existing corporation; nor can a corporation adopt a name which is likely to mislead the public as to the character or purpose of its business.⁴

The action of the secretary of state in filing and recording articles of incorporation is not conclusive against another corporation having a similar name. The older company may enforce its rights by injunction.⁵

The use by a corporation of a name which infringes the trade name of an individual, or of another corporation, may be enjoined. The fact of being incorporated by such name is not a defense.⁶

When a corporation is formed to take over a partnership business the name of the partnership is usually adopted, with such change as may be necessary to make the corporate name end with the word "company," "corporation," "incorporated" or "inc." Even where partnership assets, including good will, are sold through a receiver, the corporation may adopt the name previously used by the firm.⁷

§ 20. Location of corporation. Articles of incorporation must contain a statement of "the place where" the corporation "is to be located, or where its principal business is to be transacted."¹

The office building or street address of the corporation need not be specified. The requirement is satisfied by stating, in the articles, the name of the municipality or place where the principal office is to be located. Where a corporation has several offices, the office where the stockholders meetings are held is regarded as the principal office.

Under a former statute, similar in some respects to the present law, it was held that a corporation might, at pleasure, move its office from one building to another, within the specified municipality or place, although the motive was to avoid taxation.²

The personal property of a corporation (except property located in other counties) is taxed in the municipality or township where its principal office is located,³ although much of its business is carried on elsewhere.

The statement in the articles of incorporation is conclusive as to the location of the office.⁴

Vessel companies and corporations engaged in certain other kinds of business are able to avoid the higher taxes of the cities wherein much of their business is actually transacted, by locating their principal offices in small villages, or rural townships, where the tax rate is low.⁵

The removal of the principal office of a corporation to another municipality or place is accomplished by an amendment of its articles of incorporation. A vote of at least three-fifths of the issued capital stock is necessary for this purpose.⁶

Where a corporation is organized to construct an improvement which is not located in a single place, the route and termini of the improvement must be designated in the articles, in addition to the statement of the place of its principal office.⁷ This applies to railroad, gas, telephone and other similar companies.

§ 21. Purpose of corporation. Corporations may be organized for any purpose for which individuals may lawfully associate themselves except for carrying on professional business.¹

The purpose for which a corporation is formed must be clearly stated in the articles. The nature of the business to be transacted must be specified. Where articles of incorporation do not clearly and definitely set forth the corporate purpose, or where the statement of the purpose is ambiguous, the secretary of state may refuse to file and record the articles.²

It is good practice to state the purpose in general terms. It is improper to attempt to enumerate incidental powers, which are conferred upon the corporation by the general law.³

Single purpose. Except where special provision is made by statute, a corporation can be organized for one main purpose only. Several different classes of business can not be united in one organization.⁴

But several purposes which are incident to the main purpose of a corporation may be combined. Thus, a corporation organized for the main purpose of operating a street railway by electricity may also furnish electric light and power.⁵

To carry out the main purpose several means may be joined. A corporation organized to furnish light may, in its articles of incorporation, provide for furnishing both gas and electricity for such purpose.⁶

The secretary of state has refused to file and record articles of incorporation in which it was attempted to join several purposes which were unrelated to the main purpose.

§ 22. The capital stock. The number of authorized shares must be stated in the articles of incorporation. Common stock without par value may be provided for, but if the no-par corporation is to have preferred stock as well, the preferred must have a par value of $5 per share or some multiple of $5 not exceeding $100.¹ The amount of such authorized preferred stock, as well as the number of shares and the par value of each must be stated. If the common stock is to have a par value, the total amount authorized, the number of shares, and the par value of each share must be stated.

All preferences and restrictions appertaining to the preferred stock must be specified in the articles.²

Considerations relating to the amount and form of the capital stock have been discussed elsewhere.³

Where stock has a par value it is usual to make the shares $100 each.

Before the enactment of the no-par-value stock law, where stock was to be placed in small amounts among numerous holders, it was sometimes deemed good policy to make the par value of each share $50 or $10. Shares in mining companies were often given a par value of $1 each. One of the objects of the no-par-value stock law was to provide a convenient form for the small investor.

§ 23. Articles of incorporation. Filing and recording.

Articles of incorporation are sent direct to the secretary of state, together with the proper fee. If the instrument is in proper form, and shows compliance with the law, it is the duty of the secretary of state to officially accept, file and record the same. In case of wrongful refusal, mandamus will lie to compel its filing and recording.¹

But where the instrument is defective in form, or where the corporate purpose is illegal, or unauthorized,² or is not clearly stated,³ or where it is attempted to unite several different classes of business,⁴ or the name of the corporation is misleading, or infringes the name of another corporation,⁵ or the law is not complied with in other respects, it is the duty of the secretary of state to refuse to file and record the same.⁶

Correction of defective articles. Where articles of incorporation are refused acceptance and record, the secretary of state returns the same to the incorporators with an explanation of the defects. In such case, it is not proper practice to attempt to alter the original instrument or to correct it by interlineation. A new instrument should be prepared, signed and acknowledged by the incorporators.⁷

Effect of filing. The filing and recording of articles of incorporation do not create the corporation; they are merely authority to the incorporators to do so. The business for which the corporation is organized should not be transacted until the requisite stock has been subscribed and paid and the directors chosen.⁸

Certified copy of articles. A certified copy of articles of incorporation, which have been filed and recorded, is furnished by the secretary of state to the incorporators. Such copy is by statute made "prima facie evidence of the existence of the corporation."⁹

In appropriation proceedings in addition to such certified copy it is necessary for the corporation to prove the legal and proper organization including the subscription and payment of the requisite stock and the legal election of directors. This would be the safe course to pursue in any case where it is necessary to prove the legal existence of a corporation.¹⁰

§ 24. Articles of incorporation. Amendments. Articles of incorporation may be amended in the following respects:

- (1) The corporate name may be changed.
- (2) The location of the corporation may be changed.
- (3) The corporate purposes may be modified, enlarged or diminished.

¹⁰Telephone Co. v. Cincinnati, 73 O. S. 64.

- (4) The number of shares of capital stock may be increased or decreased; preferred stock may be provided for, or unissued preferred stock may be dispensed with or changed into common stock; unissued common stock may be changed into preferred, or preferences and restrictions of unissued preferred stock may be amended, added to or eliminated; or there may be added matters omitted from the articles, or which might lawfully have been provided for in the original articles; or unnecessary provisions or provisions which might have been originally omitted may be taken out.

Limitations. A corporation can not, by amendment, change substantially the original purpose of its organization, nor may the capital stock, by amendment, be increased or diminished.

The restrictions upon the selection of the original corporate name apply also to a change of name.¹

Procedure. Amendments to articles of incorporation may be made only at a meeting of the stockholders, by a vote of the owners of at least three-fifths of its capital stock then subscribed. For the notices, or waivers of notices, required in connection with the stockholders' meeting, and for the certificate of amendment to be filed with the secretary of state, see the forms in the following chapter.

§ 25. Record or minute book. One book is usually sufficient to contain the record of the organization proceedings and also of the proceedings of the stockholders and directors.

A loose-leaf book is used to a considerable extent for this purpose, the advantage being that all records and minutes may be typewritten. Formerly loose-leaf books were subject to the objection that the records could be easily changed by the removal of pages and the substitution of others. At the present time loose-leaf books are made for this purpose, with the pages consecutively numbered and permanently marked, so that the risk of substitution is little if any greater than in the case of a bound book.

Many corporations, however, use a bound book, the minutes being written with pen, or typewritten on thin paper and pasted in the book. In the latter case, substitutions are possible. If, however, each page is attested by the signatures of the president and secretary, no substitution can be made without the aid of such officers.

For the purposes of a small corporation a book of 100 pages is adequate. Corporations whose directors hold frequent meetings keep separate books for stockholders and directors minutes.

Preparation of organization record in advance. In the case of small and close corporations where the directors, officers and organization details have been agreed upon in advance by the parties in interest, it is a not uncommon practice for attorneys in charge of the incorporation to prepare in advance the entire organization record including the minutes of the first stockholders' and directors' meetings and the certificates of stock. By this method the minutes as well as all waivers, certificates, subscriptions, consents, etc., are ready for signature, and the organization proceedings may be consummated and the record completed with a considerable saving of time. If the meetings are actually held and the formal procedure actually carried out the practice is believed to be valid.

Contents of record. Organization proceedings should be recorded in full so that the due and complete organization and legal existence of the corporation may be readily proved, should occasion require.

Upon receiving from the secretary of state the certified copy of the articles of incorporation, the record book should be opened. On the title page should be entered, "Record of proceedings of the Incorporators, Stockholders and Directors of The Company."

The following matters should be recorded in the order given:

Proceedings of incorporators.

- (1) Copy of the articles of incorporation, with all certificates.

- (2) Order for opening books of subscription, with notice or waiver.
- (3) Order designating one incorporator to receive payment of first instalment on stock.
- (4) If the common stock has no par value, an order fixing the consideration to be paid therefor by the subscribers.
- (5) If the stock is to be exempted under the Blue Sky Law on the ground that the stock is to be sold by the corporation, without commission, etc., order for the filing of a statement for the exemption.
- (6) Subscription agreement.
- (7) Certificate of subscription.
- (8) Order for first stockholders' meeting.
- (9) Notice, or waiver of notice, of first meeting of stockholders.

Proceedings of stockholders.

- (1) Minutes of first meeting of stockholders.
- (2) Regulations.
- (3) Assent to adoption of regulations.
- (4) Certificate (by incorporators) of election of directors.

Proceedings of directors.

- (1) Oath of directors.
- (2) Minutes of first meeting of directors.
- (3) By-laws.

Forms for the above entries are given in detail in the following chapter.

All orders, subscriptions, certificates, waivers, etc., should be signed in the record book. This places the record of the entire organization proceedings in a compact and convenient form.

§ 26. Subscriptions to stock. a. Opening books. After a certified copy of the articles of incorporation is received from the secretary of state the first important duty of the incorporators relates to subscriptions to the capital stock.

All of the incorporators need not act. A majority may open the subscription book and sign the certificate of subscription. But thirty days' previous notice of the opening of the subscription book must be published where only a majority act. Publication can not be waived unless all of the incorporators sign the waiver.¹

If the common stock has no par value, the incorporators should make an order fixing the consideration to be paid therefor by the subscribers.² No such order is necessary as to par value stock.

b. By whom subscriptions received. Before the election of directors, subscriptions are received by the incorporators. After the election of directors, the board has the right to dispose of whatever stock remains unsubscribed.³

c. Compliance with the Blue Sky Law. Whether incorporators may legally receive subscriptions without complying with the Blue Sky Law, is a question which has not been settled by judicial decision, and on which there is some difference of opinion among Ohio lawyers.⁴

Incorporators are expressly authorized by the Blue Sky Law to file a certificate for exemption where an issue of stock is to be disposed of without commission at a limited expense

³ Sims v. Street Railroad Co., 37 O. S. 565.

View that the law does not apply. The incorporators of a par value stock corporation, pursuing the organization procedure prescribed by statute, merely open a book and the subscribers sign the book for the purpose of providing the corporation with its original funds; the statutory subscription is a necessary part of the corporate organization, which is not complete until ten percent of the stock is subscribed and directors elected. There can be no corporation until there are stockholders. The Blue Sky Law could not have been intended to affect the original statutory subscriptions, because they are payable at par in cash only, and there are no questions of discount, commission expense, or fraud. See paper by Richard Inglis, 18 O. L. R. 515.

View that the law does apply. Under G. C., § 8627, corporate existence begins immediately upon the filing of the articles for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions to stock. For that purpose and until directors are elected, the incorporators are the corporation. They are authorized to "contract and be contracted with" and, therefore, have authority to make a valid contract to pay commissions for obtaining subscriptions. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 147. Excessive commissions were among the evils which the Blue Sky Law was intended to remedy.

and no stock of the same issue is to be issued for patents, services, good will, or property not located in Ohio.⁵

If the intention is to exempt the stock on the above ground, it is good policy for the incorporators to file the statement for exemption before receiving subscriptions and thus obviate any possible question of illegality of the subscriptions.

If the circumstances are such that the stock is not to be exempted on the ground above mentioned, then the incorporators should, if possible, comply with the Blue Sky Law.⁶ If it is decided to risk further proceedings without complying with the Blue Sky Law, then the minimum of stock necessary for organization purposes only should be subscribed for, and that preferably by the persons who are to be the first directors. After organization the directors should comply with the Blue Sky Law before disposing of more stock.

Because of the widespread belief that the Blue Sky Law does not apply to subscriptions received by the incorporators, the latter course has been followed in many instances, and it is believed that no very serious consequences will ensue unless the corporation belongs to a class authorized to appropriate property and attempts to exercise that power. For other practical purposes the corporate organization is sufficient.⁷ No one has been injured. The bulk of the stock has been certified or its exemption informally approved before disposition. Even if the courts should decide that the Blue Sky Law applies to organization subscriptions, the subscribers, under such circumstances, being the directors who authorized subsequent sales of the stock to others, could not repudiate their own subscriptions.⁸

d. Formal requisites of subscriptions. A subscription for stock must be in writing. A verbal agreement to take shares is not enforceable, in the absence of facts constituting an estoppel.⁹

The subscription need not be made in the book provided by the incorporators. A subscription on a separate paper is valid.¹⁰ The subscription need not contain a statement of the times of payment, as payment is provided for by the statute.¹¹

e. Ten percent payable with subscription. An instalment of ten percent on each share is payable at the time the subscription is made. The incorporators are authorized to receive payment of this instalment.¹²

It is good practice for the incorporators to designate one of their number, by an order entered in the record of their proceedings, to receive payment.¹³

Payment is frequently made in the form of certified checks payable to the order of the corporation, which are turned over to the treasurer of the corporation upon his election.

f. Medium of payment. The incorporators of a corporation with par-value common stock are authorized to receive money, but no other kind of property, in payment of the first instalment.¹⁴ Where the common stock is no-par-value stock, subscriptions may be received therefor "for such consideration as may be decided upon by a majority of the incorporators at the time of ordering books to be opened for subscription."¹⁵

g. Effect of nonpayment. A subscriber who has not paid the first instalment of ten percent may be excluded from voting at elections for directors.¹⁶

But failure to pay the first instalment does not release the subscriber from liability on his subscription.¹⁷

Incorporators of a par-value stock corporation may render themselves liable if they certify to the secretary of state that ten percent of the capital stock is subscribed, before ten percent of each subscription has been paid.¹⁸

h. Release or withdrawal. The incorporators being authorized to receive subscriptions, a subscription received by the incorporators after books have been opened is binding.¹⁹

Such subscriptions should be distinguished from subscriptions made before articles of incorporation have been filed, which have been held to be lacking in mutuality and not enforceable.²⁰

A subscription received by the incorporators is a contract, which can not be dissolved without the consent of both parties. The subscriber can not relieve himself from liability by attempting to withdraw or cancel his subscription. The corporation can not release the subscriber to the prejudice of any intervening creditor.²¹

Directors have no power to release or cancel a subscription, except with the unanimous consent of the other subscribers.²²

But the directors may compromise with and release a subscriber where there is a controversy as to his liability, or where the subscriber is insolvent.²³

Subscriptions obtained through fraud by promoters or representatives of a corporation may be rescinded, if the subscriber acts promptly upon discovery of the fraud.²⁴

i. Payment. As already stated, ten percent on each share is payable to the incorporators when the subscription is made. The balance is payable as required by the directors,²⁵ who may require the entire amount to be paid immediately, or may levy assessments as money is needed for the purposes of the corporation. Directors have power to accept property in payment of such balance.

After the first instalment of ten percent has been paid, nothing is due on a subscription until a call has been made by the directors specifying the person to whom, and the time and place where the instalment is payable.²⁶

A suit to collect an instalment can not be brought until sixty days after the time of payment designated in the call.²⁷

Where subscriptions are paid by instalments it is customary to issue transferable receipts for payments, the receipts being exchanged for certificates of stock when all the instalments are paid.

§ 27. Certificate of subscription. Liability of incorporators. As soon as ten percent of the capital stock has been subscribed or, in the case of a no-par-value stock corporation, when five or more persons have subscribed for at least one share each, and in either case when ten percent has been paid on each share so subscribed for, it is the duty of the incorporators, or a majority of them, to so certify in writing to the secretary of state. A blank form of such certificate is furnished to the incorporators by the secretary of state.

Incorporators sometimes fail to appreciate the full significance of the certificate of subscription, as, in the form provided, no mention is made of payment. Incorporators are liable for the amount of any deficiency in the actual payment of ten percent on each share of stock subscribed for.¹

In other words, by signing a certificate of subscription, incorporators become guarantors of the corporation to future creditors. This liability is a security for the creditors of the corporation, and may be enforced by creditors although they have no knowledge of the certificate.²

It is not difficult for incorporators to effectually guard against liability. They may, by order entered on the record of proceedings, designate one of their number to receive payment of the first instalment; and may refuse to accept any subscription unless the first instalment accompanies it.

It is probable that incorporators may refuse to call the first meeting of stockholders until the requisite sum is in the possession of the designated incorporator. If a first meeting is called, the incorporators have the right to act as inspectors or tellers of the first election of directors and may refuse to permit a subscriber to vote until he has paid the first instalment.³

All of the incorporators need not sign the certificate of subscription. A majority is sufficient.

In the case of corporations organized under the no-par-value stock law, the incorporators are merely required to certify that not less than five persons have subscribed for at least one share each and paid ten percent on each share subscribed for.⁴

Avoiding liability of incorporators under large capitalization. Where it is desired to issue a large part of the stock (of a corporation having common stock with par value) for property and to pay in the least possible cash for stock, a practice sometimes followed is to originally organize with a small capital stock, one-tenth of which is paid in cash. After organization the capital stock is increased to the desired amount. Incorporators have nothing to do with the increase, their duties and functions having ended with the organization and election of directors. All the increased stock is subsequently issued for property by the directors.

§ 28. First meeting of stockholders. The first meeting of stockholders is called by the incorporators after ten percent of the capital stock has been subscribed.

This meeting should be held within the state.¹

A notice of such meeting is required to be published thirty days before the time designated, but the notice may be, and in practice almost invariably is, waived in writing by all of the subscribers.²

For the routine of the first meeting of stockholders, see Forms in the chapter following.

The important business transacted at the first meeting consists of (1) the adoption of regulations, and (2) the election of directors.

§ 29. Regulations. a. Distinguished from by-laws. Provisions are contained in the Ohio statutes for regulations, which are adopted by the stockholders for the government of the corporation and for by-laws which are adopted by the directors for the government of the directors.¹

In many states the corporation laws provide for by-laws only, which are adopted by the stockholders and correspond to the regulations of an Ohio corporation.

A corporation is not required to adopt regulations, but a carefully prepared code of regulations is important, as it provides for many details which would otherwise, in all probability, be entirely omitted.

Regulations must be consistent with the constitution and laws of the state. Regulations are intended to supplement the general provisions of the statutes and to provide permanent rules relating to the administration of the affairs of a corporation, and also relating to organization, in matters of detail.

b. Provisions in. Certain matters are specified by statute,² as proper subjects to be provided for in the regulations. It seems that there is no authority to make regulations upon other subjects, although other regulations have been sustained as contracts.³

The number of directors is fixed by the stockholders, within the statutory limitation that the number shall not be less than five nor more than thirty. As a matter of convenience the determination of the number of directors is usually in the form of a provision in the regulations. Where the regulations provide that more than a majority vote is necessary for amendments thereto,⁴ the provision relating to the number of directors should be omitted from the regulations, and a separate resolution should be passed fixing the number. By statute, the number of directors may be changed by a vote of a majority of the stock at a stockholders' meeting.⁵ For customary provisions of regulations, see Forms in the following chapter.

c. Directors and officers, regulations relating to. Stockholders are authorized by statute to provide in the regulations for (a) "the duties and compensation of officers" and (b) "the manner of election, or appointment, and the tenure of office, of all officers other than the trustees or directors."⁶

This confers important rights upon the stockholders, viz., the right to control (1) the salaries, (2) and duties of officers, and (3) the election and term of subordinate officers.⁷

A complaint sometimes made against the management of corporations, is that dividends are improperly diminished by the payment of extravagant salaries to the officers.⁸

The stockholders, through appropriate regulations, may remove the temptation to such abuse of power by the directors. It is sometimes provided in regulations that each director shall receive a certain sum (ranging from $1 to $20) for his attendance at any directors' meeting, and that he shall receive no other compensation as director.

The salaries of other officers may be specified in the regulations; or it may be provided that such salaries shall be fixed yearly in advance by the stockholders at the annual meeting. Or the regulations may merely place maximum limits on salaries, leaving the exact amount to be determined by the directors.

In the absence of regulations on the subject, the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and other subordinate officers are chosen by the board of directors. Stockholders may, in the regulations, reserve the right to elect all of such officers,⁹ with the exception of the president.¹⁰

This right is infrequently exercised except in the case of the secretary. As these officers perform their duties under the supervision of the directors, it is generally deemed better policy to lodge the appointing power in the directors also.

d. How adopted. Regulations may be adopted, or amended, by the written assent of two-thirds of the stockholders, or by a majority of the stockholders at a meeting called for the purpose.¹¹

§ 30. Election of directors. a. Qualifications and terms of office. All directors must be the holders of stock in the corporation in an amount to be fixed by the by-laws, and a majority of the directors must be citizens of Ohio.¹

The voting at elections for directors must be by ballot. Directors elected at the first meeting of stockholders hold office until the next annual election, or until their successors are elected and qualified. Thereafter directors are elected for the term of one year.²

b. The procedure at elections is usually as follows: Nominations are called for by the presiding officer. When the nominations are closed, if there is a contest, tellers or inspectors of election are chosen, who take charge of the balloting.

If there is no contest, the secretary or some other officer may be instructed by motion to cast the ballot of all stockholders present for the persons nominated.

If there is a contest resulting in a tie on the first ballot, the stockholders have a right to ask for successive ballots until it is demonstrated that further balloting is futile.³

c. Tellers or inspectors of election. Stockholders are entitled to have the election conducted by tellers or inspectors of election. Where such officials are appointed, they, and not the president or chairman of the meeting, have the right to decide who may vote.

At the first election of directors the incorporators have a right to act as tellers or inspectors of election.⁴

At subsequent elections the right to choose the inspectors is vested in the stockholders, and not in the directors.⁵

Upon application by stockholders owning at least a one-tenth interest in the stock of a corporation, made prior to a stockholders' meeting, a court of common pleas may appoint three disinterested inspectors of election.⁶

d. Who may vote. In general, only persons who appear as stockholders on the books of the corporation are entitled to vote, in person or by proxy, at stockholders' meetings. The officers in charge of the election are governed by the stock books of the corporation. They can not take notice of the rights of third persons in the stock, nor can they refuse to permit a registered stockholder to vote.⁷

It is sometimes provided in the corporate regulations that only those persons may vote who appear on the books as stockholders for a certain period, usually ten days, prior to the meeting.⁸

Where stock is transferred during such period, it is customary for the transferrer to give a proxy enabling the transferee to vote at the meeting.

No person may vote on any stock on which an instalment is due and unpaid.⁹

Holders of preferred stock may vote unless by the terms of its issue the voting right is withheld.¹⁰

e. Proxies. Where a stockholder, in writing, authorizes another person to vote his stock at one or more stockholders' meetings, the written authorization is called a "proxy." The term "proxy" is also applied to the person to whom the authority is given.

A proxy may usually be revoked at any time by the stockholder, although by its terms it is "irrevocable."¹¹

A stockholder who attends the meeting is entitled to vote, although he has given a proxy.

Proxies are usually unrestricted, and in such case, the holder of the proxy may vote as he deems best.¹² But a proxy may designate the candidates for whom the votes shall be cast, and such a proxy does not authorize its holder to vote on any other question, even on a motion to adjourn the meeting.¹³

An executor is not authorized to give an unrestricted proxy. To be valid it must give express instructions for whom the votes are to be cast, leaving no discretion to the holder of the proxy.¹⁴ An officer or director of the corporation may act as proxy.¹⁵

A regulation of the corporation requiring proxies to be deposited with the secretary at least one day before the time set for the meeting is valid.¹⁶

f. Cumulative voting. A stockholder in an Ohio corporation has the right to cast his votes under the so-called cumulative system. He may vote "the number of shares owned by him for as many persons as there are directors to be elected, or . . . cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors multiplied by the number of his shares of stock equals, or . . . distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he thinks fit."¹⁷

Cumulative voting is authorized for the purpose of enabling minority stockholders to secure representation on the board of directors.

For each director to be elected a stockholder is entitled to one vote per share of stock registered in his name on the books of the corporation. Under the cumulative system a stockholder may cast all of his votes for one candidate, or he may divide them among a part, or all, of the candidates.

Where there are five directors, a person owning one share is entitled to five votes, all of which may be cast for one candidate. Or one vote may be cast for each of five candidates, or the votes may be divided among the candidates in any other other manner desired.

If 500 shares of stock have been issued and are represented at a stockholders' meeting at which five directors are to be elected, a minority which controls 85 shares is enabled, under the cumulative system, to elect one director. The 85 shares are entitled to 425 votes. The balance of 415 shares is entitled to 2,075 votes. If the 425 minority votes are cast solidly for one candidate, it is impossible for the majority to defeat him.

Under the cumulative system it is impossible for a minority to obtain control of the board of directors, if the majority act together and cumulate their votes. But if the majority scatter their votes, a strong minority of stockholders may be able to secure a majority of the board.¹⁸

Stockholders may cumulate their votes not only on the first ballot, but on successive ballots so long as any directors remain to be elected.¹⁹

§ 31. Regular meetings of stockholders. a. When held.

An annual meeting of stockholders is usually provided for in the regulations, which specify the time, place and manner of calling and conducting the meeting and for the number of stockholders necessary to constitute a quorum.¹

In the absence of a regulation on the subject, the annual meeting should be held on the first Monday in January of each year.²

Meetings of stockholders should be held within the State.

b. Notice. Where the time and place of the annual meeting are provided for in the regulations, notice of the meeting, or of the business to be transacted, is not required to be given unless the regulations provide for notice.³

Regulations sometimes require notice to be mailed to the stockholders, but stipulate that failure to give the notice shall not invalidate proceedings at the meeting. Under such a regulation, failure to give notice does not invalidate an election.⁴

The better practice, however, is to mail notices of all annual meetings. The notices should be signed by the secretary and a copy preserved, with the date of mailing.

If any business, other than the routine of the annual meeting, is to be considered at the meeting, it is prudent to mention it in the notice.

c. Closing of stock records. It is sometimes provided in the regulations that only those persons may vote who appear as stockholders on the stock books for a certain number of days before the meeting. Where the regulations contain such a provision it is customary to so state in the notice.

This provision is not, in effect, a closing of the transfer books. Transfers of stock may be made at any time, but the transferee can not vote as a stockholder unless the transferer gives a proxy enabling the transferee to vote at the meeting.

d. Presiding officer. The regulations usually provide that the president shall preside at meetings of the stockholders, and that the secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of stockholders. In the absence of the president, the vice-president should preside. In the absence of both president and vice-president, a chairman of the meeting should be chosen by the stockholders. In the absence of the secretary, a secretary pro tem should be chosen.

e. Quorum. A quorum at a stockholders' meeting is the number of shares of stock necessary to be represented by the holders, or proxies, in order that business may legally be transacted. This is usually provided for in the regulations, the customary requirement being a majority of the stock issued and outstanding.

If there is no regulation on the subject, the stockholders present in person or by proxy, at a duly called meeting, may transact the business of that meeting although a majority of the stock is not represented.⁵

⁴ State v. Kreutzer, 100 O. S. 246.

⁵ Lutterby v. Herancourt Brewing Co., 12 L. D. 67, 72, 73.

Where a quorum is required by the regulations, it is important to determine at the outset of the meeting, whether a quorum is present. This may be ascertained by a roll call, or by requesting the stockholders and holders of proxies to report to the secretary.

Proxies should be filed with the secretary.

If a quorum is present, that fact should be noted on the minutes.

If a quorum is not present, the meeting may be adjourned to a specified time when, if a quorum is secured, the meeting may proceed. Adjournment should be by action of the stockholders present.

f. Procedure at meetings. Stockholders' meetings are usually conducted according to the rules of parliamentary law. It is sometimes provided in the regulations that meetings shall be conducted according to Robert's Rules of Order or some other handbook on parliamentary law.

g. The order of business at stockholders' meetings is usually prescribed in the regulations as follows:

(1). Reading of minutes. The minutes of the preceding annual meeting, and of all special meetings of the stockholders held subsequent thereto, should be read by the secretary.

This is not always an unimportant part of the meeting. As minutes are proper evidence of the proceedings,⁶ all incomplete or ambiguous statements, or errors, should be corrected before the minutes are approved. The record, or form of statement of the previous proceedings, is approved by an approval of minutes at a subsequent meeting.⁷

(2). Reading of reports and statements. Reports are frequently made by the president, treasurer, and sometimes by other officers. After being read, the reports may, on motion, be ordered received and placed on file. Some reports may properly be referred to special committees or to the incoming board of directors for attention.

(3). Unfinished business. This includes matters which may have been considered at previous meetings, but not disposed of and also matters which have been referred to committees for attention.

⁶ Cook on Corporations, § 714.

(4). The election of directors has been discussed elsewhere in this chapter.

(5). New or miscellaneous business.

(6). Adjournment. The meeting may on motion be adjourned sine die, or to a definite time. An adjourned meeting is merely a continuation of the original meeting and notice of the adjourned meeting need not be given to the stockholders.⁸ Adjournment should be by action of a majority of the shares represented at the meeting.⁹ The directors have no power to postpone or adjourn a meeting.¹⁰

Where an annual meeting has been adjourned, the stockholders can not legally call a special meeting during the interim between the original meeting and the adjourned session.¹¹

§ 32. Special meetings of the stockholders. Unless waived by all stockholders of the corporation, two preliminaries are required for a special meeting of stockholders. (1) The meeting must be ordered or called by competent authority, and (2) Notice, specifying the time, place and object of the meeting must be given to all stockholders.

It is frequently provided in the regulations (1) that special meetings may be called by the board of directors or by a certain number of stockholders, and (2) that notice of the meeting may be given to the stockholders by mail.

No business can be legally transacted at a special meeting except that which is specified in the call and notice of the meeting.

Where a special meeting is held by consent of all the stockholders these rules do not apply. As a precautionary measure in such cases a waiver should be signed by all stockholders.

There are numerous statutory provisions for stockholders' meetings to take action on special matters. The provisions of the statute relating to the call for and notice of the meeting should be carefully followed in each case. Among the subjects specially provided for are the following: election of directors where, for any cause, directors have not been elected at the regular meeting; change in the number of directors; amendment of the articles of incorporation; amendment of the regulations; increase of capital stock; sale of entire assets of the corporation, and dissolution of the corporation.

§ 33. Minutes. The minutes of stockholders' meetings do not differ materially from the minutes of directors' meetings, except that the names of the directors present at the meeting are entered in the minutes, which is not the usual practice in making up the minutes of stockholders' meetings.

Matters are properly brought before a meeting in the form of motions or resolutions. Important matters are usually presented in the form of written resolutions. Other matters are brought up by motion, usually presented orally.

During a meeting the secretary, as a rule, takes notes of the proceedings and subsequently from his notes writes out the minutes in full. It is advisable to make up the full minutes within a short time after the meeting, before the circumstances are forgotten.

All motions and resolutions passed upon should be recorded in the minutes with the action taken thereon, whether favorable or adverse. It is not customary to mention the names of the persons by whom motions are made; but the names of the persons by whom important resolutions are offered are usually entered.

As motions are made verbally, care should be taken by the secretary to enter accurately the substance of every motion. When the secretary is in doubt as to the meaning of a motion, the person making it may be requested to repeat his motion, or to make it in writing.

The discussions over motions and resolutions are usually not entered, although the names of persons taking part in the debate are sometimes mentioned.

Reports, contracts and other instruments are frequently presented and acted upon at corporate meetings. Where the matter is important the document should be copied into the minutes. In other cases it is sufficient to describe the instrument so as to identify it, and to file the original.

Specimens and forms of minutes are given in the following chapter.

§ 34. Directors. a. Qualifications. A majority of the directors must be citizens of Ohio, and all directors must be holders of stock in the amount fixed by the by-laws.¹

A person not a stockholder may be elected a director and may, after election, qualify himself by acquiring stock.²

Where a director ceases to own stock, but continues to act as a director, he may be recognized as a de facto director and his acts as to third persons held valid.³

A person is not properly qualified where a share of stock is issued in his name merely for qualifying purposes, he indorsing and delivering the certificate of stock to the real owner, or agreeing to do so on demand.⁴ But stock may be given outright to a person for the purpose of qualifying him as a director,⁵ and a director may hold his shares in trust, where there is no agreement that the stock is held merely for qualifying purposes to be surrendered on demand.⁶

An oath, faithfully to discharge his duties as director, is required to be taken by each director before entering upon his duties.⁷

b. Interlocking directors. The Clayton Act, passed by Congress in 1914, provides that "no person at the same time shall be a director in any two or more corporations, any one of which has capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $1,000,000, engaged in whole or part in [interstate] commerce * * * if such corporations are or shall have been theretofore, by virtue of their business and location of operation, competitors, so that the elimination of competition between them would constitute a violation of * * * the anti-trust law." Interlocking directors of certain banks are also prohibited by the Clayton Act.

c. Number. The number of directors of a corporation is fixed by the holders of a majority of its stock, within the statutory limitation that the number must be not less than five nor more than thirty.⁸

Within the same limitations, the number of directors may be changed at a regular or special meeting of the stockholders. When majority stockholders become dissatisfied they may bring about a change in the policy of management by increasing the number of directors at a special meeting of stockholders.⁹

A director can not be ousted from his office by a decrease in the number of directors. In other words, a decrease in the number of directors does not become effective until the expiration of the terms of the directors then serving.

In practice the minimum number is usually the most satisfactory for small corporations. Where the stock of a corporation is equally divided between two separate interests, the number of directors is sometimes fixed at six, or some other even number, so that each interest may have an equal representation on the board.

In the case of large corporations, especially consolidated companies, a large directorate is not infrequently chosen in order that several interests may be represented on the board.

Where the number of directors is large, the work of the board is performed, to a considerable extent, through committees.

d. Term. The term of directors chosen at the first election continues until the time fixed for the annual election.¹⁰

Thereafter directors are elected for one year.¹¹

If no election is held at the time fixed for the annual meeting, or if an attempted election is invalid, the directors previously elected hold over and continue in office until their successors are properly elected and qualified.¹²

e. Vacancies on the board of directors caused by death, resignation, disqualification, etc., may be filled by the remaining directors, unless the by-laws otherwise provide.¹³

f. Meetings.¹⁴ Individual directors, as such, have no authority to represent the corporation. To bind the corporation the directors must act together as a board.¹⁵

Regular meetings of the board are usually provided for in the by-laws, to be held monthly or quarterly. No notice of regular meetings need be given to the directors unless notice is required by the regulations or by-laws.¹⁶

Notice of special meetings should in general be given all directors. But transactions at special meetings within the powers of the board of directors have been upheld, where a quorum was present, although a minority of the board were not personally notified of the meeting and were absent, but no objection was subsequently made by the absent members.¹⁷

Notice of a special meeting may be waived by all directors.

Where all the directors attend a meeting, failure to give notice does not invalidate the proceedings of the meeting, although notice is required by the by-laws.

g. Quorum. A majority of the entire board of directors constitutes a quorum.¹⁸

Directors must be present in person. A director can not act by proxy.¹⁹

Where a quorum is assembled, a majority of those present may bind the board and the corporation, although they constitute a minority of the entire board.²⁰

The acts of directors at a meeting at which a quorum is not present are voidable, but may be ratified by the acquiescence of the full board.²¹

A director who is personally interested in a contract to be authorized at a meeting is disqualified and should not be counted in determining whether a quorum is present.²²

h. Minutes. The minutes of directors' meetings do not differ materially from the minutes of the meetings of stockholders.

Where important business is transacted at a meeting, a practice sometimes followed is to insert below the minutes an approval thereof signed by all the directors.

i. Compensation. If the compensation of directors is provided for in the regulations of the corporation, directors are not entitled to additional compensation without the consent of the stockholders. Where no provision for compensation is made in the regulations, directors are probably entitled to reasonable compensation for their time and reimbursement for the expense incurred in attending meetings.²³

A director, who is also elected or appointed an executive officer of the corporation is entitled to reasonable compensation for his services as such officer although no agreement was made in advance regarding compensation, where the circumstances show that the intention of both parties was that he should be paid.²⁴ Where the regulations authorize the directors to fix the salaries of the executive officers, the action of a director in voting to increase his salary as an executive officer does not invalidate the action of the board,²⁵ unless the salaries are excessive under the circumstances.²⁶

Where directors have accepted compensation for a period of service they can not subsequently vote themselves "back pay" for the same period.²⁷

j. Resignation. A director has the right to resign at any time.²⁸ His resignation may be oral or in writing.

It is doubtful whether all the directors can resign at one time leaving the corporation helpless.

k. Powers. The corporate powers, business and property of corporations are exercised, conducted and controlled by the board of directors.

Within the limitations of the articles of incorporation, and the regulations of the corporation, the board of directors is supreme in the management of its affairs.²⁹

By express statutory provision, certain acts of unusual importance, such as a sale of the entire assets and property of the corporation, and the issuance of convertible bonds, are required to be ratified by stockholders.

It has already been stated that directors must act together as a board. One director as such has no authority to represent the corporation. The business transactions of the corporation are carried out through the executive officers or other agents; but the authority of such officers and agents must be traced to the board of directors in all cases, except where the officers' authority has been defined by the stockholders in the regulations.³⁰

The executive officers and other agents are chosen by the board of directors, unless by the regulations the stockholders have reserved the right to select them. Directors are eligible to become executive officers.³¹ pated in the directors' meeting at which the contract was authorized, is not wholly void,³² yet it may be avoided by the corporation upon a showing of its unfairness. It is the duty of a director to act in entire good faith, and to have no personal interest adverse to the corporation. He should refrain from making personal contracts which will restrict him in the free exercise of his judgment. An agreement by a director with reference to his official action (such, for instance, as an agreement that dividends will be declared and paid by the corporation), based upon a consideration personal to himself, is illegal and unenforceable.³³

Where contracts between the corporation and a director, including the fixing of the salary of a director for serving as an executive officer, come before the board for action, the better practice is for the interested director to refrain from voting, and for the minutes to so indicate.

m. By-laws. Directors may adopt by-laws for their government, consistent with the laws of the State and the regulations adopted by the stockholders.³⁴

n. Power to issue stock for property. A corporation may exchange its stock for property.³⁵

The board of directors has power (a) to accept property in payment of original stock subscriptions except the part required to be paid in cash, (b) to exchange for property any stock which remains unissued after organization, and (c) upon an increase of the capital stock to exchange for property that part of the increased stock which is not subscribed for by existing stockholders. Directors may accept property in payment of such subscriptions by existing stockholders.

The general rules of law governing such transactions require (1) that the property be taken at a fair valuation; (2) that the directors have no personal interest in the property or transaction; (3) that the directors act in good faith, and (4) that the property be such as may be purchased by the corporation in the prosecution of its business.

³² Rolling Stock Co. v. Railroad, 34 O. S. 450; Kirn v. Plumbing Co., 12 Ohio App. 55; 31 O. C. A. 47; motion to certify record overruled 17 O. L. R. 392.

The consequences of issuing par value stock for property at an over-valuation are discussed elsewhere.³⁶

Where corporations are organized to "take over" a "property" or business, a common procedure is to have the company incorporated by "dummy incorporators," sometimes clerks in the employ of the real parties in interest, or clerks in the office of the attorneys employed to attend the incorporation. The "dummy incorporators" subscribe for the minimum amount of stock necessary and pay the amount required to be paid in cash with their own funds. The incorporators are then elected directors, hold a directors' meeting, elect officers and adopt a resolution accepting a written proposition, made by the real parties in interest, to exchange property for stock. The "dummy directors" and officers then resign their positions, one by one, and the vacancies are filled by the election of the real parties in interest, who subsequently purchase the stock which has been subscribed and paid for by the "dummy directors."

When it is desired to pay up stock with property to the fullest extent permitted by law, and with the least possible cash, the following requirements should be taken into consideration:

Prior to the election of directors ten percent of the entire authorized capital stock must be subscribed (if the common stock is par value stock) and ten percent paid in cash on each share so subscribed for.

If the corporation is organized under the no-par-value stock law, it is sufficient for organization purposes that five or more persons subscribe for at least one share each, and pay ten percent on each share subscribed for. Before business can be commenced, or debts incurred, the common capital stated in the articles of incorporation must be fully paid in cash or in property taken at its actual value. The stated common capital may be fixed at any sum, not less than $500, irrespective of the number of no-par-value common shares.³⁷

³⁷ G. C., §§ 8728-1, 8728-2.

Although ten percent of the authorized capital stock of a par stock corporation must be subscribed for, and ten percent paid in cash on each share subscribed for, there is no requirement that any part of increased capital stock be paid in cash. A practice sometimes followed is to organize with a small capital stock, ten percent of which is paid in cash. After organization the capital stock is increased, the original stockholders waive their right to subscribe for the new stock, and all the new or increased stock is issued for the property.

Where any part of an issue of stock is issued for patents, services, good will or property not located in Ohio, the Blue Sky Law should be taken into consideration.³⁸

Whether the stock issued for property is taxable income to the person receiving it, should be investigated.

o. Liability. Directors may become personally liable: by incurring debts before ten percent of the capital stock has been paid in,³⁹ or, in the case of a no-par-value stock corporation, by assenting to the creation of debts before the stated common capital has been paid in full, and a certificate to that effect filed with the secretary of state;⁴⁰ by gross negligence whereby assets of the corporation are lost or wasted;⁴¹ by issuing or attesting false statements as to the financial condition of the corporation;⁴² by engaging in a business not authorized by the articles of incorporation, and wholly foreign thereto;⁴³ by fraudulently dealing with the property of the corporation to their own profit;⁴⁴ and for false statements in a prospectus or advertisement of the stock or bonds of the corporation.⁴⁵

By statute directors are also made personally liable for declaring dividends otherwise than out of surplus profits determined as directed by the statute; for advertising a greater dividend than has been actually earned and paid; and for advertising a larger amount of capital stock than has actually been subscribed and paid in.⁴⁶

Directors may be liable criminally, if, knowing the corporation to be insolvent, they sell securities issued by it, without disclosing to the purchaser the fact of insolvency.⁴⁷ They may also be criminally liable for acts committed in conducting the corporate business.⁴⁸ They can not shield themselves behind the corporation.⁴⁹

Trustees of corporation not for profit. The trustees of a corporation not for profit are liable for all corporate debts by them contracted.⁵⁰

As business men are often unwilling to assume such liability, clubs and other organizations are frequently incorporated as corporations for profit, although their purposes are really not for profit.

§ 35. Committees of the board. Executive committee. An executive committee is provided for in the regulations of many corporations. In larger corporations a finance committee is not uncommon. A loan or discount committee is usually appointed by the directors of banks.¹

These are permanent or standing committees of directors appointed to exercise certain powers of the board of directors during intervals between meetings of the board. The object of such committees is to render unnecessary frequent meetings of the board and to provide authority in cases where action must be taken quickly. Standing committees are more frequent in large corporations having numerous directors than in the case of small corporations. A small committee is more easily convened than a large board and its decisions are more promptly and definitely reached.

The membership of a standing committee is determined by the regulation by which it is authorized. In many cases the president, treasurer and sometimes one other officer, ex officio, constitute the executive committee. The treasurer is usually ex officio a member of the finance committee. In other cases the members of the committee are chosen by the board. All members of standing committees must be directors.

Powers. The supervision and control of transactions in the usual course of business may undoubtedly be delegated to an executive committee.²

Whether the discretionary powers conferred upon directors by statute³ may be delegated to a committee has not been decided in Ohio. In other jurisdictions there is some conflict of authority upon the subject. It is said that, by the weight of authority, such powers may be delegated to an executive committee composed of directors, and that its acts and contracts are binding on the corporation.⁴

Where the acts of an executive committee are subsequently approved by the board of directors, no question can arise as to the powers of the committee. The question may arise, however, where the acts are not brought to the attention of the board, or, being brought to its attention, are repudiated.

In view of the unsettled condition of the law regarding the powers of an executive committee, it is advisable to clearly define in the regulations the duties and powers of the executive committee and to limit its functions so far as possible to transactions arising in the usual course of business.⁵

Where no executive committee is provided for in the regulations the board of directors may appoint such a committee, at least with limited powers, through a by-law provision or a resolution.

A standing committee should transact its business at meetings of which all members should have notice.⁶ A record of its proceedings and acts should be kept and frequent reports thereof made to the board for approval.

A standing committee is sometimes used as a device for the purpose of excluding minority directors from participation in the active management. An executive committee authorized to exercise "all the powers of the board" during intervals between meetings may (in jurisdictions where such powers may legally be delegated to the committee) become in effect the real managing body of the corporation.

This may be guarded against by inserting, in the regulation by which the committee is authorized, a provision requiring the members of the committees to be elected by the unanimous vote of the board of directors.

The executive officers are the president, secretary and treasurer,³ and probably also the chairman of the board, vice-president, managing director, etc., where such officers are provided for in the corporate regulations.⁴

b. Qualifications. The president must be a director.⁵ The other executive officers are not required to be members of the board of directors, but all executive officers must be holders of stock in an amount fixed by the by-laws.⁶

In practice the vice-president and treasurer are usually chosen from among the members of the board. The secretary is in many cases not a director. In small corporations two offices are frequently held by the same person.

c. By whom elected or appointed. The executive officers are chosen by the board of directors except where, in the regulations, the stockholders have otherwise provided for their selection. The stockholders may, in the regulations, reserve the right to elect all of the officers,⁷ with the exception of the president.⁸

d. Powers and duties. The powers of executive officers are derived from (1) statute, (2) the regulations adopted by the stockholders, and (3) the board of directors.⁹

By statute, the president and secretary are authorized and required to execute stock certificates¹⁰ and certain certificates and reports to the state.

The regulations may, and usually do, contain provisions defining the duties of officers. All other powers of the executive officers are derived from the board of directors. The active business of a corporation is managed and controlled by the board of directors. Corporate contracts are usually negotiated and executed by the executive officers, but the authority of the officers to do so should, in some manner, be traced to the board of directors.¹¹

The executive officers are agents merely. Authority is conferred upon them in the same manner in which the authority of agents is bestowed in other cases. It may be given by the directors expressly in the form of by-laws, or by motion or resolution; or the authority may be given informally, by consent or acquiescence of the board. Unauthorized acts of officers may be ratified by the board of directors.¹²

In general, the burden of proof of an officer's authority rests on the party who affirms it.¹³

But in some cases the authority may be presumed. Written contracts and other instruments are usually executed in the name of the corporation by one or more of the executive officers. It is usually provided in corporate regulations that "the president shall sign all contracts, notes, and other papers executed by this company." In the absence of such a regulation instruments are generally executed by the president, with the consent or acquiescence of the directors. It has been held that an instrument or contract, executed in proper form by the president and delivered, with the corporate seal affixed, is presumed to have been authorized by the directors, and that the burden of proof rests on the party denying such authority.¹⁴

This presumption is applied only to matters within the usual authority of the president. There is no presumption that the president is authorized to convey the entire property of a corporation,¹⁵ to make an assignment for creditors,¹⁶ to execute a cognovit note,¹⁷ to sell a bond issue of the corporation, and to employ a broker for that purpose,¹⁸ or to make promissory notes payable to himself.¹⁹

A certificate of stock issued to the president or secretary personally is valid in the hands of a bona fide holder, although issued fraudulently, the president and secretary being authorized by statute to execute such certificates.²⁰

e. Compensation. The stockholders, by appropriate provisions in the regulations, have the right to fix or limit the salaries of officers, or to provide that such salaries shall be fixed by the stockholders from time to time. In the absence of such a regulation the salaries may be fixed by the directors.

An executive officer is entitled to reasonable compensation for his services although no agreement was made in advance for compensation, where the circumstances show that it was the intention of all the parties that he should be paid.²¹

In practice certain officers serve without the expectation of compensation.²²

In view of the foregoing, it is advisable to insert provisions regarding salaries in the regulations or by-laws, fixing in advance the salaries which are to be paid, and, where certain officers are to serve without salary, specifically stating that such officers shall receive no compensation.

f. Resignation or removal. An officer may usually resign at any time, unless he has entered into a contract with the corporation to serve for a certain time, in which case he may be liable for damages in the event of resignation. Where an officer has been appointed or elected for a certain term, and has accepted the appointment, a contract for that term is consummated. The officer can not be removed without liability for damages, unless the removal is for cause,²³ such as embezzlement or breach of trust.

g. Liability. Officers are not personally liable on corporate contracts within their authority, and within the powers of the corporation. But when they exceed their authority, officers may be held personally liable.²⁴

Officers should make all contracts in the name of the corporation.²⁵

Where an officer makes a contract or signs promissory notes, in his own name, he may be held personally liable thereon, although he has no personal interest in the transaction and did not intend to bind himself. Where he signs "John Doe, Treasurer," he is still personally liable. To relieve himself from liability the signature should be "The A. B. Company, by John Doe, Treasurer."²⁶

An officer may be personally liable for negligence or misconduct in the discharge of his duties. He may also be held personally liable for fraudulent or reckless and careless misrepresentations as to the financial condition of the corporation, which are relied on by other persons to their injury.²⁷

h. President. The president must be chosen from the members of the board of directors. He has, by virtue of his office, only such powers as are given him by statute, viz., to sign stock certificates and to make certain reports and certificates to the state. All other powers of the president are derived from the regulations or from the directors.

His duties as usually defined in the regulations are to preside at meetings of the stockholders and directors, to sign all bonds, contracts, notes, etc., of the corporation, and to perform other duties assigned to him by the directors.

As to the authorization by directors of the acts of the president see "Powers" above.

i. Chairman of the board. This office is sometimes created by the regulations of large corporations. The duties of the incumbent are usually limited to presiding at the meetings of the directors.

j. The vice-president performs the duties of the president in the absence or disability of the latter. In large corporations several vice-presidents are provided for, termed first vice-president, second vice-president, etc., and in some cases active executive duties are prescribed for the incumbents.

k. The secretary keeps the records of the meetings of the stockholders and directors, has charge of the corporate seal and the stock books, and together with the president executes certificates of stock,²⁸ and certain reports and certificates to the state.

As in the case of other executive officers the secretary has only such powers as are given him by statute, regulations, or the board of directors.²⁹

He has no implied authority to bind the corporation by statements to the effect that the corporation had refused to perform a contract,³⁰ nor has he implied authority to sign a petition for a street improvement, making the property of the corporation liable for an assessment.³¹

³¹ Minor v. Board of Control, 20 C. C. 4; 11 C. D. 16.

The secretary must obey the orders of a court of competent jurisdiction respecting the books of the corporation in his possession, and may be held for contempt of court for wilful disregard of such orders. It is no defense that he is acting under the orders of the directors.³²

1. Treasurer. The customary duties of the treasurer include the receipt and custody of all moneys and securities of the corporation, and the supervision of its accounts and financial affairs.

Usually the by-laws require all moneys received to be promptly deposited in some specified bank. All bank accounts should be kept in the name of the corporation. If a deposit of corporate money is made under the name of the treasurer, any loss by reason of the failure of the bank may fall upon the treasurer personally.

The treasurer is usually required to give bond in an amount sufficiently large to protect the corporation against loss.

Where a corporation is a creditor of a bankrupt, the claim should be proved by the oath of the treasurer. If that is impossible owing to his absence or disability, the proof may be made by another person having knowledge of the facts, but in such case the reason why the proof is not made by the treasurer must be stated.

m. General manager. The duties of a general manager, when such officer is provided for in the regulations, are usually to have charge of the transactions occurring in the usual course of the business of the corporation.³³

Transactions not occurring in the ordinary course of business are usually beyond his authority. It has been held that a general manager has no authority to sign a petition for a street improvement, making the corporate property liable for an assessment.³⁴

n. Managing director The office of managing director is sometimes provided for in the regulations. A director appointed to this office usually performs the duties of the general manager, but he is given larger powers. He is regarded as the direct representative of the directors and, in the active management of the business, as the highest executive officer.

A certificate of stock is not the stock itself but merely evidence of its ownership.² A person may be a stockholder without a certificate. The person who appears on the books of the corporation as the owner of stock is entitled to vote and to receive dividends. He is entitled to these rights although no certificates have been issued by the corporation, or although his certificates have been lost.³ Certificates of stock, however, are valuable as evidence of title. They enable the stockholder to readily dispose of his stock, or to use it as collateral security.⁴

A stockholder is not entitled to a certificate until his stock is paid in full.⁵

Where stock subscriptions are paid by instalments it is customary to issue transferable receipts for the payments; the receipts being exchanged for certificates when all the instalments are paid.

b. Negotiability. Certificates of stock issued after July 1, 1911, are negotiable, under the Uniform Stock Transfer Act.⁶

Certificates of stock issued prior to July 1, 1911, do not possess the legal essentials of negotiable instruments, but as a general rule, the corporation itself and former owners of the stock are estopped from setting up claims to stock evidenced by such certificates in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value.⁷

Liability of transferee. Where stock represented by certificates has not been fully paid, a purchaser who has notice of that fact may be liable to creditors for the amount unpaid. But a purchaser for value without notice that the stock is unpaid is not liable. The statement "full paid and non-assessable," printed on a stock certificate, is a representation by the corporation that the stock has been fully paid and the purchaser need not inquire further.⁸

c. Transfers. When stock is assigned the assignee is entitled to have the stock transferred to his name on the books of the corporation, and to have a new certificate issued to him.⁹

The regulations of most corporations contain provisions relating to the transfers of stock and the issue of new certificates. It is usually provided that old certificates must be surrendered before new certificates are issued in their place. In such a case where a corporation issues a new certificate without requiring a return of the old certificate which is subsequently presented by an innocent purchaser, the corporation is liable and must replace the stock or account for its value to the purchaser.¹⁰

d. Method of transfer. A form of assignment is customarily printed on the back of each stock certificate. In practice a stockholder usually transfers his stock by affixing his signature to the blank without filling in the name of the assignee or of the attorney to make the transfer on the books of the corporation. Certificates thus assigned in blank may be transferred by delivery only until the name of an assignee is filled in, in which case it should be presented for transfer on the corporate books. The name of the secretary is usually filled in as the attorney to make the transfer on the books. When surrendered for transfer a certificate should be marked "cancelled" by the secretary and pasted on the stub from which it was detached.¹¹

Trust companies are frequently employed by large corporations to act as transfer agents or registrars. This is for the purpose of guarding against an overissue of stock and as a guaranty to the public of the genuineness and regularity of certificates.

A transfer agent usually has possession of the stock certificate book, cancels surrendered certificates, fills out new certificates and, after they are signed by the president and secretary, the transfer agent endorses or otherwise authenticates the certificates.

A trust company is authorized to act as transfer agent or registrar.¹²

A registrar keeps a record or register of all stock issued and transferred, and countersigns the new certificates as issued.

e. Consequences of failure to transfer. On the books of the corporation, stock appears in the name of the original stockholder until the certificates are presented for transfer. A purchaser or pledgee of stock who merely holds the certificates endorsed in blank, and does not present them for transfer, is not entitled to vote and incurs the risk that the dividends may be paid to the transferrer. Furthermore, notices of stockholders' meetings and of proposed corporate action on important matters, such as a sale of the entire corporate property, or a consolidation, are sent to the person registered on the books as the owner. In some instances purchasers and pledgees of stock have suffered losses which might have been averted by a prompt transfer.¹³

f. Pledged stock. When stock is used as collateral security for a loan or credit, the certificates are usually assigned in blank and delivered to the pledgee together with a "collateral note." The pledgee is entitled to have the stock transferred to his name on the corporate books,¹⁴ the word "pledgee" usually being entered on the stock record after his name.

If the stock was issued by a foreign corporation and is taxable in Ohio, it is taxed in the name of the pledgor, where it has not been transferred to the pledgee on the corporate books.¹⁵

By holding the endorsed certificates, without a transfer on the corporate books, the pledgee does not avoid taxation on the note, or debt due him, but does avoid taxation on the stock.

Before the double liability of stockholders was abolished in the year 1903 there were good reasons why a pledgee should not have the stock transferred to his name. Where the stock was transferred the pledgee became the stockholder and became subject to the double liability; while such liability was avoided by merely holding the assigned certificates without a transfer.¹⁶

Since the abolishment of the double liability (except as to bank stockholders) this reason no longer exists. If the pledgee desires to collect the dividends, to vote and to receive notices of corporate meetings he should have the stock registered in his name.

g. Transfer of stock standing in name of deceased person. Inheritance tax law. The inheritance tax law prohibits a corporation from transferring on its books stock which stands in the name of a deceased person, without the written consent of the state tax commission.¹⁷ Failure to observe this requirement may render the corporation liable for the inheritance tax,¹⁸ but a corporation is not liable if it transfers stock in good faith without knowledge of the death of the stockholder, and without knowledge of circumstances sufficient to place it on inquiry.¹⁹

Foreign corporations licensed to do business in Ohio must comply with inheritance tax law, if their stock books are kept in Ohio, but need not do so if their stock books are kept outside of the state.²⁰

h. Lost certificates are usually provided for in corporate regulations, new certificates being issued in place of those lost, the corporation taking a bond of indemnity from the stockholder as security against loss from the reappearance of the old certificate in the hands of an innocent purchaser.²¹

The loss of a certificate does not deprive a stockholder of his right to vote and receive dividends, but without a certificate it is difficult for him to dispose of his stock.

An owner of a lost certificate may, by a proceeding in the probate court, require the corporation to issue a new certificate, upon the giving of a bond.²²

§ 38. Taxation of stock. a. In Ohio corporations. No person is required to list for taxation shares of stock in any Ohio corporation.¹

b. In foreign corporations. As a general rule, shares of stock in foreign corporations held by residents of Ohio are taxable in Ohio and the holders of such stock are required to list the same for taxation.²

But to this rule there is an important exception. Where all the property of a foreign corporation is taxed in the name of the corporation in Ohio, the stock of such corporation is exempt from taxation.³

Stock in a foreign corporation is also exempt from taxation where its holder furnishes satisfactory proof to the taxing authorities that at least two-thirds of the property of such corporation is taxed in Ohio and the remainder in other states; providing the corporation pays, as an annual franchise tax, the same percentage on its entire authorized capital stock that is required of a domestic corporation on its subscribed or issued stock.⁴

But if any part of the corporate property is taxed in a foreign country, the stock is taxable in Ohio.⁵

§ 39. Reorganization under the no-par-value stock law.¹

A corporation originally organized with par value common stock may be reorganized under the no-par-value stock law. There are a number of circumstances under which such a reorganization is advantageous. Where new financing is necessary, and it is decided to issue preferred stock or bonds, and give a bonus of common stock to purchasers, reorganization will provide no-par-value stock which may be given as a bonus without liability. If par value common stock is used for bonus purposes there is danger of liability to corporate creditors.²

In cases where the original common stock of a corporation was issued for property of doubtful value, the persons to whom the stock was issued remain under possible liability, if the corporation should become insolvent. Reorganization will extinguish the liability of such stockholders to future creditors, although liability to existing creditors remains unaffected.³

If a corporation desires to acquire property of uncertain value and to pay for it with common stock, reorganization under the no-par-value law will avoid possible liability on the part of the persons to whom the stock is issued.

If the market price of par value common stock is too high for the stock to be popular with investors generally, reorganization under the no-par-value stock law, and an increase in the number of shares, may help the situation.

¹ The advantages and disadvantages of original organization under the no-par-value stock law were discussed in Sec. 13(c).

² Hoffard v. Shoe Co., 95 O. S. 376, 381.

³ G. C., § 8728 8.

In a reorganization under the no-par-value law the common stock may be divided into classes, one or more of which have no voting rights or restricted voting rights.

Prior to the enactment of the Federal Revenue Act of 1921, reorganization under the no-par-value law was frequently utilized to accomplish mergers, consolidations and readjustments of classes of stock, without the excessive income taxes which would have attached if the transaction had been carried out with par value stock.

Reorganization under the no-par-value act may be somewhat expensive, as no credit is allowed to the corporation for the fees paid on original organization.⁴

Reorganization must be authorized by the stockholders. If every stockholder entitled to vote signs the certificate of reorganization, no stockholders' meeting is necessary. But reorganization may be authorized by the holders of two-thirds of the voting shares at a meeting of which two weeks' notice is given. If non-voting preferred stock or other non-voting stock is affected by the proposed reorganization, either by a proposed change in its terms or provisions, or an increase in the number or par value of its shares, or by any such change in a class of stock senior thereto, then such non-voting stock has full voting power upon the question of reorganization.⁵

The amount of common capital with which the reorganized corporation will begin to carry on business must be stated in the certificate of reorganization. If such stated common capital is less than the total par value of the previously issued and outstanding common stock, there must be annexed to the certificate an affidavit of the president or vice-president, and the secretary or treasurer, "setting forth the whole amount of the ascertained debts and liabilities of the corporation," and approval of the Commissioner of Securities (Chief of Division of Securities, Department of Commerce) must be endorsed on the certificate of reorganization to the effect that the stated common capital is sufficient for the proper purposes of the corporation and that the corporation has tangible assets equal to or in excess of its ascertained debts and liabilities and the stated common capital, and also the par value of its preferred stock, if any, outstanding or to be issued in exchange for outstanding stock.⁶

No debts may be incurred by the reorganized corporation until it has assets of actual value equal to the stated common capital, and a sworn statement of the president or vice-president and treasurer as to such facts must be filed. Directors who assent to the creation of any such debts are personally liable therefor.⁷

§ 40. Increase of capital stock. a. Before organization, both common and preferred stock or common stock only may be increased, if all the authorized capital stock is fully subscribed and ten percent paid on each share, by all the original subscribers consenting in writing to the increase and authorizing the incorporators, or a majority of them, to file a certificate of the increase with the secretary of state. The certificate must be filed before the increased stock is disposed of.

b. After organization, the common stock may be increased, if the authorized common stock is fully subscribed for and ten percent paid on each share, by a vote of the holders of a majority of all the stock (including preferred stock) at a stockholders' meeting called by a majority of the directors. Thirty days' notice of the meeting must be given both by publication and by letter to each stockholder whose address is known.

An increase by both common and preferred stock or common stock only may be effected, if the authorized common stock has been fully subscribed for and ten percent paid on each share, at a meeting at which all stockholders (including preferred stockholders) are present, in person or by proxy, and, in writing, waive notice of the meeting and agree to the increase, specifying the amount of increase and the proportion of common and preferred, when both are increased.

An increase by preferred stock alone may be effected at any time, upon the written consent of three-fourths of the stockholders representing at least three-fourths of both the subscribed and issued capital stock.¹

Where the increase is by preferred stock alone, it is not necessary that the authorized stock be fully subscribed and ten percent paid on each share.² Where the original articles of incorporation did not provide for preferred stock, the articles of incorporation should be amended so as to provide therefor.³

Upon any increase after organization, a certificate of increase must be filed with the secretary of state, before increased stock is issued.⁴

c. Disposition of new stock. Each stockholder is entitled to subscribe for and take new stock in proportion to his holdings of the old stock. This right may be waived by a stockholder. If a stockholder fails to avail himself of his right within the time fixed by the directors, the directors may dispose of the stock to others.⁵ Stockholders have no subscription rights in "any authorized and unissued stock appropriated by the board of directors, either for the purpose of retiring preferred stock or for any other purpose."⁶

Where capital stock is increased, there is no requirement that a certificate of subscription be filed with the secretary of state.⁷

Directors and stockholders may, however, incur a personal liability by acting as if it had been subscribed. In one case where an increase of capital stock was properly authorized by stockholders, a certificate of such action filed with the secretary of state, and a bond issue put forth on the faith of such increased stock and no effort was made to sell the new stock, it was held that an intention was thereby shown on the part of the stockholders to take new stock in proportion to their original holdings, and a judgment against the stockholders was rendered accordingly.⁸

d. Stock dividend. Where a surplus of corporate assets, in excess of all debts and of the capital stock, has been earned, the capital stock may be increased and the new stock distributed among the stockholders in the form of a stock dividend.⁹ This is frequently done where the market price of stock is considerably above par. Stock dividends are not "income" to the stockholders under the federal income tax law.¹⁰

§ 41. Reduction of capital stock. With the written consent of the persons in whose names a majority of the stock stands on the books of a corporation, the directors may reduce the amount of its capital stock and the nominal value of all the shares.¹

The statute provides that the rights of corporate creditors can not be affected by a reduction of the capital stock. Where the subscriptions to the original capital stock have not been entirely called in, or assessed to the full amount, before the reduction of the stock, the subscribers will remain liable to existing creditors in the original amount.

Where corporate assets have been reduced by losses, the capital stock is sometimes reduced to bring it to the level of the assets, and to make the book value of the stock approximately par.

The annual franchise (Willis law) tax is assessed not on corporate assets but on the issued and outstanding stock. By a reduction of the capital stock, a saving is effected in such tax. The credit of the corporation is not affected, in many instances, by the reduction, as the nominal capital stock is not often relied upon in extending credit to a corporation.

§ 42. Organization of corporation to take over business of partnership or another corporation.¹

Corporations are frequently organized to take over the business of a partnership or of another corporation. Payment for the property and business transferred is usually made in the form of stock in the new corporation.²

One of the important things to be provided for in such cases is the indebtedness of the partnership or old corporation, if any indebtedness exists. Where partnership property is transferred to a new corporation, organized to continue the business, payment being made wholly in stock of the new corporation, the new corporation may be liable for the debts of the partnership.³

¹⁰ Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U. S. 189.

This rule does not, of course, apply where the new corporation purchases the assets for cash, unless the transaction is a fraudulent one.

Where the partnership, or old corporation, is solvent and the change is made to obtain the advantages of the corporate form of organization or for other good reasons, the debts may be assumed by the new corporation as a part of the transaction.

In investigating the financial condition of a corporation, its possible liability for federal income taxes for past years should not be overlooked. If its returns have not been checked by internal revenue examiners, and finally approved, security against liability should be taken.

Where the partnership or old corporation is insolvent or in serious financial embarrassment, there are grave objections to assuming its debts and it is difficult, if not impossible, to acquire its assets except for cash.

In case of insolvency the assets may be purchased for cash from the trustee in bankruptcy or assignee for creditors. But the value of the good will of the old concern will be largely destroyed by bankruptcy or an assignment. It is often possible for the old concern to effect a private settlement or composition with the creditors, without the financial difficulties becoming publicly known and without any cessation of business.

A corporation can not dispose of its entire property, except by the action of three-fourths of its directors, ratified at a stockholders' meeting by three-fourths of the votes cast.⁴

Where the property of a corporation is taken over, the foregoing proceedings should be taken.

³ Andres v. Morgan, 62 O. S. 236: Creditors may recover a judgment against the new corporation ib. Or they may, by other proceedings, reach the property transferred. Bank v. Trebein, 59 O. S. 316; Cook on Corporations §§ 672, 673.

⁴ G. C. §§ 8710 to 8718.

Where a partnership is succeeded by a corporation the partnership name is usually adopted by the corporation, with such changes as are necessary to make it conform to the statutory requirement that a corporate name must commence with the word "The" and end with the word "Company."⁵

Before determining the basis on which stock is to be issued for the property of the partnership or old corporation, attention should be given to the question of how much, if any, taxable income will accrue to the persons to whom the stock is issued.⁶

§ 43. Ohio corporation doing business in other states. An Ohio corporation which enters another state to "do business" or "transact business" is, in such state, a foreign corporation. A state has power to wholly exclude foreign corporations from doing business within its borders, or it may admit them under any reasonable conditions or limitations.¹ But a state has no power to exclude or impose conditions upon a corporation engaged in interstate commerce, which transacts no business within the state other than interstate commerce.²

a. What is "doing business" in state. A foreign corporation which maintains a stock of goods within the state, from which deliveries are made of goods sold, is doing business in the state.³

But a foreign corporation is not doing business in the state where it maintains no stock of goods in the state and limits its business to shipping goods into the state, upon orders, and it need not register as a foreign corporation. This is true whether the orders are obtained through traveling salesmen or correspondence,⁴ or a resident broker,⁵ or whether the corporation maintains an office in the state with a resident agent in charge, for the purpose of soliciting orders.⁶

⁵ For right to adopt partnership name, see Snyder Mfg. Co. v. Snyder, 54 O. S. 86.

Nor is it doing business in a state to consign goods to a commission merchant, located in the state, where the commission merchant conducts all the business in the state and pays all expenses of receiving, handling and storing the goods.⁷

A single and isolated transaction is not doing business in the state.⁸

Although it is not "doing business" in a state to merely ship goods into such state to fill orders, yet subsequent acts or dealings with reference to the goods may change the character of the transaction. The attachment of lightning rods to houses, by the seller, after the same have been shipped into the state, is "doing business" in the state.⁹ A manufacturer who sells his product to wholesalers in a state, and subsequently sends his salesmen into the state to take orders from retailers, the orders being turned over to wholesalers in the state, is "doing business" in the state.¹⁰ Construction work by a foreign corporation is "doing business," although the materials have been shipped from outside of the state,¹¹ as is also the business of repairing automobiles sold into the state in interstate commerce, and selling second-hand cars taken in part payment for new cars.¹²

Ohio corporation should, as a rule, qualify in other states before doing business therein. The consequences of failure to qualify are serious, in many states. In some states, the officers as well as the corporation are subject to fines and penalties. In many states, all contracts made by an unlicensed foreign corporation are void and unenforceable by the corporation, even in federal courts.¹³ In several states the officers, and, in a few states even the stockholders, are personally liable for debts and obligations of the corporation.¹⁴

The requirements and procedure for qualifying in each state may be found in Parker's Corporation Manual, published annually.

In a few states, the fees and conditions imposed on foreign corporations are excessive. A foreign company which expects to transact much business in such a state may find it advantageous to organize a subsidiary company, under the laws of such state.

§ 44. Foreign corporations entering Ohio. A foreign corporation is one that has been organized under the laws of another state or of a foreign government.¹

Foreign corporations are permitted to do business in Ohio upon compliance with certain conditions. There are two laws imposing conditions upon foreign corporations entering the State: (a) the license fee law and (b) the franchise tax law.

a. The license fee law applies to nearly all private business corporations and requires the procurement of a certificate or license from the secretary of state.²

In order to procure a certificate from the secretary of state a corporation is required to file a sworn copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, and a statement showing the amount of its authorized capital stock, the kind of business proposed to be carried on, and to designate a principal office or place of business and a person upon whom process may be served, and to pay a small license fee based on its authorized capital stock.³

b. Initial franchise tax. Corporations which own or use a part or all of their capital or plant in Ohio must procure the certificate already mentioned and are further required to pay a franchise tax of one-tenth of one percent "upon the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the corporation represented by property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio."⁴

c. Method of computing franchise tax. This tax is based, not upon the property owned and used and business transacted in this state, but upon the proportion of the total authorized capital stock represented by such property and business. The proportion which the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio bears to the entire property and business of the corporation is the proportion of the capital stock on which the tax is based. Thus, where the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio is $25,000, the entire corporate property and business $50,000, and the authorized capital stock $100,000, the tax is based on one-half of its authorized capital stock, or $50,000, the Ohio property and business being one-half of the total property and business. If all of its property and business were in Ohio the tax would be based upon its total authorized capital stock, although all of the authorized capital stock has not been subscribed or issued.⁵

³ G. C., §§ 179, 180.

d. What corporations are subject to law. A foreign corporation organized to carry on professional business is not entitled to a certificate from the secretary of state as foreign corporations are permitted to enter the state to carry on only such business as may lawfully be carried on by Ohio corporations.⁶

The franchise tax law⁷ does not apply to banking, insurance, building and loan or bond investment corporations or to corporations engaged in interstate commerce. A foreign corporation engaged in interstate commerce which is not subject to the laws gains no advantage by voluntary compliance with their requirements.⁸

A foreign corporation engaged in purchasing mortgages through a local agent, who has no authority to approve mortgages or consummate purchases, and in making collections on the mortgage notes through local agents, need not comply with the franchise tax law, but should comply with the license fee law.⁹

A foreign corporation organized to deal in real estate may be admitted to do business in Ohio, but the application for admission should expressly limit its life in Ohio to twenty-five years.¹⁰

e. Consequences of failure to comply with law. A foreign corporation can not maintain an action upon a contract made by it in this state until it has complied with the statutory requirements.¹¹

A contract made by a foreign corporation, before complying with the statutory requirements, is void on its behalf but is enforceable against it.¹²

The property of a foreign corporation "doing business" in Ohio without complying with the statutory requirements is subject to attachment.¹³

A foreign corporation engaged in interstate commerce which is not subject to the law does not become exempt from attachment by a voluntary compliance with the requirements.¹⁴

Certain penalties and fines are provided in the acts for noncompliance with the requirements, but in this respect the acts appear to be wholly unadjudicated.¹⁵

f. Annual franchise tax. A foreign corporation is required to file an annual report with the secretary of state and to pay an annual franchise tax of "three-twentieths of one percent upon the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the corporation represented by property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio, and to be not less than ten dollars in any case." This tax is computed on the same basis as the initial franchise tax mentioned above.

A foreign corporation which transacts no business in the state is not liable for the annual franchise tax, although it may have voluntarily paid the original license fee.¹⁷ too large for successful accomplishment by a single individual.¹

Syndicates are usually formed for the purpose of promoting or financing large corporations, or of holding corporate stocks and bonds.

Before an enterprise is incorporated, or its securities are offered to the public, it is often necessary or advantageous to obtain options on property, or to purchase property, and sometimes to develop and improve the property and place the enterprise in the situation of a going concern. For such purposes large amounts of money are often required. Where a syndicate is formed, its members contribute funds with which the property is acquired or developed. The property is subsequently turned over to the corporation and the stocks, bonds or money received from the corporation for the property are distributed among the members of the syndicate in proportion to the amounts contributed by each.²

Where, after the organization of a corporation, an issue of bonds, or of preferred stock is to be offered to the public, it is often desirable that there be some assurance or guaranty to the corporation that all of the securities will be sold. This is sometimes accomplished through an "underwriting syndicate," which agrees to purchase all of the bonds or stock which remain unsold at the end of a certain period.

The agreement. A syndicate agreement usually recites the purposes of syndicate and, where the syndicate is formed to raise funds, binds the members who are usually termed "syndicate subscribers," to pay in the amounts set opposite their respective names. The mutual promises of the parties to the agreement constitute the consideration.

A syndicate agreement usually appoints a treasurer to receive and disburse the funds, and one or more "syndicate managers" to act as agents or attorneys in fact for the syndicate and to take active charge of the business.

The powers of the syndicate managers are usually defined in detail. Extensive discretionary powers are sometimes conferred. Under some circumstances, the managers have the status of promoters and occupy a fiduciary relation to the subscribers.³

A trust company is sometimes named as "depository." In one case the trust company was held to be a mere agent of the syndicate managers and not a trustee for the subscribers.⁴

Legal status. Judicial decisions as to the legal status of syndicates and the liabilities of syndicate members have not been entirely harmonious. This is perhaps due to the fact that individuals have united under the name "syndicate" for widely different purposes, and under agreements containing entirely dissimilar provisions. Whether the members of a syndicate are liable as partners has been variously decided. In a number of cases they have been held to be partners.⁵

In one case syndicate members were said to be "quasi partners" with the syndicate manager, whose relation to the members was "analogous to that of a partner to his copartner."⁶ In another case, the managers were held to be the principals and not agents for the syndicate subscribers.⁷

The true rule probably is that a syndicate is not necessarily a partnership, but the liability of its members for the acts of the syndicate managers or agents depends upon whether there exists "a basis of fact for the legal implication of agency."⁸

Optional Preferred Stock Clauses.

NOTE.—The following optional clauses may be used, whether the common stock is par value or no-par-value stock, unless otherwise indicated. All of the optional clauses should not be used in one preferred stock issue, as some of the provisions are contradictory. When one clause is adopted, care should be exercised against the use of inconsistent provisions.

(a) PREFERRED STOCK LIMITED TO PREFERENTIAL DIVIDEND.¹

The holders of preferred stock shall not be entitled to any dividends in excess of percent per annum and the arrears thereof; nor shall they be entitled to stock dividends, nor otherwise to share in the profits of the corporation, nor to subscribe for any new issue of stock or increased stock, whether common or preferred, nor shall any preferred stock be exchanged or in any manner converted into common stock.

(b) PREFERRED STOCK TO PARTICIPATE IN ADDITIONAL DIVIDENDS.

When dividends of percent have been paid for any fiscal year on the entire preferred and common capital stock, issued and outstanding, further dividends for that year shall be paid on all stock without distinction (add, if desired), until dividends of twelve (12) percent (including the preferential or priority dividend aforesaid) have been paid on said preferred stock. Thereafter during such year the holders of preferred stock shall not be entitled to any dividends.

(c) PREFERRED STOCK NOT ENTITLED TO VOTE.

The holders of preferred stock shall not be entitled to notice of meetings of the stockholders, nor to vote on the preferred stock at any such meetings, except meetings called to consider and act upon subjects or questions with respect to which voting rights are conferred by statute upon the holders of preferred stock.

(d) PREFERRED STOCK ENTITLED TO VOTE, EXCEPT AT ELECTIONS OF DIRECTORS.

The holders of preferred stock shall have no voting rights or powers in the election of directors, but on all other subjects or questions submitted to the stockholders, the holders of preferred stock shall have equal voting rights with common stock.

(e) PREFERRED STOCK TO HAVE EQUAL VOTING RIGHTS, UPON DEFAULT OF DIVIDENDS, ETC.

The holders of preferred stock shall not be entitled to vote thereon at meetings of the stockholders of said corporation, nor to receive notice of such meetings, unless two consecutive quarterly (or, semi-annual) dividends thereon shall be in default, or unless the corporation shall have made default with respect to any other of the provisions or terms of the preferred stock, but then, and in any such event, the holders of preferred stock shall have full voting rights while such default continues, but no longer. During the period of such default, special meetings of the stockholders shall be called upon the written request of the holders of shares of the preferred stock.

(f) PREFERRED STOCK TO HAVE EXCLUSIVE VOTING RIGHTS, UPON DEFAULT OF DIVIDENDS, ETC.¹

The holders of preferred stock shall have no voting rights or powers whatsoever, except such as are conferred by statute upon the holders of preferred stock; nor shall they be entitled to notice of meetings of the stockholders except meetings called to consider and act upon subjects or questions with respect to which voting rights are granted by statute to preferred stockholders; Provided, however, that if the corporation shall have made default in the payment of preferential dividends on the preferred stock for two consecutive quarterly (or, semi-annual) periods, or shall have violated, or made default in the performance or observance of any of the other provisions or terms of the preferred stock issue, then, and in any and every such event, during the continuance of such default or violation, but no longer, the holders of preferred stock shall be entitled to notice of all stockholders' meetings and shall have the sole and exclusive right to vote thereat, and the holders of common stock shall have no voting rights or powers whatever. (g) PROVISION FOR REDEMPTION.

Such preferred stock may be redeemed, in whole or in part, at the option of the corporation, expressed by resolution of the directors, at any time after, 19...., on the date when any preferred dividend is payable under the provisions hereof, by the payment of dollars ($.....) per share and all accumulated dividends.

Upon any partial redemption, the shares to be redeemed may be selected by lot or pro rata, as the directors may determine, or, at the option of the board, the same may be purchased in the open market for a price not in excess of the redemption price above specified.

Notice of redemption shall be given by registered mail to each preferred stockholder whose stock is to be redeemed, at the address appearing on the corporate records, at least thirty days prior to the date fixed for redemption. All rights of the stockholders to whom notice shall be so given, by virtue of such stock ownership, except the right to receive the redemption value, shall cease and terminate on the date fixed for redemption, unless default shall be made in payment of the redemption price upon a tender of the certificates evidencing the stock.

All stock redeemed under the provisions hereof shall be cancelled and not reissued.

(h) SINKING FUND FOR REDEMPTION.

After providing for payment of the cumulative dividends on the preferred stock, and before any dividends are declared, paid or set aside to or for other stockholders, the directors shall set aside from the remaining surplus earnings for each year a sum equal to 10% of the par value of the entire preferred stock then outstanding, as a sinking fund to be held and used for the redemption of the preferred stock and for no other purpose. This sinking fund provision shall be cumulative, so that if in any year the surplus earnings shall be insufficient for the purpose aforesaid, then no dividends shall be paid to, or declared or set aside for, any stockholders other than preferred stockholders.

Moneys set apart for said sinking fund in any fiscal year may, during such year, be applied by the corporation to the redemption of preferred stock by purchase in the open market at a price not exceeding the redemption value herein specified.

If any moneys remain in said sinking fund thirty days after the close of any fiscal year, the corporation shall, not later than forty-five days from the close of such fiscal year, give notice by mail to the registered holders of preferred stock that sealed proposals will be received for the sale of preferred stock to the sinking fund, at a price not exceeding $..... per share and accrued dividends (being the redemption value thereof) up to the amount of money in the sinking fund at the close of such fiscal year, and that such sealed proposals will be opened by the treasurer on a specified date, which shall be not less than twenty nor more than thirty days after the mailing of the notice. After the opening of the proposals the corporation shall immediately apply all moneys remaining in the sinking fund, at the close of such fiscal year, to the purchase of the preferred stock so offered, at the lowest prices bid, not exceeding the redemption value thereof, upon delivery of the certificates evidencing the same.

In the event that more preferred stock is offered at the same price than can be purchased, the directors may purchase pro rata or determine by lot which shares shall be purchased. In case no preferred stock shall be offered at or below the redemption value thereof, or if the bids shall be insufficient to exhaust the moneys in the sinking fund, then the corporation shall immediately proceed to redeem sufficient preferred stock to exhaust the same, in such manner as shall be determined by the directors. All preferred stock purchased or redeemed with moneys from the sinking fund shall be retired, cancelled and not reissued.

(i) NET ASSETS PROVISION.

The corporation shall at all times maintain net current assets at not less than one hundred percent (100%) and total net assets at not less than two hundred percent (200%) of the total par value of the preferred stock then outstanding.

(j) ANNUAL AUDIT.

The corporation shall, between January 1 and April 1 of each calendar year, until the preferred stock has been wholly redeemed and retired, cause to be made an audit of its affairs and condition, by a certified public accountant, and a copy thereof to be mailed to each holder of preferred stock, at the address appearing on the company's records.

An annual inventory shall be taken, at cost or market value, whichever is the lower, and the annual audit shall be made upon the basis thereof.

(k) INSURANCE.

The corporation shall at all times carry fire insurance on all its buildings, fixtures and personal property to the amount of not less than 80 percent of the full insurable value thereof.

(l) CLAUSE PROHIBITING LONG TERM OBLIGATIONS, MORTGAGES, LIENS AND OTHER PREFERRED STOCK ISSUES.

The corporation shall not, without the affirmative vote or written consent of the holders of seventy-five percent (75%) or more of the preferred stock at the time outstanding, issue or create any prior preference stock or preferred stock having priority over, or parity with, the preferred stock, or issue or create any bonds, notes, debentures or other indebtedness or obligation maturing more than one year after its date, or any mortgage or lien other than a purchase money mortgage on newly acquired property (and then not in excess of sixty percent (60%) of the purchase price thereof), nor shall the corporation, without such affirmative vote or consent, become guarantor or surety for a subsidiary or affiliated corporation on any such obligation or indebtedness.

A transfer of assets or property by the corporation to a subsidiary, controlled or affiliated corporation, and the creation by the transferee of any mortgage or lien thereon (other than a purchase money mortgage to the transferrer corporation), and the issue or creation by the transferee of any indebtedness or obligation because of ownership of such assets or property, shall be deemed to be a violation of the terms of this preferred stock issue.

(m) SALE OF ENTIRE ASSETS AND BUSINESS PROHIBITED.

The corporation shall not sell or dispose of its entire plant, assets, business or good will or any real estate, without the affirmative vote or written consent of the holders of seventy-five percent (75%) or more of the preferred stock at the time outstanding.

(n) RESTRICTION ON COMMON STOCK DIVIDENDS.

No dividend shall be declared, set aside for, or paid to, the holders of the common stock, if the corporation is then in default for the payment of any dividend on the preferred stock, or has made default in the performance or observance of any of the provisions or terms thereof with respect to the preferred stock; nor if the payment of such common stock dividend will or may create a default therein; nor shall any dividend be declared, set aside or paid on the common stock unless and until the full preferential dividend on the preferred stock for the current year, and the full amount herein required to be set aside for the sinking fund for such year, shall have been set aside for such purposes out of its surplus profits.

In no event shall the dividends declared or paid in any year on the common stock exceed eight percent (8%) (or, if the common stock is no-par-value stock, $..... per share) until the preferred stock shall have been redeemed in full.

(o) AUTHORIZING DIVIDENDS ON COMMON STOCK UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS

Whenever full cumulative dividends on the preferred stock for all previous years shall have been paid, or declared and set aside out of surplus profits of the corporation, and the entire preferential dividend on the preferred stock for the current year shall have been declared and set aside out of surplus profits of the corporation, and the corporation is not in default in the performance or observance of any of the terms or provisions hereof with respect to the preferred stock, then the directors may declare dividends on the common stock of the corporation, payable then or thereafter, out of the remaining surplus profits.

(p) PREFERRED STOCK NOT TO BE CONVERTED INTO COMMON STOCK.

None of the preferred stock shall be exchanged for common stock or in any manner converted into common stock.

(q) OPTION TO CONVERT PREFERRED INTO COMMON STOCK.

The holder of any number of shares of preferred stock may, at his election, on surrender of his certificates thereof, convert the same into common stock, in the ratio of shares of common stock for each share of preferred stock.

(r) RIGHTS OF PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS LIMITED TO TERMS OF ISSUE.

The holders of preferred stock shall have no rights or powers except such as are herein expressly granted.

(s) RIGHTS OF PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS INVIOLETE.

The rights and powers herein granted to the holders of preferred stock shall be inviolate and shall not be abridged, modified or changed without their consent.

(t) VOTING RIGHTS NOT EXCLUSIVE REMEDY OF PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS.

The right to vote, herein conferred upon the preferred stockholders, shall not deprive the preferred stockholders of any remedy to which they may be entitled at law or in equity or by statute to enforce any of the provisions hereof with respect to the preferred stock.

(u) PRIORITY IN ASSETS.

In the event of any liquidation or dissolution of the corporation, whether voluntary or involuntary, the holders of the preferred stock shall be entitled to be paid in full the par value of their shares together with dividends accumulated and unpaid thereon, before any amount shall be paid to the holders of any other stock, but shall not be entitled to share further in the assets of the corporation or the proceeds of liquidation. After the payment to the holders of the preferred stock of its par value and the unpaid accrued dividends thereon, the remaining assets of the corporation shall be distributed and paid to the holders of the common or other stock according to their respective rights.

(v) PRIORITY IN ASSETS—ANOTHER FORM.

Upon the voluntary liquidation, winding up or dissolution of the corporation, or voluntary distribution of its assets, the holders of preferred stock shall be entitled to the sum of one hundred and ten dollars ($110) per share, together with all accumulated dividends, but no more, before any sum shall be paid, or assets distributed, to the holders of common stock; but after payment of the sum aforesaid to the holders of preferred stock, the remaining assets and funds shall be divided and paid to the holders of common stock according to their respective shares.

Upon any involuntary liquidation, winding up or dissolution of the corporation, the holders of preferred stock shall be entitled to the par value thereof together with all accumulated dividends, before any sum shall be paid, or assets distributed, to the holders of common stock; but after payment of the sum aforesaid to the holders of preferred stock, the remaining assets and funds shall be divided and paid to the holders of common stock according to their respective shares.

No. 6.

Preferred Stock Clause. First, Second and Third Preferred Stock with No-Par-Value Common Stock.

FOURTH. The total number of authorized shares which may be issued by the corporation is six thousand shares, of which three thousand shares shall be common stock, without nominal or par value, one thousand shares shall be first preferred stock of the par value of $100 each, one thousand shares shall be second preferred stock of the par value of $50 each, and one thousand shares shall be third preferred stock of the par value of $25 each.

The terms and provisions under which the preferred stock shall be issued are as follows:

The holders of first preferred stock shall be entitled to receive, when, if and as declared from the surplus profits of the corporation, annual dividends at the rate of 8% per annum payable semi-annually on the first day of January and July. Such dividends shall be in preference to and priority over all other stockholders, and shall be cumulative, so that if in any year dividends at the rate aforesaid shall not be paid thereon, the deficiency shall be payable before any dividends may be paid, declared or set apart for any other stock.

Whenever cumulative dividends on the first preferred stock shall have been paid in full for all previous years, and money sufficient to pay the dividend on the first preferred stock for the current semi-annual period shall have been set apart therefor, the holders of the second preferred stock shall be entitled to receive, when, if and as declared out of the surplus profits of the corporation, remaining after payment of the cumulative dividends on the first preferred stock as aforesaid, annual dividends at the rate of eight percent per annum, payable semi-annually. The dividends on the second preferred stock shall also be cumulative, and shall be payable before any dividend shall be declared, paid or set apart for third preferred stock or the common stock, so that if in any year dividends at the rate aforesaid shall not be paid thereon, the deficiency shall be payable before any dividends may be declared, paid or set apart for the third preferred stock or the common stock.

Whenever cumulative dividends on the first preferred stock and the second preferred stock shall have been paid in full for all previous years, and money sufficient to pay the current dividends thereon for the current semi-annual period shall have been set aside for the first preferred stockholders and the second preferred stockholders, the holders of the third preferred stock shall be entitled to receive, when, if and as declared out of the surplus profits of the corporation, remaining after payment of the cumulative dividends on the first preferred and second preferred stocks as aforesaid, annual dividends at the rate of eight percent per annum payable semi-annually. OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

Columbus, Ohio,, 19...

From the facts thus reported by the said I find the proportion of the capital stock of the Company represented by its property and business in Ohio to be percent of its authorized capital stock, to wit: the sum of dollars, on which I have assessed a fee of one-tenth of one percent, amounting to the sum of dollars.

(L. S.)

..... Secretary of State.

NOTE.—The franchise tax is based upon the proportion of the entire authorized capital stock represented by the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio. The proportion which the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio bears to the total property and business of the corporation is the proportion of the capital stock on which the tax is based. For instance, if the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio is $5,000, the total corporation property and business $10,000, and the authorized capital stock $20,000, the proportion (of the capital stock represented by Ohio property and business) required to be stated in the "Fourth" paragraph of the above form is one-half of the capital stock, or $10,000, the Ohio property and business being one-half of the total corporate property and business. If all of the corporate property and business were in Ohio the tax would be based on the total authorized capital stock. State v. Fulton, 98 O. S. 350; see 5 O. L. R. 163 (Opinion by Wade H. Ellis, Atty. Gen.); Aetna Iron & Steel Co. v. Taylor, 13 C. C. 602; 5 C. D. 242, s. c. 3 N. P. 152; 4 L. D. 180.

STOCK BOOKS.

NOTE.—By statute every corporation is required to keep a book in which it is the duty of the secretary to register all subscriptions and transfers of stock. G. C. § 8673.

The form of the book is not prescribed. Harpold v. Stobart, 46 O. S. 397 (400).

Many corporations keep no stock book, but attempt to keep on the stubs of the stock certificate book a record of the stock issued and transferred. This is not a compliance with the statute; although where the certificates representing transferred stock are cancelled and pasted on the stubs from which they were originally detached, and proper entries are made on such stubs showing the transfers and issue of new certificates, and where the outstanding certificates are properly receipted for on the stub, the certificate book undoubtedly contains a complete record. See, Herrick v. Wardwell, 58 O. S. 294 (311-312).

The better practice is to keep two books: (1) a stock transfer book and (2) a stock ledger. The following forms of stock books are suggested:

No. 45.

Apr. 1	From Franklin Green	1	3	9	10	..	1,000	15	1,500

NOTE.—Stock transfer book. The hypothetical entries in the above form of stock transfer book represent the following transactions:

(1) An issue to the original subscribers of certificates representing 100 shares of stock, as follows:

To William Brown	10 shares
“ Thomas White	10 “
“ Franklin Green	10 “
“ George Black	20 “
“ Edward Johnson	50 “

(2) A transfer of five shares by William Brown to Peter Smith; the original certificate issued to William Brown being surrendered and cancelled and two certificates being issued in its stead; one to Peter Smith for five shares and one to William Brown (a reissue) for five shares.

(3) A transfer of ten shares by Thomas White to Joseph Miller.

(4) A transfer of ten shares by Franklin Green to William Brown.

Stock ledger. In the above form only one ledger account is given which will illustrate the character of entries required. When a certificate is issued to a new stockholder a new ledger account should be opened in his name. When all stock of a stockholder is transferred to other persons his account should be closed.

These forms may be changed to meet the individual taste of any bookkeeper; but whatever be the forms adopted, the facts set out in the last two forms should appear in some shape or other in the forms adopted.

NOTE.

How vacancy in board is filled.

(G. C. § 8662.)

A vacancy in the board of directors is filled, for the unexpired term, by appointment by the board of directors, and not by the stockholders, unless the regulations so provide.

Where owing to a change in the stock ownership and control, a new board of directors is to be elected, if accomplished by appointment by the board, a quorum of qualified directors must act in each case. Stock should be transferred to the new directors, before the meeting, if possible.

The resignations of the old directors should be presented and accepted one at a time, and a new director immediately elected, who should take his oath of office and immediately assume his duties and participate in accepting the next resignation and the filling of the vacancy, so that a quorum is constantly maintained.

If all the resignations are presented at one time, a stockholders' meeting should be held to elect the new board.

The net income after deducting from such gross income such expenses, taxes, assessments and insurance premiums. 8. The principal amount of the issue of bonds hereby secured at the time outstanding. 9. Provided, however, if any such bonds are issued upon the basis of estimated cost of such property, extensions, additions, betterments or improvements, prior to the acquisition or making thereof, then, in making delivery of such bonds the corporate trustee shall only deliver such bonds from time to time, at the rate aforesaid, as such property, extensions, additions, betterments or improvements are paid for, as shown by certificate of the president or chief engineer or other officer of the Company believed by the corporate trustee to have knowledge of the facts, and in the event the actual cost shall be less than such estimated cost, any balance of said bonds in the hands of the corporate trustee undelivered shall be held by it subject to future delivery hereunder the same as the remainder of the unauthenticated bonds authorized to be issued hereunder: All or any part of such estimated amount of bonds may be sold by the Company at a price for any one bond or lot of bonds which will result in the loan thereon costing the company a rate of interest not exceeding six percentum per annum for the remainder of the term of such bond or bonds, and the proceeds from such sale shall be deposited with the corporate trustee. The corporate trustee shall pay over said proceeds to or upon the order of the Company upon receipt of a statement sworn to by an officer of the Company showing expenditures made or indebtedness incurred and then due on account of property, extensions, additions, betterments or improvements for the purchase or making of which said bonds were issued and said money deposited, to an amount not exceeding 80% of the amount of such indebtedness or expenditures. Or, at the election of the Company it may make and deliver drafts upon the corporate trustee each of which drafts shall be given for the purpose and shall show upon the face that the same is given for the purpose of paying not exceeding 80% of the indebtedness incurred or created on account of such property, extensions, additions, betterments or improvements, or some portion thereof. The Company reserves the right to deposit the proceeds of the sale of any of said bonds in some bank or banks of good standing in the city of, Ohio, or in the city of New York, N. Y., in the name of the corporate trustee, in which event said proceeds shall be payable for the purposes hereinbefore set forth only upon the order of the corporate trustee, and the corporate trustee shall make such payments from time to time upon delivery to it of sworn statements as hereinabove mentioned. If the estimated cost of such property, extensions, additions, betterments or improvements shall exceed the actual cost thereof in money and a balance of the proceeds of the sale of bonds shall remain on deposit with said corporate trustee or said bank, or banks, the same shall be thereafter paid out only in the manner and at the rate hereinbefore provided, for some one or more of the purposes for which bonds may be issued as in this article provided, or at the request of the company, may be used in or towards the retirement and cancellation of the bonds issued under this indenture. The corporate trustee shall be under no obligation to see to the application of said bonds or their proceeds to the purpose or purposes for which they are authenticated and delivered and shall be entitled to rely upon any resolution of said board of directors, statements and certificates of said officers and counsel and vouchers of the Company with reference to the authentication and delivery of bonds, payment of money, title of property and lien of this instrument and shall be absolutely protected in so doing; provided, however, that the corporate trustee may, at the expense of the Company, require additional evidence of the facts set forth in such resolution, certificates, vouchers or statements, but is not obligated so to do; and that the trustees, or either of them, if they deem best so to do, may, at the expense of the Company, require an examination, by a competent person satisfactory to the trustees, of the books and accounts of the Company and of any such additional property, additions, extensions, betterments or improvements, and shall be absolutely protected in relying upon any report which such person shall make to them.

Section 6. In case any bond issued hereunder, with the coupons thereto appertaining, shall become mutilated, or be lost or destroyed, the Company, in its discretion, may execute, and thereupon the corporate trustee shall authenticate and deliver a new bond of like tenor and date, including the unmatured coupons thereon, bearing the same serial number, in exchange and substitution for, and upon cancellation of the mutilated bond and its coupons, or in lieu of or substitution for said bond or its coupons, upon receipt of satisfactory evidence of the destruction or loss of such bond and its coupons and upon receipt also of satisfactory indemnity.

Section 7. In the event of the resignation, removal, dissolution or unfitness to act of the corporation trustee, or any corporation successor to it, all of the powers and authority vested by this article in the corporate trustee may be exercised by the individual trustee hereinbefore named, or his successor.

ARTICLE II. COVENANTS BY THE COMPANY.

The Company hereby covenants as follows:

Section 1. That it has a good and indefeasible estate in fee simple or in possession absolute, according to the nature of the property conveyed, in and to all of the property and rights hereinbefore described as being now owned by it; that the franchises hereinbefore described as now owned by it are valid and subsisting franchises, and that it has good right and lawful authority to convey, assign and transfer said premises, rights and franchises as provided in and by this indenture.

Section 2. That it will punctually pay the principal and interest of every bond issued hereunder and secured hereby, in gold coin of the United States of America of the present weight and fineness, or its equivalent, at the date and place and in the manner specified in said bonds, and in the coupons thereto belonging, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, without deduction from either principal or interest for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States of America or by any state, territory, county, city or other municipality or governmental subdivision, and which the Company may be required to pay thereon and deduct or retain therefrom under or by reason of any present or future law, the Company hereby agreeing to pay all such taxes. That after coupons evidencing interest are paid said coupons shall be forthwith cancelled. The principal of each bond shall be payable only upon the presentation and surrender of the bond and the principal of registered bonds shall be payable only to the registered holders thereof. Each bond when paid shall forthwith be duly cancelled.

Section 3. That it will not issue, sell or dispose of any bonds issued hereunder in any manner other than in accordance with the provisions of this indenture and the covenants and agreements in that behalf herein contained and that it will in good faith use or expend said bonds or their proceeds only for the purposes provided in this indenture, according to the true intent and meaning thereof.

Section 4. That at all times until the full payment of the principal of the bonds secured by this indenture, the Company will keep an office in the city of; Ohio, where bonds and interest coupons may be presented for payment and where notices and demands with respect to said bonds and coupons or other notices and demands hereunder may be served, and an office or agency in the city of New York where coupons may be presented for payment and from time to time the Company will give written notice to the trustees of the location of such offices or agencies. In case the Company shall fail to do so, presentation and demand may be made, and notices may be served at the office of the corporate trustee or its successors;

Section 5. That at the office of the corporate trustee, or at some Bank or Trust Company in the city of, Ohio, it will keep books for registration of bonds issued hereunder (which books at all reasonable times shall be open to the inspection of the trustees) under such reasonable regulations as the Company may prescribe. The ownership of any bond issued under this indenture, which shall be presented for that purpose, may be registered in such book or books free of charge by the Company. Upon presentation to the bond registrar or transfer agent, at the place where such books of registry are kept, of any bond which shall have been registered as aforesaid and delivery of a written instrument of transfer, in form approved by the Company, executed by the registered holder for the time being, such bond shall be transferred upon such registry. The registered holder shall also have the right to cause the same to be registered as payable to bearer, in which case transferability by delivery shall be restored, and thereafter the principal of such bond shall be payable to any person presenting the same, but any such bond registered as payable to bearer may be registered again in the name of the holder with the same effect as in the case of the first registration thereof. Successive registrations and transfers as aforesaid may be made from time to time as desired. Each registration shall be noted by the bond registrar or transfer agent of the Company upon the bond. The C. D. Trust Company, the corporate trustee hereinbefore mentioned, is hereby constituted and appointed the bond registrar and transfer agent of the Company for the purpose of registration as hereinbefore set forth. The registration of any bond, however, shall not restrain the negotiability of any coupon thereto belonging, but every such coupon shall continue to pass by delivery merely and shall remain payable to bearer. The holder of any bond may, however, register the same and surrender the coupons thereto belonging to the corporate trustee, who shall forthwith cancel such coupons, and thereafter the interest on such bond shall be payable only to the registered holder thereof.

Section 6. The Company will, from time to time, duly and punctually pay and discharge all real estate, personal, franchise and other taxes, water rates, assessments, imposts and governmental and other charges, lawfully imposed upon the property now or hereafter subject to the lien and operation of this indenture, and also upon all other property at any time subject to this indenture, and upon each and every part thereof, and upon the income and profits thereof and with respect to the carrying on or doing business by the Company, so that the lien and priority of this indenture shall be fully preserved in respect to the real and personal property, rights, franchises and privileges now or hereafter subject to the lien and operation of this indenture; provided, however, that nothing in this section shall require the Company to pay any such taxes, assessments, imposts or other charges so long as the Company shall in good faith and by proper legal proceedings contest the validity thereof or its being a charge upon the property covered by this indenture. If the Company shall fail to keep this covenant, the trustees, in addition to any other remedy or remedies which they may have hereunder, and without prejudice to any rights of the trustees by reason of any such default and upon request of one or more of the holders of said bonds secured hereby, and upon being provided with adequate funds for that purpose and ample indemnity in the premises, shall pay such taxes, assessments and charges, and all amounts so paid, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum shall be a charge upon the trust estate prior to the bonds hereby secured, and the trustees may forthwith sue for and recover from the Company any such amount in a proper action therefor.

Section 7. That it will not create or suffer to be created any lien or charge having priority to or preference over the lien of this indenture upon the trust estate, or any part thereof, or upon the income thereof, and that within three months after the same shall have accrued it will pay or cause to be discharged or will make adequate provision for the satisfaction and discharge of all lawful claims and demands of mechanics, laborers and others which might by law be given precedence as a lien or charge upon the trust estate, or any part thereof or the income thereof; provided, however, that nothing in this instrument contained shall require the Company to pay any claim or demand so long as the Company shall in good faith and by proper legal proceedings contest the validity thereof, provided however, that nothing in this section contained shall apply to purchase money, or other assumed liens upon after acquired property.

Section 8. That it will from time to time upon written demand of the Trustees and at its own expense record and re-record, file and refile these presents, whether as a chattel mortgage or a mortgage on real estate, and make, do, execute, acknowledge and deliver, or cause to be made, done, executed, acknowledged and delivered all such other acts, deeds, transfers, assignments, conveyances and assurances in the law as may by said Trustees or their counsel be reasonably advised or required for effectuating the intention of these presents or for the better assuring and confirming unto the Trustee upon the trusts and for the purposes herein expressed, of the trust estate and any part or parts thereof, and also all and singular the property, rights, franchises and privileges which may hereafter be acquired by the Company.

Section 9. That it will, except as herein otherwise provided, at all times actively conduct and carry on the business for which it was incorporated and which it is now or may hereafter be carrying on or conducting; that it will maintain and keep in good repair and condition its plants and properties, make all necessary renewals and replacements thereof or therein, diligently preserve, observe and protect all licenses under patents or otherwise owned or held, and will at all times, so long as the bonds issued hereunder or any of them remain outstanding and unpaid, diligently preserve and maintain its corporate existence and all franchises now or hereafter granted to it, and do or cause to be done all other acts and things necessary or proper to maintain and keep in full force and effect the lien and incumbrance hereby created.

Section 10. The Company shall also furnish to the trustees, at any time that they may in writing so request, a written statement containing a summary of all its then assets and liabilities, its gross receipts, expenses and net income, determined as hereinbefore provided and shall permit the Trustees or their agents, upon like request at any time to examine its premises, property or books of account; provided, however, that the Company shall not be obliged to furnish such statement or permit such examination unless it is furnished with satisfactory evidence by the trustees that the holders of not less than 15 per centum of the bonds secured hereby at any time outstanding demanded that they request such statement or make such examination.

Section 11. The Company shall and will at all times, so long as any of the bonds issued hereunder remain outstanding and unpaid, at its own cost and expense, insure and keep insured against loss or damage by fire, in responsible insurance Companies, all its property usually insured by like Companies similarly situated and in the same manner and to the same extent. Said policies for such insurance shall be made payable, in case of loss, to the trustees as their interest may appear, provided, however, that the Company may, if it elects so to do, pay to the corporate trustee the sum of dollars ($....) in money or, in lieu thereof, deliver to the corporate trustee bonds of the issue herein provided for equal in principal sum to said amount, or part thereof in said bonds at par and the remainder in money, in which event it shall not be required to insure its property as hereinabove provided, unless said deposit (herein after called "insurance fund") shall be depleted by payment of losses to less than $..... The money in said fund shall, at the request of the Company, be invested in the bonds of the Company of the issue hereby secured or in other securities in which Trust Companies organized under the laws of the State of Ohio may invest money or property received by them in trust, or in such other interest bearing securities as may be approved by the Company and the trustees. The securities in which such investment may be made shall, except as hereinbefore provided, be chosen by the Company. The corporate trustee agrees to allow interest upon moneys remaining on deposit with it in said insurance fund, at the same rate and upon the same terms that it allows upon like deposits in its trust department. Until default the Company shall be entitled to all income earned by the insurance fund or the securities in which the same is invested, whether the same be bonds of the Company, or otherwise. In the event of loss occurring by fire, the corporate trustee shall from time to time at the request of the Company pay over to it such amount of money out of the insurance fund as shall be necessary to repair, restore or replace such lost or destroyed property; such payments to be made from time to time upon receipt of vouchers showing the expenditure by the Company of the amount called for in any such vouchers, or that an indebtedness has been incurred for such purposes of repair, restoration or replacement equal to the amount called for by such vouchers. In the event sufficient moneys are not on hand in the insurance fund to pay any such loss, the corporate trustee shall, on request of the Company, sell sufficient of the securities belonging to said fund to provide for the payment of said loss. In the event said fund is reduced below the sum of $75,000 by the payment of any such loss, the Company shall make good such deficiency by making payments to the corporate trustee for the account of said fund at the rate of $5,000, per annum until said fund and the accumulations thereof shall again equal the sum of $75,000. In the event said insurance fund is depleted by payment of losses to less than $75,000, then the Company shall effect and maintain insurance as hereinabove first provided, until said fund shall again equal $75,000. Upon the maturity of the bonds issued hereunder, any bonds of the issue hereby secured then remaining in said fund shall be cancelled, and any other securities and moneys then in said fund shall be applied toward the payment of the bonds issued hereunder at the time outstanding and unpaid. The Company covenants to at all times keep the corporate trustee informed as to the amounts of insurance carried by it, when it is required to carry insurance, furnishing said corporate trustee with lists of the Companies, policy numbers and amounts, and in the event the Company shall fail at any time when required by the terms hereof to carry insurance deemed by the trustees to be sufficient, the trustees may, but shall be under no obligation to, insure the property of the Company as they may deem best for the benefit of the bondholders, and the cost of the same, with five percent interest thereon from the date of payment of the respective premiums, shall be repaid to them by the Company on demand, and until so paid shall be a charge upon the trust estate prior in lien to the bonds issued hereunder.

Section 12. That the Company will duly call for redemption and retire all bonds issued and outstanding under the mortgage described in Section 5 of Article 1 hereof, as soon as the same may be redeemed under the terms of said respective mortgages, and will, as soon as all of the bonds issued under said respective mortgages have been paid, cause said mortgages to be duly cancelled of record.

ARTICLE III. RETIREMENT OF BONDS.

Section 1. The Company reserves to itself, its successors and assigns, the right at its or their election to retire the whole or any part of the bonds issued hereunder, on the day of, 19..., and on any interest maturing date thereafter, at 105% of par plus accrued interest. In the event the Company elects to retire the whole or any part of said bonds on any such interest maturing date, it shall at least ten weeks prior to the date of retirement notify the corporate trustee of such election and the corporate trustee shall, if the amount of bonds to be retired be less than the entire amount outstanding, choose the bonds to be retired by lot and notify the Company of the numbers of the bonds so chosen within one week after receipt of such notice. The Company shall in all cases of retirement of bonds hereunder give notice by publication in some newspaper of general circulation published in the City of, Ohio, and in some newspaper of general circulation published in the City of New York, N. Y., which notice shall state that the Company will retire the bonds chosen for retirement, on the date fixed therefor, naming the price at which same are to be retired, upon presentation and surrender of such bonds, with all unpaid coupons thereto belonging, at the office of the corporate trustee in the City of, Ohio. Such notice shall be published once each week for eight weeks prior to the date fixed for such retirement. In all cases in which less than the entire amount of bonds are chosen for retirement the published notice of retirement shall contain the numbers of the bonds so chosen. In all cases of retirement of bonds the Company shall, on or before the date fixed for retirement, deposit with the corporate trustee sufficient money to pay the retirement price of said bonds and accrued interest on the principal thereof to date of retirement. Said notice having been given in the manner aforesaid and sufficient money to retire all bonds called for retirement at the rate specified having been deposited with the corporate trustee, if the holder or holders of any bond or bonds so called for retirement fails to present the same for retirement at the time and place in said notice specified, such bond or bonds shall thereafter cease to bear interest and the corporate trustee shall credit to each of such bonds as may not be so presented, designated by the number thereof, a sum of money equal to such retirement price plus the interest accrued thereon to the date fixed for retirement as aforesaid and remaining unpaid and said credit shall be treated as full payment for each such bond and the coupons thereto belonging as between the Company and the holder thereof, and said sum so credited by the corporate trustee to bonds which have not been presented for retirement shall bear no interest, and thereupon and thereafter said bonds and all coupons thereto belonging shall be excluded from participation in the lien and security afforded by these presents and the holder thereof shall look for the payment of such bonds and accrued interest only to sums so credited thereto in the hands of the corporate trustee and in no event to the Company, and the Company shall, as to all such bonds be released from liability in respect thereof, but said sums so deposited shall be held by the corporate trustee to the credit and for the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon and shall be paid by the corporate trustee to the holders thereof on presensation and delivery to it of said respective bonds, together with all outstanding coupons thereto belonging.

Section 2. Upon presentation to the corporate trustee, cancelled, of all said authorized issue of bonds and coupons which at the time shall have been issued and outstanding, or upon presentation of a portion thereof, cancelled, all of said bonds having been called for retirement under the provisions of this article and the corporate trustee having credited to all such bonds as have not been presented for retirement the retirement price thereof and the interest thereon, the trustees shall cancel and discharge this mortgage or deed of trust as fully and to the same effect as if the total issue of said bonds and coupons had been duly paid by the Company at maturity thereof. All bonds retired under this article, together with the coupons thereto belonging, shall be forthwith cancelled by the corporate trustee. All costs, charges and expenses incurred by the corporate trustee hereunder with respect to the retirement of bonds shall be paid by the Company.

ARTICLE IV. REMEDIES OF TRUSTEES AND BONDHOLDERS.

Section 1. The Company covenants and agrees that it will not directly or indirectly extend, or consent to the extension of, the time of payment of any coupon or claim for interest upon any of the bonds issued hereunder and that it will not directly or indirectly be a party to or approve any arrangement therefor by purchasing or funding the same in any other manner. In case the payment of any such coupon shall be extended by or with the consent of the Company, such coupon or claim for interest so extended shall not be entitled, in case of default hereunder, to the benefit or security of this indenture except subject to the prior payment in full of the principal of all outstanding bonds, and of all coupons of such bonds the payment of which has not been so extended, the intention being to prevent any accumulation after maturity of coupons upon the bonds issued hereunder.

Section 2. In case default shall be made (a) in the payment of any interest upon any bond or bonds secured hereby, and outstanding, and such default shall continue for the period of three months, or (b) in the performance or observance of any other covenant or condition herein contained to be performed or observed by the Company and such default shall have continued for a period of four months after demand by the trustees of performance or observance, then and in either such case the trustees may, and upon the written request of the holders of 35% of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, shall, by notice in writing delivered to the Company declare the principal of all the bonds secured hereby and then outstanding to be due and payable immediately, and upon any such declaration the same shall become and be due and payable immediately, anything in this indenture or in said bonds to the contrary notwithstanding. This provision, however, is subject to the condition that if at any time after the principal of said bonds shall have been declared due and payable, the default for which such declaration was made and all other defaults, if any, shall be cured, before any sale of the trust estate, then and in every such case the holders of a majority in value of bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, by written notice to the Company and to the trustees, may waive such defaults and their consequences, but no such waiver shall extend to or affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereon. In case the trustees shall have proceeded to enforce any right under this indenture by foreclosure or otherwise, and such proceedings shall have been discontinued or abandoned because of such waiver or for any other reason, or shall have been determined adversely to the trustees, then and in every such case the Company and the trustees shall be restored to their former position and rights hereunder in respect to the trust estate and all rights, remedies and powers of the trustees shall continue as though no such proceeding had been taken.

Section 3. In case (1) default shall be made in the payment of any principal of any bonds hereby secured, or in case (2) default shall be made in the due and punctual payment of interest upon any bonds secured hereby, and such default shall continue for the period of three months, or in case (3) default shall be made in the due observance or performance of any other covenant or condition hereby required to be observed or performed by the Company and such default shall continue for four months after written demand by the trustees, then and in every such case the trustees, personally or by attorneys, in their discretion may (a) enter in, into and upon and take possession of the trust estate and every part thereof, and may exclude the Company therefrom, and have and hold the same and use, operate, manage and control the trust estate, and manufacture, supply and sell electricity and all articles, things, and products manufactured, produced or supplied by the Company in its business, execute any and all contracts, leases and undertakings, and in general conduct and carry on the business of the Company as fully as it could do if in possession thereof, and exercise all lawful franchises and powers of the Company, and upon every such entry the trustees at the expense of the trust estate from time to time, by purchase, repair or construction, may maintain, restore and repair the trust estate, and any part or parts thereof and in the same manner and to the same extent as is usual with Companies of like character similarly situated, and make all necessary and proper renewals, replacements, alterations, additions, betterments and improvements thereto and thereon as to the trustees may seem judicious or convenient, and in such case the trustees shall be entitled to collect and receive all tolls, earnings, incomes, revenues, rents, issues and profits of the trust estate and of every part thereof and of the business thereof and after deducting the expenses of operating the trust estate and conducting the business thereof and of all repairs, renewals, replacements, alterations, additions, betterments and improvements, and all payments which may have been made for taxes, assessments and other prior or proper charges upon the trust estate, or any part thereof, and all liability incurred by the trustees hereunder, as well as just and reasonable compensation for the services of said trustees, and for the services of their attorneys and all agents, clerks, servants and other employees by them engaged and employed, they shall apply the moneys arising as aforesaid as follows: In case the principal of the bonds hereby secured shall not have become due by declaration or otherwise, then to the payment of the accrued and unpaid interest upon said bonds in the order of the maturity of the respective installments thereof, with interest thereon at the same rate of interest as borne by the bonds upon which such interest shall be in default, such payments to be made ratably to the persons entitled thereto without distinction or preference; in case the principal of the bonds hereby secured shall have become due by declaration or otherwise, then to the payment of the principal and accrued interest in the manner provided in Section 12 of this Article, and upon the payment of whatever may be due for principal and interest upon such bonds and payment of other charges required to be paid by the Company under the terms of this indenture, the premises shall be returned to the Company, subject however to the lien, covenants and conditions of this mortgage, in all respects, as if said entry had never been made. This power of entry may be exercised as often as occasion therefor may arise during the continuance of the trust created hereby; or (b) sell to the highest bidder all or any part of the trust estate, and all right, title, interest, claim and demand therein and right of redemption thereof in one lot as an entirety or in separate lots as the trustees may deem best, and in one sale or in any number of separate sales, held at one time or any number of times, which said sale or sales shall be made at public auction at such place in the City of, Ohio, and at such time or times and upon such terms as the trustees may fix and briefly specify in the notice of sale to be given as herein provided, or as may be provided by law, provided, always, that such sale or sales may be at such place or places and in such other manner as may be authorized or required by law; or (c) and upon request of the holders of 35% in value of the bonds outstanding hereunder shall proceed to protect and enforce their rights and the rights of the bondholders under this indenture but a suit or suits in equity or at law, whether for specific performance of any covenant or agreement contained herein, or in aid of the execution of any power herein granted, or for any foreclosure hereunder, or for the enforcement of any other proper legal or equitable remedy as the trustees, being advised by their counsel learned in the law, shall deem most effectual to protect and enforce the rights aforesaid.

Section 4. Nothing in this indenture contained, or otherwise, shall be construed as requiring the trustees or bondholders to resort to any particular property mortgaged hereunder or to waive any particular remedy for the purpose of procuring the satisfaction of the indebtedness hereby secured, but the trustees and the bondholders may resort to all or any part of the trust estate, or enforce all or any of the rights herein provided or which may be given by statute, law or equity or otherwise, in the absolute discretion of the trustees or the bondholders as the case may be.

Section 5. Notice of any sale by the trustees pursuant to any provision of this indenture shall state the time when and place where the same is to be made and shall contain a brief general description of the property to be sold and shall be sufficiently given if published once each week for six consecutive weeks prior to such sale in one daily newspaper published in the City of . . . , Ohio, and once each week for six consecutive weeks in one daily newspaper published in the City of New York, N. Y.; provided that if other or different notice shall be provided by law the notice thus required shall be given.

Section 6. The trustees from time to time may adjourn any sale or sales to be by them made under any provision of this indenture by announcement at the time and place appointed for such sale or adjourned sale or sales, and without further notice or publication they may make such sale or sales at the time and place to which the same may be adjourned.

Section 7. Anything in this indenture contained to the contrary notwithstanding, the holders of a majority in value of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, from time to time, shall have the right to direct, subject to the limitations above described, the method and place of conducting any and all proceedings for the sale of the trust estate, or for the foreclosure of this indenture or for the appointment of a receiver, or the taking of any other proper action hereunder.

Section 8. Upon the completion of any sale or sales under this indenture the trustees shall execute and deliver to the accepted purchaser or purchasers all such deeds, conveyances, bills of sale or other instruments in writing as may be requisite, convenient, necessary or desirable to vest in the purchaser or purchasers the complete title to the property sold. The trustees and their successors are hereby appointed the true and lawful attorneys irrevocable of the Company, in its name and stead, or otherwise, to make, execute, acknowledge and deliver all such deeds, conveyances, bills of sale and other written instruments as may in the judgment of the trustees be necessary or proper to vest title in such purchaser or purchasers, the Company hereby ratifying and confirming all that its said attorneys shall lawfully do by virtue hereof.

Section 9. Any such sale or sales made under or by virtue of this indenture, whether under the power of sale hereby granted and conferred, or under and by virtue of judicial proceedings, shall operate to divest all right, title, interest, claim and demand whatsoever either at law or in equity of the Company of, in and to the property so sold and shall be a perpetual bar both at law and in equity against the Company, its successors and assigns, and against any and all persons claiming or to claim the property sold or any part thereof by, from, through or under the Company, its successors or assigns.

Section 10. The receipt of the trustees shall be a sufficient discharge to any purchaser of the trust estate, or any part thereof, sold as aforesaid, for the purchase money, and no such purchaser, or his representatives, grantees or assigns, after paying such purchase money and receiving such receipt, shall be bound to see to the application of such purchase money upon or for any trust or purposes of this indenture, or in any manner whatsoever be answerable for any loss, misapplication or nonapplication of such purchase money, or any part thereof or be bound to inquire as to the authorization, necessity, expediency or regularity of any such sale.

Section 11. In case of any such sale, whether under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, the principal sums of all bonds hereby secured, if not previously due, immediately thereupon shall become due and payable anything in said bonds or in this indenture contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Section 12. The purchase money, proceeds and avails of any such sale, whether under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, together with all other sums which may then be held by the trustees as part of the trust estate or the proceeds thereof shall be applied as follows: (1) To the payment of the costs and expenses of such sale including the reasonable compensation of the trustees, their agents, attorneys and counsel, and all expenses, liabilities and advances made or incurred by the trustees, and all other charges which by the terms hereof, are prior to the bonds hereby secured; (2) to the payment of the whole amount then owing and unpaid upon the bonds hereby secured for principal and interest, with interest at the respective rates borne by the principal debt on the overdue installments of interest, and in case such proceeds shall be insufficient to pay in full the whole amount then due and unpaid upon said bonds, then to the payment of such principal and interest without preference or priority of principal over interest or of interest over principal or any installment of interest over any other installment of interest ratably to the aggregate amount of such principal and the accrued and unpaid interest subject, however, to the provisions of Section 1 of this Article; (3) to the payment of the surplus, if any, to the Company, its successors or assigns, or to whomsoever may be lawfully entitled to receive the same.

Section 13. At any sale or sales of the trust estate, or any part thereof, any purchaser, for the purpose of making settlement or payment for the property purchased shall be entitled to turn in any bond and any unmatured and unpaid coupons hereby secured in order that there may be credited as paid thereon the sums payable out of the net proceeds of such sale to the holder of such bonds and coupons as his ratable share of such net proceeds after allowing for the proportion of the total purchase price required to be paid in cash to pay the costs and expenses of the sale or otherwise, and any such purchaser shall be credited on account of the purchase price of the property so purchased with the sums payable out of such net proceeds on the bonds and coupons so turned in, and in the event such net proceeds are less than the amount due on such bonds and coupons, such credit shall be made by stamping on each bond the amount to be credited thereon, and the said bonds shall thereafter be returned to such purchaser. And at any such sale the trustees or any of the bondholders may bid for and purchase said property and may make payment therefor as aforesaid, and upon compliance with the terms of sale may hold, retain and dispose of such property without further accountability therefor.

Section 14. In case the Company shall make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, or in case in any judicial proceeding by any party other than the trustees, a receiver, assignee or trustee in bankruptcy shall be appointed by or for the Company, or a judgment or order entered for the sequestration of its property, or the greater part of its property be seized under any writ of attachment or other legal process, and it shall not cause said property to be released or discharged therefrom by giving bond or otherwise within twenty days after being requested so to do by the trustees, then and in every such case the trustees shall be entitled forthwith to exercise the right of entry and sale herein conferred, without awaiting the prescribed default period and may also and upon the request of the holders of 35% in value of the bonds at the time outstanding hereunder shall proceed to exercise any of the rights and powers herein conferred and provided to be exercised by the trustees upon the occurrence and continuance of default as hereinbefore provided, including the right to declare the principal of the bonds hereby secured to be due and payable and as matter of right the trustees shall thereupon be entitled to the appointment of a receiver, or receivers, of the trust estate, and of the earnings, income, rents, issues and profits thereof, with such powers as the court making such appointment shall confer.

Section 15. The Company covenants that (1) in case default shall be made in the payment of any interest upon any of the bonds at any time outstanding and secured by this indenture, and such default shall continue for the period of three months, or (2) in case default shall be made in the payment of the principal of any such bonds when the same shall become due and payable whether at the maturity of said bonds or by declaration as authorized by this indenture, or by a sale of the trust estate, as herein provided, then upon demand of the trustees, the Company will pay to the trustees for the benefit of the holders of the bonds and coupons hereby secured and then outstanding, the whole amount due and payable on all such bonds and coupons then outstanding for interest or principal or both, as the case may be, with interest at the respective rates borne by the principal obligations upon the overdue installments of interest, and in case the Company shall not pay the same forthwith upon any such demand the trustees, in their own names and as trustees of an express trust, shall be entitled to recover judgment for the whole amount so due and unpaid. The trustees shall be entitled to recover judgment as aforesaid either before or after or during the pendency of any proceedings for the enforcement of the lien of this indenture upon the trust estate, or any part thereof, and the right of the trustees to recover any such judgment shall not be affected by any sale hereunder or by the exercise of any other right, power or remedy or for the enforcement of the provisions of this indenture for the foreclosure of the lien hereof, and in case of a sale of the trust estate, or any part thereof, and of the application of the proceeds of the sale to the payment of the debt, the trustees in their own names and as trustees of an express trust shall be entitled to enforce payment of and to receive all amounts then remaining due and unpaid upon any and all of the bonds issued hereunder and then outstanding for the benefit of the holders thereof and shall be entitled to recover judgment for any portion of the debt remaining unpaid, with interest. No recovery of any such judgment by the trustees and no levy under any execution upon any such judgment upon the property subject to the lien of this indenture, or upon any other property, shall in any manner or to any extent affect the lien of the trustees upon the trust estate or any part thereof or any rights, powers or remedies of the trustees hereunder or any rights, powers or remedies of the holders of the bonds hereby secured, but such lien, rights, powers and remedies shall continue unimpaired as before. Any moneys collected by the trustees under this section shall be applied by the trustees toward the payment of the amounts then due and unpaid upon such bonds and coupons respectively, without any preference or priority of any kind except as provided in Section 1 of this Article, but ratably according to the amounts due and payable upon such bonds and coupons respectively, on the date fixed by the trustees for the distribution of such moneys.

Section 16. The holders of a majority in value of the bonds issued and outstanding hereunder at any time shall have and are hereby given the absolute right to direct the action of the trustees in and about the enforcing or waiving of any of the provisions of this indenture except the payment of the principal and interest of such bonds at the time when they become due, and the holders of a majority in value of such bonds shall have the right to direct the trustees to waive any default which may occur in the performance of any of the covenants and conditions herein contained except the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds secured hereby at the time and place provided therein, and the holders of a majority in value of said bonds shall further have the right to direct the trustees to discontinue any proceedings which they may have taken to foreclose this mortgage or deed of trust or to enforce in any way the provisions hereof, or to direct the trustees to restore to the Company the trust estate, in the event the said trustees shall have taken possession thereof, or to waive any other act or thing done or omitted to be done by the Company in violation of the terms hereof, or of any covenant on the part of the Company, under this indenture, except the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds secured hereby at the time and place provided herein. Such request of the holders of a majority in amount of bonds issued and outstanding shall be made in writing, and upon the same being made in accordance with the provisions hereof, any action by said trustees in declaring the principal of said bonds due and payable for any default so waived, shall forthwith cease and determine and become null and void and any and all proceedings commenced by said trustees to foreclose this indenture shall forthwith abate and said trustees shall forthwith surrender and redeliver to the Company the trust estate, or such part thereof, if any, as said trustees shall have become possessed of, by reason of such default, and to the extent expressed in said request any and all acts done or omitted to be done by the Company in violation hereof shall be waived and the right to take any action hereunder by reason thereof shall immediately cease and determine, but no such waiver shall extend to or affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereon.

Section 17. The Company will not at any time insist upon or plead or in any manner claim or take the benefit of any stay of execution or extension law now or at any time hereafter in force, nor will it take or insist upon any benefit or advantage of any law now or hereinafter in force providing for the valuation or appraisalment of the trust estate, or any part thereof, prior to any sale or sales thereof to be made pursuant to any provision herein contained or to the decree of any court of competent jurisdiction nor, after any such sale or sales, will it claim or exercise any right under any statute or otherwise to redeem the property so sold or any part thereof, and it hereby expressly waives the benefit and advantage of any such law or laws, and it covenants that it will not hinder, delay or impede the execution of any power herein granted and delegated to the trustees and that it will suffer and permit the execution of every such power as though no such law or laws had been made or enacted.

Section 18. In the event the trustees shall commence any proper proceedings at law or in equity for the purpose of foreclosing the security of this mortgage or deed of trust, or the enforcement of any right or remedy hereunder, the said trustees shall as a matter of right be entitled to the appointment, ex parte and without notice, of a receiver or receivers, of and for all and singular the trust estate and by and through said receiver or receivers, to take possession thereof, and of the business of the Company, and operate the same and receive the tolls, rents, revenues, issues and profits thereof.

Section 19. No holder of any bond or coupon hereby secured shall have any right to institute any suit, action or proceeding in equity or at law for the foreclosure of this indenture, or for the execution of any trust hereof, or for the appointment of a receiver or for any other remedy hereunder, unless such holder shall have previously given to the trustees written notice of such default and of the continuance thereof as hereinbefore provided, nor unless the holders of 35% in value of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding shall have made written request upon the trustees and shall have offered them a reasonable opportunity either to proceed to exercise the powers hereinbefore granted or to institute such action, suit or proceeding in their own names, nor unless they shall have offered to the trustees adequate security and indemnity against the costs, expenses and liabilities to be incurred therein or thereby, and such notification, request and offer of indemnity are hereby declared, in each and every such case, at the option of the trustees, to be conditions precedent to the execution of the powers and trusts in this indenture and to any action or causes of action for foreclosure, or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder, it being understood and intended that no one or more of the holders of the bonds and coupons hereby secured shall have any right in any manner, by his or their action, to affect, disturb, or prejudice the lien of this indenture or to enforce any right hereunder except in the manner herein provided, and that all proceedings at law or in equity shall be instituted, had and maintained in the manner herein provided and for the equal proportionate benefit of all holders of such outstanding bonds and coupons.

Section 20. Except as herein expressly provided to the contrary, no remedy herein conferred upon or reserved to the trustees, or to the holders of bonds hereby secured, is intended to be exclusive of any other remedy, but each and every such remedy shall be cumulative and shall be in addition to every other remedy given hereunder or now or hereafter existing at law, in equity or by statute.

Section 21. No delay or omission of the trustees, or of any holder of bonds hereby secured, to exercise any right or power accruing upon any default continuing as aforesaid shall impair any such right or power or shall be construed to be a waiver of any such default, or acquiescence therein; and every power and remedy given by this article to the trustees or to the bondholders may be exercised from time to time and as often as may be deemed expedient by the trustees or by the bondholders.

ARTICLE V. IMMUNITY OF INCORPORATORS, OFFICERS, DIRECTORS AND STOCKHOLDERS.

No recourse under or upon any obligation, covenant or agreement of this indenture, or upon any bond or coupon hereby secured, shall be had against any incorporator, stockholder, director or officer of the Company, past, present or future, or of any successor corporation, or any corporation in which the Company may be merged or consolidated, either directly or through the Company, or any other such corporation, by the enforcement of any assessments, penalty or contractual obligation, or by any legal or equitable proceedings by virtue of any statute or otherwise, it being expressly agreed and understood that this indenture and the obligations hereby secured are solely corporate obligations and no personal liability whatsoever shall attach to or be incurred by the incorporators, stockholders, directors or officers of the Company, past, present or future, or of any successor corporation, or corporation in which the Company may be consolidated or merged, or any of them, because of the incurring of the indebtedness hereby authorized or under or by reason of any obligations, covenants or agreements contained in this indenture or in any of the bonds or coupons hereby secured or implied therefrom, and that any and all personal liability of every name and nature, either at common law or in equity, or by statute or constitution, of every such incorporator, stockholder, director or officer is expressly waived, as a condition of and in consideration for the execution of this indenture and the issuing of such bonds and coupons.

ARTICLE VI. SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY.

Section 1. In case any real property, part of the trust estate, can not be advantageously used in the proper and judicious operation of the business of the Company, or if the sale, exchange or disposition thereof has become necessary or advisable for any cause, the same, or any interest therein, may be sold or exchanged for other property; and upon request of the Company, expressed by resolution of its Board of Directors, the trustees shall have authority to release said property from the lien and effect of this indenture upon the following terms and conditions: (a) This section shall not be construed as authorizing the trustees to release the trust estate as an entirety or the substantial or greater part thereof. (b) In case of any such sale of any part of the trust estate, the price or proceeds of sale, if in excess of $1,000, or a sum equal to such price or proceeds, shall be deposited with the corporate trustee, to be held for the further security of the bonds hereby secured until paid over or applied as hereinafter provided. (c) In case of any exchange, the property received in exchange for that released shall be forthwith subjected to the lien of this indenture. (d) The consideration received for the property released shall be substantially equal to the value of the released property and whenever the trustees shall be requested to release any property pursuant to this article, the Company shall deliver to them a certified copy of the resolution of the Board of Directors above mentioned, and a written instrument, signed by the president, vice-president, secretary or treasurer of the Company, certifying that the consideration to be received for such property is substantially equal to the value thereof as above provided in this subdivision, and such resolution and instrument shall be conclusive in favor of the trustees. (e) In the event any portion of the trust estate shall be taken by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, the trustees shall, upon payment to the corporate trustee of the entire compensation awarded to the Company and the trustees, release the same from the lien and operation of this indenture. (f) All moneys received by the corporate trustee upon any such sale or release shall be applied as and when directed by the Company as follows: (1) Said corporate Trustee shall pay over to the Company out of any such proceeds sums equal to any expenditures that shall have been made by the Company for any of the purposes for which the Company is authorized to issue additional bonds as specified in Section 5 of Article 1 hereof, and all such property so purchased shall forthwith become subject to the lien of this indenture, or (2) at the option of the Company, the corporate trustee shall apply such proceeds, or any part thereof, to the purchase and retirement of bonds secured by this mortgage, and such bonds so purchased and retired shall thereupon be cancelled and delivered to the Company. (g) The resolutions, certificates, reports, and statements referred to and provided for by this section shall be full warrant to the trustees for their action on the faith thereof, and they shall incur no liability for anything done pursuant to this article; but the trustees may in their discretion, at the expense of the Company, make such other and further investigation of the facts as they may deem advisable, and may rely, and shall be absolutely protected in acting upon the results of such investigation in releasing or refusing to release any property under the provisions of this article.

Section 2. While in possession of the mortgaged premises the Company shall also have full power, in its discretion from time to time, to dispose of, free from lien of this indenture, any portion of the implements, machinery, tools, appliances, furniture and other movable property embraced within the trust estate which may have become unfit for use, replacing the same by, or substituting for the same, new implements, machinery, tools, appliances, furniture and property, which shall become subject to the lien of this indenture; provided, however, that no such sale shall substantially impair the security afforded by these presents, and that if the proceeds of such sales shall in any one year ending December 31, amount to $15,000, or more, the excess over $15,000, shall be paid to the corporate trustee and applied by it as provided in Section 1 of this Article. Settlement and payment for any such excess shall be made as of the 31st day of December on or before the 20th day of January of the ensuing year. The trustees shall have the right to require the Company at any time to furnish them satisfactory evidence of the compliance by the Company with the covenants and agreements of this and the preceding section contained.

ARTICLE VII. EFFECT OF MERGER, CONSOLIDATION, ETC.

Section 1. Nothing in this indenture shall prevent any consolidation or merger of the Company with or into, or any conveyance, transfer or lease (subject to this indenture) of the trust estate as an entirety to any corporation lawfully entitled to acquire or lease and operate the same, provided, however, and the Company covenants and agrees that such consolidation, merger, conveyance, transfer or lease shall be upon such terms as fully to preserve, and in no respect to impair the lien, security or efficiency of this indenture, or any of the rights or powers of the trustees, or the bondholders hereunder, and provided further that any such lease shall be made expressly subject to immediate termination by the Company or by the trustees at any time during the continuance of any default hereunder, and also by the purchaser of the property so leased at any sale thereof hereunder, whether such sale be made under the power of sale herein conferred or under judicial proceedings, and provided further that upon any such consolidation, merger, conveyance, transfer or lease, the due and punctual payment of the principal and interest of all said bonds according to their tenor, and the due and punctual observance and performance of all of the covenants and conditions of this indenture to be kept and performed by the Company, shall be assumed by the corporation formed by such consolidation or into which such merger shall have been made, or to which the trust estate as an entirety as aforesaid shall be so conveyed, transferred or leased.

Section 2. In case the Company, pursuant to Section 1 of this Article, shall be consolidated with or merged into any other corporation or shall convey or transfer (subject to the lien of this indenture) the trust estate as an entirety, the corporation formed by such consolidation or into which the Company shall have been merged or which shall have received a conveyance or transfer as aforesaid, upon executing and causing to be recorded an indenture with the trustees, satisfactory to the trustees, whereby such consolidated, merged, or vendee corporation shall assume and agree to pay duly and punctually the principal and interest of the bonds issued hereunder and secured hereby in accordance with the provisions of said bonds and coupons and this indenture, and shall agree to perform and fulfil all the covenants and conditions of this indenture binding upon the Company, shall succeed to and be substituted for the Company with the same effect as if it had been named herein as party of the first part, and such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation thereupon may cause to be signed, issued and delivered, either in its own name or in the name of The A. B. Electric Light Company any and all such bonds which shall not theretofore have been signed by the Company and authenticated by the corporate trustee, and upon the order of such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation, in lieu of the Company, subject to the terms, conditions and restrictions of this indenture prescribing and touching the authentication and issuance of bonds, the corporate trustee shall authenticate and deliver any of such bonds which shall have been previously signed and delivered by the officers of the Company to the corporate trustee for authentication, and any of such bonds which such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation shall thereafter in accordance with the provisions of this indenture cause to be signed and delivered to the corporate trustee for such purpose shall have the same legal right and security as the bonds theretofore or thereafter issued in accordance with the terms of this indenture and as though all of said bonds had been issued at the date of the execution hereof; provided, however, that as a condition precedent to the execution of such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation and the authentication by the corporate trustee of any such additional bonds in respect to the purchase of additional property, or the making by such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation of any betterments, improvements, extensions or additions to or about its plant and property, the indenture with the trustees to be executed and caused to be recorded by the consolidated, merged or vendee corporation as in this section provided, shall contain a conveyance or transfer and mortgage in terms sufficient to include such additional property. betterments, improvements, extensions, or additions, and provided further that the lien created thereby shall have similar force, effect and standing as the lien of this indenture would have if the Company had not been consolidated with or merged into such other corporation, or had not conveyed or transferred, subject to the lien of this indenture, the trust estate as an entirety as aforesaid to such vendee corporation and had itself purchased such additional property or had made such betterments, improvements, additions or extensions and requested the authentication and delivery of bonds under the provisions of this indenture in respect thereof. The trustees may receive the certificate of any counsel selected by them as conclusive evidence that any such indenture complies with the foregoing conditions and provisions of this section.

Section 3. In case the Company pursuant to Section 1 of this Article shall be consolidated with or merged into any other corporation or shall transfer or convey, subject to the lien of this indenture, the trust estate as an entirety as aforesaid, neither this indenture nor the indenture with the trustees to be executed and caused to be recorded by such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation as in Section 2 of this Article, provided, shall become or be a lien upon any of the property or franchises of such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation, except that acquired by it from the Company and any additional property, betterments, extensions or additions thereto, and the betterments, improvements, extensions or additions to or about the plant and property of such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation made and used by it as the basis for additional bonds under this indenture, as herein provided, and such franchises, repairs and additional property as may be acquired by such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation in pursuance of the covenants herein contained, to maintain, renew and preserve the franchises covered by this indenture and to keep and maintain the property covered by this indenture in good repair or working order or in pursuance of some other covenant or agreement hereof to be kept and performed by the Company.

Section 4. The word "Company" as used in this indenture shall include such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation so complying with the provisions hereof and in such case the certificates or resolutions of the Board of Directors or officers of the Company required by Article 1, may be made by like officials of such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation.

Section 5. At any time prior to the exercise of any power by this article reserved to the Company or to a consolidated, merged or vendee corporation, the Company may surrender any power reserved to the Company, or to such consolidated, merged or vendee corporation, by delivering to the trustees an instrument in writing, executed by its president or vice-president, under its corporate seal, attested by its secretary or assistant secretary, accompanied by the affidavit of its secretary or assistant secretary, that the execution of such instrument was authorized by the vote of a majority of its entire Board of Directors at a meeting duly called and held, and thereupon the power so surrendered shall cease.

ARTICLE VIII. CONCERNING BONDHOLDERS.

Any request or other instrument required by this indenture to be signed and executed by the bondholders may be in any number of concurrent instruments of similar tenor, and may be signed or executed by such bondholders in person or by agent appointed in writing. Proof of the execution of any such request or other instrument, or of a writing appointing any such agent, and of the holding by any person of bonds transferable by delivery, shall be sufficient for any purpose of this indenture, if made in the following manner: (a) The fact and date of the execution by any person of any such request, or other instrument in writing, may be proved by the certificate of any notary public or other officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, that the person signing such request or other instrument acknowledged to him the execution thereof, or by an affidavit of a witness of such execution. (b) The amount and issue numbers of bonds transferable by delivery, held by any person executing any such request or other instrument as a bondholder, and the date of his holding the same, may be proved by a certificate executed by any trust company, bank, banker, or other depository, wherever situated, if such certificate shall be deemed by the trustees to be satisfactory, showing therein that at the date therein mentioned, such person had on deposit with such depository the bonds described in such certificate. The ownership of registered bonds shall be proved by the register of such bonds, as provided in Section 5 of Article II hereof. Such proof shall be conclusive in favor of the trustees with regard to any action taken by them under such request or other instrument. (c) The bearer of any bond hereby secured at the time which shall not be registered as hereinbefore authorized, and the bearer of any coupon for interest on any bond, issued hereunder, whether the same shall be registered or not, may be deemed and treated by the Company and the trustees as the absolute owner of such bond or coupon, as the case may be, for the purpose of receiving payment thereof and for all other purposes, and no notice to the contrary shall affect the Company or the trustees.

ARTICLE IX. POSSESSION OF PROPERTY AND DEFEASANCE.

Section 1. Until some default shall have been made in the due and punctual payment of the interest or of the principal of the bonds hereby secured, or of some part of such interest or of the principal of the bonds hereby secured, or of some part of such interest or principal, or in the due and punctual performance or observance of some covenant or condition hereof obligatory upon the Company, and until such default shall have continued beyond the period of grace herein provided, if any, the Company shall be suffered and permitted to retain the actual possession of the trust estate and to manage, operate and enjoy the same and every part thereof, with the rights and privileges thereunto belonging, and to collect, receive, take, use and enjoy the tolls, revenues, rents, incomes, issues and profits thereof as if this indenture had not been made.

Section 2. If, when the bonds hereby secured shall have become due and payable, whether by lapse of time or by reason of the same being called for retirement, the Company shall well and truly pay or cause to be paid the whole amount of the principal moneys and interest due upon all of the bonds and coupons for interest thereon hereby secured then outstanding, or shall provide for such payment by depositing with the corporate trustee hereunder the entire amount then due thereon for principal and interest, and shall also pay or cause to be paid all other sums payable hereunder by it, and shall well and truly keep and perform all things required hereunder to be kept and performed by it according to the true intent and meaning of this indenture, then and in that case all right, title and interest of the trustees in and to the trust estate, and each and every part thereof, shall thereupon cease and determine and become void, and the trustees in such case upon demand of the Company and at the Company's cost and expense, shall execute and deliver to the Company proper instruments acknowledging satisfaction of this indenture and such deeds of release or conveyance as shall be necessary, proper or requisite to revest the Company with the trust estate, as it then exists, free and discharged from the lien of this indenture.

(d) It shall be no part of the duty of the trustees, or either of them, to file or record this indenture as a mortgage or conveyance of real estate, or as a chattel mortgage, or as a conveyance or transfer of personal property, or to renew such mortgage or to procure any further or additional instruments of further assurance, or do any other act which may be necessary to be done for the continuance of the lien hereof, or for the giving of notice of the existence of any such lien, or for extending or supplementing the same. Neither of the trustees shall be liable for the exercise of any discretion or power hereunder or mistake or errors in judgment, nor shall any trustee be answerable for the acts or defaults of any other trustee or trustees, or otherwise in connection with this trust, except for its or his own wilful misconduct or gross negligence. (e) The trustees shall have a first lien upon the trust estate and the income and proceeds thereof for their reasonable compensation, expenses, counsel fees and compensation, and for all liabilities incurred in and about the execution of the trusts hereby created, and the exercise and performance of their powers and duties hereunder, which expenses, counsel fees and compensation the Company covenants and agrees to pay. (g) The recitals of fact herein and in said bonds contained shall be taken as statements made by the Company and shall not be construed as made by the trustees, or either of them. (h) The trustees shall not be personally liable for the debts contracted by them or either of them, nor for damages to person or property injured, nor for salaries or non-fulfillment of contracts, during any period in which the trustees shall manage or operate the trust estate upon entry as herein-before provided. (i) The trustees shall not be required at any time, before or after proceedings, to sell any part of the trust estate or take any action which they or either of them may be authorized to take hereunder, whether pursuant to the terms of this instrument, or otherwise, to give or file any bond as such trustee or trustees, the Company for itself, its successors and assigns, and the holders of any and all bonds at any time to be issued hereunder hereby forever waiving and releasing any and all right to require the trustees, or either of them, to give any such bond. (j) In case at any time it shall be necessary or proper for the trustees, or either of them, or any successor or successors of them, or either of them, to make any investigation respecting any fact preparatory to taking or not taking action or doing or not doing anything under this indenture as such trustees or trustee, the certificate of the Company over its corporate seal, sworn to by its president, vice-president, secretary or treasurer, shall, except as herein otherwise expressly provided, be sufficient evidence of such facts to protect the trustees, or either of them, or their successor or successors in any action, such trustees, or either of them, or their successor or successors, may take or refrain from taking by reason of the supposed existence of such fact, but the trustees may nevertheless, make such other or further investigation as they may deem proper.

Provided, nevertheless, and it is hereby agreed and declared that in case at any time there shall be a vacancy in the office of any trustee hereunder, the Company, by an instrument executed by order of its Board of Directors, may appoint a trustee to fill such vacancy until a new trustee shall be appointed by the bondholders as herein authorized. The Company shall publish notice of any such appointment by it made once a week for four consecutive weeks in a daily newspaper published in the City of, Ohio, and for a like number of times in a daily newspaper published in the City of New York, N. Y., and any new trustee appointed by the Company shall immediately and without further act be superseded by a trustee appointed by the bondholders in the manner above provided. Bond Holders' Agreement; Corporation in Default for Interest on Mortgage Bonds.

(See Sharp v. Oil Co., 232 Fed. 703.)

This agreement made and concluded at this day of, 19.., by and between A. B., C. D. and E. F., hereinafter termed the "Committee" parties of the first part, and such holders of the first mortgage bonds of The Electric Railway Company secured by its mortgage dated, 19.., as shall become parties hereto in the manner hereinafter provided, hereinafter termed "Bondholders," parties of the second part, witnesseth, that

Whereas, said The Electric Railway Company issued its first mortgage bonds dated, 19.., secured by a mortgage executed by said Electric Railway Company to The Trust Company of as trustee and recorded, and said Electric Railway Company has made default in the payment of certain of its obligations, including the interest due on said bonds, 19.., and receivers have been appointed for the property of said Electric Railway Company, and it is necessary that the holders of said bonds unite for the protection of their common interests: Now, therefore, the depositing bondholders, said parties of the second part, do hereby severally agree, each with the other and others and with the committee, as follows, to wit:

FIRST. This agreement shall be signed by the members of said committee and deposited with The Trust Company of, hereinafter termed the "Depository." The holders of any of such mortgage bonds may become parties to this agreement and obtain the benefits thereof by depositing, on the terms of this agreement, on or before such date as the committee may fix or limit, their bonds with the coupons for interest thereon due, 19.., and subsequent thereto. Registered bonds must be accompanied by suitable transfers thereof.

Such depositing bondholders shall receive certificates of deposit issued by said depository for the bonds and coupons deposited, which certificates shall be in such form, and shall be transferable, subject to this agreement, in such manner as the committee shall approve. Upon the transfer of any certificate the transferee shall for all purposes be substituted for the prior holder under this agreement. Each depositor hereunder, and each holder of a certificate of deposit issued hereunder, and each transferee of any such certificate, shall be bound by all the provisions of this agreement as fully as if he had signed the same. The committee and the depository may treat each certificate of deposit as a negotiable instrument and the holder for the time being as the absolute owner thereof, and shall not be affected by any notice to the contrary.

The committee in its discretion, with or without prior publication of notice, may fix or limit a date after which holders of such bonds shall not be entitled to deposit their bonds hereunder: and any such holders who fail to deposit their bonds and coupons on or before any date so fixed or limited will not be entitled to deposit the same or to become parties to this agreement or to share in the benefits thereof, and shall acquire no rights hereunder; but the committee, in its discretion, either generally or in special instances, and on such terms and conditions as it shall prescribe, may, by a written direction filed with said depository, extend the time for receiving deposits or authorize the receipt of any deposit at a later date, or waive any default.

Each depositing bondholder, for himself, but not for the others, by the deposit of his bonds, assigns and transfers the bonds and coupons deposited by him, to the committee and their survivors and their successors, as joint tenants, and agrees that the committees shall be vested with all the rights and powers of owners thereof; and all bonds and coupons deposited shall be received and held by the depository subject to the order of the committee.

SECOND. The depositing bondholders authorize and request the committee in its discretion, as owners and holders of said deposited bonds, to demand, receive and collect the interest and principal of the deposited bonds; to declare due the principal of said bonds, and to revoke any such declaration; to request the trustee of said mortgage to institute foreclosure or other proceedings; to institute or become parties to any legal proceedings which any of the depositing bondholders may institute or become parties to, and to become parties to, or exercise control over, all legal proceedings now pending or hereafter instituted in which the holders of said bonds are or may be interested, including the right to apply for receivers or for the removal of receivers and the substitution of other receivers; to exercise every right and power conferred upon owners or holders of said bonds by the terms thereof, or by the mortgage securing the same or otherwise; and generally to do any and all things which the committee in its discretion may deem necessary or expedient for any of the foregoing purposes, or for the protection of the interests of the depositing bondholders, or of the holders of the certificates issued hereunder, or for the purpose of carrying out any of the provisions of this agreement; it being hereby expressly declared that the specification of particular powers shall not be construed as limiting any of the general powers hereby conferred.

THIRD. The committee may borrow such sums of money not exceeding in the aggregate three percent of the par value of the bonds which shall be deposited hereunder, as may be required for the purpose of paying the expenses incurred by the committee hereunder, and the reasonable compensation of the committee, and it may charge or pledge the deposited bonds pro rata for the redemption of any sums borrowed; and if any sum shall be collected by the committee upon the deposited bonds and coupons the committee may apply such moneys to the payment of any sums so borrowed, and to the payment of such expenses and compensation.

FOURTH. The committee is hereby authorized and empowered to adopt, or approve of, a plan or agreement for the reorganization or readjustment of the interests of all or any of the bondholders and other creditors and parties interested in said railway company, which plan or agreement may provide for the purchase of all or any of the property of said railway company at any foreclosure or other sale and for the organization of a new Company to acquire such property and for the issue, disposition and distribution of all or any of the stock and bonds of such new Company, and for raising any sums in cash deemed necessary for improvements, working capital, expenses and other purposes. Any such plan or agreement may contain any terms and provisions and may confer upon the committee, or upon any other committee designated in such plan or agreement any powers which the committee hereunder may deem reasonable and proper; and full power and discretion in that behalf is hereby conferred upon the committee, subject to the right of dissent and withdrawal next hereinafter referred to. When the committee shall have adopted or approved of any such plan or agreement, a copy thereof shall be lodged with the depositary hereunder, at its office in the city of, with the written adoption or approval thereof endorsed thereon by majority of the members of the committee, and thereupon a brief notice of the fact of the adoption or approval of a plan or agreement of reorganization or readjustment shall be published by the committee at least twice in each week for two successive weeks in two newspapers published in the city of, and such lodgement of said plan or agreement and publication of notice thereof shall be conclusive notice to all depositing bondholders and to all holders of certificates of deposit of the adoption or approval of such plan or agreement by the committee. Any then holders of certificates of deposit, who, within thirty days after the first publication of such notice, shall surrender their certificates and pay a ratable amount of the obligations and expenses and reasonable compensation of the committee to the date of such surrender (not exceeding in the aggregate three percent of the par value of the deposited bonds), shall thereupon be entitled to withdraw from such plan or agreement and to receive from the depositary the respective bonds in respect of which such certificates were issued (or a like amount of bonds of the same issue) and any sums realized thereon remaining in the hands of the committee and such certificate holders by such withdrawal shall thereupon and without any further act be released from this agreement and cease to have any rights hereunder or under such plan or agreement. All holders of certificates who shall not exercise such right within said thirty days after such first publication to withdraw the bonds in respect of which their certificates were issued shall be conclusively deemed to have finally assented to and adopted such plan or agreement (whether they had actual notice or not), and shall be bound by all the terms and provisions thereof without further act or notice and the committee shall be fully authorized to carry out such plan or agreement irrespective of the parties withdrawing, and shall have full power and authority to use, transfer or deliver, under or in accordance with such plan or agreement, the deposited bonds and coupons, which shall not have been withdrawn as aforesaid, as fully as though such plan or agreement were a part hereof and had been expressly assented to by the depositing bondholders and the holders of the certificates of deposit issued hereunder.

FIFTH. The committee undertakes in good faith to endeavor to protect the interests of the depositing bondholders under this agreement, but the members of the committee assume no further responsibility. In case the committee for any cause should deem it inexpedient to proceed further under this agreement, it shall cause notice thereof to be published at least twice in two newspapers in the city of, and shall return to the holders of certificates of deposit issued hereunder the bonds represented by such certificates (or like amount of bonds of the same issue) and any sums realized thereon remaining in the hands of the committee, upon surrender of the respective certificates of deposit and payment of ratable amounts of the obligations, expenses and reasonable compensation of the committee.

SIXTH. The committee may employ such counsel, attorneys and agents as it may deem necessary and may fix the compensation for their services and may make such other expenditures as it shall deem necessary for any of the purposes of this agreement, and it may procure the performance of any of the matters herein provided for by agents, trustees or substitutes.

In all cases a majority of the members of the committee, present in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum, but no action shall be taken except with the assent of the majority of the whole committee, such assent being given in person or by proxy at a meeting, or in writing without a meeting. Such action of a majority shall constitute the action of the committee, and shall have the same effect as if assented to by the whole committee.

The committee shall keep a record of its acts and proceedings. Any member of the committee, by written appointment, may empower any other member of the committee, or any person approved by a majority of the remaining members of the committee, to vote and to act as his proxy with all the powers of the member making the appointment. Any member of the committee may at any time resign by giving notice in writing to the chairman or secretary of the committee, and the committee may settle any account or transaction with such member or with the personal representatives of a deceased member and give a full release and discharge upon any such resignation. Any vacancy in the committee caused by resignation, death, or otherwise, may be filled by appointment in writing by a majority of the remaining members; and the committee may in like manner add to its number by appointing an additional member or additional members. All title, rights, duties and powers vested in the committee hereunder shall from time to time vest in the members of the committee for the time being without any further appointment, transfer or assignment whatsoever. The present or future members of the committee may be or become pecuniarily interested in any of the bonds or matters which are the subject of this agreement including the right to become members of any syndicate formed in connection therewith.

SEVENTH. No member of the committee shall be liable in any case for the acts of the other members or of the depositary, nor for the acts of any attorney, trustee or agent selected in good faith, nor shall any member be personally liable for any error of judgment, or mistake of law, but each shall be liable for his own willful malfeasance. The members of the committee shall be entitled to receive reasonable compensation for their services. The holders of certificates of deposit, by receipt of any securities or cash distributed by the committee and surrender of their certificates, release and discharge the committee from all liability.

This agreement shall extend to and be obligatory upon the respective heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns of the parties hereto.

In testimony whereof, the members of the committee have hereunto set their hands the day and year first above written and the parties of the second part have executed this agreement by depositing their bonds and coupons and accepting certificates of deposit therefor.

Providing for the abandonment of a state canal and for leasing it to a specified railroad company. Vought v. Railroad Co., 58 O. S. 123 (1898).

§ 2. Corporations; how formed.—Corporations may be formed under general laws; but all such laws may, from time to time, be altered or repealed. Corporations may be classified and there may be conferred upon proper boards, commissions or officers, such supervisory and regulatory powers over their organization, business and issue and sale of stocks and securities, and over the business and sale of the stocks and securities of foreign corporations and joint stock companies in this state, as may be prescribed by law. Laws may be passed regulating the sale and conveyance of other personal property, whether owned by a corporation, joint stock company or individual. (As amended 1912, in effect January 1, 1913.)

This section must be construed in connection with section 2, article 1, which provides that "no special privileges or immunities shall ever be granted that may not be altered or repealed." Shields v. State, 26 O. S. 86, 94 (1875).

What are general laws. See State ex rel. v. Sherman, 22 O. S. 411 (1872).

Consolidated companies subject to this section. Consolidated companies organized in pursuance of the general laws are subject to this section. Shields v. State, 26 O. S. 86 (1875); (affirmed 95 U. S. 319).

Power to regulate rates of fare. Under this section the general assembly has power to alter and regulate rates of fare chargeable by common carrier companies. Shields v. State, 26 O. S. 86 (1875); (affirmed 95 U. S. 319).

Right to alter or repeal. The property of a corporation can not be taken without due process of law under authority of this section. State v. Lake Erie Iron Co., 33 W. L. B. 6; 51 O. S. 632 (1894).

A corporation is a "person" within the 14th amendment of the federal constitution forbidding the deprivation of property without due process of law. Covington, etc., Co. v. Sandford, 164 U. S. 578 (1896).

Vested rights. The inalienable right to acquire, hold and dispose of property, and to make contracts relating thereto, appertains to corporations as well as to individuals. Stewart v. Gardner, 10 C. C. n. s. 408; 20 C. D. 218 (1907); affd. no rep. 78 O. S. 451; Shaw v. Railway Co., 173 Fed. 746, 751; 8 O. L. R. 43, 49 (C. C. A. 1909); Ohio ex rel. v. Neff, 52 O. S. 375 (1895).

§ 3. Dues from corporations; how secured.—Dues from private corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law, but in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable otherwise than for the unpaid stock owned by him or her; except that stockholders of corporations authorized to receive money on deposit shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such corporations, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. No corporation not organized under the laws of this state, or of the United States, or person, partnership or association shall use the word "bank", "banker" or "banking", or words of similar meaning in any foreign language, as a designation or name under which business may be conducted in this state unless such corporation, person, partnership or association shall submit to inspection, examination and regulation as may hereafter be provided by the laws of this state. (As amended September 3, 1912, in effect January 1, 1913.)

Prior to 1903 a double liability was imposed on stockholders of all corporations. In 1903 the double liability was abolished, but was restored as to bank stockholders in 1912.

The amendment of 1912, restoring the double liability as to state bank stockholders, is self-executing. Lang v. Osborn Bank, 100 O. S. 51 (1919) s. c.; 17 N. P. n. s. 236, 25 L. D. 246 (1914).

But in respect to the restriction of the use of the word "bank" the amendment became effective only upon the enactment of laws. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 710. See § 710-3.

The liability of bank stockholders is for double the amount of their subscription, and not merely double the amount paid in. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 708.

Stockholders in a bank organized after 1903 and prior to January 1, 1913, who acquired their stock during the same period, are liable for debts incurred subsequent to January 1, 1913. The constitutional amendment of 1912 does not violate Art. 1, Sec. 10 of the Federal Constitution. Allen v. Scott, 104 O. S. 436 (1922) affirming, 15 Ohio App. 251; State v. Putnam County Banking Co., 22 N. P. n. s. 201 (1919).

The stockholders of a bank organized in 1889 are liable to a double assessment for debts now existing which were incurred prior to November 23, 1903, and subsequent to January 1, 1913, but not for debts incurred between November 23, 1903, and January 1, 1913. State v. Osborn Bank, 17 N. P. n. s. 236; 25 L. D. 246 (1914); Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 127; Lang v. Osborn Bank, 100 O. S. 51 (1919).

The amendment of 1903 (see 95 v. 961) was held to be self-executing so as to repeal by implication the statutes then in force and to relieve stockholders from double liability for debts incurred by the corporation subsequent to November 23, 1903. Sheets Mfg. Co. v. Neer Mfg. Co., 4 N. P. n. s. 201; 17 L. D. 119 (C. P. 1906).

The former provision imposing a double liability on stockholders in all corporations has been held not to be self-executing so as to sustain an action to enforce liability in federal courts against nonresidents, where no proceeding had been brought in Ohio under G. C. § 8690 et seq. Middletown N. B. v. Railway Co., 197 U. S. 394 (1905); Irvine v. Elliott, 203 Fed. 82 (D. C. 1913);

For decisions under this section prior to amendment of 1903 see:

State ex rel. v. Sherman, 22 O. S. 411 (1872); Kreisser v. Ashtabula, etc., Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 597; 14 C. D. 313 (1901).

§ 4. Corporate property subject to taxation.—The property of corporations, now existing or hereafter created, shall forever be subject to taxation, the same as the property of individuals.

Double taxation prohibited. The limitation in this section and in article 12, section 3 of the constitution prohibit the double taxation of corporations. Cleveland Trust Co. v. Lander, 62 O. S. 266, 280 (1900).

But such limitations apply only to the taxation of property, not of privileges and franchises. An additional tax may be imposed upon franchises. Southern Gum Co. v. Laylin, 66 O. S. 578, 596 (1902).

Property. What constitutes. A corporate franchise is not property. Exchange Bank v. Hines, 3 O. S. 1, 7 (1853); Baker v. Cincinnati, 11 O. S. 540 (1860); Ashley v. Ryan, 49 O. S. 525.

§ 5. Right of way.—No right of way shall be appropriated to the use of any corporation, until full compensation therefor be first made in money, or first secured by a deposit of money, to the owner, irrespective of any benefit from any improvement proposed by such corporation; which compensation shall be ascertained by a jury of twelve men, in a court of record, as shall be prescribed by law.

See Const., article I, § 19. G. C. §§ 8759, 8760, 11038 et seq.

§ 7. Associations with banking powers.—No act of the general assembly, authorizing associations with banking powers, shall take effect until it shall be submitted to the people, at the general election next succeeding the passage thereof, and be approved by a majority of all the electors, voting at such election.

The words "banking powers" in this section relate only to the power to issue notes and bills intended to circulate as money. The incorporation of banks of deposit and discount may be authorized by the legislature without a referendum. Dearborn v. Bank, 42 O. S. 617 (1885); Bates v. Peoples, etc., Assn, 42 O. S. 655 (1885). See also Forest City, etc., Ass'n v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208, 216 (1874).

Section 32. (Seal; of what it may consist.) Where an official or a corporate seal is required to be affixed to an instrument of writing, an impression of such seal upon either wax, wafer or other adhesive substance, or upon the paper or material on which such instrument is written, shall be alike valid and sufficient. Private seals are abolished, and the affixing of what has been known as a private seal to an instrument shall not give such instrument additional force or effect, or change the construction thereof. (R. S. Sec. 4; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 198; 80 v. 79; Rev. Stat. 1880; 29 v. 349, § 1; S. & C. 1385.)

No banker, broker, cashier, director, teller or clerk of a bank, banker or broker, or other person holding an official relation to a bank, banker, or broker, shall be competent to act as notary public in any matter in which such bank, banker, or broker is interested. (R. S. Sec. 111; March 23, 1893, 90 v. 119; April 11, 1876, 73 v. 206, § 7; S. & S. 498; S. & C. 873.)

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

Section 154-39. (Department of commerce, powers and duties.) The department of commerce shall have all powers and perform all duties vested in the inspector of building and loan associations, the state fire marshal, the superintendent of insurance, the state inspector of oils, and the commissioner of securities; and said department shall have all powers and perform all duties vested by law in any and all officers, deputies and employes of such offices and departments. Wherever powers are conferred or duties imposed upon any of such departments, offices or officers, such powers and duties shall be construed as vested in the department of commerce.

(Division of banks.) There is hereby created in the department of commerce a division of banks which shall have all powers and perform all duties vested by law in the superintendent of banks. Wherever powers are conferred or duties imposed upon the superintendent of banks, such powers and duties shall be construed as vested in the division of banks. The division of banks shall be administered by a superintendent of banks, who shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and hold his office for a term of two years, unless sooner removed at the will of the governor. A vacancy in the office of superintendent of banks shall be filled by appointment for the unexpired term. All provisions of law governing the superintendent of banks shall apply to and govern the superintendent of banks herein provided for; all authority vested by law in the superintendent of banks with respect to the management of the department of banks heretofore existing shall be construed as vested in the superintendent of banks hereby created with respect to the division of banks herein provided for; and all rights, privileges and emoluments conferred by law upon the superintendent of banks shall be construed as conferred upon the superintendent of banks as head of the division of banks herein provided for. The director of commerce shall not impose upon the division of banks any functions other than those specified in this paragraph, nor transfer from such division any of such functions.

(Public utilities commission a part of the department of commerce for administrative purposes.) The public utilities commission of Ohio shall be a part of the department of commerce for administrative purposes, in the following respects: The director of commerce shall be ex officio the secretary of said commission, shall succeed to and perform all of the duties of the secretary of said commission, and shall exercise all powers of said secretary as provided by law; but such director may designate any employe of the department as acting secretary to perform the duties and exercise the powers of secretary of the commission. All clerical, inspection and other agencies for the execution of the powers and duties vested in the said public utilities commission shall be deemed to be in the department of commerce, and the employes thereof shall be deemed to be employees of said department and shall have and exercise all authority vested by law in the employees of such commission. But the public utilities commission shall have direct supervision and control over, and power of appointment and removal of, such employees whose positions shall be designated by the governor as fully subject to the authority of such commission. (109 v. 117.)

Section 176. (Fees to be collected by secretary of state.)

The secretary of state shall charge and collect the following fees for official services:

1. For filing articles of incorporation of a corporation whose capital stock is ten thousand dollars or under, ten dollars; of a corporation whose capital stock is over ten thousand dollars, one-tenth of one per cent upon the authorized capital stock of such corporation.

2. For filing certificate of increase of capital stock of a corporation, if the increase is ten thousand dollars or under, ten dollars; if the increase is over ten thousand dollars, one-tenth of one per cent upon the proposed increase of capital.

3. For filing articles of agreements of consolidation of corporations having a capital stock, one-tenth of one per cent upon the authorized capital stock of the new corporation, created by such articles of agreements of consolidation, but not less than ten dollars in any case; but no credit shall be allowed for fees previously paid by any of the constituent corporations, parties to such consolidation.

4. For filing articles of incorporation of a mutual life insurance corporation having no capital stock, or of other mutual corporations not organized strictly for benevolent or charitable purposes and having no capital stock, twenty-five dollars, except as hereinafter provided.

5. For filing articles of incorporation formed for religious, benevolent or literary purposes; or of corporations not organized for profit and not mutual in their character, or of religious or secret societies; or societies or associations composed exclusively of any class of mechanics, express, telegraph, railroad or other employes, and formed exclusively for the mutual protection and relief of members thereof and their families, two dollars.

6. For filing articles of incorporation of a building and loan association, ten dollars; for filing certificate of increase of the capital stock of such a corporation, five dollars.

7. For filing certificate of reduction of capital stock of a corporation, five dollars.

8. For filing certified copy of the acceptance of any provision of existing law by a corporation incorporated prior to the adoption of the present constitution, five dollars.

9. For filing an amendment to articles of incorporation, twenty cents for each hundred words, but in no case less than five dollars.

10. For filing certificates of extension of line of a railroad corporation, certificate of change of termini, certificate of intention of a corporation to construct a branch line, or certificate of change of route, twenty cents for each one hundred words, but in no case less than five dollars.

11. For filing certificate of extension of purpose, or change of domicile of a corporation, five dollars.

12. For filing certificates not herein enumerated, twenty cents for each one hundred words, but in no case less than five dollars, except certificates of election for which no charge shall be made.

13. For filing copy of papers evidencing the incorporation of a municipal corporation, or of annexation of territory by a municipal corporation, five dollars, to be paid by the corporation, the petitioners therefor, or their agent.

14. For filing certificate of subscription to ten per cent of the capital stock of a corporation, two dollars.

15. For filing name, or names or initials filed by manufacturers, bottlers and dealers in ginger ale, seltzer-water, soda water, mineral water and other beverages, as provided by law, five dollars.

16. For making certificates under the great seal of the state, one dollar.

17. For recording miscellaneous records, papers, or other documents, required by law to be recorded in the office of the secretary of state, twenty cents for each one hundred words.

18. For making copies of articles of incorporation, and for making copies of a document or a part thereof, ten cents for each one hundred words; for affixing seal of office to copies, fifty cents, except copies of documents required by state officers for official purposes, for which no charge shall be made. (R. S. Secs. 148, 148a. February 12, 1889, 86 v. 33; March 14, 1888, 85 v. 80; May 15, 1886, 83 v. 165; March 18, 1884, 81 v. 52; April 18, 1881, 78 v. 186; 73 v. 227, § 2; 44 v. 65, § 4; S. & C. 1394.)

This act is constitutional, and applies to a consolidation of an Ohio and a foreign corporation, as well as to consolidation of Ohio corporations. Ashley v. Ryan, 49 O. S. 504 (1892); 153 U. S. 436.

Where the business of a corporation substantially amounts to insurance, the filing fee for its articles is $25.00. Such a corporation is not a society organized for benevolent purposes under § 176. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 57, 88, 90, 112; 3 Opins. Atty. Gen. 504.

The word "mutual" in paragraphs 4 and 5 of this section has been considered in several opinions of the attorney general, and its meaning is not entirely clear. It has been suggested that the word contemplates a corporation whose members are mutually liable for its debts, unlike an ordinary corporation not for profit, whose trustees and not its members are liable for debts (§ 8666). A corporation formed for the purpose of the "entertainment, recreation and social betterment of its members and all others", is not "mutual", in character. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 51.

Where a corporation not for profit has a capital stock, the filing fee is based on such capital stock as in the case of a corporation for profit. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 206; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 719.

Section 177. (Fees to be paid before filing or record.)

The secretary of state shall not file or record articles of incorporation or consolidation, certificates or other papers referred to in the preceding section, unless the fee therein prescribed has been paid. (R. S. Sec. 148a; February 12, 1889, 86 v. 33; March 14, 1888, 85 v. 80; May 15, 1886, 83 v. 165; March 18, 1884, 81 v. 52.)

Section 178. (Certificate of admission of foreign corporation.) Before a foreign corporation for profit transacts business in this state, it shall procure from the secretary of state a certificate that it has complied with the requirements of law to authorize it to do business in this state, and that the business of such corporation to be transacted in this state, is such as may be lawfully carried on by a corporation, organized under the laws of this state for such or similar business, or if more than one kind of business, by two or more corporations so incorporated for such kinds of business exclusively. No such foreign corporation doing business in this state without such certificate shall maintain an action in this state upon a contract made by it in this state until it has procured such certificate. This section shall not apply to foreign banking, insurance, building and loan, or bond investment corporations. (R. S. Sec. 148d; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 227; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 355; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 261.)

Cross references. Noncompliance with act, effect of: note to § 194.
 Right to maintain action: note to § 187.
 Retirement from state, certificate, etc., on: §§ 5521, 11976 to 11978.
 Foreign corporations generally: note to § 194.

Classification of foreign corporation acts. There are two laws imposing conditions upon foreign corporations entering the state to transact business: (1) the license fee law (G. C. § 178 to 182) which applies to all corporations except the classes specified in § 178, and (2) the franchise tax law (G. C. § 183 to 192) which (except as to the classes specified in § 188) applies to corporations which own or use a part or all their capital or plant in Ohio. §§ 178-182 may apply to some corporations to which §§ 183-192 do not apply. But every corporation which is subject to § 183 is necessarily subject to §§ 178-182.

A foreign corporation which voluntarily complied with § 178, but which in fact transacted no business in Ohio is not liable for the annual franchise tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 59, 569; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1172.

"Retirement from business" under §§ 5520 and 11976 refers to retirement from the exercise of the privilege covered by § 183 et seq. When a corporation retires from business in the state it may have its registration under § 178 et seq. continued. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1172.

A foreign corporation engaged in purchasing mortgages through a local agent (who is not authorized to approve mortgages or consummate a purchase) and making collections on mortgage notes through local agents, should comply with § 178, but need not comply with § 183. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 417.

An annual franchise tax is imposed by G. C. § 5503.

Constitutionality. The foreign corporation acts are constitutional. Aetna Iron & Steel Co. v. Taylor, 3 N. P. 152; 4 L. D. 180; s. c., 13 C. C. 602; 5 C. D. 242 (1896); Express Co. v. State, 55 O. S. 69 (1896); Southern Gum Co. v. Laylin, 66 O. S. 595 (1902).

Corporations engaged in interstate commerce. This section does not exempt foreign corporations engaged in interstate commerce, from its requirements, as in § 188. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 240.

See note to § 194. Right of state to exclude or impose conditions upon foreign corporations.

Single purpose rule. Foreign corporations are expressly excepted by this section from the single purpose rule which applies to Ohio corporations. A foreign corporation may be admitted to do business in Ohio although its articles of incorporation provide for several unrelated corporate purposes. Rep. Atty. Gen., 1912, pp. 15, 44.

Foreign corporations may enter Ohio only to do such business as may be lawfully carried on by Ohio corporations. A foreign corporation organized for the purpose of carrying on professional business is not entitled to a certificate authorizing it to do business in Ohio, such business being prohibited to corporations by G. C. § 8623. State v. Laylin, 73 O. S. 90 (1905); 5 Opins. Atty. Gen. 975.

A foreign corporation authorized to acquire and deal generally in the stock of other corporations can not be admitted to do business in Ohio, since under § 8683 a corporation may acquire stock in kindred and not competing corporations noly. 5 Opins. Atty. Gen. 924, 969 (1903); Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 246; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 61; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 68.

Unless it expressly renounces the right to exercise such corporate power in Ohio. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 78; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 44, 46.

A corporation organized to deal in real estate may be admitted to do business in Ohio but the articles should expressly limit its life in Ohio to twenty-five years. 5 Opins. Atty. Gen. 1002.

What corporate powers may be exercised in Ohio.

See note to § 194, powers of foreign corporations.

Acting as a stockholder in an Ohio corporation, or giving assent to changes in its regulations, is not "doing business" in Ohio within the meaning of G. C. §§ 178 or 5508. Toledo Co. v. Smith, 205 Fed. 643 (D. C. 1913).

Banking corporation. A foreign corporation, having in its name the words "bank" or "trust company", but not intending to do such business in Ohio, should be refused authority to do business in the state, as its name would be misleading to the public. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 706.

Foreign joint stock association. A foreign partnership or common-law joint stock association is not authorized or required to comply with § 178 et seq. The secretary of state is not authorized to file a certificate from such a firm or association. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2270.

Federal governmental agency. A District of Columbia corporation to which the president has delegated certain authority granted him by congress, and which transacts no other business, is an agency of the federal government and need not comply with the foreign corporation laws. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 2175.

Section 179. (Statement required before admission.) Before granting such certificate, the secretary of state shall require such foreign corporation to file in his office a sworn copy of its charter or certificate of incorporation, and a statement under its corporate seal setting forth the following: The amount of capital stock of the corporation, the business in which it is engaged or in which it proposes to engage within this state; the proposed location of its principal place of business within this state; and the name of a person designated as provided by law, upon whom process against the corporation may be served within this state. The person so designated must have an office or place of business at the proposed location of the principal place of business of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 148d; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 227; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 355; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 261.)

Whether jurisdiction over a foreign corporation, in a suit on a cause of action arising in another state, may be acquired by service on the designated agent, is a question on which there has been some difference of opinion. The United States Supreme Court has expressed the view that § 181 limits the jurisdiction to liabilities "incurred within the state". Robert Mitchell Furniture Co. v. Selden Breck Construction Co., 257 U. S. 213 (1921), 66 L. Ed. 102; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Clarendon Boat Oar Co., 257 U. S. 533 (1922), 66 L. Ed. 354.

In earlier cases, common pleas courts in Ohio had held that such jurisdiction could be acquired, in a suit by a resident of Ohio, by service on the designated agent. Burke v. McClintic-Marshall Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 577 (1910); Madison v. Pittsburg Construction Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 634 (1911). See Handy v. Insurance Co., 37 O. S. 366 (1881).

Jurisdiction over a foreign corporation may be acquired in federal court by service of process on the agent designated in its statement. Runkle v. Insurance Co., 2 Fed. 9; 5 W. L. B. 217; 4 O. F. D. 620 (C. C. 1880); Barrow Steamship Co. v. Kane, 170 U. S. 100, 107 (1898).

Process issued from one county may be served upon the designated agent in another county. Blanton v. Burroughs, etc., Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 423 (C. P. 1912).

For service of process on foreign corporations see also notes to G. C. § 11290 and § 10244.

Section 180. (Fees to be paid before delivery of certificates.) For issuing such certificate the secretary of state shall be entitled to receive from a foreign corporation the following fees:

A corporation having an authorized capital stock of one hundred thousand dollars or less, fifteen dollars.

A corporation having an authorized capital stock of more than one hundred thousand dollars, and not exceeding three hundred thousand dollars, twenty dollars.

A corporation having an authorized capital stock of more than three hundred thousand dollars, and not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars, twenty-five dollars.

A corporation having an authorized capital stock of more than five hundred thousand dollars, and less than one million dollars, thirty dollars.

A corporation having an authorized capital stock of one million dollars, or more, fifty dollars.

Whereupon such foreign corporation shall be entitled to receive from the secretary of state the certificate provided in the second preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 148d; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 227; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 355; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 261.)

Compliance with §§ 178 and 179 and the payment of a fee under § 180 do not constitute a contract which will prevent the state from thereafter imposing other fees. Aetna Iron & Steel Co. v. Taylor, 3 N. P. 152; 4 L. D. 180; 13 C. C. 602; 15 C. D. 242 (1896). Compare American, etc., Co. v. Colorado, 204 U. S. 103 (1906); Southern Railway Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400 (1910).

The secretary of state has no discretionary power to investigate and determine the legality of the manner in which a foreign corporation is conducting its business, with a view to rejecting the application, where the application is in proper form and shows the business to be legal. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 202.

Fee for foreign corporation having no par value stock. § 8728-11.

Section 181. (Person upon whom process to be served.)

If a person designated by a foreign corporation as its agent within this state dies or removes from the principal place of business of the corporation within this state, the corporation, within thirty days after such death or removal, shall designate in like manner another person upon whom process may be served within this state. On failure so to do, the secretary of state shall revoke the authority of the corporation to do business within this state and process against such corporation in an action upon the liability incurred within this state before such revocation may be served upon the secretary of state after such death or removal and before another designation is made. At the time of such service the plaintiff shall pay to the secretary of state a fee of two dollars, which shall be included in the taxable costs of the action, and the secretary of state shall forthwith mail a copy of the service to the corporation if its address or the address of any officer is known to him. (R. S. Sec. 148d; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 227; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 355; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 261.)

See note to § 179.

Where the agent removes from the state, the duty of the secretary of state to revoke the authority of the corporation is mandatory. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 264.

Service of process by mail. Mohr Distilling Co. v. Fireman's Ins. Co., 12 Am. L. R. 168 (1883); Heart v. Lycoming Ins. Co., 26 O. S. 594 (1875); s. c., 2 Am. L. R. 355.

Section 182. (Penalty for noncompliance with previous section.) Whoever solicits or transacts business in this state for a foreign corporation which is subject to the provisions of the preceding four sections, before it has complied with the provisions of such sections, shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than ten days nor more than six months, or both. Upon direction of the attorney general, the prosecuting attorney shall prosecute any person charged with a violation of the provisions of such section. (R. S. Sec. 148d; 93 v. 227; 91 v. 355; 90 v. 261.)

See §§ 5523, 5524, 191.

Section 183. (Statement required before doing business.) Before doing business in this state, a foreign corporation organized for profit and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state shall make and file with the secretary of state, in such form as he may prescribe, a statement under oath of its president, secretary, treasurer, superintendent or managing agent in this state, containing the following facts:

1. The number of shares of authorized capital stock of the corporation and the par value of each share.

2. The name and location of the office or offices of the corporation in Ohio and the names and addresses of the officers or agents of the corporation in charge of its business in Ohio.

3. The value of the property owned and used by the corporation in Ohio, where situated, and the value of the property of the corporation owned and used outside of Ohio.

4. The proportion of the capital stock of the corporation represented by property owned and used and by business transacted in Ohio. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v.

496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

What constitutes "doing business". See note to §§ 194 and 188. Effect of noncompliance, see note to § 194.

Corporations which are not subject to this section are not required to make reports and pay annual franchise taxes, although they may be subject to § 178 et seq. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 569, 59; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1172.

Property in Ohio held by a trustee for a corporation should be reported, if the corporation enjoys the entire use and benefit. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, pp. 740, 1061.

The word "business" in this section is synonymous with the same word as used in § 5502. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 460.

Neither "good will" nor "patent rights", separately considered, constitute "property" within the meaning of this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 358.

Section 184. (Payment of franchise fee and certificate.)

From the facts thus reported and any other facts coming to his knowledge, the secretary of state shall determine the proportion of the capital stock of the corporation represented by its property and business in this state, and shall charge and collect from such corporation for the privilege of exercising its franchise in this state, one-tenth of one per cent upon the proportion of its authorized capital stock represented by property owned and used and business transacted in this state, but not less than ten dollars in any case. Upon the payment of such fee the secretary of state shall make and deliver to such foreign corporation a certificate that it has complied with the laws of Ohio and is authorized to do business therein, stating the amount of its authorized capital stock and the proportion of such authorized capital stock represented in this state. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

The secretary of state has no discretionary power to investigate and determine the legality of the manner in which a foreign corporation is conducting its business, with a view to rejecting the application, where the application is in proper form and shows the business to be legal. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 202.

Method of computing tax. This tax is not based upon the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio, but is based upon the proportion of the total authorized capital stock represented by such property and business. The proportion which the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio bears to the entire property and business of the corporation is the proportion of the capital stock upon which the tax is based. If the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio is $10,000, the entire corporate property and business $20,000, and the authorized capital stock $50,000, the tax would be based upon one-half of its authorized capital stock ($25,000) the Ohio property and business being one-half of the total property and business.

If the entire corporate property and business is in Ohio the tax would be based upon the entire authorized capital stock, although all of the authorized capital stock has not been subscribed for or issued. State v. Fulton, 98 O. S. 350 (1918); 5 O. L. R. 163 (Atty. Gen. 1907); Aetna, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 13 C. C. 602; 5 C. D. 242 (1896); 4 Opins. Atty. Gen., 621-24 (1894); Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 600.

Payment of the fee under protest does not render it an involuntary payment, unless the other circumstances under which it is paid would justify its recovery back. Aetna Iron & Steel Co. v. Taylor, 3 N. P. 152; 4 L. D. 180 (1896).

For annual franchise tax, see § 5499 et seq.

Fee for foreign corporation having no par value stock. § 8728-11.

Section 185. (Fee for increase of capital stock.) A corporation which has filed its statement and paid the fee prescribed by the preceding two sections and which thereafter shall increase the proportion of its capital stock, represented by property used and business done in this state, shall file within thirty days after such increase an additional statement with the secretary of state, and pay a fee of one-tenth of one per cent upon the increase of its authorized capital stock represented by property owned and business transacted in this state. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

Where the capital stock of a foreign corporation is increased, a statement thereof must be filed with the secretary of state. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 101.

Although the proportion of its business and property in Ohio has not increased. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1454. But see Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2132.

The additional statement should show the amount of the corporation's Ohio business and property and its business and property outside of Ohio. It is not sufficient merely to state that no part of the increase of capital stock has gone into Ohio property and business. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2132.

Where a foreign corporation paid the minimum fee under § 184 at a time when it had no property in Ohio, and it subsequently desires to use property in the state, the whole of the property to be used constitutes an "increase" under this section, and the fee previously paid cannot be credited toward the fee for the increase. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1768.

Whether or not the proportion of capital stock represented by Ohio property and business has been increased is a question of fact to be determined by mathematical calculation. It is not indispensable that the corporation shall have increased its authorized capital stock, and an increase in the authorized capital does not necessarily result in an increase of the proportion. The statutory test is, has the corporation increased the proportion of its capital stock represented by property used and business done in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1123; 17 O. L. R. 371.

In determining whether the proportion has been increased, the statements to be considered are the last one filed with the secretary of state and the new statement proposed to be filed. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1140.

Section 186. (Exemption from penalty.) If a foreign corporation complies with the provisions of the preceding three sections, it shall not be subject to process of attachment under any law of this state upon the ground that it is a foreign corporation, or non-resident of the state. A foreign corporation subject to the provisions of such sections which shall neglect or refuse to comply with the requirements thereof shall forfeit and pay one thousand dollars and an additional penalty of one thousand dollars for each month that it continues to transact business in this state without complying with such sections, to be recovered by an action in the name of the state, and on collection paid into the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund. (R. S. Secs. 148c, 148d; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225, 227; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272; April 15, 1893, 90 v. 261.)

Attachment and garnishment of foreign corporations.

In court of common pleas, § 11819 et seq.

Before justice of the peace, § 10253 et seq.

Attachment. The exemption from attachment provided for in this section is constitutional. Puerrung v. Carter Crume Co., 16 C. C. 629; 9 C. D. 411 (1898); s. c., 35 W. L. B. 2.

Affidavit for (a) Before justice of the peace. An affidavit for attachment under G. C. § 10253 need not aver noncompliance with foreign corporation laws. Rosenham Co. v. Cohen & Mack, 13 C. C. n. s. 102 (1910).

— (b) In court of common pleas. An affidavit for attachment under G. C. § 11819 should allege noncompliance. Edwards Mfg. Co. v. Ashland Sheet Mill Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 1; 18 L. D. 413 (1907); affirmed 11 C. C. n. s. 479; 20 C. D. 414; Leavitt, etc., Co. v. Rosenberg, etc., Co., 83 O. S. 230 (1910); Dillon v. Garment Co., 5 Ohio App. 347 (1915); Boiler Works v. Machine Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 605 (1910).

Transportation company. A foreign transportation corporation engaged in interstate commerce does not, by a voluntary compliance with G. C. § 183, become exempt from attachment. G. C. § 188. Bigalow v. Armour, 74 O. S. 168 (1906), reversing 5 C. C. n. s. 161; 16 C. D. 496.

A sleeping car is an instrumentality of interstate commerce, and when actually employed in interstate transportation is immune from attachment under process from a state court. A sheriff who seizes such immune property is liable as for conversion. An attaching creditor and his attorney who actively assist in the seizure may also be liable. Pullman Co. v. Linkey, 11 O. L. R. 63; 203 Fed. 1017 (D. C. 1913).

Foreign corporation as garnishee. A foreign corporation which neither transacts business nor exercises its corporate powers within the state can not be made a garnishee in an action against another foreign corporation. But a corporation which has complied with the foreign corporation acts, and is capable of suing and being sued in the state, may be made a garnishee in such an action. Ritter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. Mzik, 3 C. C. n. s. 125; 13 C. D. 164 (1901); Compare, Kelley Co. v. Garvin Machine Co., 6 N. P. 350; 4 L. D. 374 (1896).

Section 187. (Must comply herewith before certain actions can be brought.) A foreign corporation which has violated such preceding sections shall not maintain an action in this state upon contract made by it in this state, until it has complied with the requirements of such sections and procured the requisite certificate from the secretary of state. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 94 v. 272.)

See § 178.

Before the enactment of § 5508 (May 31, 1911) it was held that a contract made by a foreign corporation, without complying with §§ 178 to 192, was not void. Fergus v. Columbus, 6 N. P. 82; 8 L. D. 290 (1898); Union, etc., Ins. Co. v. McMillan, 24 O. S. 67 (1873).

But the right of action on such contract in the state courts was suspended until the conditions of the law were complied with. Simplex Dairy Co. v. Cole, 86 Fed. 739 (1898); Crefeld Miller v. Goddard, 69 Fed. 141 (1895).

Suit thereon might be brought in federal court. Johnson v. Breweries Co., 178 Fed. 513 (1910).

By § 5508 a contract made by a foreign corporation, before compliance with § 178 is void in its behalf, but is enforceable against it.

Construction of section. The inhibition of this section is as to actions upon contracts, and not transactions, and as to maintaining actions and not the institution of actions. It is a technical defense and should be technically considered. An answer setting up a defense under this section should show that the plaintiff corporation came within the provisions of the act at the time of the filing of the answer, and was not included in any of its exceptions. Automatic, etc., Co. v. Schlemmer Co., 6 O. L. R. 72; 18 L. D. 788 (C. P. 1908).

Noncompliance with laws, no defense to prosecution for crime against property of foreign corporation. On the trial of an indictment for embezzlement of funds coming into the possession of the defendant as agent for a foreign corporation, it is no defense that the corporation has not complied with these acts. State v. Pohlmeier, 59 O. S. 491 (1898). See Starkey v. State, 6 O. S. 266 (1856).

Pleading compliance or noncompliance. A foreign corporation bringing suit need not allege compliance with laws. Want of compliance is a matter of defense. The answer of the defendant must set forth specifically facts bringing the foreign corporation within the provisions of the statute, and show that it is not among the classes exempted by §§ 188 and 178. Brady v. Palmer, 19 C. C. 687; 10 C. D. 27 (1899); affd. 64 O. S. 267 (1901); Toledo Commercial Co. v. Glen Mfg. Co., 55 O. S. 217 (1896); affmg. 11 C. C. 153; 5 C. D. 131; Automatic, etc., Co. v. Schlemmer Co., 6 O. L. R. 72; 18 L. D. 788 (1908); Illinois, etc., Co. v. Whitman, 13 N. P. n. s. 362; 23 L. D. 12 (1911).

Pleading corporate capacity and powers. A foreign corporation bringing suit need not aver in its petition that it is a corporation, or the terms of its charter showing its capacity to maintain the action. If such avermment is made, it will be held to be immaterial and mere surplusage. A general denial to a petition containing such averment will not raise an issue as to corporate capacity.

To raise the issue of corporate capacity of the plaintiff, it must be specially pleaded by the defendant. Brady v. National Supply Co., 64 O. S. 267 (1901); affirming 19 C. C. 687; 10 C. D. 27; Smith v. Weed Sewing Machine Co., 26 O. S. 562 (1875); Elektron Mfg. Co. v. Jones Bros. Elec. Co., 8 C. C. 311; 4 C. D. 555 (1894); Staley v. Cusack Co., 23 N. P. n. s. 209.

A person who has dealt with a foreign corporation and received the benefits of the contract, is estopped to deny its legal existence and power to make the contract. Newburgh Petroleum Co. v. Weare, 27 O. S. 343 (1875).

But where a foreign corporation seeks to appropriate private property, the rule is otherwise. The corporation must allege in its petition and prove its incorporation according to law, including the due and legal election of directors, and its charter power to appropriate property. Central Union Tel. Co. v. Columbus, 8 C. C. n. s. 81; 28 C. D. 131 (1905); Queen City Tel. Co. v. Cincinnati, 73 O. S. 64 (1905).

And where a corporation is made a defendant, and its charter, powers or franchise become the foundation of the action, they must be specially pleaded in the petition, including the name of the state of incorporation, and the substantial terms in which the charter, powers and franchises were granted. Devoss v. Gray, 22 O. S. 159 (1871); Brady v. National Supply Co., 64 O. S. 267 (1901).

Proof of legal existence and powers. The law of the state under which a foreign corporation is organized constitutes a part of its charter. Courts of this state do not take judicial notice of the laws of other states. To establish the legal existence and powers of a foreign corporation it is necessary to prove the laws of its home state conferring its powers, as well as the articles of incorporation, subscriptions to capital stock, election of officers, etc. Niagara County Bank v. Baker, 15 O. S. 68 (1864); James v. C. H. & D. R. R., 2 Disney 261, 266 (1858). See notes to § 11046.

Section 188. (Certain corporations excepted.) The preceding five sections shall not apply to foreign insurance, banking, savings and loan, building and loan, or bond investment corporations, or to express, telegraph, telephone, railroad, sleeping car, transportation, or other corporations engaged in Ohio in inter-state commerce; or to foreign corporations entirely non-resident soliciting business or making sales in this state by correspondence or by traveling salesmen. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

Section 178, unlike this section, does not exempt foreign corporations engaged in interstate commerce. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 240.

Interstate commerce "strictly considered, consists in intercourse and traffic, including in these terms navigation and the transportation of persons and property, as well as the purchase, sale and exchange of commodities." Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 702 (1881).

An incorporated correspondence school which maintained in another state an office with a resident agent in charge for the purpose of soliciting students, and collecting and forwarding their payments, for instruction sent by mail, was held to be engaged in interstate commerce upon which no license tax or conditions could be imposed by a state. International Text Book Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91 (1910); reversing 76 Kans. 328.

Property used in interstate commerce may be taxed by the state in which it is situated, although the business of, or the right to engage in, interstate commerce may not. Adams Express Co. v. Ohio State Auditor, 165 U. S. 194, 220 (1896); affirming 51 O. S. 492.

Contracts for advertising in periodicals do not constitute interstate commerce, although the circulation and distribution of the periodicals would be interstate commerce. Blumenstock v. Curtis Publ. Co., 252 U. S. 436 (1920).

The issuing of a policy of insurance is not interstate commerce. Insurance Co. v. Deer Lodge County, 231 U. S. 495 (1913).

The fact that the business of a foreign corporation is entirely interstate in its character does not render it immune from process in a state court. International Harvester Co. v. Kentucky, 234 U. S. 579 (1914). See also note to § 194, "doing business" in state.

Transportation company. A foreign corporation engaged in furnishing refrigerator cars and ice therefor, for transportation purposes partly within and partly without and across Ohio, is, under this section, not subject to § 183 et seq. Begalow v. Armour, 74 O. S. 168 (1906); reversing 5 C. C. n. s. 161.

Insurance corporation. A foreign corporation which sells to physicians a contract whereby it agrees to defend any malpractice suits brought within a specified time, but which does not agree to assume or pay any judgments, is not engaged in the business of insurance. State v. Laylin, 73 O. S. 90 (1905). See also, State v. Railway Co., 68 O. S. 9 (1903).

Federal governmental agency. A District of Columbia corporation to which the president has delegated certain authority granted him by congress, and which transacts no other business, is an agency of the federal government and need not comply with the foreign corporation laws. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 2175.

Telephone company. A foreign corporation which purchases the plant of a domestic telephone company and thereafter engages in both interstate and intrastate business need not comply with § 183 et seq. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 707.

Section 189. (Right of hearing before secretary of state.)

On application, a foreign corporation shall have the right to be heard by the secretary of state in the matter of the determination of the proportion of its capital stock represented by property used and business done in this state. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

Section 190. (Right of appeal.) A corporation aggrieved by the decision of the secretary of state under the preceding section may, within ten days, appeal to the auditor of state, the treasurer of state and the attorney general, whose decision shall be final. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

Where the facts are not in dispute and the only question is one of law, a foreign corporation may proceed in mandamus against the secretary of state, without pursuing the remedy provided by §§ 189 and 190. State v. Fulton, 98 O. S. 350 (1918).

In earlier cases it had been held by lower courts that the remedy provided by this section must be exhausted. Aetna Iron & Steel Co. v. Taylor, 3 N. P. 152, 155; 4 L. D. 180; sa. c., 13 C. C. 602; 5 C. D. 242 (1896). See also, State ex rel. v. Jones, 51 O. S. 492 (1894); affirmed 165 U. S. 194.

Section 190-1. (Certificate of compliance with laws prima facie evidence of incorporation.) The certificate of compliance with the laws of this state issued to a corporation, not organized under the laws of this state, or a copy of such certificate duly certified to by the state officer issuing same, or his successors in office, shall be prima facie evidence of the due incorporation and existence of the corporation therein named. All officers authorized to issue certificates of compliance with the laws of this state, to corporations not organized under the laws of this state, shall keep a record of such certificates issued by them. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 44.)

Pleading and proof of corporate existence in general, see notes to §§ 187 and 8629.

Section 191. (Actions against foreign corporation; remission of penalties.) On request of the secretary of state, the attorney general shall prosecute an action against a foreign corporation under the provisions of this chapter in the court of common pleas of Franklin county or in any county in which the corporation has an office or place of business. On good cause shown, the governor and secretary of state may remit the penalty or part thereof incurred by a foreign corporation under this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 148c; 97 v. 496; 95 v. 539; 94 v. 225; 93 v. 225; 91 v. 272.)

Section 192. (Shares of stock of certain corporations not taxable.) No person shall be required to list for taxation a share of the capital stock of an Ohio corporation; or a share of the capital stock of a foreign corporation, the property of which is taxed in Ohio in the name of such corporation; or a share of the capital stock of any other foreign corporation, if the holder thereof furnishes satisfactory proof to the taxing authorities that at least two-thirds of the property of such corporation is taxed in Ohio and the remainder is taxed in another state or states, provided such corporation, as a fee for the privilege of exercising its franchise in Ohio, pays annually the same percentage upon its entire authorized capital stock that is required by law to be paid by a domestic corporation on its subscribed or issued capital stock. (R. S. Sec. 148c; April 27, 1904, 97 v. 496; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 539; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 225; April 23, 1898, 93 v. 225; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 272.)

Doubt has been expressed as to the constitutionality of this section, under Const. Art. 12, Sec. 2. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 165.

This section was enacted as a part of the Willis law, and should be interpreted as such. For the purpose of this section a corporation organized under the laws of Ohio and also of another state is not an Ohio corporation unless it is subject to the franchise tax imposed by other sections of the Willis law. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 165.

Taxation of property of foreign corporation. Choses in action, whether book accounts, promissory notes, or the like, of foreign corporations that are kept in this state and arise out of the corporate business transacted here are subject to taxation under the provisions of G. C. §§ 5404, 5405 and 5406. Hubbard v. Brush, 61 O. S. 252 (1899); Scottish, etc., Ins. Co. v. Bowland, 196 U. S. 611, 627 (1905); Western Assur. Co. v. Halliday, 126 Fed. 257 (C. C. A. 1903); Sims v. Best, 1 C. C. n. s. 41; 15 C. D. 149 (1903).

Deposits of insurance companies, made as required by law, see § 5437.

Taxation of stock in Ohio corporations. Prior to the amendment of this section in 1904 (97 O. L. 496) stock in an Ohio corporation was exempt from taxation only when the property of the corporation was taxed in its name in Ohio. Lander v. Burke, 65 O. S. 532 (1901).

But since the amendment, such stock is not taxable, although part of the corporate property is located in other states and is not taxed in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, pp. 1739, 1443.

Stock in a railroad company formed by consolidation of an Ohio company with a foreign corporation is exempt under this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 542.

Taxation of stock in foreign corporations. If any part of the corporate property is taxed in a foreign country, the stock is not exempt in Ohio. The words "taxed in another state or states" in § 192 mean a state of the United States. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1561. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 387.

Stock in a foreign corporation, owned by a resident of Ohio (when not exempted under §§ 192 or 5372), is taxable in Ohio, although the certificates evidencing such stock are in the possession of an agent in another state where taxes are paid thereon. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906, p. 257.

A statute imposing a tax on stock in foreign corporations held by residents of Ohio is constitutional. Worthington v. Sebastian, 25 O. S. 1 (1874); Bradley v. Bauder, 36 O. S. 28 (1880); Sturges v. Carter, 114 U. S. 511 (1885).

A state may tax stock in a foreign corporation, whose capital consists wholly of patent rights, which are exempt under federal laws. Scott v. Smith, 2 N. P. n. s. 617; 15 L. D. 590 (1905).

Where the foreign corporation is an insurance company or a public utility, and as such is required to pay an excise tax on its gross receipts, instead of a franchise tax on its capital stock, the requirement of this section as to privilege tax is satisfied. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 2037.

Stock in a foreign corporation held by a trustee residing in Ohio in trust for a nonresident beneficiary is taxable in Ohio. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 596; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1277.

But stock in a foreign corporation held by a trustee residing in another state in trust for a resident of Ohio is not taxable in Ohio, although the trust is a revocable one established by the resident of Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 969.

Stock in a foreign corporation, owned by another foreign corporation. Stock in a foreign corporation, owned by another foreign corporation doing business in Ohio, is not taxable, although the stock certificates are kept in its branch office in this state. Iron Co. v. Madigan, 17 C. C. n. s. 340 (1911); affd. no report, 88 O. S. 533.

Stock in foreign corporations under former laws, see Hubbard v. Brush, 61 O. S. 252 (1899); Lee v. Sturges, 46 O. S. 153 (1889); Bradley v. Bauder, 36 O. S. 28 (1880); Worthington v. Sebastian, 25 O. S. 1 (1874); Sturges v. Carter, 114 U. S. 511 (1885).

Section 193. (Record of fees.) The secretary of state shall keep a record of all fees collected under the provisions of this chapter and pay them into the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund. (R. S. Sec. 148; April 18, 1881, 78 v. 186; R. S. 1880; 73 v. 227, § 2; 44 v. 65, § 4; S. & C. 1394.)

Section 194. (Fees paid under protest.) If fees are paid under protest to recover which while held by him an action would lie against the secretary of state, and such fees are paid into the state treasury in compliance with the preceding section, actions to recover them shall be brought against the state and not against the secretary of state. For such purposes permission is hereby given to maintain actions against the state in the cases and to the extent that such actions might be maintained against the secretary of state, if the fees were held by him. Service of process shall be made on the attorney-general who shall represent the state. (R. S. Sec. 148b; 89 v. 325.)

1. WHAT ARE FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

A. Definition. A foreign corporation is one that has been organized under the laws of another state or of a foreign government. Cook on Corporations, § 7; Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305, 314 (1891); Boley v. Ohio, etc., Co., 12 O. S. 139 (1861).

B. Incorporation in more than one state. A corporation incorporated in several states has a legal domicile in each state. In each state it is regarded as a domestic and not a foreign corporation. Gerling v. B. & O. R. R. Co., 151 U. S. 673, 677 (1894); Graham v. Boston, etc., R. R., 118 U. S. 161, 168 (1886); Covington, etc., Bridge Co. v. Mayer, 31 O. S. 317 (1877); Sebastian v. Covington, etc., Bridge Co., 21 O. S. 451 (1871); State v. Covington, etc., Bridge Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 55; 18 L. D. 273 (1907).

A corporation incorporated in several states, including the one in which suit is brought against it, must be regarded as a citizen of the latter state for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of a federal court. L. S. & M. S. Ry. v. Eder, 174 Fed. 944; 8 O. L. R. 386 (C. C. A. 1909).

C. Domestic corporation does not become foreign by qualifying to do business in another state. An Ohio corporation does not cease to be such nor become a foreign corporation by obtaining a license and transacting business elsewhere. Lander v. Burke, 65 O. S. 532 (1901); Railway Co. v. Stringer, 32 O. S. 468, 472 (1877); Iron Co. v. Madigan, 17 C. C. n. s. 340, 342 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 533; State v. Taylor, 25 O. S. 279 (1874).

A foreign corporation does not become an Ohio corporation by reason of the fact that all of its business is transacted in Ohio, and that none of its business, beyond its mere incorporation, has been transacted in its home state. Hanna v. Petroleum Co., 23 O. S. 622 (1873); Iron Co. v. Madigan, 17 C. C. n. s. 340, 342 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 533; Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S. 67 (1904).

A foreign railroad company, by leasing and operating in this state the property of an Ohio corporation, does not thereby become an Ohio corporation. B. & O. R. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 O. S. 218 (1876); Railway v. Stringer, 32 O. S. 468 (1877); B. & O. R. R. Co. v. Koontz, 104 U. S. 5 (1881).

A foreign corporation, after compliance, may remove a suit to federal court. Lee v. Insurance Co., 3 O. F. D. 663.

II. "DOING" OR "TRANSACTIONING" BUSINESS IN THE STATE; WHAT CONSTITUTES.

See also note to § 188.

A. In general. The words "doing business" or "transacting business" refer to the transaction of the ordinary business for which the corporation was organized, and do not include acts not a part of the ordinary business, such as bringing a suit. Alpena Cement Co. v. Jenkins, etc., Co., 244 Ill. 354; 91 N. E. 480; Trust Co. v. Railroad Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 497 (1908).

Or soliciting and obtaining subscriptions to the capital stock of the foreign corporation. First Nat. Bk. v. Leeper, 121 Mo. App. 688; 97 S. W. 636; Payson v. Withers, 5 Biss (U. S.) 269; Bartlett v. Chouteau Ins. Co., 18 Kans. 369; 5 Opins. Atty. Gen. 830.

A single and isolated transaction does not constitute "doing business" in a state. Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727 (1885).

But the business need not be done "persistently and continuously". Empire Fuel Co. v. Lyons, 257 Fed. 890 (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1919).

Jurisdiction of Ohio courts over a foreign corporation which is not "doing business" in the state. See note to § 11290.

B. Sales of goods. A foreign corporation which maintains a stock of goods in the state, from which deliveries are made of goods sold, is doing business in the state. Cheney Co. v. Massachusetts, 246 U. S. 147 (1918); People v. Wemple, 131 N. Y. 64; 29 N. E. 1002; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Adams, 165 Fed. 877 (1909); Thomas Mfg. Co. v. Knapp, 101 Minn. 432; 112 N. W. 989.

But where goods are shipped into the state to fill orders previously obtained, the transaction constitutes interstate commerce, upon which no license tax or restriction may be imposed by a state. A foreign corporation which maintains no stock of goods within the state, and limits its business to shipping goods into the state, upon orders, need not obtain a license or certificate or comply with the conditions imposed by state laws. This is true whether the orders are obtained through traveling salesmen or correspondence. Toledo Commercial Co. v. Glen Mfg. Co., 55 O. S. 217 (1896); Haldy v. Tomoor-Haldy Co., 3 N. P. 43; 4 L. D. 118 (1896); General Electric Co. v. Lima, etc., Co., 4 N. P. 167 (1897); Aultman Miller & Co. v. Holder, 34 W. L. B. 92 (1895); Bruner v. Plow Co., 168 Fed. 218 (C. C. A. Okla. 1909); Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1270; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 6.

Or a resident broker. McBath v. Jones Cotton Co., 149 Fed. 383 (1906); Doe v. Springfield, etc., Mfg. Co., 104 Fed. 684 (1900).

Or whether the foreign corporation maintains an office in the state with a resident agent in charge, for the purpose of soliciting orders. Cheney v. Massachusetts, 246 U. S. 147 (1918); International Text Book Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91 (1910); reversing 76 Kans. 328.

It is not necessary, to constitute a transaction interstate commerce, that the goods, to fill orders previously obtained, be shipped direct to the purchaser. The goods may be sent to the agent for delivery by him to the purchaser. Caldwell v. North Carolina, 187 U. S. 622 (1903); Norfolk, etc., Co. v. Sims, 191 U. S. 441, 450 (1903); Crenshaw v. Arkansas, 227 U. S. 389; Stewart v. Michigan, 232 U. S. 665.

But the attaching of lightning rods to houses, after arrival, is not a part of interstate commerce. Browning v. Wayeross, 233 U. S. 16 (1914).

For definition of interstate commerce, see note to § 188.

C. Sales through commission merchants. A foreign corporation which has no warehouse, office or place of business in the state to which it consigns goods to a factor, the factor conducting all the business in such state, and paying all expenses of receiving, handling and storing the goods, is not doing business in such state. Butler Bros. Shoe Co. v. U. S. Rubber Co., 156 Fed. 1 (C. C. A. Colo. 1907); certiorari denied 212 U. S. 577; Atlas Engine Co. v. Parkinson, 161 Fed. 223 (D. C. 1908); Allen v. Tyson-Jones Buggy Co., 91 Tex. 22; 40 S. W. 393, 714; Lasater v. Purcell, etc., Co., 22 Tex. Civ. App. 33; 54 S. W. 425; Hovey's Estate, 198 Pa. St. 385; 48 Atl. 311; Bertha, etc., Zinc, etc., Co. v. Clute, 27 N. Y. S. 342; Brookford Mills v. Baldwin, 139 N. Y. Supp. 195. See Gibbin v. Coal Co., 2 C. S. C. R. 75 (1870).

D. Miscellaneous. (1). Held not to constitute "doing business." The maintaining of a resident agent to solicit and make contracts for traffic, by a foreign railroad corporation, the lines of which are wholly outside of the state, none of the contract of carriage being performed in the state. Green v. C. B. & Q. R. R. Co., 205 U. S. 530 (1907); General Investment Co. v. Railway, 250 Fed. 160 (C. C. A. Ohio 1918).

Acting as a stockholder in an Ohio corporation, or giving assent to changes in its regulations. Toledo Co. v. Smith, 205 Fed. 643 (D. C. 1913).

The ownership of a controlling interest in the stock of a domestic corporation. Mannington v. H. V. Ry. Co., 183 Fed. 133; 8 O. L. R. 451; 16 O. F. D. 522 (C. C. Ohio 1910).

Owning property in the state, but not engaging in the principal business of the corporation. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 597; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 995. See Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 85.

Bringing a suit and making a lease of a manufacturing plant, in which nothing has been manufactured. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 526.

lived, so as to carry on correspondence with the corporation. Empire Fuel Co. v. Lyons, 257 Fed. 890 (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1919).

President of the foreign corporation, a resident of Ohio and having a contract to sell its bonds on commission, placing the company's name on the door of an office which he occupied, no bonds being sold in Ohio, together with the opening of a bank account in Ohio in the name of the corporation to facilitate the transmission of funds to the home state, where the sign was abandoned and the bank account closed more than 18 months prior to the service of summons in an action against the corporation. Cons. Iron & Steel Co. v. Maumee Co., 184 Fed. 550 (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1922).

A change in the form of a certificate of stock in a foreign building and loan association, which is pledged to the association to secure a loan to it. Demland v. Loan Co., 20 C. C. 223; 11 C. D. 249 (1899).

The discounting by a corporation in its own state of a note sent to it for such purpose from another state. Bamberger v. Schoolfield, 160 U. S. 149 (1895).

The loaning of money by a foreign insurance company on property in Ohio is not the doing of "banking or other business" in Ohio. Hall v. Kummer, 7 N. P. 394; 5 L. D. 176 (1883).

For one person to supply the means to another to do business with or on is not the doing of such business by the former. U. S. v. American Bell Telephone Co., 29 Fed. 17 (C. C. Ohio 1886).

(2) Held to constitute "doing business." The supervision by a foreign corporation of plans for a factory to be built in the state by a resident, and the management and operation of the plant for such resident owner. Diamond Glue Co. v. U. S. Glue Co., 187 U. S. 611 (1903).

Automobile company doing a repair business of automobiles sold into the state in interstate commerce, and selling second-hand cars taken in part payment for new cars.

Manufacturer of flour selling to wholesalers in another state, and employing salesmen to induce local dealers to deal in the flour, taking orders and turning them over to the wholesalers in the state.

A holding company, whose articles of incorporation contemplate an office within the state, and whose activities in the state consist in holding stockholders and directors meetings, keeping corporate records and financial account books, receiving dividends on its stock holdings, depositing the same in local banks and paying out the money in dividends. Cheney v. Massachusetts, 246 U. S. 147 (1918).

The purchasing and assembling, within the state, of machinery and parts for a manufacturing plant, by a foreign corporation engaged in engineering and contracting (case distinguished from that of a foreign manufacturing corporation). Buffalo Refrigerating Mach. Co. v. Penn. H. & P. Co., 178 Fed. 696 (C. C. A. Pa. 1910). See also, Browning v. Waycross, 233 U. S. 16 (1914).

The maintaining of an office in Ohio, by a foreign insurance company, where insurance is written on property situated in other states is doing business in Ohio, although no contracts are made relating to property situated in Ohio. State v. Amazon Insurance Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 4; 14 C. D. 387 (1903).

Alloting and improving a tract of land and selling the lots is doing business, although the title is held by a trustee who, out of the proceeds of sales, pays to the person from whom the land was purchased the purchase price thereof. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1061.

The operation of a factory in Ohio is doing business, regardless of where its product is sold or transported. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 460.

Maintaining a "principal place of business" in the state where the only business transacted is the collection of book accounts. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 521.

See notes to G. C. § 9559.

III. NONCOMPLIANCE WITH REQUIREMENTS. EFFECT OF.

A. On contracts. Before the enactment of § 5508 (1911) it was held that a contract entered into in Ohio by a foreign corporation, which had not complied with secs. 178 to 192 was not void. Fergus v. Columbus, 6 N. P. 82; 8 L. D. 290; Union, etc., Ins. Co. v. McMillen, 24 O. S. 67 (1873); Manhattan Ins. Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388 (1877). See Johnson v. N. Y. Breweries Co., 178 Fed. 513 (C. C. A. 1910).

But the right of action thereon was suspended until a certificate was secured. Simplex Dairy Co. v. Cole, 86 Fed. 739 (1898); Crefeld Milfer v. Goddard, 69 Fed. 141 (1895); G. C. § 187.

Under § 5508 such a contract is void in behalf of the corporation, but is enforceable against it.

B. Attachment. The property of a foreign corporation which has not complied with the statutory requirements is subject to attachment. G. C. §§ 11819, 10253, 186.

C. Ouster by quo warranto. A foreign corporation which exercises its franchises in the state in contravention of its laws, may be ousted by quo warranto proceedings. State v. W. U. M. Ins. Co., 47 O. S. 167 (1890); State v. Ins. Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

D. Penalties for doing business without compliance. G. C. §§ 182, 186.

IV. LIABILITY OF STOCKHOLDERS IN FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

A. As partners. When a foreign corporation engages in a business not authorized by its charter, all of its stockholders do not become individually liable. Only those stockholders who engage in or sanction the same may be held. Paul v. Groene, 4 O. L. R. 632 (1907); Bank v. Hall, 35 O. S. 158, 166 (1878).

B. Statutory liability may be enforced in Ohio. An individual liability for corporate debts, imposed upon stockholders by the statutes of the state in which a foreign corporation is organized, may be enforced in Ohio, where such liability is contractual in its nature and not penal. Kulp v. Fleming, 65 O. S. 321 (1901); Blair v. Newbegin, 65 O. S. 425 (1902).

V. POWER OF OHIO COURTS OVER INTERNAL AFFAIRS OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

A. Calling stockholders' meeting. The courts of Ohio have no visitatorial or supervisory jurisdiction with regard to the internal affairs of a foreign corporation. The calling of an annual meeting of stockholders of a foreign corporation can not be enforced in Ohio, although its office is located, and its directors and secretary reside, in this state. State v. Unida Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 100; 22 C. D. 54 (1910).

B. Inspection of books. Where the books of a foreign corporation were kept in an office maintained by it in Ohio, it was held that the right of stockholders to inspect its books, granted by a statute of its home state, could be enforced in the courts of this state. State v. Farmer, 7 C. C. 429 (1892). See § 5508.

C. Injunction against election, accounting, etc. Ohio policyholders of a foreign mutual life insurance company can not maintain a bill in equity in a federal court sitting in Ohio, to compel an accounting, to enjoin the company from holding an election of trustees, soliciting proxies, etc., and the appointment of a receiver for certain funds as such suit relates to the internal affairs and management of the corporation. Eberhard v. Insurance Co., 210 Fed. 520 (D. C. 1914); aff'd, 241 Fed. 353.

D. Accounting for money wrongfully exacted under color of a contract. Where a foreign insurance company wrongfully collected assessments in excess of rates specified in its policy, the insured was held entitled to an account and judgment, where his proof did not necessitate an "exhaustive visitation and examination of the books of the company". Insurance Co. v. Douds, 103 O. S. 398 (1921).

VI. LEGAL EXISTENCE OF FOREIGN CORPORATION.

Allegation and proof of, see note to § 187.

A. The legal existence of a foreign corporation is not invalidated by the fact that it has transacted all its business in other states, and has done no business, beyond its mere organization, in its home state. Hanna v. International Petroleum Co., 23 O. S. 622 (1873); Iron Co. v. Madigan, 17 C. C. n. s. 340, 342 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 533.

B. Corporation or partnership. How determined. If an organization possesses the properties, rights, attributes, privileges and immunities of a corporation, it will be regarded as such. The designation or classification, by the statute of another state, of organization as joint stock associations or partnerships is not conclusive. Express Co. v. State, 55 O. S. 69 (1896); State ex rel. v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163, 197 (1894); Iron Co. v. Madigan, 17 C. C. n. s. 340 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 533; State v. U. S. Express Co., 1 N. P. 259; 2 N. P. 98 (1895); Andrews Bros Co. v. Youngstown Coke Co., 86 Fed. 585 (1898).

VII. POWERS OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

For corporate powers generally see note to § 8627.

A. Charter powers can not be exceeded. A corporation has no greater powers in a foreign state than in the state of its creation. A contract in excess of its charter powers, made in another state, is not validated by the fact that such contract is within the powers of a domestic corporation of such state. Ewing v. Bank, 43 O. S. 31, 37 (1885); Larwell v. Hanover Sgs. Fund Soc., 40 O. S. 274 (1883); Curtis v. Hutchinson, 10 W. L. J. 134 (1852).

B. Effect of general law of home state. Where the charter powers of a foreign corporation are sufficiently broad to include a certain act, a general law of its home state restricting corporations in doing such acts will not affect it in other states. The power of a New York corporation to take land by devise is not affected by the New York statute of wills. American Bible Soc. v. Marshall, 15 O. S. 537 (1864).

C. Powers must be exercised in accordance with laws of Ohio. A corporation doing business in Ohio must transact its business and exercise its powers in accordance with the laws of this state. It waives the powers and privileges of its charter which are contrary to the positive enactments of this state, or to the general spirit and policy of its law. Manington v. Railway Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 641, 665 (1910); Kit Carter Cattle Co. v. McGillin, 21 C. C. 210; 11 C. D. 413; s. e., 7 N. P. 575; 10 L. D. 146 (1900).

D. Powers not greater than powers of similar Ohio corporations. Foreign corporations have no greater powers than are possessed by Ohio corporations of like character. G. C. § 5508. See State v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 69 O. S. 327 (1903); Mannington v. H. V. Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 451, 484; 183 Fed. 133; 16 O. F. D. 552 (C. C. 1910).

E. To hold stock in Ohio corporations. See also note to § 8683. A foreign corporation organized for the sole purpose of holding the stock and securities of an Ohio corporation may exercise in Ohio all the incidents of such ownership, such as voting at stockholders' meetings and giving assent to change of regulations, provided the exercise of such incidents does not tend to foster monopoly or suppress competition. Toledo Co. v. Smith, 205 Fed. 643 (D. C. 1913).

F. To sue as a taxpayer. Where a foreign corporation is a taxpayer it may, under G. C. § 4314, bring suit to enjoin a municipality from abuse of its corporate powers. United Cigars Stores Co. v. Von Bargen, 7 N. P. n. s. 420; 19 L. D. 120 (1908).

G. To hold land. Until forbidden by express legislation or the general policy of the law, a foreign corporation may hold land in Ohio. State v. Sherman, 22 O. S. 411, 433 (1872).

It may acquire property by devise. American Bible Soc. v. Marshall, 15 O. S. 537 (1864).

H. To appropriate property. A foreign corporation can not exercise the right of eminent domain in the absence of express statutory provisions conferring it. Central Union Tel. Co. v. Columbus Grove, 8 C. C. n. s. 81; 18 C. D. 131 (1905).

Under the provisions of G. C. § 9090 a foreign railroad corporation may appropriate property in this state. State v. Sherman, 22 O. S. 411, 434 (1872).

I. To acquire property by devise or bequest. A foreign corporation may acquire property by devise or bequest, in the absence of a prohibitory statute. American Bible Soc. v. Marshall, 15 O. S. 537 (1864).

But such devise or bequest is in general liable to the collateral inheritance tax. Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S. 67 (1904).

VIII. FOREIGN CORPORATIONS AS "PERSONS" AND "CITIZENS" UNDER FEDERAL CONSTITUTION AND LAWS.

A foreign corporation is a "person" within the provisions of the 14th amendment that no state shall deprive any person of property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Southern Railway Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400 (1910); Blake v. McClung, 172 U. S. 239, 259 (1898); Santa Clara County v. So. Pac. R. R. Co., 118 U. S. 394, 396, 1886).

The "liberty" guaranteed by the 14th amendment is the liberty of natural persons, not corporations. Western Turf Assn. v. Greenberg, 204 U. S. 359, 363 (1907).

A foreign corporation is not a "citizen" within the provision of article IV, section 2, that "The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states." Western Union Tel. Co. v. Mayer, 28 O. S. 521 (1876); Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S. 67, 86 (1904); Blake v. McClung, 172 U. S. 239, 259 (1898).

For certain jurisdictional purposes, including diverse citizenship as a ground for the jurisdiction of federal courts, a corporation is to be regarded as a citizen of the state under the laws of which it was created and organized. Railroad Co. v. Koonz, 104 U. S. 5, 12 (1881); Shelby v. Hoffman, 7 O. S. 450 (1857); Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S. 86 (1904).

IX. RIGHTS OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS IN ABSENCE OF STATUTES.

In the absence of statutes, a foreign corporation may transact business, exercise its powers and sue or be sued in this state. Newburg Petroleum Co. v. Weare, 27 O.S. 343 (1875); State v. Sherman, 22 O. S. 412 (1872); B. & O. R. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 O. S. 213, 214 (1876); Hanna v. International Petroleum Co., 23 O. S. 622 (1873); Bank v. Hall, 35 O. S. 167 (1878); Lewis v. Bank, 12 Ohio 132 (1843).

But this right or privilege exists only by comity or legislative consent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Mayer, 28 O. S. 521 (1876).

X. RIGHT OF STATE TO EXCLUDE, OR IMPOSE CONDITIONS UPON, FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

Foreign corporations may be wholly excluded from the state, or their admission to operate in the state may be made subject to such reasonable terms and conditions as the general assembly may impose. Ashley v. Ryan, 153 U. S. 436; affirming 49 O. S. 504 (1894); Western Union Co. v. Mayer, 28 O. S. 521 (1876); Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S. 79, 80 (1904).

There are limited exceptions to this rule. A state can not exclude or impose conditions upon a corporation in the employ of the federal government, nor a corporation engaged in interstate commerce. Pembina, etc., Co. v. Pennsylvania, 125 U. S. 181, 190 (1883); McClellan v. Chipman, 164 U. S. 347, 357, 359 (1896); Toledo Commercial Co. v. Glen Mfg. Co., 55 O. S. 217 (1896).

A foreign corporation engaged in interstate commerce can not be required to pay, as a license fee for doing its intrastate business, a percentage on its entire capital stock, whether employed in the state or elsewhere. Such a tax is a burden on interstate commerce. Ludwig v. Western Union Tel. Co., 216 U. S. 146 (1910); Pullman Car Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 56 (1910); Western Union Tel. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1 (1910).

A state cannot require a foreign corporation to pay a license fee and appoint an agent for service, before bringing suit in a state court to collect the purchase price of goods sold in interstate commerce. Sioux Remedy Co. v. Cope, 235 U. S. 197 (1914).

A state can not require a foreign corporation, as a condition precedent to admission, to waive its right to remove actions to the federal courts; such a waiver is illegal and void, the requirement being repugnant to the federal constitution. Railway v. Stringer, 32 O. S. 468 (1877); B. & O. Ry. v. Cary, 28 O. S. 208 (1876); Assurance Co. v. Pierce, 27 O. S. 155 (1875); Herndon v. Chicago, etc., Co., 218 U. S. 135 (1910); Roach v. A. T. & S. F. Ry., 218 U. S. 159 (1910).

Nor may a state revoke the license of a foreign corporation because such corporation removed a suit to federal court. Terral v. Burke Construction Co., — U. S. — (1922); 66 L. Ed. 223; overruling Doyle v. Insurance Co., 94 U. S. 535.

A state statute prohibiting foreign corporations from asserting any citizenship other than of such state, and providing for the revocation and forfeiture of the charter of any corporation, which files a petition for the removal of an action to the federal courts, is unconstitutional as to corporations doing an interstate business. Harrison v. Railroad, 232 U. S. 318 (1914).

B. Privilege of doing business is not property. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Mayer, 28 O. S. 521 (1876).

XI. PERMISSION TO ENTER STATE AS A CONTRACT.

Aetna Iron & Steel Co. v. Taylor, 3 N. P. 152; 4 L. D. 180; 13 C. C. 602; 5 C. D. 242 (1896). Compare American Smelting, etc., Co. v. Colorado, 204 U. S. 103 (1906).

XII. INSOLVENT FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

A. Subject to involuntary bankruptcy. When. A petition in involuntary bankruptcy may be filed against a foreign corporation in the district in which it has had its principal place of business for the greater portion of the preceding six months. Home Powder Co. v. Geis, 204 Fed. 568; In re Worcester Footwear Co., 251 Fed. 760; In re Pennsylvania Consol. Coal Co., 163 Fed. 579; Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., 107 Fed. 255; 5 A. B. R. 744 (1901); In re Magid-Hope Silk Mfg. Co., 110 Fed. 352; 6 A. B. R. 610 (1901); White Mountain Paper Co. v. Morse, 127 Fed. 643; 11 A. B. R. 633 (1904).

Although the corporation has not obtained a license from the state permitting it to do business therein. In re Duplex Radiator Co., 142 Fed. 906; 15 A. B. R. 324 (1906).

B. Preferences. A preferential transfer of property by a foreign corporation to one creditor, is not void but voidable. Ohio creditors can not levy on such property, but may have the transfer treated and enforced as an assignment for all of its creditors. Bryant v. Johnson, 12 C. C. 102; 5 C. D. 333 (1896).

C. Foreign assignment for creditors. Effect on property in Ohio. A deed of assignment for creditors executed by a foreign corporation in its home state can not be filed in a probate court, or court of insolvency, under G. C. §§ 11092 and 11093; but it may be treated as a conveyance of property, and the trust enforced in equity. Keystone Bank v. Union Oil Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 420; 15 C. O. 464 (1903); Wright v. Franklin Bank, 59 O. S. 80, 95 (1898). Compare Hall v. Ohio, etc., Co., 24 W. L. B. 310 (1890).

D. Jurisdiction of Ohio courts to wind up business. The courts of Ohio have jurisdiction to wind up a part of the business of a foreign corporation which has been interdicted by the laws of this state. Everhardt v. U. S. Inv. Red. Co., 8 N. P. 525; 11 L. D. 688.

The railroad commission act was, in part, adapted from the Wisconsin railroad commission act. Commission v. Railway Co., 79 O. S. 419, 424.

The commission has only those powers which are conferred by statute. Cincinnati v. Commission, 96 O. S. 270 (1917).

The restrictions, limitations and prohibitions of this act are matters between the state and railroad companies. Where a railroad return ticket is not made non-transferable, the act does not prohibit the sale of unused coupon. Knecht v. Railway Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 13; 18 L. D. 202.

Section 493. (Quorum; transaction of business.) A majority of the commission shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business, for the performance of any duty or for the exercise of any power of the commission. No vacancy in the commission shall impair the right of the remaining commissioners to exercise all the powers of the commission. The act of a majority of the commission, when in session as a board, shall be deemed to be the act of the commission; but any investigation, inquiry or hearing which the commission has power to undertake or to hold may be undertaken or held by or before any commissioner designated for the purpose by the commission, and every finding, order or decision made by a commissioner so designated, pursuant to such investigation, inquiry or hearing, approved and confirmed by the commission and ordered filed in its office, shall be and be deemed to be the finding, order or decision of the commission. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 805, § 7; G. C. § 493 (original number); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 343, § 1.)

Section 494. (Location of office; sessions.) The office of the commission shall be at the seat of government in the city of Columbus, in suitable quarters to be provided by the state, and shall be open between the hours of eight-thirty a. m. and five-thirty p. m. throughout the year, Sundays and legal holidays excepted. The commission shall hold its sessions at least once in each calendar month in said city of Columbus, but may also meet at such other times and at such other places as may be necessary for the proper performance of its duties. For the purpose of holding session in places other than the seat of government the commission shall have power to rent quarters or offices, and the expense thereof, in connection therewith, shall be paid in the same manner as other expenses authorized by this chapter. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 805, § 8; G. C. § 498 (original number); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 344, § 1.)

Section 499-1. (Right of commission, employes, etc., to pass on vehicles of common carrier.) The commissioners, their attorney, secretary, or other officers and employes of the commission shall, when in the performance of their official duties, have the right to pass, free of charge, on all railroads, cars, vessels and other vehicles of every common carrier, as said term is defined in this chapter, subject, in whole or in part, to the control or regulation by the commission, between points within this state, and such persons shall not be denied the right to travel upon any railroad, car, vessel or other vehicle of such common carrier, or any part thereof, whether such railroad, car, vessel or other vehicle be used for the transportation of passengers or freight, and regardless of its class. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 807, § 14.)

See § 608.

Section 499-3. (Who eligible to the office of commissioner.) No person in the employ of or holding any official relation to any person, corporation or utility, which said person, corporation or utility is subject, in whole or in part, to regulation by the commission, and no person holding stocks or bonds of any such corporation or utility or who is in any manner pecuniarily interested therein shall be appointed to or hold the office of commissioner or be appointed or employed by the commission; provided, that if any such person shall become the owner of such stocks or bonds, or become pecuniarily interested in such corporation or utility otherwise than voluntarily he shall, within a reasonable time, divest himself of such ownership or interest; failing to do so, his office or employment shall become vacant. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 807, § 16; G. C. § 488 (original number); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 342, § 1.)

Section 499-4. (Commissioner, attorney, employe, etc., prohibited from accepting gifts, etc.) Each commissioner, attorney to the commission, the secretary to the commission and every person employed or appointed to office, either by the commission or by the attorney to the commission, is hereby forbidden and prohibited from accepting any gift, gratuity, emolument or employment from any public utility or railroad or any officer, agent or employe thereof, or to solicit, suggest, request or recommend, directly or indirectly, to any person, corporation or utility subject to the supervision of the commission, or to any officer, attorney, agent or employe thereof, the appointment of any person to any office, place, position or employment. Any commissioner, attorney to the commission, the secretary thereof, or any person employed or appointed to office by the commission violating any provision of this section, shall be removed from the office held by him. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 807, § 17.)

Section 499-5. (All proceedings public records.) All proceedings of the commission and all documents and records in its possession shall be public records. (106 v. 509; May 5, 1913, 103 v. 808, § 18; G. C. § 614-80 (original number); April 22, 1913, 103 v. 176; May 31, 1902, 102 v. 574, § 84; G. C. § 614 (original number); R. S. Sec. 264; February 27, 1877, 74 v. 33, § 12.)

Whether a railway company has complied with the terms of a certain statute must, in an action between the railroad company and an individual, be proved. Judicial notice will not be taken of a statement in a report of the commissioner of railroads that such statute has been complied with. Railroad Co. v. Hoffhines, 46 O. S. 643.

Section 499-6. (Publication of rules governing proceedings.) The commission may adopt and publish rules to govern its proceedings, and to regulate the mode and manner of investigations and hearings of railroads and other parties before it. All hearings shall be open to the public. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 808, § 19; G. C. § 497 (original number); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 344, § 1.)

Section 499-7. (The public service commission of Ohio superseded.) The public utilities commission shall succeed to and be possessed of the rights, authority and powers now exercised by the public service commission of Ohio and perform all the duties now imposed upon the public service commission of Ohio, and said powers and authority shall be exercised and enforced and said duties performed in the manner now provided by law for the said public service commission. Said public service commission of Ohio shall on and after the time when this act shall take effect have no further legal existence, and the public utilities commission is hereby authorized and directed to assume and continue as successor of said public service commission of Ohio. Wherever in the General Code the terms railroad commission or public service commission occur, the term public utilities commission shall be substituted therefor. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 808, § 20.)

Section 499-8. (Valuation of property to determine justice of rates. Utility shall aid commission in investigation and ascertainment of value of property.) The commission, for the purpose of ascertaining the reasonableness and justice of rates and charges for the service rendered by public utilities or railroads of this state, or for any other purpose authorized by law may investigate and ascertain the value of the property of any public utility or railroad in this state, used or useful for the service and convenience of the public. At the request of the council of any municipality the commission after hearing and determining that such a valuation is necessary may also investigate and ascertain the value of the property of any public utility used and useful for the service and convenience of the public where the whole or major portion of such utility is situated in such municipality. Every public utility or railroad shall furnish to the commission, its engineers, experts or other assistants from time to time and as the commission may require maps, profiles, contracts, reports of engineers and other documents, records and papers or copies of any or all of the same, in aid of any investigation and ascertainment of the value of its property, and shall grant to the commission or its agents free access to all of its premises and property and its accounts, records and memoranda whenever and wherever requested by any such duly authorized agent, and every public utility or railroad is hereby directed and required to cooperate with and aid the commission in the work of the valuation of its property in such further particulars and to such extent as the commission may require and direct. The commission shall have such power to make all rules and regulations, as to it may seem necessary, to ascertain the value of each and every utility or railroad in the state. (106 v. 225; May 5, 1913, 103 v. 808, § 21; G. C. §§ 614-24 (original number); May 31, 1911, 102 v. 557, § 26.)

It is not mandatory upon the commission to make a valuation, but if a valuation is made, it must be made in accordance with §§ 499-9 and 499-10. Cincinnati v. Commission, 105 O. S. 181, 195, 217 (1922).

Fair return on investment. Ib., p. 208.

Valuation may be waived by the utility and complainant with the consent of the commission. Lima v. Commission, 103 O. S. 501 (1921).

Where a municipality requests the commission to make a valuation of the property of an electric light company, but, without waiting for the valuation to be completed, the municipality passes an ordinance fixing the rates for ten years (see § 3982) the valuation proceeding does not fail, and an error proceeding thereto is not moot. Cincinnati v. Commission, 96 O. S. 554 (1917).

A rate yielding a return of $4\frac{1}{2}$ percent on the valuation is inadequate. The commission should not fix a rate based on a valuation made on incomplete information. In such a case, the commission should order a revaluation, as authorized by § 499-11, before fixing such rate. Kent Water Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 321 (1918).

Good will is not an element of value. And by § 614-23 monopoly and franchise values and reserves for surplus, depreciation and contingencies are to be excluded in fixing rates. But the value of the property as a "going concern" should be included. Lima Telephone Co. v. Commission, 98 O. S. 110 (1918).

The cost of acquiring new customers is not a proper item. Cincinnati v. Commission, 96 O. S. 554, 559 (1917); Cleveland v. Commission, 98 O. S. 462 (1918).

Section 499-9. (Facts; commission has authority to ascertain and report in the valuation of property.) The commission shall prescribe the details of the inventory of the property of each public utility or railroad in the state; and such inventory shall include all the kinds and classes of property, with the value of each, owned by each public utility or railroad, used and useful for the service and convenience of the public. In ascertaining the value of the various kinds and classes of property of each public utility or railroad, the commission shall have authority to ascertain and report in such detail as it may deem necessary as to each piece of property owned or used by such public utility or railroad to show separately the following facts:

A. The original cost, if any, of each parcel of land owned and used by such public utility or railroad, and a statement of the conditions of acquisition; whether by direct purchase, by donation, by exercise of the power of eminent domain or otherwise.

B. The value as of a date certain, of each parcel of land owned and used by such public utility or railroad, by comparison with the value of contiguous and neighboring parcels of land, and land of similar character as to location and use.

C. If there shall be any additional value to such utility or railroad by reason of the ownership by it of one or more parcels of land and its use as a continuous right of way for transportation purposes, or for other purpose, such additional value shall be separately and specifically set forth for each parcel.

D. The cost of new production as of a date certain, of all physical property other than land, owned and used by such public utility or railroad, showing the values of the separate items comprising such property, together with the unit basis of such valuation.

E. Depreciation, if any, from the new reproductive cost as of a date certain, for existing mechanical deterioration, for age, for obsolescence, for lack of utility or for any other cause, the percentage and amount of each class of depreciation, if any, to be specifically set forth in detail.

F. The net value as of a date certain, of all physical property other than land owned by such utility or railroad, to be derived by deducting the sum of the amounts of depreciation from the sum of the new reproductive costs.

G. If there shall be any additional value given to the value of the property of a public utility or railroad due to the possession of a franchise to perform a public service, or for good will or for financing, such additional value shall be separately and specifically set forth, together with the basis for the computation or estimate of such additional value.

H. A duplicate copy of the record of every physical valuation of a public utility or railroad shall be furnished to the Ohio tax commission, on request, for its use in ascertaining the value of the property of such utility or railroad for purposes of taxation, and upon demand any person or corporation owning or operating a public utility or railroad shall be furnished with a copy of the valuation of his or its property.

Such investigations and report shall show separately the property used and useful to such utility or railroad in the furnishing of the service to the public, and the property held by such utility or railroad for other purposes, and such other items concerning values and methods of making valuations as the commission may deem proper; which said inventories and reports shall be filed in the office of the commission for the information of the governor and the general assembly. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 809, § 22.)

Section 499-10. (What additional facts report may show.) Such investigation and report shall also show whenever the commission may deem necessary, the amounts and dates and rates of interest of all bonds, outstanding against each public utility or railroad, the property upon which they are a lien, the amounts paid therefor; and, in such detail as may be necessary, the original capital stock and the moneys received by any such utility or railroad by reason of any issue of stock, bonds or other securities. Such report shall also show the net and gross receipts of such utility or railroad and the method by which moneys were expended or paid out and the purpose of such payments. The commission shall have the power to prescribe the method of procedure to be followed in making the investigation and valuation and the form in which the results of the ascertainment of the value of each utility or railroad shall be submitted, and the classifications of the elements that constitute the ascertained value. Such investigation shall also show the value of the property of every public utility or railroad as a whole; and, in case such utility or railroad has property in more than one county, the value of its property in each of such counties. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 810, § 23.)

Section 499-11. (Revision and correction of valuations.)

The commission, during the making of the valuation herein provided for, and after the completion thereof, shall thereafter in like manner keep itself informed through its engineers, experts and other assistants of all extensions and improvements or other changes in the condition and value of the property of all public utilities or railroads and shall ascertain the value of such extensions, improvements and changes and shall from time to time, as may be required for the proper regulation of such public utilities or railroads, revise and correct its valuations of property, showing such revisions and corrections as a whole and as to each county in the state. Such revisions and corrections shall be filed in the same manner as is provided for original reports. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 811, § 24.)

Section 499-12. (Notice to public utility before valuation becomes final; protest, hearing.) The commission, whenever it shall have completed the valuation of the property of any public utility or railroad and before such valuation shall have become final, shall give notice by registered letter to such public utility or railroad, or if the whole or the major portion of said utility or railroad is situated in any municipality, then to the mayor of such municipality, stating the valuations placed upon the several kinds and classes of property of such public utility or railroad and upon the property as a whole. If within thirty days after such notification no protest shall have been filed with the commission then said valuation shall be and become final. If notice of protest shall have been filed, however, by any public utility or railroad, the commission shall fix a time for hearing the same and shall consider at such hearing any matter material thereto presented by such public utility or railroad or municipality, in support of its protest or by any representative of the public against such protest. If after the hearing of any protest of any valuation so fixed, the commission shall be of the opinion that its inventory is incomplete or inaccurate or that its valuation is incorrect it shall make such changes as may be necessary and shall issue an order making such corrected valuations final. A final valuation by the commission and all classifications made for the ascertainment of such valuations shall be public and shall be prima facie evidence relative to the value of the property. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 811, § 25; May 31, 1911, 102 v. 557, § 27; G. C. § 614-25 (original number).

Section 499-13. (Ohio state university engineers and experts may be employed.) In the employment of engineers, experts or other assistants the commission may make use of such engineers and experts as may be employed in the Ohio state university in such manner as may be provided by mutual arrangement between the commission and the trustees and faculty of such university, and any information, data and equipment of such university shall be placed at the disposal of the commission. Whenever the authority is conferred or the obligation imposed by law upon the commission to ascertain the value of any public utility or railroad, such valuation under such authority or obligation shall be made in accordance with the provisions of this act. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 811, § 26.)

Section 499-14. (System of accounts may be established for public utilities.) The commission shall have power to establish a system of accounts to be kept by the public utilities or railroads (including municipally owned or operated utilities), or to classify said public utilities or railroads and to establish a system of accounts for each class, and to prescribe the manner in which such accounts shall be kept; and such system shall when practicable conform to the system prescribed by the tax commission of Ohio. It may also in its discretion prescribe the forms of accounts, records and memoranda to be kept by such public utilities or railroads, including the accounts, records and memoranda of the movement of traffic as well as the receipts and expenditures of moneys, and any other forms, records and memoranda which in the judgment of the commission may be necessary to carry out any of the provisions of this chapter. The system of accounts established by the commission and the forms of accounts, records and memoranda prescribed by it shall not be inconsistent, in the case of corporations subject to the provisions of the act of congress entitled "An act to regulate commerce" approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, with the systems and forms from time to time established for such corporations by the interstate commerce commission, but nothing herein contained shall affect the power of the commission to prescribe forms of accounts, records and memoranda covering information in addition to that required by the interstate commerce commission. The commission may, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, prescribe by order the accounts in which particular outlays and receipts shall be entered, charged or credited. Where the commission has prescribed the forms of accounts, records or memoranda to be kept by any public utility or railroad for any of its business, it shall thereafter be unlawful for such public utility or railroad to keep any accounts, records or memoranda for such business other than those so prescribed, or those prescribed by or under the authority of any other state or of the United States, excepting such accounts, records or memoranda as shall be explanatory of and supplemental to the accounts, records or memoranda prescribed by the commission. The commission shall at all times have access to all accounts kept by such utilities or railroads and may designate any of its officers or employees to inspect and examine any and all such accounts. It shall be the duty of the auditor or other chief accounting officer of any such utility to keep such accounts and make the reports provided for in section 614-48 of the General Code. Whoever being such auditor, or chief accounting officer violates or fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall upon conviction thereof be subject to the penalties provided for in section 614-65 of the General Code. It shall be the duty of the attorney general to enforce the provisions of this section upon request of the commission, by mandamus or other appropriate proceedings. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 812, § 27.)

Section 499-15. (Hearing to ascertain value of property; notice.) For the purpose of ascertaining the value of the property of every public utility or railroad in this state, including municipally owned or operated utilities, the commission may cause a hearing or hearings to be held at such time or times and place or places as the commission may designate. Before any hearing is had, the commission shall give the public utility or railroad affected thereby, or if the whole or the major portion of said utility or railroad is situated in any municipality, then to the mayor of such municipality, at least thirty days' written notice specifying the time and place of hearing, and such notice shall be sufficient to authorize the commission to inquire into the matters designated in this section, but this provision shall not prevent the commission from making any preliminary examination or investigation into the matters herein referred to, or from inquiring into such matters in any other investigation or hearing. All public utilities or railroads affected, and any municipality in which the whole or the major portion of said utility or railroad is located, shall be entitled to be heard and to introduce evidence at such hearing or hearings. The commission is empowered to resort to any other source of information available. The evidence introduced at such hearing shall be reduced to writing and certified under the seal of the commission. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 813, § 28; May 31, 1911, 102 v. 557, § 27; G. C. § 614-25 (original numbering).)

Section 499-16. (Filing finding of facts; review.) The commission shall make and file its findings of fact in writing upon all matters concerning which evidence shall have been introduced before it which in its judgment have bearing on the value of the property of the public utility or railroad affected. Such findings shall be subject to review by the supreme court of this state in the same manner and within the same time as other orders and decisions of the commission. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 813, § 29.)

Section 499-17. (Admissibility in evidence of finding.) The findings of the commission so made and filed, when properly certified under the seal of the commission, shall be admissible in evidence in any action, proceeding or hearing before the commission or any court, in which the commission, the state or any officer, department or institution thereof, or any county, city, municipality or other body politic and the public utility railroad affected may be interested, whether arising under the provisions of this chapter or otherwise, and such findings, when so introduced, shall be evidence of the facts therein stated as of the date therein stated under conditions then existing. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 813, § 30.)

Section 499-18. (Further hearings.) The commission may from time to time cause further hearings and investigations to be had for the purpose of making revaluations or ascertaining the value of any betterments, improvements, additions or extensions made by any public utility or railroad subsequent to any prior hearing or investigation, and may examine into all matters which may change, modify or affect any finding of fact previously made, and may at such time make findings of fact supplementary to those theretofore made. Such hearings shall be had upon the same notice and be conducted in the same manner and the findings so made shall have the same force and effect as is provided herein for such original notice, hearing and findings; provided, that such findings made at such supplemental hearings or investigations shall be considered in connection with and as a part of the original findings except in so far as such supplemental findings shall change or modify the findings made at the original hearing or investigation. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 813, § 31.)

Section 501. ("Railroad" defined. Other companies.) The term "railroad" as used in this chapter shall include all corporations, companies, individuals, associations of individuals, their lessees, trustees, or receivers appointed by a court, which owns, operates, manages or controls a railroad or part thereof as a common carrier in this state, or which owns, operates, manages or controls any cars or other equipment used thereon, or which owns, operates, manages or controls any bridges, terminals, union depots, side tracks, docks, wharves, or storage elevators used in connection therewith, whether owned by such railroad or otherwise. Such term "railroad" shall mean and embrace express companies, water transportation companies and interurban railroad companies, and all duties required of and penalties imposed upon a railroad or an officer or agent thereof insofar as they are applicable, shall be required of and imposed upon express companies, water transportation companies and interurban railroad companies, their officers and agents. The commission shall have the power of supervision and control of express companies, water transportation companies and interurban railroad companies to the same extent as railroads. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 549; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 344, § 2; R. S. Sec. 244-12.)

For definitions of "railroad." See Commissioners v. Traction Co. 75 O. S. 548, 559; In re Avon Beach, etc., Co. 3 N. P. n. s. 561; 16 L. D. 87.

A state court is without power to enforce payment of a statutory penalty against a railroad, out of funds, in the hands of a receiver appointed by a federal court, but the commission probably has a right to apply to the federal court, which has appointed a receiver for the railroad, for an order compelling the receiver to execute an order of the commission, requiring the receiver to perform the statutory duty. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 724.

Section 502. (Application of act.) This chapter shall apply to the transportation of passengers and property between points within this state, to the receiving, switching, delivering, storing and handling of such property, and to all charges connected therewith, including icing charges and mileage charges, to all railroad companies, sleeping car companies, equipment companies, express companies, car companies, freight and freight line companies, to all associations of persons, whether incorporated or otherwise, which do business as common carriers, upon or over a line of railroad within this state, and to a common carrier engaged in the transportation of passengers or property wholly by rail or partly by rail and partly by water or wholly by water. In addition thereto the provisions of this act shall apply to the regulation of any and all other duties, services, practices and charges, of the railroad company, incident to the shipping and receiving of freight, which are proper subjects of regulation, excepting only, that they shall not apply to the regulation of commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 549; May 20, 1910; 101 v. 327; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 345, § 2; R. S. Sec. 244-12a.)

A state has no jurisdiction to regulate rates for interstate commerce transportation. An order by the commission which directly burdens or regulates interstate commerce may be enjoined by a federal court. Ohio Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101 (1912).

A rate fixed by the commission on coal, for transporting by rail and placing the coal into vessels ready to be carried to a point outside of the state, is a burden on interstate commerce. Ohio Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101 (1912).

But in so far as the property or traffic of a railroad company is intrastate, it is subject to the control of the commission. Railroad Co. v. Commission, 92 O. S. 1 (1915).

The jurisdiction of the federal interstate commerce commission over intra-state commerce, to prevent discrimination against interstate commerce, does not interfere with the power of the state commission over intrastate rates which do not result in such discrimination. Railroad Co. v. Commission, 105 O. S. 553 (1922).

Where a federal court authorized its receiver of an interstate system of interurban railroad to abandon a branch line wholly located in Ohio, such authorization is binding on the commission and state courts. Commissioners of Franklin County v. Commission, 107 O. S. 442.

Before the amendment of this section it was held that the railroad commission had no power to regulate car service or demurrage charges as to cars employed in interstate commerce. Railroad Commission v. Ann Arbor R. R. Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 317; 21 C. D. 340, affirming 8 N. P. n. s. 233; 19 L. D. 691.

A state court has no jurisdiction to enjoin the putting into effect of an increased rate on interstate traffic, pending a determination by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the reasonableness of the proposed rate. Ohio Dairy Co. v. Railway, 7 N. P. n. s. 451; 19 L. D. 97.

An order of the commission requiring a railroad to cease and desist from requiring shippers of milk, between points within the state, to load the same into cars, is not an interference with interstate commerce. B. & O. R. R. v. Railroad Commission, 10 N. P. n. s. 665; 21 L. D. 468, aff'd, no rep., 86 O. S. 365; s. c., 88 O. S. 599.

Section 503. (To what this chapter shall not apply.)

This chapter shall not apply to street and electric railroads engaged solely in the transportation of passengers within the limits of cities, or other private railroads not doing business as common carriers. (98 v. 345, § 2; R. S. Sec. 244-12b.)

Section 504. (Railroad required to furnish adequate service and facilities.) Each railroad shall furnish reasonably adequate service and facilities. The charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of passengers or property, or for any service in connection therewith, or for the receiving, switching, delivering, storing or handling of such property, shall be reasonable and just. Every unjust and unreasonable charge for such service is prohibited and declared to be unlawful. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 345, § 3; R. S. Sec. 244-13.)

See further as to rates and service note to § 535.

The commission has no power to order the name of a station changed. Buckeye City v. Commission, 97 O. S. 324 (1917).

Nor to order a receiver, appointed and acting under orders of court, to resume interurban service discontinued by the receiver. Zanger v. Commission, 97 O. S. 327 (1917). But see §§ 504-2 and 504-3.

The commission may order a railroad company to provide passenger service. Railroad v. Commission, 92 O. S. 1 (1915).

Where a railroad company "spiked" a side track to prevent its use by a shipper, because of nonpayment by the shipper of a disputed claim, the commission ordered the railroad company to resume the service, leaving the dispute as to the claim for determination by the courts. McIntire v. Zanesville Co., 16 O. L. R. 493 (1918); affirmed 100 O. S. 225.

Competition is an element to be considered in determining whether rates are reasonable and just. Between competitive points a railroad may reduce its rates below those of its competitors. Commission v. Railway Co., 82 O. S. 25, affirming 5 N. P. n. s. 265; 18 L. D. 21.

Power of commission to enforce contracts. The commission has no power to enforce a contract made by an interurban railroad to stop its cars at a certain platform, in consideration of such platform being constructed by the complainant; or to award damages for its violation. Ashley v. Sandusky, etc., Co., 5 O. L. R. 359, 361; 52 B. 498 (Railroad Commission).

Section to be construed as a part of entire act. This section and § 567 are to be operative only as a part of the whole legislative plan. They can not be segregated either in the interpretation of the act or in its application. Warner v. Railway, 11 N. P. n. s. 487 (C. P. 1911).

Adequate service and facilities. See note to §§ 535 and 519.

Section 504-1. (Charges for transportation of freight upon railroads regulated.) That no company, or person owning, controlling, or operating a railroad in whole or part within this state, shall charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of freight of like kind, for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line or route in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance, or charge any greater compensation as a through route than the aggregate of the intermediate rates, within the state of Ohio; but this shall not be construed as authorizing any company or person within the terms of this act to charge or receive as great compensation for a shorter as for a longer distance; provided, however, that upon application to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, such company or person may in special cases, after investigation, be authorized by the commission to charge less for a longer than for shorter distances for the transportation of freight of like kind; and the commission may from time to time prescribe the extent to which such designated company or person may be relieved from the operation of this section. Provided further, that no rates or charges lawfully existing at the time of the passage of this section shall be required to be changed by reason of the provisions thereof, prior to the expiration of six months after the passage of this section, nor in any case where application shall have been filed before the commission, in accordance with the provisions of this section, until a determination of such application by the commission. (107 v. 431.)

This section superseded §§ 8988 and 8989 which were repealed at the time of its enactment. § 8988 related to freight traffic only. Railway v. Commission, 5 N. P. n. s. 274; 18 L. D. 21 (1907); affirmed 82 O. S. 25.

A higher rate for short hauls to intermediate points was said to be a violation of § 8988. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 644.

A charge higher than that made for a transportation of the same commodity for an equal or greater distance over the same connecting lines under former § 8988 is an "overcharge" within the meaning of § 579. Railway v. Mills Bros. 101 O. S. 163 (1920).

To recover an overcharge under former section § 8988 it was not necessary to prove that any shipment had been made for the longer distance at the lesser rate. Proof of the published rates was sufficient. Beeghly v. Commission, 104 O. S. 158 (1922).

Section 504-2. (Abandonment of track, depot, line, pumping stations, etc.; forfeiture.) No railroad as defined in section 501 of the General Code, operating any railroad in the state of Ohio, and no public utility as defined in section 614-2a of the General Code furnishing service or facilities within the state of Ohio, shall abandon or be required to abandon or withdraw any main track or tracks or depot of a railroad or main pipe line, gas line, telegraph line or telephone toll line, electric light line, water line or steam pipe line, or any portion thereof, pumping station, generating plant, power station, or service station of a public utility, or the service rendered thereby, which has once been laid, constructed, opened and used for public business, nor shall be closed for traffic or service thereon, therein or thereover except as provided in section 504-3. Any railroad or public utility violating the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay into the state treasury not less than one hundred ($100.00) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, and shall be subject to all other legal and equitable remedies for the enforcement of the provisions of this act. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 372; 107 v. 525.)

See §§ 8747, 8750-8752 and notes to §§ 8747 and 8759.

This section and § 504-3 are unconstitutional in so far as they apply to "all such service now rendered and facilities furnished". Gas Company v. Cleveland, 106 O. S. 489 (1922); reversing 15 Ohio App. 117.

Where a federal court authorized its receiver of an interstate system of interurban railroad to abandon a branch line wholly located in Ohio, such authorization is binding on the commission and state courts. Commissioners of Franklin County v. Commission, 107 O. S. 442.

Section 504-3. (Application to commission for abandonment. Hearing upon abandonment.) Any such railroad or any political subdivision desiring to abandon, close, or have abandoned, withdrawn or closed for traffic or service all or any part of such main track or tracks, or depot, and any such public utility, or political subdivision desiring to abandon or close, or have abandoned, withdrawn or closed for traffic or service all or any part of such line or lines, pumping station, generating plant, power station or service station, shall first make application to the public utilities commission in writing who shall thereupon cause reasonable notice thereof to be given, stating the time and place fixed by the commission for the hearing of said application. Upon the hearing of said application said commission shall ascertain the facts, and make its finding thereon, and if such facts satisfy the commission that the proposed abandonment, withdrawal or closing for traffic or service is reasonable, having due regard for the welfare of the public and the cost of operating the service or facility, they may allow the same; otherwise it shall be denied, or if the facts warrant, the application may be granted in a modified form. Provided, however, that should the application ask for the abandonment or withdrawal of any main track, main pipe line, gas line, telegraph line or telephone toll line, electric light line, water line or steam pipe line, pumping station, generating plant, power station, service station, or the service rendered thereby, in such manner as can result in the permanent abandonment of service between any two points on such railroad, or of service and facilities of any such public utility, no application shall be granted unless the company or public utility shall have operated said track, pipe line, gas line, telegraph line or telephone toll line, electric light line, water line, or steam pipe line, pumping station, generating plant, power station or service station for a period of at least five years, and such notice shall be given by publication in a newspaper of general circulation throughout any county or municipality which may have granted a franchise to said company or public utility, under which said track, pipe line, gas line, telegraph line or telephone toll line, electric light line, water line or steam pipe line, pumping station, generating plant, power station or service station is operated or in which the same is located, once a week for four consecutive weeks before the hearing of said application, and notice of said hearing shall be given such county, municipality or public utility in the manner provided for the service of orders of the commission in section 614-71 of the General Code, and except that the provisions of section 504-2 and 504-3 shall not apply to a gas company when removing or exchanging abandoned field lines.

(To what provisions apply.) The provisions of this section shall apply to all such service now rendered and facilities furnished or hereafter built and operated, and an order of the commission authorizing the abandonment or withdrawal of any such service or facility shall not affect rights and obligations of a railroad or public utility beyond the scope of said order, anything in its franchise to the contrary notwithstanding. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 372; 107 v. 525.)

Prior to the enactment of this section the commission had no authority to determine the right of a railroad to abandon its tracks. Fish v. Commission, 97 O. S. 330.

Since the enactment of this section, the commission may authorize abandonment. A court which has appointed a receiver of an interurban line cannot, on application of such receiver, order an abandonment of a branch thereof. Cincinnati v. Westinghouse Co., 9 Ohio App. 182; 29 O. C. A. 42 (1917).

But, in a suit by a municipality to enjoin an abandonment, the court may order an abandonment where it finds no contractual obligation to operate, and there is no prospect that the road can be operated without loss. Gress v. Fort Loramie, 100 O. S. 35 (1919); reversing 21 N. P. n. s. 81.

And where the question is involved in an action pending in a court of general jurisdiction at the time of the filing of the application, the commission should dismiss an application for permission to abandon. New Bremen v. Commission, 103 O. S. 23 (1921).

Notice to each consumer is not required by this section, other than notice by publication. St. Clairsville v. Com., 102 O. S. 574 (1921).

This section authorizes the commission to allow a gas company to discontinue service, if satisfied that the company no longer has a supply of gas, and is unable to procure such a supply. The commission has no power to require one gas company (not a pipe-line company) having no contractual relations with a municipality, to furnish gas to another company to enable it to supply a municipality. St. Clairsville v. Com., 102 O. S. 574 (1921).

§ 504-3 authorizes abandonment of a part of an interurban line where the commission is satisfied that it would be reasonable, having due regard to the welfare of the public and the cost of operation. Northfield v. Commission, 100 O. S. 424 (1919).

That service was discontinued shortly prior to application for leave to abandon does not defeat the application, provided the track was operated for five years previous to the application. Northfield v. Commission, 100 O. S. 424 (1919).

When application for leave to abandon unnecessary. Brooks-Scanlon Co. v. R. Com. of La., 251 U. S. 396 (1920).

Considerations by which commission will be guided in granting applications for abandonment. See 17 O. L. R. 261; 16 O. L. R. 6, 134.

Section 504-5. (Rules and regulations relative to carload shipments of livestock.) Any company owning or operating a railroad in whole or in part in this state, which receives livestock for shipment in carload lots, shall be governed and regulated by the following rules and regulations relative to the intrastate rates and minimum weights to be charged in carload lot shipments of livestock.

(Specifications relating to shipment of hogs.) Such company receiving hogs for carload shipments in cars of a length of 36.7 feet, or under, shall make the rate charge on a basis of a minimum weight of not over 16,000 pounds for single deck cars, and 22,000 pounds for double deck cars. In cars of a length exceeding 36.7 feet, and not over 40 feet, the rate charged shall be on a basis of a minimum weight of not over 17,000 pounds for single deck cars, and 23,000 pounds for double deck cars. In cars over 40 feet in length the rate charged shall be on a basis of a minimum weight of not exceeding 18,000 pounds for single deck cars and 24,000 pounds for double deck cars.

(Shipments of mixed livestock.) If such company receive for shipment a car containing a mixture of hogs, cattle and sheep or any two of them, the freight rate charged shall be based upon the same animal classification as is used to determine the minimum freight weight. It shall be the duty of the public utilities commission to enforce the provisions of this section. (109 v. 193.)

Section 505. (Railroad required to file schedules with commission.) Each railroad shall print in plain type and file with the commission, within a time fixed by the commission, schedules which shall be open to public inspection, showing all rates, fares and charges for transportation of passengers and property, and any service in connection therewith, which such railroad has established and which are in force at such time between all points in this state upon its line, or any line controlled or operated by it. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 345, § 4; R. S. Sec. 244-14.)

The commission has no discretion as to the filing of tariffs by industrial roads which are common carriers as defined by § 501. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 706.

A schedule, properly printed and filed, is binding upon shippers and travellers as well as upon the railroad company. But a common carrier can not relieve itself from the liability imposed by § 8994-1 by a rule or regulation contained in the schedule. Railroad v. Steinberg, 94 O. S. 189 (1916).

A special contract, not mentioned in schedules on file, made in view of an unusual flood, for the immediate and necessary removal of perishable goods beyond reach of the flood, is not per se void, unless its terms are unjust, unreasonable or discriminatory in their nature or operation. Railroad v. Armstrong, 99 O. S. 163 (1918).

Section 506. (What schedules shall contain and where posted.) The schedules shall plainly state the places upon the line of such railroad or upon any line controlled or operated by it in this state between which passengers and property will be carried, and there shall be filed with such schedule the classification of freight in force. As a part of such schedules, each railroad shall publish the rules and regulations affecting the rates charged or to be charged for transportation of passengers or property; also its charges for delay in loading or unloading cars, for track and car service, rental, demurrage, switching, terminal or transfer service, or for any other service in connection with transportation of persons or property. Two copies of such schedules, in such form and place as to be accessible for inspection by the public, shall be filed and kept on file in every depot, station and office of such railroad where passengers or freight are received for transportation. (R. S. Sec. 244-14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 345, § 4.)

A rate or rule which is in violation of a statute is not validated by insertion in schedules which are filed and published. Railway v. Mills Bros., 101 O. S. 173 (1920); Railroad v. Steinberg, 94 O. S. 189 (1916).

Schedules filed with the interstate commerce commission, so long as in force, have the effect of statutes, and are binding upon shipper and carrier alike. Carlin Co. v. Hines, 107 O. S. 328 (1923).

Regulations affecting passengers, baggage and limitations of liability, are authorized and required by the federal interstate commerce act. Railroad v. Hooker, 233 U. S. 97 (1914).

Section 507. (Schedules of joint rates.) When passengers or property are transported over connecting lines in this state operated by two or more railroads, and such railroads establish joint rates, fares and charges, a schedule thereof, compiled as provided in the next preceding section, shall be printed, filed with the commission and filed in every depot, station and office of such railroads where passengers or property are received for transportation. (R. S. Sec. 244-14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 345, § 4.)

Section 508. (Changes in schedules.) No change thereafter shall be made in any schedule, including schedule of joint rates, or in any classification, except upon thirty days' notice to the commission. All such changes shall be plainly indicated upon existing schedules, or by filing new schedules thirty days prior to the time they are to take effect, but the commission may, in its discretion and for good cause shown, allow changes upon less than the notice herein specified, or modify the requirements of this section in respect to publishing, posting, and filing of tariffs, either in particular instances or by a general order applicable to special or peculiar circumstances or conditions. Copies of all new schedules shall be filed as provided in the preceding section in every depot, station and office of such railroad thirty days prior to the time they are to take effect, unless the commission shall prescribe a less time. (106 v. 188; 98 v. 346, § 4; R. S. Sec. 244-14a.)

Section 509. (Posting changes in schedules.) When a change is made in an existing schedule, including schedules of joint rates, the railroad shall post a notice in a conspicuous place in every depot, station and office, stating that changes have been made in the schedules on file, specifying the class or commodity affected and the date when such changes will take effect. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 346, § 4; R. S. Sec. 244-14b.)

Section 510. (Charges shall conform to schedule.) No railroad shall charge, demand, collect or receive a greater or less compensation for the transportation of passengers or property, or for any service in connection therewith, than is specified in such printed schedules, including schedules of joint rates, as being then in force. The rates, fares and charges named therein shall be the lawful rates, fares and charges until they are changed as provided in this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 244-14c; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 346, § 4.)

A schedule, properly printed and filed, is binding upon shippers and travellers as well as upon the railroad company. But a common carrier can not relieve itself from the liability imposed by § 8994-1 by a rule or regulation contained in the schedule. Railroad v. Steinberg, 94 O. S. 189 (1916).

Where a railroad company, by mistake, collected less than its published rate, it may recover the deficiency from the consignee. Railway Co. v. Magnus Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 305 (1910); Store Fixture Co. v. Railway Co., 1 N. P. n. s. 242; 13 L. D. 648; Railroad v. Peak, 6 Ohio App. 399; 28 O. C. A. 77 (1917); Railway v. Tile Co., 19 N. P. n. s. 244 (1916); Railroad v. Fink, 250 U. S. 577 (1919); reversing 2 Ohio App. 235; 19 C. C. n. s. 103; 25 C. D. 494.

Where a ticket agent sold at full tariff rates, tickets for two parties of sixteen and nineteen men respectively, and agreed to furnish a special baggage car free, the division of the parties being determined by the ticket agent, the railroad company can not recover further compensation because of a rule that a special baggage car is only furnished free for parties of twenty-five or more. Columbus Co. v. Ry., 10 Ohio App. 480; 30 O. C. A. 145 (1919).

A rate scheduled and established pursuant to the statute is the lawful rate. If unjust or discriminatory it may be changed by the commission, but a railroad charging such established rate is not liable in damages under § 569. Warner v. Railway, 11 N. P. n. s. 487 (C. P. 1911).

A contract made prior to the enactment of the railroad commission act, whereby an interurban railway obtained a right of way in return for an agreement for a fixed rate of fare, was held not abrogated by the railroad commission act. Taylor v. Niles, 2 Ohio App. 293; 21 C. C. n. s. 391; 25 C. D. 445 (1913); Short v. Railway, 18 N. P. n. s. 537 (1916). Contra, King Co. v. Thrasher, 20 N. P. n. s. 401 (1918).

But the commission has no jurisdiction to enforce such a contract. Coss v. Commission, 101 O. S. 528 (1920).

A special contract made after the enactment of the public utilities act is not enforceable in so far as it conflicts with rates established by the commission. Patterson Co. v. Power Co., 99 O. S. 429 (1919).

Section 511. (Commission shall prescribe forms.) The commission may prescribe such changes in the form in which schedules are issued by a railroad as may be found expedient. Such schedules, as far as practicable, shall conform to the forms prescribed by the interstate commerce commission. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 346, § 4; R. S. Sec. 244-14d.)

Section 512. (Rates shall be just and reasonable.) When passengers or property are transported over two or more connecting lines of railroad between points in this state, and the railroad companies have made joint rates for the transportation of such passengers or property, such rates and all charges in connection therewith shall be just and reasonable, and every unjust and unreasonable charge is prohibited and declared to be unlawful; but a less charge by each of such railroads for its proportion of such joint rates than is made locally between the same points on their respective lines shall not for that reason be construed as a violation of the provisions of this chapter, nor render such railroads liable to any of the penalties thereof. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 346, § 5; R. S. Sec. 244-15.)

Section 513. (Special contract rates.) Nothing in this chapter shall prevent concentration, commodity, transit and other special contract rates, but all such rates shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter as to their printing and filing, shall be open to all shippers for a like kind of traffic under similar circumstances and conditions, and shall be under the supervision and regulation of the commission. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 346, § 6; R. S. Sec. 244-16.)

Section 514. (Classification of freight shall be uniform.) The classification of freight in the state shall be uniform on all railroads. (98 v. 347, § 7; R. S. Sec. 244-17.)

Section 515. (Exceptions as to freight rates.) Nothing in this chapter shall prevent the carriage, storage or handling of freight free or at reduced rates, for the United States, the state, any political subdivision or municipality thereof, for charitable purposes, to and from fairs and exhibitions for exhibition thereat, or the property of railway employees for their own exclusive use or consumption or that of their families; or the issuance of mileage, commutation or excursion passenger tickets, if obtainable by any person applying therefor without discrimination, or of party tickets, if obtainable by all persons applying therefor under like circumstances and conditions. (May 20, 1910, 101 v. 322; R. S. Sec. 244-18; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 128, § 8; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 347, § 8.)

The issuance of mileage, excursion, etc., tickets is permissive only. Ordinarily railroads cannot be required to issue such tickets.

The giving of more favorable commutation rates to children attending public school, as a class, than to children traveling for other purposes, is not an arbitrary selection or unjust discrimination.

Shryock v. B. & O. R. R., 6 O. L. R. 19; 53 B. 86; s. c., 4 O. L. R. 614; 52 B. 23.

This section does not prevent the holder of an excursion ticket, sold at a reduced rate, from selling the unused return coupon where the ticket is not, in terms, nontransferable.

Knecht v. Railway, 6 N. P. n. s. 13; 18 L. D. 202 (C. P. 1907).

This section is applicable to express companies (§ 501). A railroad or express company may carry free, or at reduced rates, the property of employes of other railroads or express companies.

Rept. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 624.

Section 516. (Prohibiting free transportation by railroad company. Exceptions. Definitions.) No railroad company, owning or operating a railroad wholly or partly within this state, shall, directly or indirectly, issue or give a free ticket, free pass, or free transportation for passengers, except to its employes and their families, its officers, agents, surgeons, physicians, and attorneys at law; to ministers of religion, traveling secretaries of railroad young men's christian associations, inmates of hospitals and charitable and eleemosynary institutions, and persons exclusively engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; to indigent, destitute and homeless persons, and to such persons when transported by charitable societies or hospitals, and the necessary agents employed in such transportation; to inmates of the national homes or state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers, and soldiers' and sailors' homes, including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge, and boards of managers of such homes; to necessary caretakers of live stock, poultry and fruit; to employes on sleeping cars, express cars, and to linemen of telegraph and telephone companies; to railway mail service employes, postoffice inspectors, custom inspectors and immigration inspectors; to newsboys on trains, baggage agents, witnesses attending any legal investigation in which the railroad is interested, persons injured in wrecks and physicians and nurses attending such persons. Provided, that the term "employes" as used in this paragraph shall include furloughed, pensioned, and superannuated employes, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of any such common carrier, and the remains of a person killed in the employment of a carrier and ex-employes traveling for the purpose of entering the service of any such common carrier; and the term "families" as used in this paragraph shall include the families of those persons named in this proviso and also the widows and dependent children of employes who died while in the service of any common carrier. (April 29, 1911, 102 v. 85; R. S. Sec. 244-18; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 128, § 8; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 347, § 8.)

See 4 O. L. R. 667.

An ordinance granting a franchise to an interurban railway, prior to the enactment of § 516, requiring free transportation of mail carriers, was not rendered inoperative by § 516. Steubenville v. Traction Co., 13 Ohio App. 493; 31 O. C. A. 513 (1920). Motion to certify record overruled, 19 O. L. R. 51.

A railroad company may issue a pass to an employe, although the latter is a member of the general assembly. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 160.

Where a right of way was granted in consideration of an agreement for free life passes, the subsequent enactment of the Ohio railroad commission act was held not to justify the railroad company in refusing to issue passes for intrastate travel. As to passes for interstate travel, it was held that the federal interstate commerce act disabled the railway company from issuing passes, but that, under the provisions of the deed, the right of way reverted to the grantor, who was entitled to maintain an action in ejectment. Short v. Railway, 18 N. P. n. s. 537, 27 L. D. 294 (1916).

Section 517. (Passes may be interchanged.) The next preceding section shall not be construed to prohibit the interchange of passes for the officers, agents, and employes and their families; nor to prohibit any railroad company from carrying passengers free in order to provide relief in cases of general epidemics, pestilence, or other calamitous visitation. (R. S. Sec. 244-18; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 128, § 8; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 347, § 8.)

Section 518. (Penalty.) Any railroad company violating a provision of the preceding three sections, for each offense, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and any person other than the persons excepted in such sections, who uses such free ticket, free pass, or free transportation, shall be subject to a like penalty. (R. S. Sec. 244-18; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 128, § 8; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 347, § 8.)

Section 519. (Depots, switches and sidetracks.) Each railroad shall provide and maintain adequate depots and depot buildings at its regular stations for the accommodation of passengers, and such depot buildings shall be kept clean, well lighted and warmed, for the comfort and accommodation of the traveling public. Each railroad shall provide and maintain adequate and suitable freight depots, buildings, switches and sidetracks for receiving, handling and delivering freight, transported or to be transported by such railroads; but this section shall not be construed as repealing any existing law on the subject. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 347, § 9; R. S. Sec. 244-19.)

Upon application by a shipper for a switch connection with a railroad siding owned and controlled by the railroad, the commission has no authority to require the applicant to reimburse another shipper for expenses voluntarily incurred in a change of location of the siding. Cincinnati Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 288 (1917); affirming 14 O. L. R. 275.

This section does not require a railroad company to open its public or team tracks to other companies.

Rheinstrom v. Railway, 4 O. L. R. 755 (Railroad Commission).

The commission has power to order and require reasonably adequate depot facilities.

Greenwich v. N. O. Ry. Co., 6 O. L. R. 51 (Railroad Commission).

See G. C. §§ 8926, 8927 and notes to § 535.

Section 520. (Supply of cars.) If within its power so to do, and upon reasonable notice, each railroad shall furnish suitable cars for all persons who may apply therefor, for the transportation of any and all kinds of freight in car load lots. In case of insufficiency of cars at any time to meet all requirements, such cars as are available shall be distributed among the applicants therefor in proportion to their respective immediate requirements, without discrimination between shippers or competitive or non-competitive places; but preference may be given to shipments of live stock and perishable property. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 347, § 10; R. S. Sec. 244-20.)

This section does not authorize the commission to require a railroad to furnish cars of a special type without reference to safety of transportation. Provision Co. v. Commission, 104 O. S. 253 (1922).

Railroad fuel cars should not be ordered distributed to coal mines when. See Coal Co. v. Railroad Commission, 8 N. P. n. s. 585; 19 L. D. 783; enjoining order of railroad commission reported in Carbon Coal Min. Co. v. M. C. & C. R. R., 7 O. L. R. 196; s. e., 6 O. L. R. 528.

When an industry is uncertain and irregular in its requirements as to cars, the shipper must give reasonable notice thereof to the railroad.

Greer, etc., Co. v. Penna. Co., 6 O. L. R. 133 (Railroad Commission).

See also notes to §§ 535 and 567.

Section 521. (Commission shall enforce regulations as to cars.) The commission may enforce reasonable regulations for furnishing cars to shippers, switching, loading and unloading them, and the weighing of cars and freight offered for shipment over any line of railroad. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 348, § 10; R. S. Sec. 244-20a.)

The commission has no power to promulgate an arbitrary rule as to the distribution of cars in the future, and thereby determine a future judicial question.

Coal Co. v. Railroad Commission, 8 N. P. n. s. 585; 19 L. D. 783.

Demurrage charges. A reasonable charge for demurrage may be made upon failure of the consignee to unload freight from its cars within a reasonable time. A railroad company may refuse to deliver cars upon the private siding of the consignee until he pays demurrage charged for the unreasonable detention of former cars delivered upon the siding. Phillips Co. v. Erie R. Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 505; 17 C. D. 486 (1905); affirming, 14 L. D. 706.

But where the delay is caused by the acts of the railway company it is not entitled to demurrage. Tray, etc., Co. v. Railway, 3 N. P. n. s. 412 (1903); aff'd, 72 O. S. 612.

Where a large part of its bill for demurrage is disputed in good faith, the railroad company can not require as a condition of continuing switching service, payment of the entire bill and an unconditional promise to pay all similar future bills. Troy, etc., Co. v. Railway Co., 3 N. P. n. s. 412 (1903); aff'd, 72 O. S. 613.

The transferee of a bill of lading, who presents it to the railroad company and receives the goods contained in the cars, is bound by a provision in such bill of lading for demurrage, and is liable to the railroad company. Traction Co. v. Railway Co., 8 C. C. n. s. 134; 18 C. D. 543 (1906).

A railroad company has a common-law lien upon property in a car, for demurrage charges, and may refuse to deliver such property until payment is made. Such lien exists independently of any stipulation in the contract of shipment. Railway Co. v. Mooar Lumber Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 638; 17 C. D. 588 (1905).

Forty-eight hours is a reasonable time within which a consignee may be required to remove freight from cars, after which time a demurrage charge may be imposed. Phillips Co. v. Railroad Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 505; 17 C. D. 486 (1905); s. c., 14 L. D. 706; Troy, etc., Co. v. Railway Co., 3 N. P. n. s. 412 (1903); aff'd, 72 O. S. 613; Railroad v. Seiberling, 8 C. C. 593; 4 C. D. 210. See § 8998.

Where, upon arrival of cars, the consignee instructs delivery upon side tracks leading from another railroad which has duly promulgated an embargo on deliveries on such side tracks, and immediate notice of the embargo is given to the consignee, who permits the goods to remain in the cars until the embargo is lifted, he is liable for demurrage charges. Railway v. Mayer, 7 Ohio App. 44; 28 O. C. A. 29 (1916).

Where a consignee refuses a carload of freight, the railway company must make disposition thereof within a reasonable time, and may recover demurrage only for such reasonable time. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 26 C. C. n. s. 476 (1913); affirming 15 N. P. n. s. 513.

But where, in such a case, the railroad company notifies the consignor and requests instructions for disposition, which the consignor refuses to give, the consignor is liable for demurrage charges accruing after rejection of the shipment by the consignee. Moores Lime Co. v. Railway, 6 Ohio App. 159; 25 C. C. n. s. 527 (1916).

No demurrage charges are recoverable on cars held by a railroad company because of a controversy with other carriers over a division of the freight charges. Coal Co. v. Railway, 4 Ohio App. 459; 25 C. C. n. s. 276 (1915); motion to certify record overruled, 13 O. L. R. 515.

A consignee who is bound under the "average agreement" rule for demurrage charges on cars constructively delivered, notwithstanding the "bunching" of such cars, is relieved therefrom where the bunching was due to an Act of God such as the flood of March, 1913. Joslin Schmidt Co. v. Railroad, 6 Ohio App. 193; 25 C. C. n. s. 379 (1916); motion to certify record overruled, 14 O. L. R. 204; Carlin Co. v. Hines, 107 O. S. 328 (1923); reversing 23 N. P. n. s. 457.

Where a demurrage rule of an interstate railroad has been passed upon and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the validity of the rule is not open for consideration in a suit by the railroad company in a state court to recover demurrage charges assessed under the rule as to cars engaged in interstate commerce. Swift v. Railway, 93 O. S. 143 (1915).

Under the interstate commerce commission rule, demurrage charges must be collected in accordance with the tariff on file. Where certain exceptions are specified in the tariff, no others may be added. Carlin Co. v. Hines, 107 O. S. 328 (1923); reversing 23 N. P. n. s. 457.

In a suit by a railroad company to recover demurrage charges, the shipper cannot defend on the ground of delay by the railroad company in shipment, where the shipment was interstate, the Interstate Commerce Commission having exclusive primary jurisdiction in such matters. Coal Co. v. Penna. Co., 97 O. S. 161 (1918). See also, Harmon v. Jewett, 9 Ohio App. 350 (1918).

Demurrage rule construed as imposing a charge for one day only regardless of time the car was detained by the consignee. Railroad v. Proctor & Gamble Co., 21 N. P. n. s. 169 (1913).

Under the Federal Transportation Act of 1920 the Interstate Commerce Commission may change rates fixed by a state statute or state commission, the effect of which is an undue, unreasonable or unjust discrimination against interstate or foreign commerce. R. Com. of Wis. v. C. B. & Q. Ry. (U. S. Sup. Ct. 1922), 66 L. Ed. 236; New York v. U. S., 66 L. Ed. 244.

Car service rules established by railroad commission. Ohio Shippers Ass'n v. Ann Arbor R. Co., 52 O. L. B. 279 (1907).

Section 522. (Interchange of traffic.) Steam railroad companies as between themselves, and interurban and electric railroads as between themselves, shall afford reasonable and proper facilities for interchange of traffic between their respective lines, for forwarding and delivering passengers and property, and shall transfer and deliver without unreasonable delay or discrimination cars, loaded or empty, freight or passengers, destined to a point on its own or connecting lines; but precedence over other freight may be given to live stock and perishable freight. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 348, § 11; R. S. Sec. 244-21.)

The Ohio statutes do not make it the duty of a railroad company, whose tracks intersect those of another company, to establish physical connections. But the commission is authorized by §§ 614-42 and 522 to require such connection, if it finds the same practicable and reasonably necessary to accommodate the public. The mere fact of a previous connection with tracks of one company and a refusal to connect with those of another company does not establish a charge of unjust discrimination. Railway Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 359 (1917). See also, Penna. Co. v. Commission, 14 N. P. n. s. 262; 58 Bull. 185 (1913).

The test is whether the connection is practicable and reasonably necessary to accommodate the public. Railroad Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 370. (1917); Railway Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 359 (1917).

A state, acting within its jurisdiction and not in hostility to a federal regulation of interstate commerce, may make a reasonable order for interchange of traffic, without violating the federal constitution. Michigan Co. v. Mich. R. R. Com., 236 U. S. 615 (1915).

An order requiring three railroad companies, whose tracks intersect in a city, to construct transfer or connecting tracks at a cost of $14,000, in order to accommodate manufacturers and other shippers whose traffic approximates two thousand cars per year, is not so unreasonable as to violate a constitutional right.

Penna. Co. v. Commission, 14 N. P. n. s. 262, 58 Bull. 185 (C. P. 1913).

The commission may require the tracks of an interurban railway and a steam railroad to be connected and may establish joint rates under § 540. H. V. Ry. v. Commission, 107 O. S. 43 (1923).

Section 523. (Control over private tracks.) The commission shall have the same control over private tracks, so far as such tracks are used by common carriers in connection with a railroad for the transportation of freight, as it has over the tracks of such railroad. (R. S. Sec. 244-21a; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 348, § 11.)

This section places under control of the commission arrangements made by a railroad for transportation of freight over its road in connection with private tracks. Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 218 (1918).

The commission has no jurisdiction to determine a controversy growing out of a switch track contract between a railroad company and a shipper. Zanesville Railroad v. Commission, 100 O. S. 225 (1919).

Section 524. (Complaints and hearings.) Upon complaint of a person, firm, corporation or association, or of a mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society, or of a body politic or municipal organization, that any of the rates, fares, charges or classifications, or any joint rate or rates are in any respect unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or that any regulation or practice, affecting the transportation of persons or property, or any service in connection therewith, are in any respect unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or that any service is inadequate, the commission may notify the railroad complained of that complaint has been made, and ten days after such notice proceed to investigate such charges as provided in this chapter. Before proceeding to make such investigation, the commission shall give the railroad and the complainants ten days' notice of the time and place such matters will be considered and determined, and such parties shall be entitled to be heard and to have process to enforce the attendance of witnesses. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 348, § 12; R. S. Sec. 244-22.)

This act provides an adequate remedy for discrimination and unjust or unreasonable rates and classifications, and courts have no original jurisdiction with reference thereto.

Publishing Co. v. Express Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 403 (1911).

A proceeding before the commission, upon complaint charging that certain railroad rates are unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, is a matter of public concern in which all shippers are interested. The orders made are general in their operation, not only in favor of the complainant, but also of all persons interested. Taylor Williams Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 224 (1918).

The laws giving the commission power over rates do not deprive the courts of equitable jurisdiction. Where a municipality brought suit to enforce an unaccepted ordinance fixing the rate of gas, an answer of the gas company alleging facts showing the rate to be confiscatory states a case of which a court of equity has jurisdiction. State v. Ct. of App., 104 O. S. 96 (1922).

Section 525. (Railroad may be complainant.) The next preceding section shall be construed to permit a railroad to make complaint with like effect as though made by any person, firm, corporation or association, mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society, body politic or municipal organization. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 349, § 12; R. S. Sec. 244-22c.)

Section 526. (May separate complaint.) When complaint is made of more than one rate or charge, the commission may order separate hearings thereon, and may consider and determine the matters complained of separately, and at such times as it may prescribe. No complaint shall necessarily be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 349, § 12; R. S. Sec. 244-22a.)

Section 527. (Commission may change unreasonable rate.) Upon an investigation, if the rate or rates, or any regulation, practice or service complained of is found to be unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or the service inadequate, the commission may fix and order substituted therefor, such rate or rates, fares, charges or classification as it shall have determined to be just and reasonable, which shall be charged, imposed and followed in the future. It also may make such orders respecting such regulation, practice or service as it shall have determined to be reasonable, which shall be observed and followed in the future, but no rates fixed shall exceed the maximum rates prescribed by any statute of this state in force at the time the commission fixes such rates. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 348, § 12; R. S. Sec. 244-22.)

Both a finding and an order are requisite to give effect to any action by the commission. A finding is the ascertainment of facts, and results from investigation. A judgment is the application of the law to ascertained facts, and results from consideration.

Warner v. Railway, 11 N. P. n. s. 487 (C. P. 1911).

See § 535 and note.

This act provides an adequate remedy for discrimination and unjust or unreasonable rates and classifications, and courts have no original jurisdiction with reference thereto.

Publishing Co. v. Express Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 403 (1911).

See Railway v. Tie Co., 234 U. S. 138 (1914).

The public utilities commission, in fixing a reasonable rate of fare between points on an interurban railroad, need not adopt a rate between other points fixed in a franchise to the same railroad. Stark County v. Traction Co., 102 O. S. 124 (1921).

Section 528. (Commission may investigate on its own motion. Hearing upon new rate or charge; power of commission to suspend new rate or charge.) If the commission believes that any rate or rates, or charge or charges, may be unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, and that an investigation relating thereto should be made, it may investigate them upon its own motion. Before such investigation it shall present to the railroad a statement in writing setting forth the rate or charge to be investigated. Thereafter, on ten days' notice to the railroad of the time and place of such investigation, the commission may proceed to investigate such rate or charge in the same manner and make like orders in respect thereto, as if such investigation had been made upon complaint.

Whenever there shall be filed with the commission any schedule stating a new individual or joint rate or charge, or any new individual or joint classification, or any new individual or joint regulation or practice affecting any rate or charge, the commission shall have, and it is hereby given, authority, either upon complaint or upon its own initiative without complaint, at once, and if it so orders, without answer or other formal pleading by the interested carrier or carriers, but upon reasonable notice, to enter upon a hearing concerning the propriety of such rate, charge, classification, regulation or practice; and pending such hearing and the decision thereon, the commission upon filing with such schedule and delivering to the carrier or carriers af-fectured thereby, a statement in writing of its reasons for such suspension, may suspend the operation of such schedule and postpone the use and operation of such rate, charge, classification, regulation or practice, but not for a longer period than thirty days beyond the time when such rate, charge, classification, regulation or practice would otherwise go into effect; and after a full hearing, whether completed before or after the rate, charge, classification, regulation or practice goes into effect, the commission may make such order in reference to such rate, charge, classification, regulation or practice as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the rate, charge, classification, regulation or practice, had become effective; provided, that if any such hearing can not be concluded within the period of suspension, as above stated, the commission may, in its discretion, extend the time of suspension for a further period not exceeding thirty days. At any hearing involving a rate increased after January 15, 1915, or of a rate sought to be increased after this section shall have become effective, the burden of proof to show that the increased rate or the proposed increased rate is just and reasonable shall be upon the common carrier, and the commission shall give to the hearing and decision of such question preference over all other questions pending before it, and decide the same as speedily as possible. (106 v. 188; 98 v. 349, § 12; R. S. Sec. 244-22b.)

Section 529. (Record of certain investigation.) A full record shall be kept of the proceedings before the commission on such investigations. All testimony shall be taken by the stenographer appointed by the commission. (April 2, 1906; 98 v. 350, § 13; R. S. Sec. 244-23c.)

Section 530. (Power of commissioners to administer oaths.) Each of the commissioners, for the purposes mentioned in this chapter, may administer oaths, certify to official acts, issue subpoenas, compel the attendance of witnesses, and the production of papers, way-bills, books, accounts, documents and testimony. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 349, § 13; R. S. Sec. 244-23.)

Section 531. (Witnesses may be compelled to testify.) If a person disobeys an order of the commission or a commissioner, or a subpoena, or if a witness refuses to testify to any matter regarding which he may be lawfully interrogated, on application of a commissioner, the court of common pleas of a county or a judge thereof shall compel obedience by attachment proceedings for contempt, as in the case of disobedience of the requirements of a subpoena issued from such court, or a refusal to testify therein. The commission also shall have the powers vested in justices of the peace or notaries public to compel witnesses to testify and to produce books and papers. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 349, § 13; R. S. Sec. 244-23.)

Section 532. (Witness fees and mileage.) Each witness who appears before the commission by its order shall receive for his attendance the fees and mileage provided for witnesses in civil cases in courts of record, which shall be audited and paid by the state as other expenses are audited and paid, upon the presentation of proper vouchers sworn to by such witnesses and approved by the chairman of the commission. No witness subpoenaed at the instance of parties other than the commission shall be entitled to compensation from the state for attendance or travel, unless the commission certify that his testimony was material to the matter investigated. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 349, § 13; R. S. Sec. 244-23a.)

Section 533. (Depositions may be taken.) In an investigation, the commission or any party may cause the depositions of witnesses residing within or without the state to be taken in the manner prescribed by law for depositions in civil actions in the court of common pleas. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 349, § 13; R. S. Sec. 244-23b.)

Section 534. (Transcribed copy certified by stenographer is evidence.) A transcribed copy of the evidence and proceedings on an investigation, or a specific part thereof, taken by a stenographer appointed by the commission, certified by such stenographer to be a true and correct transcript thereof, carefully compared by him with his original notes, shall be received in evidence as if such reporter was present and testified to the facts as certified. A copy of such transcript shall be furnished on demand, free of cost, to a party to an investigation, and to all other persons, on payment of a reasonable amount therefor. (R. S. Sec. 244-23c; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 13.)

Section 535. (Commission may change rate or service.) If, upon an investigation under the provisions of this chapter, the commission finds that any existing rate or rates, fares, charges or classification, any joint rate or rates, or any regulation or practice affecting the transportation of persons or property, or service in connection therewith, are unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or that any service is inadequate, it shall determine and by order fix a reasonable rate, fare, charge, classification, joint rate, regulation, practice or service to be imposed, observed and followed in the future, in place of that so found to be unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory, or inadequate, as the case may be. A certified copy of each such order shall be delivered to an officer or station agent of the railroad affected thereby, and such order shall of its own force take effect and become operative thirty days after service thereof. (R. S. Sec. 244-24; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 129, § 14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 14.)

Some of the functions of the commission are administrative or executive in their character and not judicial or legislative.

The commission is an administrative board. New Bremen v. Commission, 103 O. S. 23 (1921).

The prescribing of rates for the future is an act legislative, and not judicial, in kind. Commission, 98 O. S. 110 (1918).

Rate fixing is not a judicial function. Gas Co. v. Cleveland, 106 O. S. 489 (1922).

Under the Federal Transportation Act of 1920 the Interstate Commerce Commission may change rates fixed by a state statute or state commission, the effect of which is an undue, unreasonable or unjust discrimination against interstate or foreign commerce. Rheinstrom v. Railway, 4 O. L. R. 755.

Recovery of overcharges, see §§ 579, 580.

Section 536. (Railroads shall correct schedules.) All railroads to which the order applies shall make such changes in their schedules on file as are necessary to conform to such order, and no change shall thereafter be made by any railroad in any such rates, fares, or charges, or in any joint rate or rates, without the approval of the commission. (R. S. Sec. 244-24; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 129, § 14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 14.)

Section 537. (Copies of orders to be supplied railroad.) Certified copies of all other orders of the commission shall be delivered to an officer or station agent of each railroad affected thereby, and shall take effect within such time thereafter as the commission prescribes. (R. S. Sec. 244-24; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 129, § 14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 14.)

Section 538. (Commission may rescind or amend an order.) Upon application of any person or any railroad and after notice to the parties in interest and opportunity to be heard as provided in this chapter for other hearings, has been given, the commission may rescind, alter or amend an order fixing any rate or rates, fares, charges or classification, or any other order made by the commission. Certified copies of such orders shall be served and take effect as provided for original orders. (R. S. Sec. 244-24a; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 130, § 14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 14.)

Section 539. (Supplemental order.) Whenever a joint rate or charge is ordered substituted by the commission, and the railroads party thereto fail to agree within twenty days after the service of such order upon the apportionment thereof, the commission may after a hearing, issue a supplemental order declaring the apportionment of such joint rate or charge, which shall take effect of its own force as part of the original order. (May 2, 1910, 101 v. 166; R. S. Sec. 244-24b; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 130, § 14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 14.)

The commission is authorized to divide a joint rate only in proceedings in which it has ordered a joint rate and where the carriers have failed to agree on a division. 14 O. L. R. 130.

Section 540. (When commission may fix joint rate.) Whenever railroads refuse or neglect to establish a joint rate or rates for the transportation of persons or property, the commission may, upon notice to the railroads and after opportunity to be heard, fix and establish such joint rate or rates. If the railroads party thereto fail to agree upon the apportionment thereof within twenty days after service of such order, the commission may, upon a like hearing, issue a supplemental order declaring the apportionment of such joint rate or rates which shall take effect of its own force as part of the original order. (R. S. Sec. 244-24c; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 130, § 14; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, § 14.)

This section empowers the commission to require railroads to fix joint passenger rates.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 623.

Where a carrier holds itself out as a carrier beyond its own lines, or establishes a joint rate and through rate beyond its own lines, or is required by law to maintain such through route, it is obligated to furnish cars therefor if within its power to do so. Grant v. Ohio Co., 15 O. L. R. 401 (Pub. Ut. Com.).

An interurban railway is a "railroad" under this section. H. V. Ry. Co. v. Commission, 107 O. S. 43 (1923).

Section 541. (Rates, fares, etc., fixed by commission, prima facie lawful and in force for two years.) All rates, fares, charges, classifications and joint rates fixed by the commission shall be in force and be prima facie lawful for two years from the day they take effect, or until changed or modified by the commission, or by an order of a competent court in an action under the provisions of this chapter. (106 v. 188; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 351, § 15; R. S. Sec. 244-25.)

Section 542. (Regulations, practices, etc., prescribed by commission prima facie reasonable.) All regulations, practices and service prescribed by the commission shall be in force and be prima facie reasonable, unless suspended or found otherwise in an action brought for that purpose pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, or until changed or modified by the commission. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 351, § 15; R. S. Sec. 244-25.)

This section applies to a proceeding in error to the commission under § 544 et seq. Cincinnati v. Commission, 91 O. S. 331 (1915).

Section 543. (Rehearing; who may have. Time of hearing, when granted without suspension of order.) After any order or decision has been made by the commission, any party to the action or proceeding, or any stockholder or bondholder or other party pecuniarily interested in the public utility affected, may apply for a rehearing in respect to any matters determined in said action or proceeding and specified in the application for rehearing, and the commission may grant and hold such rehearing on said matters, if in its judgment sufficient reason therefor be made to appear. No cause of action arising out of any order or decision of the commission shall accrue in any court to any corporation or person unless such corporation or person shall have made, before the effective date of said order or decision, application to the commission for a rehearing. Such application shall set forth specifically the ground or grounds on which the applicant considers said decision or order to be unreasonable or unlawful. No corporation or person shall in any court urge or rely on any ground not so set forth in said application. Any application for a rehearing made ten days or more before the effective date of the order as to which a rehearing is sought, shall be either granted or denied before such effective date, or the order shall stand suspended until such application is granted or denied. Any application for a rehearing made within less than ten days before the effective date of the order as to which a rehearing is sought, and not granted within twenty days, may be taken by the party making the application to be denied, unless the effective date of the order is extended for the period of the pendency of the application.

If an application for a rehearing be granted without suspension of the order involved, the commission shall forthwith proceed to hear the matter with all dispatch and shall determine the same within twenty days after final submission and if such determination is not made within said time, it may be taken by any party to the rehearing that the order involved is affirmed. An application for rehearing shall not excuse any corporation or person from complying with and obeying any order or decision, or any requirement of any order or decision of the commission theretofore made, or operate in any manner to stay or postpone the enforcement thereof, except in such cases and upon such terms as the commission may by order direct. If, after such rehearing and a consideration of all the facts, including those arising since the making of the order or decision, the commission shall be of the opinion that the original order or decision or any part thereof is in any respect unjust or unwarranted, or should be changed, the commission may abrogate, change or modify the same. An order or decision made after such rehearing, abrogating, changing or modifying the original order or decision shall have the same force and effect as an original order or decision, but shall not affect any right or the enforcement of any right arising from or by virtue of the original order or decision unless so ordered by the commission. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 814, § 32.)

An application for rehearing must be filed within the time specified by statute. The commission has no authority to entertain an application filed after expiration of such time. Pollitz v. Commission, 98 O. S. 445 (1918).

Where, under a former statute, suit was brought to reverse an order of the commission, and the order was suspended by the court on the giving of a bond by the railway company, and after suspension the former rate was collected, the remedy of a shipper was held to be by suit, and not by complaint, to the commission under § 579. Taylor Williams Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 224 (1918).

When not required by statute, a public utility need offer no evidence, but may wait until a regulation is made and then insist upon its constitutional rights. Irrigation Co. v. Stanislaus County, 233 U. S. 454 (1914).

Section 544. (Order may be reversed.) A final order made by the commission shall be reversed, vacated or modified by the supreme court, on a petition in error, if upon consideration of the record such court is of the opinion that such order was unlawful or unreasonable. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 815, § 33; G. C. § 543 (original numbering); R. S. Sec. 244-26; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 351, § 16.)

As erroneously printed in 103 v. 815, the last three words of this section read "unlawful and unreasonable."

The court will not substitute its judgment for that of the commission. Before the court will interfere with an order of the commission, it must appear from a consideration of the record that the order was unlawful or unreasonable. Railway v. Commission, 92 O. S. 362 (1915).

The court will examine the entire record to determine whether a finding of facts made by the commission is so involved with and dependent upon questions of law as to be in effect a decision of the latter. Railway v. Commission, 92 O. S. 9 (1915).

This section and the sections following, providing for judicial review of the orders of the commission, preserve the validity of the act.

Railroad v. Railroad Commission, 10 N. P. n. s. 665; aff'd no rep. 86 O. S. 365; Railway v. Commission, 92 O. S. 9, 14 (1915).

Coal Co. v. Railroad Commission, 8 N. P. n. s. 585; 19 L. D. 783.

Under the railroad commission act, empowering common pleas courts to vacate "unlawful or unreasonable" orders of the commission, it was held that the court was authorized to vacate only orders which were so unreasonable as to amount to a taking of private property without due process of law or without just compensation.

Penna. Co. v. Commission, 14 N. P. n. s. 262 (C. P. 1913).

See Railroad v. Commission, 6 N. P. n. s. 273; 18 L. D. 519, affirming 4 O. L. R. 709; 52 Bull. 134.

The only mode of judicial relief in federal courts against unreasonable rates is by suit against the governmental authority which established them or is charged with the duty of enforcing them. It is not competent for each individual having dealings with the regulated company to raise a contest in the courts over the questions which ought to be settled in this general and conclusive way. In re Engelhard, 231 U. S. 646 (1914).

An order by the commission which directly burdens or regulates interstate commerce may be enjoined in federal court. Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101 (1912).

In reviewing orders of the Michigan railroad commission, the courts were held to exercise judicial and not legislative powers. Detroit, etc., Ry. v. Commission, 235 U. S. 402 (1914).

Sections 544 et seq. are constitutional. H. V. Ry. Co. v. Commission, 100 O. S. 321 (1919).

Section 545. (Proceedings in error.) The proceeding to obtain such reversal, vacation or modification shall be by petition in error, filed in the supreme court, by any party to the proceeding before the commission, against the public utilities commission of Ohio, setting forth the errors complained of. Thereupon unless the same is duly waived a summons shall issue and be served, as in other cases, upon the chairman of the commission, or, in the event of his absence, upon any member of the commission, or by leaving a copy at the office of the commission at the city of Columbus. The court may permit any interested party to intervene by cross-petition in error. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 815, § 34; G.

C. § 544 (original numbering); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, §§ 13, 16.)

Where an order of the commission is a final order, the remedy is by petition in error. Mandamus will not lie. State v. Commission, 101 O. S. 313 (1920).

Section 546. (Transcript.) Upon service or waiver of the summons in error the commission shall forthwith transmit to the clerk of the supreme court a transcript of the journal entries, original papers or transcripts thereof and a certified transcript of all evidence adduced upon the hearing before the commission in the proceeding complained of, which shall be filed in said court. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 815, § 35; G. C. § 544 (original numbering); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 350, §§ 13, 16.)

Section 547. (When proceeding commenced.) No proceeding to reverse, vacate or modify a final order of the commission shall be deemed commenced unless the petition therefor is filed within sixty days after the entry of the final order complained of upon the journal of the commission. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 815, § 36; G. C. § 543 (original numbering); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 351, § 16.)

Under the original railroad commission act, orders of the commission were reviewed by the common pleas court. Under that act it was held that the limitation of sixty days applied exclusively to the judgment of the court of common pleas, and did not apply to an error proceeding in the supreme court to review a judgment of the circuit court.

Commission v. Railway Co., 79 O. S. 419.

Section 548. (Stay of execution.) No proceeding to reverse, vacate or modify a final order rendered by the commission shall operate to stay execution thereof unless the supreme court or a judge thereof in vacation, on application and three days' notice to the commission, shall allow such stay, in which event the plaintiff in error shall be required to execute an undertaking, payable to the state of Ohio, in such a sum as the court may prescribe, with surety to the satisfaction of the clerk of the supreme court, conditioned for the prompt payment by the plaintiff in error of all damages arising from or caused by the delay in the enforcement of the order complained of, and for the repayment of all moneys paid by any person, firm or corporation for transportation, transmission, produce, commodity or service in excess of the charges fixed by the order complained of, in the event such order be sustained. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 815, § 37; G. C. § 551 (original numbering); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 351, § 16.)

See note to § 543.

Section 549. (Jurisdiction.) No court other than the supreme court shall have power to review, suspend or delay any order made by the commission, or enjoin, restrain or interfere with the commission or any member thereof in the performance of official duties. Nor shall the writ of mandamus be issued against the commission or any member thereof by any court other than the supreme court. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 816, § 38.)

Where it is shown that an order, sought in an application filed with the commission, will affect rights which are involved in an action pending in a court of general jurisdiction at the time of the filing of the application, it is the duty of the commission to dismiss the application. New Bremen v. Commission, 103 O. S. 23 (1921).

The common pleas court and court of appeals have no jurisdiction to restrain the erection of safety gates ordered by the commission, on the ground that they were not being erected at the proper location, where the commission has taken no action under § 614-67. Railway v. Railway, 5 Ohio App. 151; 25 C. C. n. s. 572 (1916).

Section 550. (Order as to payment of money in case of stay, etc.) The supreme court, in case it stays or suspends the order or decision of the commission in any matter affecting rates, joint rates, fares, tolls, rentals, charges or classifications, may also by order direct the public utility or railroad affected to pay into the hands of a trustee to be appointed by the court, from time to time, to be held until the final determination of the proceeding, under such conditions as the court may prescribe, all sums of money collected in excess of the sums payable if the order or decision of the commission had not been stayed or suspended. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 816, § 39.)

Recovery of overcharges, see §§ 579, 580.

Section 551. (Order to keep excess accounts pending review.) In case the supreme court stays or suspends any order or decision lowering any rate, joint rate, fare, toll, rental, charge or classification, the commission, upon the execution and approval of said suspending bond may require the public utility or railroad affected, under penalty of the immediate enforcement of the order or decision of the commission, pending review, to keep such accounts, verified by oath, as may, in the judgment of the commission, be sufficient to show the amounts being charged or received by such public utility or railroad, in excess of the charges allowed by the order or decision of the commission, together with the names and addresses of the corporations or persons to whom overcharges will be refundable in case the charges made by the public utility or railroad, pending review, be not sustained by the supreme court. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 816, § 40.)

Section 551-1. (Disposition of moneys charged in excess.)

Upon the final decision by the supreme court, all moneys which the public utility or railroad may have collected, pending the appeal, in excess of those authorized by such final decision, shall be promptly paid to the corporations or persons entitled thereto, in such manner and through such methods of distribution as may be prescribed by the court. If any such money shall not have been claimed by the corporations or persons entitled thereto within one year from the final decision of the supreme court, the trustees appointed by the court shall cause notice to such corporations or persons to be given by publication, once a week for two consecutive weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation, printed and published in the city of Columbus, Franklin county, Ohio, and such other newspaper or newspapers as may be designated by such trustee, said notice to state the names of the corporations or persons entitled to such moneys and the amount due each corporation or person. All moneys not claimed within three months after the publication of said notice shall be paid by the public utility or railroad, under the direction of such trustee, into the state treasury for the benefit of the general fund, and the court may make such order with respect to the compensation of the trustee as it may deem proper. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 816, § 41.)

Right of one or more individual consumers to intervene to determine the amount of refund. See In re Engelhard, 231 U. S. 646 (1914).

Where, under a former statute, suit was brought to reverse an order of the commission, and the order was suspended upon the giving of a bond by the railway company, and after suspension the former rate was collected, the remedy of a shipper was held to be by suit, and not by complaint, to the commission under § 579. Taylor Williams Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 224 (1918).

Section 551-2. (Act shall not affect pending actions.)

This act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings brought by or against the state of Ohio, the railroad commission of Ohio, the public service commission of Ohio, or by any other person or corporation, but the same may be prosecuted and defended with the same effect as though this act had not been passed or said commission abolished. Any investigation, hearing or examination undertaken, commenced, instituted or prosecuted prior to the taking effect of this act may be conducted and continued to a final determination in the same manner and with the same effect as if it had been undertaken, commenced, instituted or prosecuted in accordance with the provisions of this act. All proceedings hitherto taken by the commissions above named in any such investigation, hearing or examination and hereby ratified, approved, validated and confirmed, and all such proceedings shall have the same force and effect as if they had been undertaken, commenced, instituted and prosecuted under the provisions of this act and in the manner herein prescribed. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 817, § 42; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 551-3. (Abatement.) No cause of action arising under the laws of Ohio shall abate by reason of the passage of this act, whether a suit or action has been instituted thereon at the time of the taking effect of this act or not, but actions may be brought upon such causes in the same manner, under the same terms and conditions, and with the same effect as though said laws in force at the time this act takes effect had not been repealed. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 817, § 43.)

Section 551-4. (Orders, decisions, etc., remain in force.) All orders, decisions, rules or regulations heretofore made, issued or promulgated by the commission above named shall continue in force and have the same effect as though they had been lawfully made, issued or promulgated under the provisions of this act. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 817, § 44.)

Section 551-5. (Each section independent.) Each section of this act and every part thereof is hereby declared to be an independent section, and part of a section, and the holding of a section or part thereof to be void or ineffective for any cause shall not be deemed to affect any other section or part thereof. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 817, § 45.)

Section 551-6. (Order of disposition of cases under chapter.) All actions and proceedings in the supreme court, under this chapter, and all actions or proceedings to which the commission or the state of Ohio may be parties, and in which any question arises under this chapter, or under or concerning any order or decision of the commission, to reverse, vacate or modify an order of the commission, shall be taken up and disposed of by the court out of its order on the docket. (May 5, 1913, 103 v. 817, § 46; G. C. § 545 (original numbering); April 2, 1906, 98 v. 351, § 16.)

Section 552. (Rules of practice.) Except when otherwise provided by law, all processes in actions and proceedings in a court arising under the provisions of this chapter shall be served, and the practice and rules of evidence be the same, as in civil actions. A sheriff or other officer empowered to execute civil processes shall execute process issued under the provisions of this chapter and receive compensation therefor as prescribed by law for like services. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 352, § 17; R. S. Sec. 244-27.)

Section 553. (Witnesses compelled to testify.) A person shall not be excused from testifying or from producing books and papers in a proceeding based upon or growing out of violation of the provisions of this chapter, on the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no person having so testified shall be prosecuted or subjected to a penalty or forfeiture for, or on account of, any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may have testified or produced documentary evidence. A person so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution or punishment for perjury. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 352, § 17; R. S. Sec. 244-27a.)

Section 554. (Certified copy shall be evidence.) Upon application, the commission shall furnish certified copies under its seal or any order made by it, which certified copy shall be prima facie evidence in a court or proceeding of the facts stated therein. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 352, § 17; R. S. Sec. 244-27b.)

Section 555. (Commission may inquire into management of railroads.) The commission may inquire into the management of the business of any railroad, and shall keep itself informed as to the manner and method in which it is conducted. It may obtain from a railroad the information necessary to enable it to perform the duties and carry out the objects for which it was created. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 18; R. S. Sec. 244-28.)

Matters of purely business policy are for the determination of railroad companies themselves. Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 218 (1918).

Section 556. (Commission shall prepare blanks for railroad.) The commission shall cause blanks to be prepared suitable for the purposes designated in this chapter which shall conform as nearly as practicable to the forms prescribed by the interstate commerce commission, and, when necessary, furnish such blanks to each railroad. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 18; R. S. Sec. 244-28a.)

Section 557. (Railroads shall file blanks and verify answers.) A railroad receiving blanks from the commission shall cause them to be properly filled, answering fully and correctly each question therein. In case it is unable to answer any question, such railroad shall give a good and sufficient reason therefor. Such answers shall be verified under oath by the proper officer of the railroad and returned to the commission within the time fixed by it. The making or filing of a false affidavit shall be deemed perjury and punishable as such. (R. S. Sec. 244-28a; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 18.)

Section 558. (Commission may make examinations.) Upon demand, the commission, a commissioner, or any person or persons employed by it for that purpose, may inspect the books and papers of a railroad and examine under oath any officer, agent or employe thereof, in relation to any matter which is the subject of complaint and investigation. A person other than one of the commissioners, who makes such demand shall produce his authority to make such inspection, under the hand of a commissioner, or of the secretary, and under the seal of the commission. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 18; R. S. Sec. 244-28b.)

Section 559. (Commission may require production of books and papers.) By order or subpoena, served on a railroad as a summons is served in a civil action in the court of common pleas, the commission may require at such time and place within this state as it designates the production of books, papers or accounts relating to any matter which is the subject of complaint or investigation, kept by such railroad in any office or place outside of this state, or verified copies thereof, in order that an examination of such books, papers or accounts may be made by the commission or under its direction. Such subpoena may issue to a sheriff of any county of the state. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 18; R. S. Sec. 244-28c.)

Section 560. (Forfeiture for refusal to comply with subpoena.) A railroad failing or refusing to comply within a reasonable time with such order or subpoena from the commission shall forfeit and pay into the state treasury, for each day it so fails or refuses, not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered in a civil action in the name of the railroad commission of Ohio. (R. S. Sec. 244-28c; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 18.)

Section 561. (Commission may demand copies of transportation contracts.) When required by the commission and within a time fixed by it, each railroad shall deliver to the commission for its use copies of all contracts which relate to the transportation of persons or property or any service in connection therewith, made or entered into by such railroad with any other railroad, terminal, depot, car or equipment company, express or other transportation company, bridge company, or any shipper or shippers, producers or consumers or other person or persons doing business with it. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 353, § 19; R. S. Sec. 244-29.)

Section 562. (Report of free transportation.) On the first Monday in February in each year and oftener if required by the commission, each railroad shall file with the commission a verified list of all railroad tickets, passes and mileage books issued free or for other than actual bona fide money consideration at full established rates during the preceding year, together with the names of the recipients thereof, the amount received therefor and the reason for issuing them. This provision shall not apply to the sale of tickets at reduced rates open to the public, or tickets, passes, or mileage books issued to persons not residents of the state, or tickets, passes or mileage books issued free pursuant to authority conferred in this chapter. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 354, § 19; R. S. Sec. 244-29a.)

Section 563. (Investigation into violations of the interstate commerce law.) The commission shall have power and, on complaint, it is hereby made its duty to investigate any freight rates on interstate traffic on railroads in this state, and, if in its opinion they are excessive or discriminatory or are levied in violation of the interstate commerce law, or in conflict with the rulings, orders or regulations of the interstate commerce commission, it shall present the facts to the railroad with the request to make such changes as the commission may advise. If such changes are not made within a reasonable time, the commission shall apply by petition to the interstate commerce commission for relief. All freight tariffs issued by any such railroad relating to interstate traffic in this state shall be filed in the office of the commission when issued. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 354, § 21; R. S. Sec. 244-31.)

This section does not empower the commission to make rules relating to car service or demurrage in interstate commerce.

Railroad Commission v. Railroad Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 317; 21 C. D. 337; affirming 8 N. P. n. s. 233; 19 L. D. 691.

Where a demurrage rule has been passed upon and approved by the interstate commerce commission, the decision is binding upon state courts, and the validity of the rule is not open for consideration in a suit by a railroad company to recover demurrage charges thereunder. Swift v. Railway, 93 O. S. 143 (1915).

The commission has no authority to order an interstate railway, entering the state over leased tracks, to furnish intrastate service on said leased tracks, unless obligated so to do by its lease. 15 O. L. R. 317 (Com. 1917).

Section 564. (Unjust discriminations, forfeiture.) If a railroad, or an agent or officer thereof, by special rate, rebate, drawback, or by means of false billing; false classification, false weighing, or other device, shall charge, demand, collect or receive, either directly or indirectly, from any person, firm or corporation, a greater or less compensation for service rendered or to be rendered by it for the transportation of persons or property or any service in connection therewith, than that prescribed in the published tariffs then in force, or established as provided herein, or a greater or less compensation than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any other person, firm, or corporation for a like and contemporaneous service in the transportation of a like kind of traffic, under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, it shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination, which is hereby prohibited and declared unlawful, and upon conviction thereof shall forfeit and pay into the state treasury not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars for each offense. (R. S. Sec. 244-32; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 354, § 22.)

Decisions of commission as to discriminations, see note to § 535.

Charging less than minimum carload rate, where car does not contain minimum weight of freight, constitutes a rebate.

Hisylvania Coal v. T. & O. C. Ry., 7 O. L. R. 467, 468 (Railroad Commission).

Where a lower rate is given by a common carrier to a favored shipper, which is intended to give and necessarily gives an exclusive monopoly to the favored shipper, affecting the business and destroying the trade of other shippers, the latter have the right to require an equal rate for all under like circumstances. An injunction may be obtained to prevent discrimination.

Scofield v. Railway Co., 43 O. S. 571 (1885).

Where a railway company, as a common carrier, in consideration of the fact that a shipper furnished a greater quantity of freights than other shippers during a given term, agrees to make a rebate from the published tariff on such freights to the prejudice of the other shippers of like freights under the same circumstances, the contract so made is an unlawful discrimination in favor of the larger shipper, tending to create monopoly, destroy competition, injure, if not destroy, the business of smaller operators, contrary to public policy, and will be declared void at the instance of parties injured thereby.

And such a contract can not be upheld simply because the favored shipper may furnish for shipment during the year a larger freightage in the aggregate than any other shipper, or more than all others combined. A discrimination resting exclusively on such a basis will not be sustained. And such a contract will not be upheld simply because the business to be done under it is "largely profitable" to the company.

Scofield v. Railway Co., 43 O. S. 571 (1885).

A railroad company is not warranted in making a contract whereby it binds itself to carry for one shipper crude petroleum, or other article, at half the rate it agrees to charge all others for the same service, at the same time, and as part of the agreement, binding itself to charge all others double the amount as a fixed open rate, and to pay such favored shipper one-half of it when collected, in consideration of his agreeing to establish and maintain a system of pipe lines to its road. Money so paid by a shipper, in ignorance of the agreement, and received by the favored shipper, may be recovered back in an action for money had and received by the former against the latter.

Brundred v. Rice, 49 O. S. 640 (1892).

Action to enforce rebate. A railroad company whose line extends to a point of intersection with a canal of the state can not make a valid contract to repay to a shipper a portion of the freight paid by him, it being the regular rate posted by the company and received from other shippers, such contract being prohibited by § 8981. An action can not be maintained to enforce a promise of such repayment.

Baltimore, etc., R. R. Co. v. Diamond Coal Co., 61 O. S. 242 (1899).

Remedy by quo warranto. A corporation created by this state, and engaged in carrying goods for hire as a common carrier, has no franchise, privilege, or right to discriminate in its freight rates in favor of one shipper, even when it is necessary to do so to secure his custom, if the discriminating rate will tend to create a monopoly by excluding from their proper markets the products of the competitors of the favored shipper.

State ex rel v. Railway, 47 O. S. 130 (1890).

Rights of shipper when agent fraudulently overcharges.

Maple v. Railroad Co., 40 O. S. 313 (1883).

When consignee can not sue. Consignee can not sue when he has a delivered price on the goods.

Thompson v. Cleveland, etc., Ry. Co., 11 W. L. B. 211 (1884).

Section 565. (Penalty against agent or officer.) Whoever, being an agent or officer of a railroad, violates any provision of the next preceding section shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 355, § 22; R. S. Sec. 244-32.)

Section 566. (Illegal concessions.) No railroad shall demand, charge, collect or receive from a person, firm or corporation a less compensation for the transportation of property or for a service rendered or to be rendered by it in consideration of such person, firm or corporation furnishing a part of the facilities incident thereto; but nothing herein shall prohibit a railroad from procuring facilities or service incident to transportation and paying a reasonable compensation therefor. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 355, § 22; R. S. Sec. 244-32a.)

Payments to one shipper for switching cars. See Ohio Co. v. Railroad, 15 O. L. R. 142.

Section 567. (Unlawful preference.) No common carrier subject to the provisions of this chapter shall make or give undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to a particular person, company, firm, corporation or locality, or to any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person, company, firm, corporation or locality, or any particular description of traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever. (R. S. Sec. 244-33; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 355, § 23.)

See §§ 8981, 8988, 8990 and note to § 535.

The prohibition of this section against preferences applies only to circumstances or conditions substantially similar. Provision Co. v. Commission, 104 O. S. 253 (1922).

Discrimination in side tracks and switching facilities is unlawful. Railway Co. v. Commission, 98 O. S. 218 (1918); Coal Co. v. Railway, 20 C. C. n. s. 420 (1905).

Only undue or unreasonable discrimination is prohibited. The waiver by a carrier of one of the provisions of a uniform contract, thus giving the shipper a service not required by the contract, is not unlawful, unless the discrimination is undue or unreasonable and can fairly be considered as granting a privilege not enjoyed by others. Bennett v. Railway, 25 C. C. n. s. 335 (1916); reversing 17 N. P. n. s. 42. Motion to certify record overruled.

Charging a rate, between competitive points, lower than the rates of competitors, does not of itself constitute undue or unreasonable discrimination against other localities. Such discrimination must be ascertained from all the facts and circumstances of each case.

Commission v. Railway Co., 82 O. S. 25; affirming 5 N. P. n. s. 265; reversing 5 O. L. R. 69 (Railroad Commission).

Discrimination against locality in passenger rates.

See Ransbottom, etc., Co. v. S. E. Ohio, etc., Co., 6 O. L. R. 159 (Railroad Commission).

To establish commutation, party rate, etc., rate tickets between certain stations and to refuse to establish like rates between other stations is not, of itself, a discrimination against such other localities.

Shryock v. B. & O. R. R., 6 O. L. R. 19; 53 B. 88.

This section to be construed as part of the entire act.

Warner v. Railway, 11 N. P. n. s. 487 (C. P. 1911).

A lease of ground by a railroad company to a shipper, for a term of five years with an option to renew, at a rent much less than its rental value, the reduction being a concession on freight charges, is an illegal preference or advantage and invalid; but the railroad company was held not to be precluded from maintaining a suit for a cancellation of the lease at the end of the five year term, the renewal being executory. The company was held not entitled to an accounting for rents accrued prior to the commencement of the suit.

Railway Co. v. Hirsch, 204 Fed. 849 (C. C. A. 1913).

Section 568. (Giving rebate or concession.) Whoever, being a person, firm or corporation, knowingly accepts or receives a rebate, concession or discrimination in respect to transportation of property wholly within this state or for service in connection therewith, whereby such property by false billing, false classification, false weighing or other device, is transported at a less rate than that named in the published tariffs in force, or whereby any service or advantage is received other than that therein specified, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 355, § 24; R. S. Sec. 244-34.)

See notes to § 510.

Section 569. (Punitive damages.) If a railroad does, causes or permits to be done any matter, act or thing in this chapter prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or omits to do an act, matter or thing required to be done by this chapter, such railroad shall be liable to the person, firm, or corporation injured thereby in treble the amount of damages sustained in consequence of such violation. A recovery provided by this section shall not affect a recovery by the state of the penalty prescribed for such violation. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 355, § 25; R. S. Sec. 244-35.)

A railroad is not liable in treble damages for charging the rate which has been established and scheduled, although such rate may be unjust or discriminatory.

Warner v. Railway, 11 N. P. n. s. 487 (C. P. 1911).

Section 570. (Penalty for refusal to fill blanks.) Whoever, being an officer, agent or employe of a railroad company, wilfully fails or refuses to fill out and return a blank required by the commission, or by law, or wilfully fails or refuses to answer a question therein propounded, or knowingly gives false answer to such question or evades the answer to it, if the fact inquired of is within his knowledge, or, upon proper demand, wilfully fails or refuses to exhibit a book, paper or account of such railroad, which is in his possession or under his control, to a member of the railroad commission or other person authorized to examine it, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars; and a penalty of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars shall be recovered from the railroad for each such offense when such officer, agent or employe acted in obedience to the direction, instruction or request of such railroad or a general officer thereof. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 356, § 26; R. S. Sec. 244-36.)

Section 571. (Forfeiture for failure or neglect to comply with this chapter.) If a railroad fails or refuses to perform a duty enjoined upon it by the provisions of this chapter or does any act prohibited by such provisions, for which no penalty has been provided by law, or fails, neglects or refuses to obey a lawful requirement or order made by the commission or order of any court upon its application for each violation, failure, or refusal, such railroad shall forfeit and pay into the state treasury not less than one hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars. In construing and enforcing the provisions of this section, the act, omission or failure of any officer, agent or other person acting for or employed by a railroad, while acting within the scope of his employment, shall be the act, omission or failure of the railroad. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 356, § 27; R. S. Sec. 244-37.)

Section 572. (Power of commission to regulate in cases not designated.) If, after hearing and investigation as provided by this chapter, the commission finds any charge, regulation or practice affecting the transportation of passengers or property, or any service in connection therewith, not heretofore specifically designated, unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, it may regulate it as herein provided in such cases. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 356, § 28; R. S. Sec. 244-38.)

See § 535.

Section 573. (Duty of railroad to report certain accidents.) Whenever an accident attended with loss of human life occurs within this state upon the line of any railroad or on the depot grounds or yards thereof, such railroad shall give immediate notice thereof to the commission. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 356, § 29; R. S. Sec. 244-39.)

Section 574. (Duty of the commission to investigate such accident.) In case of such accident, the commission, if it deems the public interest requires it, shall cause an investigation to be made forthwith, which shall be held in the locality of the accident, unless, for greater convenience of those concerned, it shall order it held at some other place. Such investigation may be adjourned from place to place as it may be found necessary and convenient. The commission shall give reasonable notice to an officer or station agent of the company of the time and place of the investigation. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 356, § 29; R. S. Sec. 244-39.)

Section 575. (Costs of investigation.) The cost of such investigation shall be certified by the chairman of the commission, and audited and paid by the state as other expenses. A record or file of the proceedings and evidence shall be kept by the commission. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 357, § 29; R. S. Sec. 244-39.)

Section 576. (Commission shall inquire into violation of laws.) The commission shall inquire into any neglect or violation of the laws of this state by a railroad doing business in this state, by its officers, agents or employes or by any person operating a railroad. It shall enforce the provisions of this chapter, as well as all other laws relating to railroads and report violations thereof to the attorney general. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 357, § 30; R. S. Sec. 244-40.)

Section 577. (Counsel for commission.) Upon request of the commission, the attorney general or the prosecuting attorney of the proper county shall aid in an investigation, prosecution, hearing or trial had under the provisions of this chapter, and shall institute and prosecute necessary actions or proceedings for the enforcement of such provisions and of other laws of this state relating to railroads and for the punishment of all violations thereof. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 357, § 30; R. S. Sec. 244-40.)

Section 578. (Action for forfeiture by attorney general.) An action for the recovery of a forfeiture provided for in this chapter, when prosecuted by the attorney general, may be brought in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, or of any county having jurisdiction of the defendant. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 357, § 30; R. S. Sec. 244-40.)

Section 579. (Damage claims. Verification. Burden of proof.) All claims, charges or demands against a railroad for loss of, or damage to property occurring while in the custody of such railroad and unreasonable delay in transportation and delivery, or for overcharges upon a shipment, or for any other service in violation of this chapter, if not paid within sixty days from the date of the filing thereof with such railroad, may be submitted to the commission by a formal complaint to be made upon blank forms which it is hereby made the duty of the commission to provide upon demand of the claimant. Such complaint shall be verified as petitions in civil actions and may be accompanied by the sworn statements of any witnesses who have knowledge of any fact material to the inquiry. Upon the filing of such complaint the commission shall forthwith cite the railroad to answer the complaint, and the citation shall be accompanied with a brief statement of the claim. The answer of the railroad shall be filed within three weeks from the service of the citation and shall be verified as answers in civil cases and may be accompanied with the affidavits of any witnesses having knowledge of facts material to the inquiry. The burden of proof shall be upon the railroad to show that loss or damage to property was not due to its negligence. The railroad to which property is delivered for shipment shall prima facie be liable for loss or damage occurring to such property in transit notwithstanding it may be delivered to other railroads before reaching its destination. The claim referred to in this section for loss of or damage to property may be made to any carrier over whose lines the lost or damaged property has been consigned, and such claimant may at his option join all of such railroads as parties defendant in his complaint before said commission. The railroad shall furnish the claimant with a copy of its answer and affidavits, if any, and within two weeks from the filing of such answers the claimant may file his reply with affidavits in support thereof, verified as replies in civil cases. At the expiration of said period of two weeks the commission shall proceed summarily to examine the complaint, answer, the reply and affidavits and shall determine the existence and validity of the claim presented. If it find in favor of the claimant it shall certify its findings to the clerk of the court of common pleas of the county in which the claimant resides or where the railroad or any of its offices is maintained. (May 9, 1910, 101 v. 173; R. S. Sec. 244-41; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 130, § 31; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 357, § 31.)

This section is constitutional. Railway v. Mills Bros., 101 O. S. 173 (1920).

A charge higher than that made for a transportation of the same commodity for an equal or greater distance over the same connecting lines under former § 8988 is an "overcharge" within the meaning of § 579. Railway v. Mills Bros., 101 O. S. 163 (1920).

A finding by the commission under this section is not a judgment, but merely provides prima facie evidence in favor of the claim, which the railroad company may contest in the court to which the finding is certified. Taylor Williams Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 224 (1918).

Where, under a former statute, suit was brought to reverse an order of the commission, and the order was suspended by the court upon the giving of a bond by the railroad company, and after suspension the former rate was collected, the remedy of the shipper is by suit, and not by complaint, to the commission under § 579. Taylor Williams Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 224 (1918).

The remedy provided by this section and § 580 is cumulative and not exclusive. A shipper may sue at common law to recover damages for delay. Wright v. Erie Railroad, 14 Ohio App. 217 (1921).

Section 580. (Immediate trial. Costs.) Within thirty days from the receipt of such findings by said clerk, the railroad may by motion cause the same to be docketed as a civil action in said court in which case the original pleadings shall be used and the case shall be advanced for immediate trial. If no such motion is filed the clerk shall enter up the finding of the commission as a judgment and the same shall be in all respects treated as a judgment at law with all the incidents thereof and upon which execution may issue as in other cases. If said matter is docketed for trial the action shall proceed as in other civil actions for damages except that upon trial thereof a copy of the findings and order of the commission, duly certified by the secretary thereof, shall be competent testimony and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, and except that the plaintiff shall not be liable for any costs unless they accrue upon his appeal. (May 9, 1910, 101 v. 174; R. S. Sec. 244-41; April 21, 1908, 99 v. 130, § 31; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 357, § 31.)

The act of the clerk in entering up the finding of the commission as a judgment is ministerial and not judicial. This section does not confer judicial power upon the clerk, and is constitutional. Railway Co. v. Cluster Co., 97 O. S. 140 (1918).

Section 581. (Construction to be placed on provisions of this chapter.) A substantial compliance by the commission with the requirements of this chapter shall be sufficient to give effect to all its rules, orders, acts and regulations, and they shall not be declared inoperative, illegal or void for an omission of a technical nature in respect thereto. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as affecting, modifying or repealing any law, fixing the rate which a company operating a railroad may demand and receive for the transportation of passengers. (April 2, 1908, 98 v. 357, §§ 32, 38; R. S. Sec. 244-42.)

Section 582. (Forfeiture shall be cumulative.) All forfeitures accruing under this chapter shall be cumulative, and a suit for and recovery of one shall not bar the recovery of any other forfeiture. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 358, § 33; R. S. Sec. 244-43.)

Section 583. (Actions by mandamus, etc., in certain cases.) In addition to the other remedies provided in this chapter for the prevention and punishment of violations of the provisions thereof and orders of the commission, the commission may compel compliance with such provisions and its orders by proceedings in mandamus, injunction, or by other appropriate civil remedies. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 358, § 34; R. S. Sec. 244-44.)

Section 584. (Sections of this chapter independent.) Each section of this chapter and every part thereof is hereby declared to be an independent section, and part of a section, and the holding of a section or part thereof to be void or ineffective for any cause shall not be deemed to affect any other section or part thereof. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 358, § 37; R. S. Sec. 244-47.)

TRACKS AND CROSSINGS.

Section 585. (Duty of commission as to dangerous track, bridges, etc.) If, on complaint or otherwise, the commission has reasonable grounds to believe that any of the tracks, bridges, or other structures of a railroad are in a condition which renders them dangerous or unfit for the transportation of passengers, it shall forthwith inspect and examine them, and, if of opinion that they are unfit for the transportation of passengers with safety, it shall immediately give to the superintendent, or other executive officer of the company operating such road, notice of the condition thereof, and of the repairs or reconstruction necessary to place them in a safe condition. The commission may prescribe the time within which such repairs or reconstruction must be made, and the rate of speed for trains passing over such dangerous or defective track, bridge or other structure, until the repairs or reconstruction required are made. If of opinion that it is needful and proper, it may forbid the running of passenger trains over such defective track, bridge or other structure. (R. S. Sec. 247; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 6, S. & S. 77.)

Section 586. (Penalty for neglect to repair defective track, etc.) Whoever, being the superintendent or other executive officer of a company operating a railroad, receives from the railroad commission notice of a prescribed rate of speed for trains passing over a defective track, bridge or other structure, or forbidding the running of passenger trains over such defective track, bridge or other structure, neglects for two days after receiving such notice to direct the proper subordinate officers to run the passenger trains over such defective track, bridge or other structure, at a speed not greater than that so prescribed, or, if the running of a passenger train is so forbidden, to stop running passenger trains over it, or, an engineer, conductor or other employe who knowingly disobeys such order shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both. (R. S. Sec. 247; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 6; S. & S. 77.)

Section 587. (Forfeiture in case of noncompliance.) If the company operating such road neglects or without good cause fails to make the repairs or reconstruction prescribed by the commission within the time limited by it, for each day that such repairs or reconstruction is delayed beyond the time prescribed, such company shall forfeit and pay to the state the sum of one hundred dollars. (R. S. Sec. 247; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 6; S. & S. 77.)

Section 588. (Gates, bells, devices, or flagmen at crossing.) If, in its opinion, the public safety requires that a gate or gates, automatic alarm-bell, or other mechanical device be erected and maintained at any place where a public road or street is crossed at the same level by a railroad, and the crossing has been declared by the commission to be dangerous, or the public safety requires that a flagman be stationed and maintained at such dangerous crossing, the commission shall give the superintendent, manager or other officer in charge of such railroad, a written notice of what is required, and such company, person or corporation owning or operating such railroad shall erect such mechanical device or station such flagman within the time prescribed by the commission. (R. S. Sec. 247a; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 367; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 353.)

This section requires flagmen to be maintained only at crossings which have been found dangerous to the public.

Akron, etc., Co. v. Erie R. R. Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 199; 18 C. D. 36.

This section does not relieve the company from liability for failure to adopt such precautions as the circumstances may require, in the absence of an order by the commission. Evans v. Erie R. Co., 213 Fed. 129, 134 (C. C. A. 1914); Railway Co. v. Schneider, 45 O. S. 678; Weaver v. Railway Co., 76 O. S. 164, 176.

Ravenna v. Penna. Co., 45 O. S. 118.

Section 589. (Forfeiture for failure to comply with notice of commission.) Any person, company, or corporation neglecting or refusing to erect or maintain such gate or gates, automatic alarm-bell or other mechanical device, or to maintain such flagman, when required by the commission, shall forfeit and pay to the state, for every such neglect or refusal, one hundred dollars, and in addition ten dollars for each day such neglect or refusal continues. (R. S. Sec. 247a; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 353; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 367.)

Section 590. (Regulations as to gates, bells, and devices.)

All gates, bells or devices erected under the direction of the commission shall be built within the time, in the manner and of materials approved by the commission. Such gates shall be located in the highway or street on one or both sides of the railroad track or tracks, as the commission deems the public safety requires, and shall be so constructed that when closed, they shall obstruct or prevent passage across such railroad or railroads from the side on which a gate is located. Such bell must be so constructed that it will ring before the approach of every train of cars or locomotive within three hundred feet or more of such crossing, and continue to ring until such train or locomotive has reached the crossing. A person shall be in charge of such gate who shall close it at the approach of each train or locomotive, and keep it open at all other times. If an automatic bell or other mechanical device is required at such crossing, the railroad shall keep such bell or device at all times in good working order, and for every neglect of duty imposed by this section such railroad shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty-five dollars. (R. S. Sec. 247b; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 353; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 367.)

Section 591. (Cost of gates, bells, and devices in certain cases.) When two or more railroads cross a public highway or street at a dangerous crossing, the expenses incurred in the erection and maintenance of gates, bells or other device, and of necessary gate-keepers or flagmen shall be shared equally by such railroads; but nothing in this chapter shall prevent the use of automatic bells or other mechanical device by a railroad at a public crossing not declared dangerous by the commission. If a gate is erected or a flagman is stationed and maintained by a railroad, such gate or flagman shall not be abandoned nor an automatic bell or other mechanical device substituted therefor. (R. S. Sec. 247b; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 353; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 367.)

Section 592. (When engines or trains may pass crossings without stopping.) When two or more railroads, or a railroad and an electric railroad, erect a system of interlocking works or fixtures at the place where such railroads cross each other at a common grade, or when a railroad erects such works or fixtures at a swing or draw-bridge where it crosses a stream, and such works or fixtures render it safe for engines or trains to pass over such crossing or bridge without stopping, such railroad or railroads may run engines or trains over such works or fixtures without stopping, and any law to the contrary shall not apply in such case; but such system of interlocking works or fixtures shall have been approved by the commission, and a plan thereof shall have been prepared by such railroad or railroads and filed with the commission. (R. S. Sec. 247d; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315, § 1.)

See §§ 8826, 8827 and 8833.

Section 593. (Unsafe interlocking works or fixtures.) If in its opinion any such system of interlocking works or fixtures proves to be unsafe or impracticable, the commission may order that no engines or trains shall pass over any such crossing or bridge without stopping, and the laws regulating the running of engines and trains shall apply. Before such order is made or enforced the commission shall give such railroad or railroads opportunity to be heard as to the propriety of the order. (April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315, § 1; R. S. Sec. 247d.)

Section 594. (Safety devices at grade crossings.) When two steam railroads, a steam railroad and an inter-urban, electric or street railway, two inter-urban railroads, or a steam or electric railroad and a street or highway cross at grade, if, in its opinion, public safety requires protection, the railroad commission, upon its own motion or upon complaint, after notice to the railroads interested and full investigation, may make an order requiring the railroads so intersecting and crossing to install such device or devices as in the opinion of the commission will properly protect such crossing. (R. S. Sec. 247e; May 9, 1908, 99 v. 390, § 2; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315.)

See note to § 597.

Section 595. (Commission may make order as to a crossing.) The railroad commission may make any further or other orders regulating the speed and running of trains or of cars and the switching of cars over such crossing or street, and it shall apportion the expense of installation or maintenance of such device or devices between the railroad companies whose tracks are thus protected. (R. S. Sec. 247e; May 9, 1908, 99 v. 390, § 2; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315.)

Section 596. (Hearing as to necessity of safety device.) At the time and place named for hearing, unless continued for good cause, the railroad commission shall try the question of whether or not such crossing shall be protected by interlocking or other safety devices and shall give all companies or parties interested an opportunity to be fully heard. (R. S. Sec. 247e; May 9, 1908, 99 v. 390, § 2; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315.)

Section 597. (What order of commission shall contain.) After such hearing, the railroad commission shall enter upon a record book or docket kept for that purpose an order granting or denying the petition. In case the petition is granted, such order shall prescribe the inter-locking or other safety devices for such crossing and all other matters deemed proper for the efficient protection of such crossing, the proportion of the cost of construction and of the expense of maintaining and operating such device which each company or person concerned shall pay. The order shall also fix the time within which such appliance shall be put in and the time within which such order shall be complied with. (R. S. Sec. 247e; May 9, 1908, 99 v. 390, § 2; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315.)

When one railway company desires to cross the tracks of another railway company, it is competent for the companies to agree between themselves upon the terms of crossing, including the compensation for the right to cross, the cost of constructing and maintaining an interlocking system, and as to which company shall employ, control and pay the employe by whom the interlocking system is operated. Such a contract is not prohibited by Secs. 594 to 597.

Section 598. (Compulsory interlocking.) If a railroad or electric railroad with its track or tracks shall cross at grade the track or tracks of a railroad or electric railroad previously constructed, the former shall provide at such crossing interlocking works or other fixtures satisfactory to the commission, and pay the costs of such fixtures and the expenses of installing them. The maintenance and operation thereof shall be apportioned equally between the railroads by the commission; but this section shall not apply to crossings of side-tracks only. (R. S. Sec. 247f; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 334, § 3; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 315.)

Section 599. (Crossing without stopping.) Whenever interlocking works or other fixtures are constructed and maintained in compliance with law by railroads and electric railroads where such road or roads cross each other; engines and trains or cars of an electric railroad may be run over such crossing without stopping; any law to the contrary shall not apply to such case. (April 27, 1896, 92 v. 316, § 4; R. S. Sec. 247g.)

Section 600. (Forfeiture for noncompliance with order.) A railroad or electric railroad refusing or neglecting to comply with an order of the commission, concerning the protection of persons and property from danger at grade crossings of any such railroad over another, or over a swing or draw-bridge and at junction points, by providing interlocking works or other fixtures, shall forfeit and pay five hundred dollars per week for each week such railroad refuses or neglects to obey such orders. Such forfeiture shall be recovered in an action of debt in the name of the state, and, when collected, paid into the treasury of the county in which such suit was brought. (April 27, 1896, 92 v. 317, § 5; R. S. Sec. 247h.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

Section 601. (Examinations into alleged violations of law.) If upon complaint, or otherwise, the commission has reason to believe that a railroad or any officer, agent, or employe thereof has violated or is violating any law of the state, or if it has reason to believe that differences have arisen between citizens of the state and any railroad operating as a common carrier within the state, it shall examine into the matter. (R. S. Secs. 248, 248a; May 18, 1886, 83 v. 206; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 5; S. & S. 76.)

If a change occurs in the organization of the officers or board of directors of a railroad or company, the secretary shall notify the commission of such change and the residence and post office address of each of the officers and directors. (R. S. Sec. 260; April 24, 1873, 70 v. 155, § 1.)

Section 603. (Commission shall be furnished copies of certain leases, contracts, and agreements.) On demand of the commission, each railroad within this state shall furnish it copies of all leases, contracts and agreements with express, sleeping car, freight or rolling stock companies, or other companies doing business upon or in connection with such road. The commission or its duly authorized agent may examine any officer, agent or employe of a railroad or of such other companies, under oath, relative to the stock which he has in any of such companies, and his pecuniary interests direct or indirect therein. (R. S. Sec. 256; May 5, 1873, 70 v. 276, §§ 2, 3.)

Section 604. (Map and profile of new railroad.) Within a reasonable time after the construction of a railroad, or at any time when required by the commission, such railroad shall make and file with the commission a map and profile of such railroad, which shall be drawn on a scale, and certified and signed by the president or engineer of such railroad. (R. S. Sec. 250-1; April 19, 1894, 91 v. 154, § 1.)

Section 605. (Annual statement under oath to commission.) Every railroad company incorporated or doing business in this state, shall file with the commission a full and true statement of the affairs of such corporation relative to the state of Ohio, covering the yearly period fixed by the commission. Such statement shall be made under oath of the proper officers of such corporation and shall be similar in character and detail to the annual report required to be made by railroad companies to the interstate commerce commission. If any such report is defective or erroneous, the commission may order the same to be amended within a prescribed time. Such annual reports shall be preserved in the office of the commission. The commission may, at any time, require specific answers to questions upon which it may desire information. (107 v. 543; R. S. Secs. 244-30, 250-1; April 19, 1894, 91 v. 154, § 1; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 354, § 20.)

Reports of accidents, made by railroad companies under this section, are not admissible in evidence in personal injury actions by employees. C. C. C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Ullom 20 C. C. 512; 11 C. D. 321; affirmed no report 64 O. S. 582.

Section 606. (Assessment for maintaining commission, and how apportioned.) For the purpose of maintaining the department of public utilities commission of Ohio, including the payment of salaries, traveling expenses, printing, rent, light, heat, water, telephones and all other overhead expenses, and the exercise of police supervision of railroads and public utilities of the state by it, a sum not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars each year shall be apportioned among and assessed upon the railroads and public utilities within the state, by the commission, in proportion to the intrastate gross earnings or receipts of such railroads and public utilities for the year next preceding that in which the assessments are made.

On or before the first day of August next following, the commission shall certify to the auditor of state the amount of such assessment appropriated by it to each railroad and public utility and he shall certify such amount to the treasurer of state, who shall collect and pay the same into the state treasury to the credit of a special fund for the maintenance of the department of such public utilities commission. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 1151; May 31, 1911, 102 v. 550; April 19, 1894, 91 v. 155, § 2; R. S. Sec. 250-2.)

A utility is not subject to assessment unless it has been in existence during the year in which the assessment is made. Where one utility purchases another utility at the end of the year preceding that in which the assessment is made, the receipts of the selling utility do not enter into the basis of apportionment of the assessment for the succeeding year. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 486.

Section 607. (Penalty.) A railroad company or telegraph company violating a provision of the preceding three sections shall forfeit and pay to the state one thousand dollars, and twenty-five dollars for each day such company refuses, neglects or fails to comply with a requirement of such sections, which forfeiture shall not release such company from the assessment provided in the next preceding section. (April 15, 1894, 91 v. 155, § 3; R. S. Sec. 250-3.)

Section 608. (Commission may pass free over all railroads.) In the performance of its duties, the commission may pass free of charge on all railroads and upon all trains or any part thereof within this state. (R. S. Sec. 250; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 4; S. & S. 76.)

See § 499-1.

Section 609. (Penalty for refusing to answer questions in examination.) Whoever, being an officer, agent, or employe of a railroad company, refuses to answer a question propounded to him by a member of the commission in the course of an examination authorized by this chapter shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. The property of the railroad company of which he is an officer, agent or employe, shall be liable to be taken in execution to satisfy the fines and costs in such cases. (R. S. Sec. 259; May 5, 1873, 70 v. 276, § 3.)

All prosecutions for penalties involving imprisonment shall be by indictment. (R. S. Sec. 262; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 299; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 7; May 5, 1873, 70 v. 276, § 3.)

Section 611. (Action for forfeiture by prosecuting attorney.) If the commission, the officer requested by it, or a city solicitor, when the cause of action arises in a municipality, fails or neglects to prosecute a civil action for forfeiture against a railroad, telegraph company, officer, agent or employe thereof as provided by law, the prosecuting attorney of the county in which a cause of action for forfeiture arises, upon the request of any taxpayer thereof, and on being furnished with evidence which in his judgment will sustain it, shall bring such action. If such action fails the costs thereof shall be adjudged against the county. (R. S. Sec. 263; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 299; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 8.)

Section 612. (Action for forfeiture by city solicitor.)

If a cause of action for forfeiture arises within a municipality, and the commission, the officer requested by it or the prosecuting attorney as above provided, fails or neglects to prosecute such action, the city solicitor of such municipality, when required by resolution of the council, shall institute such action and prosecute it to final judgment. If such action fails, the costs therefore shall be adjudged against the municipality. The time for notice of appeal and giving a bond shall not apply to cases within the meaning of this and the preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 263; April 25, 1893, 90 v. 299; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 8.)

Section 613. (Moneys arising from prosecutions and actions for forfeiture.) All moneys arising from prosecutions or from actions for forfeiture in the name of the state against a railroad or telegraph company, or against an officer or employee thereof, for violations of the provisions of law relating to railroads or telegraph companies shall be paid into the state treasury. (R. S. Sec. 265; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 111, § 7.)

The commission, either through its members or inspectors or employes, duly authorized by it, may enter in or upon, for the purpose of inspection, any property, equipment, building, plant, factory, office, apparatus, machinery, device and lines of any public utility. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 553, § 10.)

Such system shall when practicable conform to the system prescribed by the tax commission of Ohio. It may also, in its discretion, prescribe the form of records to be kept by public utilities, and the commission may require that no other records be kept except as may be required by the laws of the United States or as may hereafter be required by the laws of this state. The commission shall, at all times, have access to all accounts kept by public utilities, and may designate any of its officers or employes to inspect and examine any and all such accounts.

Every unjust or unreasonable charge made or demanded for any service, or in connection therewith, or in excess of that allowed by law or by order of the commission, is prohibited and declared to be unlawful. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 554, § 15.)

A physician who maintains an office in his residence, which is owned by his wife, cannot compel installation of a phone in the living apartments, unless he agrees to pay office rates, in a proceeding brought in his own name. In a proceeding brought by his wife, the rates will depend on whether the phone is used for professional business. Plummer v. Telephone Co., 13 O. L. R. 79. See also notes to § 9191.

Section 614-14. (Rebates, special rates, free service, etc., prohibited.) No public utility shall directly or indirectly, or by any special rate, rebate, drawback or other device or method, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person, firm, or corporation, a greater or less compensation for any services rendered, or to be rendered, except as provided in this act, than it charges, demands, collects, or receives from any other person, firm, or corporation for doing a like and contemporaneous service under the same, or substantially the same circumstances and conditions. The words "any person, firm or corporation" do not include a county. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 788.

Section 614-15. (Undue advantage.) No public utility shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person, firm, corporation, or locality, or subject the same to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 554, § 17.)

A consumer can not enforce a private contract for a rate less than the scheduled rate. Glass Co. v. Power Co., 11 Ohio App. 80;

29 O. C. A. 265 (1918); motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 364; 11 Dept. Rep. 121. See also note to § 614-19.

Section 614-16. (Printed schedules of rates must be filed.) Every public utility shall print and file with the commission, within ninety days after this act takes effect, schedules, showing all rates, joint rates, rentals, tolls, classifications and charges for service of each and every kind by it rendered or furnished, which were in effect at the time this act takes effect and the length of time the same has been in force, and all rules and regulations in any manner affecting the same. Such schedules shall be plainly printed and kept open to public inspection. The commission shall have power to prescribe the form of every such schedule, and may, from time to time, prescribe, by order, changes in the form thereof. The commission may establish rules and regulations for keeping such schedule open to public inspection, and may, from time to time, modify the same. A copy of such schedules or so much thereof as the commission shall deem necessary for the use and information of the public, shall be printed in plain type and kept on file or posted in such places and in such manner as the commission may order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 554, § 18.)

See notes to §§ 505 and 506.

This section does not apply to rates fixed by municipal ordinance under §§ 3644, 3982 and 3983, nor to rates fixed by the commission on appeal from such ordinance. Cleveland v. Commission, 100 O. S. 121 (1919); Universal Co. v. Ohio Northern Co., 13 Ohio App. 271 (1919); motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 475.

Where a municipal ordinance fixed a rate for gas, but a referendum petition was filed which suspended the operation of the ordinance, the commission is not authorized to summarily fix a rate for the period of the suspension. Such circumstances do not constitute an emergency contemplated by § 614-32. The rate should be fixed under § 614-16 et seq. Cincinnati v. Commission, 96 O. S. 270 (1917).

Schedules filed with the interstate commerce commission, so long as in force, have the effect of statutes and are binding upon shipper and carrier alike. Carlin Co. v. Hines, 107 O. S. 328.

A rate or rule which is in violation of a statute is not validated by insertion in schedules which are filed and published. Railway v. Mills Bros., 101 O. S. 173 (1920); Railroad v. Steinberg, 94 O. S. 189 (1916).

Where a telegraph company had filed schedules for "baseball ticker service" in one city only, the commission refused to consider a complaint as to such service in another city, but ordered the company to cease and desist from furnishing such service in other cities until schedules were filed. Lang v. Tel. Co., 16 O. L. R. 27.

A contract by a natural gas company, agreeing to give an inter-urban railway and light company certain quantities of gas in preference to other consumers, is not binding on the commission, where the schedules on file prior to the making of the contract did not provide therefor. Oberlin v. Gas Co., 16 O. L. R. 201.

Section 614-17. (Reasonable arrangements allowed. Approval.) Nothing in this act shall be taken to prohibit a public utility from entering into any reasonable arrangement with its customers, consumers or employes for the division or distribution of its surplus profits or providing for a sliding scale of charges or providing for a minimum charge for service to be rendered, unless such minimum charge is made or prohibited by the terms of the franchise, grant or ordinance under which such public utility is operated, a classification of service based upon the quantity used, the time when used, the purpose for which used, the duration of use, and any other reasonable consideration, or providing any other financial device that may be practicable or advantageous to the parties interested. No such arrangement, sliding scale, minimum charge, classification or device shall be lawful unless the same shall be filed with and approved by the commission. Every such public utility is required to conform its schedules of rates, tolls and charges to such arrangement, sliding scale, classification or other device. Every such arrangement, sliding scale, minimum charge, classification or device shall be under the supervision and regulation of the commission, and subject to change, alteration or modification by the commission. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 554, § 19.)

Where a price-fixing ordinance providing for a "minimum charge" was appealed to the commission, the commission was held not authorized to add a "readiness to serve" charge. Gas Co. v. Commission, 102 O. S. 678 (1920).

Where a gas company accepted an ordinance fixing the price of gas, and prohibiting a charge for meter reading, a "readiness to serve" charge is unauthorized, and cannot be validated by an order of the commission. Lima v. Commission, 100 O. S. 416 (1919).

Schedules may contain a classification of service, based on quantity used, time, purpose and duration of use. Certain classification of consumers of electric current held valid. Cleveland & E. Traction Co. v. Commission, 106 O. S. 210 (1922).

Section 614-18. (Schedule rate collected. Refunder or remitter not allowed.) No public utility shall charge, demand, exact, receive or collect a different rate, rental, toll or charge for any service rendered, or to be rendered, than that applicable to such service as specified in its schedule filed with the commission and in effect at the time. Nor shall any public utility refund or remit directly or indirectly, any rate, rental, toll or charge so specified, or any part thereof, nor extend to any person, firm or corporation, any rule, regulation, privilege or facility except such as are specified in such schedule and regularly and uniformly extended to all persons, firms and corporations under like circumstances for the like, or substantially similar, service. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 555, § 20.)

Section 614-19. (Prior contract.) The furnishing by any public utility of any product or service, at the rates, and upon the terms and conditions provided for in any existing contract, executed prior to the passage of this act, shall not be construed as constituting a discrimination, or undue or unreasonable preference, or advantage within the meaning specified.

Provided, however, that when any such contract or contracts are or become terminable by notice, the commission shall have power, in its discretion, to direct by order, that such contract or contracts shall be terminated as and when directed by such order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 555, § 21.)

Contracts made subsequent to June 14, 1911, are subject to the public utilities act. Patterson Foundry Co. v. Ohio River Co., 99 O. S. 429 (1919).

A prior contract does not oust the jurisdiction of the commission as to service furnished by the utility. Telephone Co. v. Commission, 92 O. S. 90 (1915).

A contract made prior to the enactment of the public utilities law is not a discrimination or preference, but contracts made thereafter are subject to the supervision of the commission and if in conflict with orders of the commission, are not binding or enforceable. Traction Co. v. Commission, 106 O. S. 210 (1922).

Rates fixed in a valid franchise ordinance in effect when the public utilities act was enacted are not subject to the control of the commission. Columbus v. Telephone Co., 13 Ohio App. 232, 28 O. C. A. 102 (1917); Interurban Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 287 (1918). See Lakewood v. Cleveland Co., 21 N. P. n. s. 289 (1918).

A contract by an interurban railway with a land owner, fixing a rate of fare in consideration of a right of way, was held not abrogated by the subsequent enactment of the railroad commission act. Taylor v. Niles, 2 Ohio App. 293, 21 C. C. n. s. 391, 25 C. D. 445 (1913).

A consumer, having a contract with an electric power company at certain rates, was held not entitled to an injunction restraining the company from refusing further service because of the consumer's refusal to pay higher rates approved by the commission. Glass Co. v. Power Co., 11 Ohio App. 80; 29 O. C. A. 265 (1918); motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 364.

Section 614-20. (Thirty days' written notice required before change of rate, toll, etc., unless ordered by commission. Powers of commission to enter upon hearing without pleadings filed; notice of suspension of schedule pending hearing extension of time suspending schedule. Rates, tolls, classifications, charges or rentals shall be in force two years. Burden of proof on public utility to show increase rate reasonable; preference over other questions.) Unless otherwise ordered by the commission, no change shall be made in any rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge or rental in force at the time this act takes effect, or as shown upon the schedules which shall have been filed by a public utility in compliance with the requirements of this act, or by order of the commission, except after thirty days' notice, in writing, to the commission, which notice shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force, and the time when the change, rate, charge, toll, classification, or rental shall go into effect; and all proposed changes shall be plainly indicated upon existing schedules, or by filing new schedules thirty days prior to the time when they are to take effect, but the commission may prescribe a less time when they may take effect, provided, however, that if the proposed change shall effect an increase in the rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge or rental, notice, in form approved by the commission, published once each week for three consecutive weeks before the effective date thereof, unless the commission shall authorize a less time, shall be given by publication in a newspaper published at the county seat of each county in which such change applies, and of general circulation therein, or in one newspaper published in, and of general circulation throughout the territory in which such utility operates. Such published notice shall set forth the fact that such application has been made, the effective date of the proposed new schedule, the name and location of the agent of the utility in such county or territory where a copy of such proposed new schedule may be inspected by any interested party; and provided, further, however, that such utility shall at the time of the filing of the schedule with the commission, place on file with such agent of such utility a copy of the proposed new schedule and keep the same on file for the inspection of any interested party pending the hearing before such commission.

Whenever there shall be filed with the commission any schedule effecting an increase in any rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge or rental, or stating any new regulation or practice affecting any existing rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge or rental in force at the time this act takes effect, the commission shall have, and it is hereby given authority, either upon complaint or upon its own initiative without complaint, at once, and if it so orders without answer or other form of pleading by the interested public utility, but upon reasonable notice, to enter upon a hearing concerning the propriety of such rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge, rental, regulation or practice; and pending such hearing and the decision thereon, the commission upon filing with such schedule and delivering to the public utility affected thereby, a statement in writing of its reasons for such suspension, shall suspend the operation of such schedule and postpone the use and operation of such rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge, rental, regulation or practice, but not for a longer period than one hundred and twenty days from the time when such schedule was filed with the commission; and after a full hearing, whether completed before or after the rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge, rental, regulation or practice goes into effect, the commission may make such order in reference to such rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge, rental, regulation or practice as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge, rental, regulation or practice had become effective; provided, that if any such hearing can not be concluded within the period of suspension, as above stated, such rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge, rental, regulation or practice shall go into effect at the end of such period of suspension upon the public utility filing with the commission a bond, undertaking or other security, to the satisfaction of the commission, securing and guaranteeing the repayment, with interest at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date of payment by the consumer to the date of repayment by the utility, to all the consumers of such portion of such increased rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge or rental, collected by such utility as the commission, upon final hearing, may determine to have been unreasonable or excessive, which repayments shall be made at such times and in such amounts as the commission shall order, and shall be promptly paid by said utility to the corporations or persons entitled thereto, and in such manner as the commission may prescribe, and if any such money ordered by the commission to be repaid shall not have been claimed by the corporations or persons entitled thereto, within one year from the time the same shall become due and payable in accordance with the order of the commission, all such moneys shall be paid by the utility to the treasurer of the county, or other political subdivision, in which such new schedule is effective for the benefit of its general fund, in such amounts and in such manner as the commission may order; and thereafter such public utility shall not be liable therefor. Such bond, undertaking or security shall be in such amount as the commission may from time to time determine; provided, however, that the amount fixed at any time shall not, in addition to the amount of such increase or other charge made by the utility already accrued, exceed the estimated amount of such increase or other charge made by the utility extending over a period of one year, based upon the business of the utility for the previous year, or be less than one-half of such estimated amount.

All rates, joint rates, tolls, classifications, charges or rentals of a public utility heretofore or hereafter fixed and determined by any order of the commission under the provisions of this chapter shall be in force and be prima facie lawful for two years from their effective date or until changed or modified as provided by law; provided, however, that after any such rate, joint rate, toll, classification, charge or rental shall have been in force for a period of two years, the same may be changed by the public utility affected in the manner provided in this section; and that nothing herein contained shall be construed as in any way affecting the right of any person or public utility to make application, as provided in sections 614-21 and 614-23 of the General Code or otherwise as provided by law, for an order rescinding, altering or amending any order of the commission within said two-year period or thereafter.

At any hearing involving a rate increased or sought to be increased after this section shall have become effective, the burden of proof to show that the increased rate or the proposed increased rate is just and reasonable shall be upon the public utility and the commission shall give to the hearing and decision of such question, preference over other questions pending before it, and decide the same as speedily as possible. (110 v. 364; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1194; 102 v. 555, § 22.)

A consumer, having a contract with an electric power company at certain rates, was held not entitled to an injunction restraining the company from refusing further service because of the consumer's refusal to pay higher rates approved by the commission. Glass Co. v. Power Co., 11 Ohio App. 80; 29 O. C. A. 265 (1918). Motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 364.

Section 614-21. (Complaint. Notice of complaint and time and place of hearing. Rights of parties.) Upon complaint in writing, against any public utility, by any person, firm or corporation, or upon the initiative or complaint of the commission that any rate, fare, charge, toll, rental, schedule, classification or service, or any joint rate, fare, charge, toll, rental, schedule, classification or service rendered, charged, demanded, exacted or proposed to be rendered, charged, demanded, or exacted, is in any respect unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory, or unjustly preferential or in violation of law, or that any regulation, measurement or practice affecting or relating to any service furnished by said public utility, or in connection therewith, is, or will be, in any respect unreasonable, unjust, insufficient or unjustly discriminatory or unjustly preferential, or that any service is, or will be, inadequate or can not be obtained, the commission shall notify the public utility complained of that complaint has been made, and of the time and place when the same will be considered and determined, which notice shall be served upon the public utility not less than fifteen days before such hearing, and shall plainly state the matters or things complained of. The commission shall, if it appear that there are reasonable grounds for the complaint, at such time and place proceed to consider such complaint and may adjourn the hearing thereof from time to time. The parties thereto shall be entitled to be heard, represented by counsel and to have process to enforce the attendance of witnesses. A public utility may make complaint as to any matter affecting its own product or service with like effect as though made by a person, firm or corporation, in which event the commission shall publish notice thereof for ten days prior to such hearing in a newspaper of general circulation at the situs of such public utility. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 556, § 23.)

This section does not apply to rates fixed by municipal ordinance, under §§ 3644, 3982 and 3983, nor to rates fixed by the commission on appeal from such ordinance. Cleveland v. Commission, 100 O. S. 121 (1919).

The laws giving the commission power over rates do not deprive the courts of equitable jurisdiction. Where a municipality brought suit to enforce an unaccepted ordinance fixing the rate of gas, an answer of the gas company alleging facts showing the rate to be confiscatory, states a case of which a court of equity has jurisdiction. State v. Ct. of App., 104 O. S. 96 (1922).

Where it is shown that an order, sought in an application filed with the commission, will affect rights which are involved in an action pending in a court of general jurisdiction at the time of the filing of the application, it is the duty of the commission to dismiss the application. New Bremen v. Commission, 103 O. S. 23 (1921).

A municipal corporation can not make complaint under this section. 15 O. L. R. 330, 363.

Section 614-22. (Separate hearings.) When complaint is made of more than one rate, charge, or service, the commission may order separate hearings thereon and may consider and determine the matters complained of separately and at such times and places as it may prescribe. No complaint shall necessarily be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 556, § 24.)

Section 614-23. (May fix reasonable rate.) Whenever the commission shall be of the opinion, after hearing, that any rate, fare, charge, toll, rental, schedule, classification or service, or any joint rate, fare, charge, toll, rental, schedule, classification, or service rendered, charged, demanded, exacted or proposed to be rendered, charged, demanded, or exacted, is, or will be, unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or unjustly preferential or in violation of law, or the service inadequate, or that the maximum rates, charges, tolls or rentals chargeable by any such public utility are insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service rendered, and are unjust and unreasonable, the commission shall, with due regard among other things, to the value of all of the property of the public utility actually used and useful for the convenience of the public, excluding therefrom the value of any franchise or right to own, operate or enjoy the same in excess of the amount, (exclusive of any tax or annual charge) actually paid to any political subdivision of the state or county, as the consideration for the grant of such franchise or right; and exclusive of any value added thereto by reason of a monopoly or merger and to the necessity of making reservation out of the income for surplus, depreciation and contingencies, and all such other matters as may be proper, according to the facts in each case, fix and determine the just and reasonable rate, fare, charge, toll, rental or service to be thereafter rendered, charged, demanded, exacted or collected for the performance or rendition of the service, and order the same substituted therefor; and thereafter, no change in the rate, fare, toll, charge, rental, schedule, classification or service, shall be made, rendered, charged, demanded, exacted or changed by such public utility without the order of the commission and any other rate, fare, toll, charge, rental, classification or service shall be deemed and held to be unjust and unreasonable, prohibited and unlawful. Upon application of any person or any public utility, and after notice to the parties in interest and opportunity to be heard as provided in this act for other hearings, has been given, the commission may rescind, alter or amend an order fixing any rate or rates, fare, toll, charge, rental, classification or service, or any other order made by the commission. Certified copies of such orders shall be served and take effect as provided for original orders. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 556, § 25.)

This act provides an adequate remedy for discrimination and unjust or unreasonable rates and classifications, and courts have no original jurisdiction with reference thereto.

Publishing Co. v. Express Co. 13 N. P. n. s. 403 (1911).

The commission, and not the municipality in which a telephone company furnishes service, has power to regulate telephone rates. Telephone Co. v. Cleveland, 98 O. S. 358 (1918).

The regulation of rates to be charged by a public utility is an exercise of the police power. Telephone Co. v. Cleveland, 98 O. S. 358 (1918).

The commission has no power to change rates fixed in a valid franchise contract between a public utility and a municipality. Interurban Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 287 (1918); Columbus v. Telephone Co., 13 Ohio App. 232; 28 O. C. A. 102 (1917).

Where, during the pendency of a complaint before the commission, an agreement as to rates is effected, and an order is made by the commission establishing the rates as agreed upon, a binding contract is concluded, and the commission has no power to set aside the order and relieve one party from its obligations thereunder. State v. Marshall, 98 O. S. 467 (1918).

This section requires the commission, in fixing rates, to consider the value of the property of the utility, necessary or useful for the convenience of the public, and to exclude the value of franchise and monopoly rights, and reserves for surplus, depreciation and contingencies, and to consider other proper matters according to the facts in each case. Lima Tel. Co. v. Commission, 98 O. S. 110 (1918).

Valuation may be waived by the complainant and the utility, with the consent of the commission. Lima v. Commission, 103 O. S. 501 (1921).

Measured telephone service, authorized by the commission, sustained. Cleveland v. Commission, 102 O. S. 341 (1921).

The commission has no power to grant franchises or make contracts between a public utility and other parties. Oak Harbor v. Commission, 98 O. S. 275 (1919); Stuver v. Gas Co., 13 Ohio App. 276, 31 O. C. A. 554 (1920).

Federal income tax is a proper operating expense, to be deducted from gross revenue, in determining whether the rates yield reasonable compensation for the service rendered. Ohio Bell Tel. Co. v. Commission, 106 O. S. 266 (1922).

Efficient operation is a factor to be considered. Lima v. Commission, 106 O. S. 559 (1922).

Fair return on investment as a factor in fixing rates. See Cincinnati v. Commission, 105 O. S. 181, 208.

Whether a rule or regulation of a telephone company is reasonable is a question which must be raised before the public utilities commission, before it becomes a judicial question. Telephone Co. v. Hussey, 13 O. L. R. 77, 79 (Municipal Court 1915).

Section 614-27. (Power to change rules and prescribe equipment.) Whenever the commission shall be of the opinion, after hearing had upon complaint, as in this act provided, or upon its own initiative or complaint, served as in this act provided, that the rules, regulations, measurements or practices of any public utility with respect to its public service are unjust or unreasonable, or that the equipment or service thereof is inadequate, inefficient, improper or insufficient, or can not be obtained, it shall determine the regulations, practices and service thereafter to be installed, observed, used and rendered, and fix and prescribe the same by order to be served upon the public utility. It shall thereafter be the duty of such public utility and all of its officers, agents and official employes to obey the same and do everything necessary or proper to carry the same into effect and operation; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to give to the commission power to make any order requiring the performance of any act or the doing of anything which is unjust or unreasonable or in violation of any law of the state or the United States. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 557, § 29.)

Section 614-28. (May order repairs, improvements, etc.)

Whenever the commission shall be of the opinion, after hearing had, as in this act provided, or upon its own initiative or complaint, as in this act provided, that repairs or improvements to the plant or equipment of any public utility, should reasonably be made, or that any additions thereto should reasonably be made, in order to promote the convenience or welfare of the public, or of employes, or in order to secure adequate service or facilities, the commission may make and serve an appropriate order with respect thereto, directing that such repairs, improvements, changes or additions be made within a reasonable time, and in a manner to be specified therein. Every such public utility, its officers agents and official employes shall obey such order and make such repairs, improvements, changes and additions required of such public utility by such order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 558, § 30.)

The word "additions" in this section is not synonymous with the word "extensions" in G. C. § 614-51. The commission is not authorized to order an extension of the lines of a gas company. The power to order extensions is in the council. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 653.

That a telephone company is contemplating a merger with another company was said to be no defense against an order of the commission requiring additions, although compliance with the order would involve duplication and expense. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 687.

Section 614-29. (Use of equipment over street, etc., by other public utility.) Every public utility having any equipment on, over or under any street, or highway, shall, subject to the provisions of section 9103 of the General Code, for a reasonable compensation, permit the use of the same by any other public utility whenever the commission shall determine as provided in section 32 hereof [G. C. § 614-30] that public convenience, welfare and necessity require such use, or joint use, and such use or joint use will not result in irreparable injury to the owner or other users of such equipment, nor in any substantial detriment to the service to be rendered by such owners or other users. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 558, § 31.)

A municipality owning a utility can not compel the joint use of equipment under this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1783, citing G. C. § 614-2a. See 12 O. L. R. 554 (Atty. Gen. 1915).

Section 614-30. (Application on failure to agree.) In case of failure to agree upon such use or joint use or the conditions or compensation for such use or joint use, any public utility may apply to the commission, and if after investigation the commission shall ascertain that the public convenience, welfare and necessity require such use or joint use and that it would not result in irreparable injury to the owner or other users of such property or equipment, nor in any substantial detriment to the service to be rendered by such owner or other users of such property or equipment, said commission shall by order direct that such use or joint use be permitted and prescribe reasonable conditions and compensation for such joint use. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 558, § 32.)

Section 614-31. (Conditions and compensation.) Such use or joint use so ordered shall be permitted and such conditions and compensation so prescribed shall be the lawful conditions and compensation to be observed, followed and paid, subject to recourse to the courts by any interested party as provided in this act. Any such order made by the commission may be revoked or from time to time revised by the commission. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 558, § 33.)

Section 614-32. (Power to amend, alter or suspend schedule of rates.) The commission shall have power, when deemed by it necessary to prevent injury to the business or interests of the public or any public utility of this state in case of any emergency to be judged by the commission, to temporarily alter, amend, or with the consent of the public utility concerned suspend any existing rates, schedules or order relating to or affecting any public utility or part of any public utility in this state. Such rates so made by the commission shall apply to one or more of the public utilities in this state or to any portion thereof as may be directed by the commission, and shall take effect at such time and remain in force for such length of time as may be prescribed by the commission. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 559, § 34.)

nance, the commission is not authorized to summarily fix a rate for the period of the suspension. Such circumstances do not constitute an emergency contemplated by § 614-32. The rate should be fixed under § 614-16 et seq. Cincinnati v. Commission, 96 O. S. 270 (1917); affirming 14 O. L. R. 477.

Section 614-33. (Construction accounts.) The commission shall keep informed of all new construction, extensions and additions to the property of such public utilities and may prescribe the necessary forms, regulations and instructions to the officers and employes of such public utilities for the keeping of construction accounts, which shall clearly distinguish all operating expenses and new construction. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 559, § 35.)

Section 614-34. (Standard units.) The commission shall ascertain and prescribe suitable and convenient standard commercial units of the product or service of any public utility, when the character of its product or service is such that it can be determined, and such units shall be the lawful units for the purposes of this act. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 559, § 36.)

Section 614-35. (Report, etc.) Each such utility shall furnish to the commission in such form and at such times as the commission may require such accounts, reports and information as shall show completely and in detail the entire operation of the public utility in furnishing the unit of its product or service to the public. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 559, § 37.)

Section 614-36. (Standards of measurement.) The commission may ascertain and fix adequate and serviceable standards for the measurement of quality, pressure, initial voltage or other condition pertaining to the supply or quality or the product or service rendered by any public utility and prescribe reasonable regulations for examination and testing of such product or service and for the measurements thereof. It may establish reasonable rules, regulations, specifications and standards to secure the accuracy of all meters and appliances for measurements, and every public utility is required to carry into effect all orders issued by the commission relative thereto. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 559, § 38.)

Section 614-37. (Examination and test.) The commission may provide instruments for and carry on the examination and testing of any and all appliances used for the measurement of any product or service of a public utility or for the examination and testing of any devices or appliances of such public utility used for testing for accuracy any and all appliances used for the measurement of any product or service of such public utility. Any consumer or user may have any such appliance tested upon payment of the fees fixed by the commission. The commission may declare and establish reasonable fees to be paid for testing such appliances on the request of the consumers or users, the fees to be paid by the consumer or user at the time the request is made, but to be paid by the public utility and repaid to the consumer or user if the appliance be found commercially defective or incorrect to the disadvantage of the consumer or user. (106 v. 554; 102 v. 559, § 39.)

Section 614-38. (Facts shall be public and records open.)

All facts and information in the possession of the commission shall be public, and all reports, records, files, books, accounts, papers and memoranda of every nature whatsoever in their possession shall be open to inspection by the public at all reasonable times, except when the commission shall determine it to be necessary to withhold for a reasonable time from the public any facts or information in its possession. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 560, § 40.)

Section 614-39. (Incrimination no excuse.) No person shall be excused from testifying or from producing accounts, books and papers, in any hearing before the commission, or any member thereof, or any person appointed by it to investigate any matter or thing under its jurisdiction, on the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence might tend to incriminate him, or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, but no such person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for, or on account of, any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may have testified or produced any documentary evidence; provided, that no person so testifying shall be exempted from prosecution or punishment for perjury in so testifying. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 560, § 41.)

Section 614-40. (Supplemental order.) Whenever any rate, toll, charge or service, ordered substituted by the commission, shall be a joint rate, toll, charge or service, and the public utilities parties thereto, fail to agree upon the apportionment thereof within twenty days after the service of such order, the commission may, after hearing, make and issue a supplemental order fixing the apportionment of such joint rate, toll, charge or service between such public utilities, and the same shall take effect of its own force as a part of the original order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 560, § 42.)

Section 614-41. (All orders take effect, when.) All orders made by the commission shall, of their own force, take effect and become effective operative thirty days after service thereof, unless a different time be provided in the order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 560, § 43.)

Section 614-42. (Railroad track connection. Complaint on failure. Hearing—order. Interchange of traffic.) When the tracks of a steam railroad, the tracks of an interurban or suburban railroad cross, connect or intersect and such tracks are of the same gauge, the companies owning such roads may connect the tracks of the roads so connecting, crossing or intersecting, so as to admit the passage of cars from one road to the other with facility. If any such road or roads fail, neglect or refuse to make such connection, upon complaint of any party authorized by the provisions of this chapter to file complaint, the commission shall proceed to hear and determine the same in a manner provided for making investigations, upon complaint. If upon such hearing the commission shall find it is practicable and reasonably necessary to accommodate the public to connect such tracks and that when so connected, it will be practicable to transport over such road, cars without endangering the equipment, tracks or appliances of either company, then the commission shall make an order requiring such railroads to make connection, describing the terms and condition, and apportion the cost thereof between the railroads. When such connection is made, the railroads parties thereto, according to their respective powers, shall afford all reasonable and proper facilities for the interchange of traffic between their respective lines for forwarding and delivering passengers and property, and without unreasonable delay or discrimination shall transfer, switch and deliver cars, freight or passenger, destined to a point on its own or connecting lines; but precedence may be given to live stock and perishable freight over other freight. Whenever a derailing device is required at the intersection of any railroads herein mentioned the same shall be installed, maintained and operated as required by such commission, which shall have full power and authority to prescribe the necessary rules and regulations for the operation of the same, and designate the company or companies that shall be responsible for the operation thereof. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 560, § 44.)

The Ohio statutes do not make it the duty of a railroad company, whose tracks intersect those of another company, to establish physical connections. But the commission is authorized by §§ 614-42 and 522 to require such connection, if it finds the same practicable and reasonably necessary to accommodate the public. The mere fact of a previous connection with tracks of one company and a refusal to connect with those of another company does not establish a charge of unjust discrimination. Railway Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 359 (1917). See also Penna. Co. v. Commission, 14 N. P. n. s. 262; 58 Bull. 185 (1913).

The test is whether the connection is practicable and reasonably necessary to accommodate the public. Railroad Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 370 (1917); Railway Co. v. Commission, 96 O. S. 359 (1917).

A state, acting within its jurisdiction and not in hostility to a federal regulation of interstate commerce, may make a reasonable order for interchange of traffic, without violating the federal constitution. Michigan Co. v. Mich. R. R. Com., 236 U. S. 615 (1915).

The commission may require connection between the tracks of a railroad and an interurban railway. H. V. Ry. Co. v. Commission, 107 O. S. 43 (1923).

An order requiring three railroad companies, whose tracks intersect in a city, to construct transfer or connecting tracks at a cost of $14,000 in order to accommodate manufacturers and other shippers whose traffic approximates two thousand cars per year, is not so unreasonable as to violate a constitutional right. Penna. Co. v. Commission, 14 N. P. n. s. 262 (C. P. 1913).

Section 614-43. (Rehearing.) Upon the application of any person, public utility or railroad aggrieved thereby, the commission may, upon written petition therefor, filed within thirty days after any order made by the commission shall have been entered upon its records, grant a rehearing of the matter upon which such order was based. Notice of such rehearing shall be given as required with respect to original hearings, of the time and place for the rehearing thereon. Upon such rehearing any party may offer additional evidence which could not, with reasonable diligence, have been offered on the former hearing. Upon such rehearing, the commission may change, modify, vacate or affirm its former order and make and enter such new order as may be deemed necessary. (May, 31, 1911, 102 v. 561, § 45.)

Section 614-44. (Power of municipality to fix rate, price, change, etc. Written complaint; hearing. When commission shall fix rates. Hearing upon accepted rates; procedure. Filing complaint held to be consent to continue to furnish product or service.) Any municipal corporation in which any public utility is established may, by ordinance, at any time within one year before the expiration of any contract entered into under the provisions of sections 3644, 3982 and 3983 of the General Code between the municipality and such public utility with request to the rate, price, charge, toll or rental to be made, charged, demanded, collected, or exacted, for any commodity, utility or service by such public utility, or at any other time authorized by law proceed to fix the price, rate, charge, toll or rental that such public utility may charge, demand, exact or collect therefore for an ensuing period, as provided in sections 3644, 3982 and 3983 of the General Code. Thereupon, the commission, upon complaint in writing of such public utilities or upon complaint of one percentum of the electors of such municipal corporation, which complaints shall be filed within sixty days after the passage of such ordinance, shall give thirty days' notice of the filing and pendency of such complaint to the public utility and the mayor of such municipality, of the time and place of the hearing thereof, and which shall plainly state the matters and things complained of.

Provided, however, if the council of any municipality fails by ordinance to regulate the rates to be charged by any public utility engaged in business of supplying water for public or private consumption within sixty days after the expiration of any lawful rate, such water company or one percentum of qualified electors of the municipality may petition the public utilities commission to fix the just and reasonable rates for the furnishing of such services, and the public utilities commission may thereupon proceed to fix the just and reasonable rates, tolls and charges for such services which may be charged for a period of two years from the date of the filing of such petition and thereafter until changed, altered or modified by the council of such municipality or further order of the commission upon like application.

If any public utility shall have accepted any rate, price, charge, toll, or rental fixed by ordinance of such municipality, the same shall become operative, unless within sixty days after such acceptance there shall have been filed with the commission, a complaint signed by not less than three percentum of the qualified electors of such municipality. Upon such filing, the commission shall forthwith give notice of the filing and pendency of such complaint to the mayor of such municipality and fix a time and place for the hearing thereof. The commission shall, at such time and place, proceed to hear such complaint, and may adjourn the hearing thereof from day to day.

The filing of a complaint by a public utility, as herein provided, shall be taken and held to be the consent of such public utility to continue to furnish its product or service, and devote its property engaged therein to such public use during the term so fixed by ordinance or by the provisions of this act. Parties thereto shall be entitled to be heard, represented by counsel, and to have process to force the attendance of witnesses. (109 v. 217; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 428; 102 v. 561, § 46.)

The regulation of rates by a municipality must not be in conflict with the general laws of the state. Telephone Co. v. Cleveland, 98 O. S. 358 (1918).

Under the public utilities act, the commission, and not the municipality, has authority to fix telephone rates. Telephone Co. v. Cleveland, 98 O. S. 358 (1918).

Filing schedules with the public utilities commission is not an acceptance of a price-fixing ordinance, although the schedules contain the same rates as those fixed in the ordinance. Newcomerstown v. Gas Co., 100 O. S. 494 (1919); affirming, 30 O. C. A. 283.

If a utility believes that an ordinance fixing rates is indefinite, it may attack its validity in court, or by an appeal to the commission, but it has no right to ignore the ordinance and file schedules of other rates with the commission. Washington v. Commission, 99 O. S. 70 (1918).

Before the commission may proceed on a complaint by a public utility under this section, it is necessary that an ordinance should be in existence, fixing the rate complained of, and that the commission shall find that the rate "is or will be unjust or unreasonable, or insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service or product." Oak Harbor v. Commission, 99 O. S. 275 (1919).

The laws giving the commission power over rates do not deprive the courts of equitable jurisdiction. Where a municipality brought suit to enforce an unaccepted ordinance fixing the rate of gas, an answer of the gas company alleging facts showing the rate to be confiscatory, states a case of which a court of equity has jurisdiction. State v. Ct. of App., 104 O. S. 96 (1922).

Courts have jurisdiction over a controversy between a municipality and a public utility, as to rates which have been fixed by contract, although the commission may also have jurisdiction. New Lexington v. Ohio Co., 24 C. C. n. s. 537 (1913).

But an injunction suit by the public utility against the municipality, at the time of filing the appeal to the commission, does not deprive the commission of jurisdiction. Lima v. Commission, 106 O. S. 379 (1922).

This section does not apply to a contract made prior to its enactment and which, by its terms, does not expire for more than one year. Cincinnati v. Commission, 98 O. S. 320 (1918).

But in the absence of a contract an appeal may be taken under this section. Telephone Co. v. Cleveland, 98 O. S. 358, 384 (1918).

An appeal to the commission lies although the municipality operates under a home-rule charter. Lima v. Commission, 106 O. S. 379 (1922).

A contract between a municipality and a utility company, for its product or service, authorized by Section 1, Article XVIII of the Ohio Constitution, is not subject to review by the commission. Link v. Commission, 102 O. S. 336 (1921). See Marysville Co. v. Commission, 93 O. S. 480, 98 O. S. 382.

The commission has no power to grant franchises or make contracts between a public utility and other parties. Oak Harbor v.

Commission, 98 O. S. 275 (1919); Stuver v. Gas Co., 13 Ohio App. 276, 31 O. C. A. 554 (1920).

In the absence of municipal regulation, rates are subject to the regulation of the commission. Universal Machine Co. v. Public Service Co., 32 O. C. A. 525 (1919).

An ordinance ordering the director of public service to advertise for bids and contract for street lighting does not limit the power of the commission to fix a higher rate to private consumers. Universal Machine Co. v. Public Service Co., 32 O. C. A. 525 (1919).

Power of commission to review action of council of a municipality ordering extensions. See § 614-51.

Section 614-44a. (Hearing of complaints may be held in community in which cause of action arose.) In all cases arising under the preceding section and other sections providing for the hearing of complaints or protests against rates, such hearings, when feasible and proper, may be held in the community in which the cause of action arose. (110 v. 451.)

Section 614-45. (Rate will not be suspended or vacated, etc., without bond.) No such complaint or appeal to the commission shall suspend, vacate, or set aside the rate, price, charge, toll or rental fixed by ordinance unless such public utility shall elect to charge the rate, price, charge, toll or rental in force and effect immediately prior to the taking effect of the regulation complained of and appealed from, and shall give an undertaking in such amount as the commission shall determine. The undertaking shall be filed with the commission and shall be payable to the state of Ohio for the use and benefit of the consumers affected by the regulation in question. The condition of the undertaking shall be that such public utility shall refund to each of its consumers, public or private, the amount collected by it in excess of the amount which shall finally be determined it was authorized to collect from such consumers. The commission shall make all necessary orders in respect to the form of such undertaking and the manner of making such refunders. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 562, § 47.)

Section 614-46. (Finding as to rate.) If the commission, after such hearing, shall be of the opinion that the rate, price, charge, toll or rental, so fixed by ordinance is or will be unjust or unreasonable, or insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service, the commission shall, with due regard to the value of all the property of the public utility actually used and useful for the convenience of the public, excluding therefrom the value of any franchise or right to own, operate or enjoy the same in excess of the amount (exclusive of any tax or annual charge) actually paid to any political subdivision of the state or county as a consideration or the grant of such franchise or right; and exclusive of any value added thereto by reason of a monopoly or merger and to the necessity of making reservations from the income for surplus, depreciation and contingencies, and such other matters as may be proper, according to the facts in each case, fix and determine the just and reasonable rate, price, charge, toll or rental to be charged, demanded, exacted or collected by such public utility, during the period so fixed by ordinance, which shall not be less than two years, and order the same substituted for the rate, price, charge, toll or rental so fixed by ordinance or the commission may find and declare that the rate, price, charge, toll or rental, so fixed by ordinance, is just and reasonable, and ratify and confirm the same.

No such rate, price, charge, toll or rental so determined by the commission shall become effective or valid until after the commission shall have ascertained and determined the valuation upon which such price, charge, toll or rental is based as provided in this act. And such valuation so determined shall be, at all times, open to public inspection. Thereupon the commission shall make inquiry and investigation with respect to the ability of such public utility to furnish its product during such period, if it be found that it is able so to do, the commission shall order the public utility in question to continue to furnish the same for the period and at the rate, price, charge, toll or rental so fixed and determined, and such public utility shall continue to furnish its product as provided in such order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 562, § 48.)

The commission has no authority to fix maximum rates only, leaving the utility to file schedules of other rates. Section 614-46 makes it the duty of the commission to fix the rates. Cleveland v. Commission, 100 O. S. 121 (1919).

Section 614-46a. (Written opinions filed by commission in all contested cases.) In all contested cases heard by the commission, it shall be the duty of the commission to file with the records thereof, written opinions setting forth the reasons prompting the decisions arrived at by the commission, together with a resume from the record of the facts upon which such decisions are based. (110 v. 452.)

Section 614-47. (When act not applicable.) This act shall not apply to any rate, fare or regulation now or hereafter prescribed by any municipal corporation granting a right, permission, authority or franchise, to use its streets, alleys, avenues or public places, for street railway or street railroad purposes, or to any prices so fixed under sections 3644, 3982 and 3983 of the General Code, except as provided in sections 46, 47 and 48 of this act. (G. C. §§ 614-44, 614-45 and 614-46.) (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 563, § 49.)

The commission has no power to change rates which have been fixed by valid contract between a municipality and a public utility. Interurban Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 287 (1918).

Such contracts are exempted, by this section, from the public utilities commission act. Ohio River Power Co. v. Steubenville, 99 O. S. 421 (1919).

Section 614-48. (Annual report.) Every public utility shall file with the commission, at such times and in such form as it may prescribe, an annual report, duly verified, covering the yearly period fixed by the commission. The commission shall prescribe the character of the information to be embodied in such annual report, and shall furnish to each public utility a blank form therefor. If any such report is defective or erroneous, the commission may order the same to be amended within a prescribed time. Such annual reports shall be preserved in the office of the commission. The commission may, at any time, require specific answers to questions upon which it may desire information. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 563, § 50.)

Although one public utility controls another by stock ownership, each company should file a report, so long as they remain distinct companies. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 701.

The commission may use funds raised under § 606 for the purchase of blanks from the interstate commerce commission for use of utilities in making reports. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 700.

Section 614-49. (Depreciation account.) Every public utility shall carry a proper and adequate depreciation or deferred maintenance account, whenever the commission after investigation shall determine that a depreciation account can be reasonably required. The commission shall ascertain, determine and prescribe what are proper and adequate charges for depreciation of the several classes of property for each public utility. The charge for depreciation shall be such as will provide the amount required over and above the cost and expense of maintenance to keep the property of the public utility in a state of efficiency corresponding to the progress of the art or industry. The commission may prescribe such changes in such charges for depreciation from time to time as it may find necessary. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 563, § 51.)

While a reasonable depreciation reserve is sound policy, an unreasonably large reserve can not be made the basis for increased rates. Cincinnati v. Commission, 105 O. S. 181, 201, 202, 217 (1922).

Distribution of depreciation reserve on mortgage foreclosure, see Trust Co. v. Traction Co., 106 O. S. 577, 618 (1922).

Section 614-50. (Depreciation fund.) The moneys for depreciation charges thus provided for shall be set aside out of the earnings and carried as a depreciation fund. The moneys in such fund may be expended in new construction, extensions or additions to the property of the public utility, or invested, and if invested, the income from the investment shall also be carried in the depreciation fund. Such fund and the proceeds thereof, may be used for the purpose of renewing, restoring, replacing or substituting depreciated property in order to keep the plant in a state of efficiency. Such fund and the proceeds or income therefrom shall be used for no purpose other than as provided in this section, except upon the approval of the commission. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 564, § 52.)

When extraordinary repairs, substitutions or restorations are made, the cost should be charged against the reserve. Cincinnati v. Commission, 105 O. S. 181, 199, 200.

This section does not authorize the addition of the depreciation reserve to capital account. Ib., pp. 202-204, 209, 218.

Section 614-51. (Power to require additions and extensions.) The council of any municipality shall have the power upon filing of an application therefor by any person, firm or corporation, to require of any public utility, by ordinance or otherwise, such additions or extensions to its distributing plant within such municipality as shall be deemed reasonable and necessary in the interest of the public, and, subject to the provisions of section 9105 of the General Code, to designate the location and nature of all such additions and extensions, the time within which they must be completed, and all conditions under which they must be constructed and operated. Such requirements and orders of the council shall be subject to review by the commission, as provided in sections 46 and 48 hereof. (G. C. §§ 614-44 and 614-46.) The council and commission in determining the practicability of such additions and extensions, shall take into consideration the supply of the product furnished by such public utility available, and the returns upon the cost and expense of constructing said extension and the amount of revenue to be derived therefrom, as well as the earning power of the public utility as a whole. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 564, § 53.)

This section and section 614-28 do not authorize the commission to compel a street railway company to extend its line beyond its terminal points, but merely to compel additions and facilities between such points.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-12, p. 716.

The power to order "extensions" of the lines of a gas company is vested in the council, and not in the commission. Rep. Atty. 1912, p. 653.

But the action of a village council, ordering extensions, is subject to review by the commission. The commission, under § 614-51, may determine the practicability of the additions and extensions of street railway lines so ordered. It may consider the physical conditions of the proposed line as well as the necessary plan of operation of cars thereover, and may relieve the railway company of the obligations if it finds that operation of cars would entail unusual dangers and jeopardize lives of passengers. Cincinnati v. Commission, 91 O. S. 331 (1915).

It has been said that it is not a violation of the public utilities act for a public utility to refuse to comply with an order of a municipal council made under § 614-51. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 1551.

Section 614-52. (Company not permitted to exercise right of franchise where another is giving adequate service.) No telephone company shall exercise any permit, right, license or franchise that may have been heretofore granted but not actually exercised or that may hereafter be granted to own or operate a plant for the furnishing of any telephone service, thereunder in any municipality or locality, where there is in operation a telephone company furnishing adequate service, unless such telephone company first secures from the commission a certificate after public hearing of all parties interested that the exercising of such license, permit, right or franchise is proper and necessary for the public convenience. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 564, § 54.)

This section is constitutional. Celina Co. v. Union Central Co., 102 O. S. 487 (1921); Local Telephone Co. v. Mutual Co., 102 O. S. 524 (1921).

This section goes to the capacity of a telephone company, as a contractual party, to enter into and perform a contract or service. It does not limit the right or power of a municipality to contract for a product or service under Article XVIII, Section 4, of the Ohio Constitution. Local Telephone Co. v. Mutual Co., 102 O. S. 524 (1921).

A telephone company can not extend its lines into territory, already occupied by another company, without a certificate from the commission. An attempt to so extend its lines may be enjoined by the other company. Telephone Co. v. Telephone Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 61 (1912); Telephone Co. v. Telephone Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 616; 24 L. D. 77 (1913).

A certificate of necessity must be secured by a telephone company not for profit. This section applies to such corporations as well as to other telephone companies. Telephone Co. v. Telephone Co., 92 O. S. 336 (1915).

The commission has no power to order a company, which is operating without a certificate of necessity, to cease operations or to apply for a certificate. Telephone Co. v. Telephone Co., 97 O. S. 203 (1918).

Proof of the incorporation of a telephone company and purchase of telephone equipment is not sufficient to sustain an allegation that the company is about to exercise a franchise and engage in public service, as distinguished from providing private lines for the use of stockholders and others residing within a short distance.

Gratiot, etc., Telephone Co. v. Brownsville, etc., Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 429 (C. P. 1911); affirmed, 15 C. C. n. s. 508 and 89 O. S. 418.

But the acceptance of a franchise from a municipality, permitting the use of its streets for telephone lines, is sufficient to show that the company is about to furnish service. Paulding Co. v. Telephone Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 616; 24 L. D. 77 (1913).

An allegation by an existing telephone company that it is rendering adequate service must be proved, when traversed by the defendant.

Gratiot Co. v. Brownsville, etc., Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 429 (C. P. 1911); affirmed, 15 C. C. n. s. 508; aff'd, no rep. 89 O. S. 418.

A telephone company, upon which both primary and secondary franchises had been conferred prior to the enactment of this section, need not secure a certificate from the commission.

Gratiot Co. v. Brownsville, etc., Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 508 (1912); affirming, 13 N. P. n. s. 429; aff'd, no rep. 89 O. S. 418.

But it has been held that a company, in existence and operation before the enactment of this section, can not extend its lines into territory covered by another company, without a certificate from the commission. Clinton Co. v. Telephone Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 61; 24 L. D. 44; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 666. Contra, Sidney Co. v. Commission, 14 N. P. n. s. 337; 23 L. D. 639 (1913).

This section does not apply to utilities other than telephone companies. 12 O. L. R. 471 (Com. 1915).

A new company which has solicited and obtained subscribers from an existing company is not entitled to a certificate of necessity where the only complaint as to inadequate service by the existing company is the loss of such subscribers. Citizens Co. v. Metamora Co., 17 O. L. R. 368 (Com. 1919).

For facts showing adequate service, see Citizens Telephone Co. v. Commission, 102 O. S. 570 (1921).

Section 614-53. (When public utility may issue stocks, bond, notes, etc. How and for what purposes commission may authorize issue.) A public utility or a railroad, as defined in this act, may, when authorized by order of the commission, and not otherwise, issue stocks, bonds, notes and other evidences of indebtedness, payable at periods of more than twelve months after date thereof, when necessary for the acquisition of property, the construction, completion, extension or improvement of its facilities or for the improvement or maintenance of its service, or for the reorganization or readjustment of its indebtedness and capitalization, or for the discharge or lawful refunding of its obligations, or for the reimbursement of moneys actually expended from income or from any other moneys in the treasury of the public utility or railroad not secured or obtained from the issue of stocks, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness of such public utility or railroad within five years next prior to the filing of an application therefor as herein provided, or for any of the aforesaid purposes except maintenance of service and except replacements in cases where the applicant shall have kept its accounts and vouchers of such expenditures in such manner as to enable the commission to ascertain the amount of money so expended and the purposes for which said expenditure was made.

The commission may, by order duly made, authorize the issue of bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, for the reimbursement of money heretofore actually expended from income for any of the aforesaid purposes, except maintenance of service and replacements prior to five years next preceding the filing of an application therefor, if such application for such consent be made prior to January 1, 1913. Any bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, payable at periods of more than twelve months after date thereof, may be issued as herein provided, regardless of the amount of the capital stock of the public utility or railroad, subject to the approval of the commission to the excess of such bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness above the amount of the capital stock of such public utility or railroad, notwithstanding any provisions of the General Code of Ohio now in force to the contrary.

Provided, however, that it shall be the duty of the commission to authorize on the best terms obtainable, such issues of stocks, bonds and other evidence of indebtedness as shall be necessary to enable any public utility to comply with the provisions of any contract heretofore made between such public utility and any municipality. (May 9, 1913, 103 v. 841; May 31, 1911, 102 v. 565, § 56.)

This section does not permit the capitalization of replacements of equipment or physical property. These must be kept up from income. The question as to what expenditures shall form the basis of permanent capitalization is one for the commission as well as for the corporation. The question of fact as to whether the expenditures are for replacements of equipment or physical property is for the determination of the commission. Pollitz v. Commission, 97 O. S. 191 (1918); 99 O. S. 449.

Application by a railroad company for permission to guarantee the bonds of another company. See Pollitz v. Commission, 96 O. S. 49 (1917).

The commission may authorize an issue of stock or bonds to discharge or refund indebtedness incurred for acquisition, development, etc., more than five years prior to the application. Water Co. v. Commission, 104 O. S. 90 (1922).

Section 614-54. (Proceedings to obtain authority to issue stocks, bonds, etc.) The proceedings for obtaining the consent and authority of the commission for such issue as provided in the next preceding section of this act, shall be as follows:

(a) In case the stocks, bonds, notes, or other evidence of indebtedness are to be issued for money only, the public utility or railroad shall file with the commission a statement, signed and verified by the president and secretary thereof, setting forth:

(1) The amount and character of the stocks, bonds or other evidence of indebtedness.

(2) The purposes for which they are to be issued.

(3) The terms upon which they are to be issued.

(4) The total assets and liabilities of the public utility or railroad in such detail as the commission may require.

(5) If the issue is desired for the purpose of the reimbursement of money expended from income, as herein provided, the amount expended, when and for what purposes expended.

(6) Such other facts and information pertinent to the inquiry as the commission may require.

(b) If the stocks, bonds, notes or other evidence of indebtedness are to be issued, partly or wholly for property or services or other consideration than money the public utility or railroad shall file with the commission a statement, signed and verified by its president and secretary, setting forth:

(1) The amount and character of the stocks, bonds or other evidence of indebtedness proposed to be issued.

(2) The purposes for which they are to be issued.

(3) The description and estimated value of the property or services for which they are to be issued.

(4) The terms on which they are to be issued or exchanged.

(5) The amount of money, if any, to be received from the same in addition to the property, service or other consideration.

(6) The total assets and liabilities of the public utility or railroad in such detail as the commission may require.

(7) Such other facts and information pertinent to the inquiry as the commission may require. Provided, however, that this section or the preceding section shall not apply to union depot companies heretofore organized and under contract until the same are completed. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 565, § 57.)

Section 614-55. (Hearings. Order. Application of proceeds. Issue without authority, void.) For the purpose of enabling the commission to determine whether it should issue such order, it shall hold such hearings, make such inquiries or investigation, examine such witnesses, books, papers, documents and contracts as it may deem proper. The order of the commission shall fix the amount, character and terms of any such issue, and the purposes to which the issue or any proceeds thereof shall be applied, and recite that the money, property, consideration or labor procured or to be procured or paid for by such issue, has been, or is reasonably required for the purposes specified in the order, and the value of any property, consideration or service as the case may be, as found by the commission for which in whole or in part, such issue is proposed to be made. No such public utility or railroad shall, without the consent of the commission, apply any such issue or its proceeds to any purpose not specified in the order. Such public utilities or railroads may issue notes for proper corporate purposes, and not in violation of any provision of this act, payable at periods of not more than twelve months without the consent of the commission, but no such notes shall, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, be refunded by any issue of stocks or bonds, or by any evidence of indebtedness, running for more than twelve months without the consent of the commission. All stocks, bonds, notes or other evidence of indebtedness, issued by any public utility or railroad without the consent or permission of the commission, as herein provided, shall be void and of no effect. No interstate railroad or public utility shall be required, however, to apply to the commission for authority to issue stock, bonds, notes or other evidence of indebtedness for the acquisition of property, the construction, completion, extension or improvement of its facilities or the improvement or maintenance of its service outside the state, or for the discharge or refunding of obligations issued or incurred for such purposes or for reimbursement of moneys actually expended for such purposes outside of the state. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 566, § 58.)

An order of the commission authorizing an issue of securities is not invalidated by the fact that a part of the proceeds are to be used within, and a part without, the state. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 651.

A utility company (not a telephone company) will not be refused authority to issue securities because another public utility is doing business in the same locality and furnishing adequate service. 12 O. L. R. 471 (Pub. Util. Com. 1915).

Interstate railroad. Whether the exception as to interstate railroads applies only to physical property, or includes intangible property as well, is a question raised but not decided in Pollitz v. Commission, 96 O. S. 560 (1917).

The commission has jurisdiction of an application by a railroad company to issue stock to reimburse it for expenditures in acquiring the securities of other companies other than the expenditures referred to in the exception of this section. Railroad Co. v. Commission, 97 O. S. 344 (1918).

Section 614-56. (Public utility in hands of receiver, etc., exempt from this act.) Where a public utility or railroad is, at the time this act takes effect, in the possession of one or more receivers or its property is under foreclosure, and a reorganization thereof is pending, any new company or companies that may hereafter be organized to acquire such property or any part thereof, shall be exempt from all the provisions of this act with respect to the issue of bonds, stocks and evidences of debt, provided that the total debts, obligations and securities of such new or reorganized company or companies exclusive of bonds, obligations, stocks, and other securities that may be issued or authorized for additional capital shall not exceed the debts, obligations, stocks and other securities of the existing company or companies, and provided further that from and after its organization and the issue of such bonds, obligations, stocks and other securities as hereby permitted, all the provisions of this act shall apply to such new or reorganized company or companies. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 567, § 59.)

Section 614-57. (Penalty for false statement.) Any director, president, secretary, manager, officer or other official of any public utility or railroad who shall knowingly make any false statement to secure the issue of any stock, bond, note or other evidence of indebtedness, or who shall, by such false statement, procure the order of the commission for the issue of any stock, bond, note or other evidence of indebtedness, or issue with knowledge of such fraud, negotiate, or cause to be negotiated any such stock, bond, or other evidences of indebtedness in violation of this act, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the penitentiary for not less than one year or more than ten years. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 567, § 60.)

Section 614-57a. (Endorsement of public utility or railroad securities.) Public utility or railroad corporations may, as incident to the sale or pledge of bonds, notes or other securities owned by them, jointly or severally endorse the same and guarantee due payment thereof, in any case in which such endorsement and guarantee has been or may hereafter be duly authorized by the public utilities commission or the interstate commerce commission. (110 v. 404.)

Before the enactment of this section a railroad company owning bonds, had power to guarantee the same, on a sale thereof, in order to make a sale at an adequate price. Pollitz v. Commission, 96 O. S. 49 (1917).

Section 614-58. (Dividend must be authorized.) No public utility or railroad shall declare any stock, bond or scrip dividend or divide the proceeds of the sale of any stock, bond, or scrip among its stockholders, unless authorized by the commission so to do. (May 11, 1911, 102 v. 567, § 61.)

Section 614-59. (Capitalization.) The commission shall not have power to authorize the capitalization of any franchise or right to own, operate or enjoy any franchise whatsoever in excess of the amount (exclusive of any tax or annual charge) actually paid to any political subdivision of the state or county as the consideration for the grant of such franchise or right, nor shall the capital stock of a corporation formed by the merger or consolidation of two or more corporations exceed the sum of the capital stock of the corporation or corporations so consolidated or merged, at the par value thereof, and such sum or any additional sum actually paid in cash; nor shall any contract for consolidation or lease be capitalized in the stock of any corporation whatever; nor shall any such corporation hereafter issue any bonds against or as a lien upon any contract for consolidation or merger; nor shall the aggregate amount of the debt of such consolidated companies by reason of such consolidation be increased. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 567, § 62.)

Section 614-60. (Consent and approval of commission. Petition. Hearing.) With the consent and approval of the commission, but not otherwise:

(a) Any two or more public utilities, furnishing a like service or product and doing business in the same municipality or locality within this state, or any two or more public utilities whose lines intersect or parallel each other within this state, may enter into contracts with each other that will enable such public utilities to operate their lines or plants in connection with each other.

(b) Any public utility may purchase, or lease the property, plant or business of any other such public utility.

(c) Any such public utility may sell or lease its property or business to any other such public utility.

(d) Any such public utility may purchase the stock of any other such public utility.

The proceedings for obtaining the consent and approval of the commission for such authority, shall be as follows:

There shall be filed with the commission a petition, joint or otherwise, as the case may be, signed and verified by the president and secretary of the respective companies, clearly setting forth the object and purposes desired, stating whether or not it is for the purchase, sale, lease or making of contracts or for any other purpose in this section provided and also the terms and conditions of the same. The commission shall, upon the filing of such petition, if it deem the same necessary, fix a time and place for the hearing thereof. If, after such hearing or in case no hearing is required, the commission is satisfied that the prayer of such petition should be granted and the public will thereby be furnished adequate service for a reasonable and just rate, rental, toll, or charge therefor, it shall make such order in the premises as it may deem proper and the circumstances require, and thereupon it shall be lawful to do the things provided for in such order. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 568, § 63.)

A valuation of properties by the commission is probably not a condition precedent to granting an application under this section, but the commission may make such valuation at any time.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-12, p. 729, 739.

See G. C. § 499-8.

This section applies to physical connections and is independent of § 614-61.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-12, p. 729.

A public utility property may be sold to a corporation, not an existing utility, without the consent of the commission. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 661.

Orders of the commission under this section need not be filed with the secretary of state. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1547.

This section does not apply to a lease of a street railway. Where the rate of fare is fixed by franchise agreement, the commission has no jurisdiction of a proposed lease of a street railway line. 16 O. L. R. 151 (Com. 1918).

Order of commission approving sale of telephone properties. 14 O. L. R. 426.

Section 614-61. (Merger. Petition. Order. Valuation, rates, etc.) With the consent and approval of the commission, but not otherwise, any two or more telephone companies, defined in this act, and doing business in this state or partly within and partly without this state, may consolidate with each other, when such telephone companies shall have complied with the orders and requirements of the commission and the provisions of this act.

Such telephone companies shall file with the commission a joint petition for such consolidation, signed and verified by the president and secretary of the respective companies, in which shall be set forth in detail, all of the terms, conditions and proceedings pertaining to such consolidation and in such form as the commission may require, and thereupon the commission shall fix a time and place for the hearing of such petition.

If, after such hearing, the commission is satisfied that such consolidation will promote public convenience, and will furnish the public adequate service for a reasonable rate, rental, toll or charge therefor, it shall make an order authorizing such consolidation, which order before taking effect shall be filed with the secretary of state. Other proceedings relating to such consolidation shall be in the manner and with the effect, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, as is provided for in the consolidation of railroad companies under the laws of this state.

No consolidation, purchase, lease or contract by which two or more telephone companies merge or operate their lines or plants jointly or in connection with each other, shall become valid or effective until after the commission shall have ascertained and determined the valuation as provided in this act upon which the rates, tolls, charges and rentals are based and also shall have fixed and determined such rates, tolls, charges and rentals so to be charged.

All valuations so ascertained and determined shall be at all times open to public inspection. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 568, § 64.)

See § 9190.

The terms "consolidation" and "merger" are not synonymous.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-12, p. 729.

A valuation of properties by the commission is a condition precedent to the granting of an application under this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-12, p. 729.

And upon the basis of such valuation, the commission should fix the rates to be charged. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 209.

Section 614-62. (Void contracts.) All such contracts, leases, purchases, sales or consolidations not made pursuant to the provisions of this act or contrary hereto shall be void and of no effect. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 569, § 65.)

Section 614-63. (Power to form continuous line. Charges, rates, etc.) The commission shall have the power upon complaint, in writing, by any person, or on its own initiative, by order, to require any two or more telephone companies whose lines or wires form a continuous line of communication, or could be made to do so by the construction and maintenance of suitable connections or the joint use of equipment, or the transfer of messages at common points, between different localities which can not be communicated with or reached by the lines of either company alone, where such service is not already established or provided for, unless public necessity requires additional service, to establish and maintain through lines within the state between two or more such localities. The joint rate or charges for such service shall be just and reasonable and the commission shall have power to establish the same, and declare the portion thereof to which each company affected thereby shall be entitled and the manner in which the same shall be secured and paid. All necessary construction, maintenance and equipment in order to establish such service shall be constructed and maintained in such manner and under such rules, with such division of expense and labor as shall or may be required by the commission. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 569, § 66.)

Where two telephone companies are competing for business in a locality, one of them providing adequate long distance service between the locality and a neighboring city, offering the service to residents of the locality, and public necessity does not require additional long distance service, this section does not apply. Shafor v. Commission, 94 O. S. 231 (1916); affirming, 13 O. L. R. 461.

Orders of the commission, requiring connections. See 12 O. L. R. 591.

Where one company alone serves other localities as well as all the localities served by another company, the latter company is not entitled to an order for connections enabling it to reach the localities served exclusively by the other company. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 658.

Two mutual telephone companies, incorporated not for profit, but which furnish service to nonmembers, and charge therefor, are subject to an order of the commission under this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 645.

Section 614-64. (Penalty on failure to comply with orders.) Every public utility or railroad and every officer thereof, shall obey, observe, and comply with every order, direction and requirement of the commission, made under authority of this act, so long as the same shall be and remain in force. Any public utility or railroad herein defined which violates any provision of this act, or which after due notice fails, omits or neglects to obey, observe or comply with any order or any direction or requirement of the commission officially promulgated shall forfeit and pay to the state not to exceed one thousand dollars for each such failure, omission or neglect and each day's continuance thereof shall be deemed and held to be a separate offense. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 570, § 67.)

The attorney general has no authority to institute a proceeding to recover penalties and forfeitures, in the absence of an order to him from the commission. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 1551.

Section 614-65. (Penalty.) Whoever being an officer, agent or employe in an official capacity, of a public utility or railroad defined in this act, knowingly violates any provisions of this act, or wilfully fails, omits or neglects to obey, observe or comply with any lawful order or direction of the commission made with respect to any public utility or railroad shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both, and each day's continuance of such failure, omission or neglect shall constitute a separate offense. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 570, § 68.)

Section 614-66. (Title of action.) Actions to recover penalties and forfeitures provided for in this act, shall be prosecuted in the name of the state and may be brought in the court of common pleas of any county in which the public utility or railroad may be located. Such action shall be commenced and prosecuted by the attorney general, when directed so to do by the commission. Moneys recovered by such action shall be deposited in the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 570, § 69.)

Section 614-67. (Mandamus—injunction.) Whenever the commission shall be of the opinion that any public utility or railroad has failed, omitted or neglected to obey any order made with respect thereto, or is about to fail or neglect so to do, or is permitting anything, or about to permit anything contrary to, or in violation of law, or an order of the commission, duly authorized under the provisions of this act, the attorney general, upon the request of the commission, shall commence and prosecute such action, actions, or proceedings in mandamus or by injunction in the name of the state, as may be directed by the commission, against such public utility or railroad, alleging the violation complained of and praying for proper relief, and in such case the court may make such order as may be proper in the premises. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 570, § 70.)

The common pleas court and court of appeals have no jurisdiction to restrain the erection of safety gates ordered by the commission, on the ground that they were not being erected at the proper location, where the commission has taken no action under § 614-67. Railway v. Railway, 5 Ohio App. 151; 25 C. C. n. s. 572 (1916).

Section 614-68. (Treble damages on violations.) If any public utility or railroad does, or causes to be done, any act, matter, or thing prohibited by this act, or declared to be unlawful, or shall omit to do any act, matter or thing required by this act, or by order of the commission, such public utility or railroad shall be liable to the person, firm or corporation injured thereby in treble the amount of damages sustained in consequence of such violation, failure or omission; provided, that any recovery under this section shall in no manner affect a recovery by the state for any penalty provided for in this act. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 570, § 71.)

Section 614-71. (Service of order.) Every order provided for in this act, shall be served upon every person or corporation to be affected thereby, either by personal delivery or a certified copy thereof, or by mailing a certified copy thereof, in a sealed package with postage prepaid, to the person to be affected thereby, or in the case of a corporation, to any officer or agent thereof, upon whom a summons may be served. It shall be the duty of every person and corporation to notify the commission forthwith, in writing, of the receipt of the certified copy of every order so served, and in the case of a corporation such notification must be signed and acknowledged by a person or officer duly authorized by the corporation to admit such service. Within a time specified in the order of the commission every person or corporation upon whom it is served must if so required in the order notify the commission in like manner whether the terms of the order are accepted and will be obeyed. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 572, § 74.)

Section 614-72. (Free service or reduced rates valid, when.) Nothing in this act contained shall prevent any public utility or railroad from granting the whole or any part of its property for any public purpose, or granting reduced rate or free service of any kind to the United States government, the state government or any political division or subdivision thereof, or for charitable purposes or for fairs or expositions or to any officer or employe of such public utility or railroad or his family and all contracts and agreements made or entered into by such public utility or railroad for such use, reduced rates, or free service shall be valid and enforceable at law. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 572, § 75.)

Section 614-73. (Limitation.) No franchise, permit, license or right to own, operate, manage or control any public utility, herein defined as an electric light company, gas company, water works company or heating and cooling company, shall be hereafter granted or transferred to any corporation not duly incorporated under the laws of Ohio. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 572, § 76.)

A foreign corporation may hold and vote a majority of the capital stock of an Ohio public utility corporation. Such stock control is not equivalent to a transfer of its franchise to the foreign corporation prohibited by this section.

Toledo T. L. & P. Co. v. Smith, 205 Fed. 643 (D. C. 1913); Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 674.

Section 614-74. (Companies subject to act.) Companies formed to acquire property or to transact business which would be subjected to the provisions of this act, and companies owning or possessing franchises for any of the purposes contemplated in this act, shall be deemed and held to be subject to the provisions of this act, although no property may have been acquired, business transacted or franchises exercised. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 572, § 77.)

Section 614-75. (Liability for act of officer, etc.) The act, omission or failure of any officer, agent or other person, acting for or employed by a public utility or railroad, while acting within the scope of his employment, shall be deemed and held to be the act or failure of the public utility or railroad. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 572, § 78.)

Section 614-76. (Fees.) The commission shall charge and collect for furnishing any copy of any paper, record, testimony or writing made, taken or filed under the provisions of this act, except such transcripts and other papers as are required to be filed in any court proceedings herein authorized, whether under seal and certified to or otherwise, the same fees now charged by the secretary of state, and such fees itemized shall be paid into the state treasury on the first day of each month. Upon application of any person, and payment of the proper fee therefor, the commission shall furnish certified copies under the seal of the commission, of any order made by it, which shall be prima facie evidence in any court of the facts stated therein. The copies of schedules and classifications and tariffs of rates, tolls, prices, rentals, regulations, practices, services, fares and charges, and of all contracts, agreements and arrangements between public utilities and railroads, or either, filed with the commission as herein provided, and the statistics, tables and figures contained in the annual or other reports of such companies made to the commission as required under the provisions of this act, shall be preserved as public records in the custody of the commission and shall be received as prima facie evidence of what they purport to be, for the purpose of investigations and prosecutions by the commission and in all judicial proceedings; and copies of and extracts from any of such schedules, classifications, tariffs, contracts, agreements, arrangements, or reports, made public records as aforesaid, certified by the commission under the seal of such commission, shall be received in evidence with like effect as the originals. Also copies of any order made by such commission certified under the seal of such commission, shall be furnished to any person upon application. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 573, § 80.)

Section 614-77. (Information furnished by commission.)

The commission shall, whenever called upon by any officer, board or commission now existing or hereafter created in the state or any political subdivision thereof, furnish any data or information to such officer, board or commission and shall aid or assist any such officer, board or commission in performing the duties of his or its office, and all officers, boards or commissions now existing or hereafter created in the state or any political subdivision thereof, shall furnish to the commission, upon request, any data or information which will assist such commission in the discharge of the duties imposed upon it by this act. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 573, § 81.)

The mayor of a municipality is entitled to copies of applications and papers filed with the commission, but must pay the fee for making the copies. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 648.

Section 614-78. (Costs and expenses.) If the commission after investigating shall find that any rate, joint rate, fare, charge, toll, rental, schedule or classification of service is unjust, unreasonable and insufficient or unjustly discriminatory or unjustly preferential or in violation of law or otherwise in violation of any provisions of this act or that any service is inadequate or can not be obtained the public utility found to be at fault shall pay the expenses incurred by the commission upon such investigation.

All fees, expenses and costs of or in connection with any hearing or investigation may be imposed by the commission upon any party to the record, or may be divided between any or all parties to the record in such proportion as the commission may determine. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 574, § 82.)

Section 614-79. (Penalty for wilful over or under valuation.) Whoever, being a member of the commission, shall wilfully overvalue the property of a public utility for the purpose of enabling such public utility to exact a higher rate for service than could lawfully be exacted, or, shall willfully undervalue such property for the purpose of preventing such public utility from charging a lawful rate for such service shall be fined not to exceed one thousand dollars or be imprisoned not more than two years or both. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 574, § 83.)

Section 614-82. (Each section of act independent.) Each section of this act, and every part thereof, is hereby declared to be independent sections and parts of sections and the holding of any section or part thereof to be void or ineffective for any cause, shall not be deemed to affect any other section or part thereof. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 574, § 86.)

MOTOR TRANSPORTATION COMPANIES.

Section 614-84. (Definitions.) (a) The term "corporation", used in this chapter, means a corporation, a company, an association or a joint stock association.

(b) The term "person", when used in this chapter, means an individual, a firm or co-partnership.

(c) The term "motor transportation company", when used in this chapter, means every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any motor propelled vehicle not usually operated on or over rails, used in the business of transportation of persons or property or both, as a common carrier for compensation, over any public highway in this state; provided, however, that the term "motor transportation company" as used in this chapter shall not include any person or persons, firm or firms, co-partnership or voluntary association, joint stock association, company or corporation, wherever organized or incorporated, in so far as they own, control, operate or manage a motor vehicle or motor vehicles used exclusively for the transportation of property and which are operated exclusively within the limits of a municipal corporation, and municipal corporations contiguous thereto, or in so far as they own, control, operate or manage taxicabs, hotel busses, school busses or sight-seeing busses, or busses owned and used exclusively in the promotion of city and suburban home development, or in so far as they own, control, operate or manage motor propelled vehicles, the major use of which is for the private business of the owners and the use of which for hire is casual or disassociated from such business.

(d) The term "public highway", when used in this chapter, means any public street, road or highway in this state, whether within or without the corporate limits of a municipality.

(e) The words "fixed termini", when used in this act shall be understood to refer to the points between which any motor transportation company usually or ordinarily operates or manages any motor propelled vehicle, and the words "regular route" shall be understood to refer to that portion of the public highway over which any motor transportation company usually or ordinarily operates or manages any motor propelled vehicle. Whether or not any motor propelled vehicle is operated by such motor transportation company "between fixed termini or over a regular route" within the meaning of this chapter shall be a question of fact and the finding of the commission thereon shall be a final order which may be reviewed as provided in section 614-89 of the General Code. (110 v. 213.)

Section 614-85. (Motor vehicles.) No corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, shall operate any motor propelled vehicles for the transportation of persons or property or both, for compensation, on any public highway in this state except in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (110 v. 214.)

Section 614-86. (Jurisdiction vested with "the public utilities commission". Scope of jurisdiction.) The public utilities commission of the state of Ohio is hereby vested with power and authority to supervise and regulate each such motor transportation company in this state; to fix, alter and regulate rates; to regulate the service and safety of operation of each such motor transportation company; to prescribe safety regulations, and designate stops for service and safety on established routes; to require the filing of annual and other reports and of other data by such motor transportation companies; to provide uniform accounting systems; and to supervise and regulate motor transportation companies in all other matters affecting the relationship between such companies and the public to the exclusion of all local authorities in this state. The commission, in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred upon it by this chapter, shall have the power and authority to prescribe rules and regulations affecting such motor transportation companies, notwithstanding the provisions of any ordinance, resolution, license or permit heretofore enacted, adopted or granted by any incorporated city or village, city and county, or county, and in case of conflict between any such ordinance, resolution, license or permit, the order, rule or regulation of the public utilities commission shall, in each instance prevail; provided that such local subdivisions may make reasonable local police regulations within their respective boundaries not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter. (110 v. 214.)

Section 614-87. (Conditions governing securing certificate of convenience and necessity. Cancellation of certificate.)

No such motor transportation company shall begin to operate any motor propelled vehicle for the transportation of persons or property, or both, for compensation, between fixed termini or over a regular or irregular route in this state, without first obtaining from the public utilities commission a certificate declaring that public convenience and necessity require such operation. The commission shall have the power, after hearing, when the applicant requests a certificate to operate in a territory already served by a motor transportation company holding a certificate of public convenience and necessity from the commission, to grant a certificate only when the existing motor transportation company or companies serving such territory do not provide the service required or the particular kind of equipment necessary to furnish such service to the satisfaction of the commission, and in all other cases, with or without hearing, to issue such certificates as prayed for, or to refuse to issue the same, or to issue them for the partial exercise only of the privileges sought or to issue such certificates for the use of certain kinds of equipment and for the handling of certain kinds of material or merchandise over such route, and may attach to the exercise of the rights granted by such certificates such terms and conditions as, in its judgment, the public convenience and necessity may require. Where a motor transportation company has been actually operating in good faith upon the date of filing this act in the office of the secretary of state, it shall file with the commission an affidavit showing its principal place of business, full information concerning the physical property, the route over which it has been operating, the schedule or schedules, together with a map of its route, showing the number of miles of route in each municipality and county into, through or along which such route runs or extends, a statement that it has been actually operating over such route or routes in good faith, together with the liability insurance policy or policies required under section 614-99 of the General Code, and thereupon a certificate of public convenience and necessity shall issue, if the commission shall find the statements in said affidavit to be true.

Upon the payment of the fee provided under section 614-94 of the General Code to the commission, such motor transportation company may continue to operate and shall be governed in all respects as if such motor transportation company had made a written application.

The commission may at any time for a good cause suspend, and upon at least five days' notice to the grantee of any certificate and an opportunity to be heard, revoke, alter or amend any certificate issued under the provisions of this act.

On finding of the public utilities commission that any motor transportation company does not give convenient and necessary service in accordance with the order of such commission such motor transportation company shall be given a reasonable time, not less than sixty days, to provide such service before any existing certificate is cancelled or a new one granted over the route mentioned in the finding and order of or hearing before the public utilities commission. (110 v. 215.)

Section 614-88. (Consent to operate must be first secured.) Except as provided in section 614-84, no corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, shall operate any automobile, jitney, bus, truck, stage, auto stage, or rent for hire car, for the transportation of persons or property or both, for compensation, over any public street, road or highway in this state between fixed termini or over a regular or irregular route, over which any motor transportation company is operating under a certificate of convenience and necessity issued by the commission as provided in this act, until such corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, shall have secured a certificate of public convenience and necessity or permission from the commission to so operate, and then only in strict accordance with such rules as the commission may prescribe for such operation. (110 v. 216.)

Section 614-89. (Applications and complaints made and filed with commission.) In all respects in which the public utilities commission has power or authority under this act, applications and complaints may be made and filed with such commission, processes issued, hearings held, opinions, orders and decisions made and filed, petitions for re-hearings filed and acted upon, and all proceedings before the supreme court of this state considered and disposed of by such court in the manner, under the conditions and subject to the limitations and with the effect specified in the sections of the General Code governing the supervision of other public utilities by the commission. (110 v. 216.)

Section 614-90. (Rules governing application for certificates of public convenience and necessity.) The commission shall adopt rules prescribing the manner and form in which such motor transportation companies as defined in this act shall apply for the certificates of public convenience and necessity. Among other rules adopted there shall be the following:

(a) Application shall be made in writing on the blanks furnished by the commission and shall show the principal office or place of business and residence of such motor transportation company.

(b) Shall contain full information concerning the physical property used or to be used by the applicant.

(c) The complete route over which the applicant operates or desires to operate, showing the number of miles of said route in each municipality and county.

(d) The proposed time schedule or schedules or time cards of the applicant, if operating between fixed termini or over a regular route.

(e) The schedule or tariff showing the passenger or freight rates to be charged between the several points, if operating between fixed termini or over a regular route. (110 v. 216.)

Section 614-91. (Publication of notice of application. Hearing.) Such application shall contain a map, showing the highway or highways and public places upon and over which such motor transportation company is to operate, and the number and kind of motor vehicles to be used in carrying on the business of such motor transportation company. The applicant shall give notice of the filing of such application by publication made once a week for three weeks immediately prior to the day set for said hearing, in a newspaper of general circulation published at the county seat of each county in or through which the applicant proposes to operate, or in one newspaper published in and of general circulation throughout the territory in or through which the applicant proposes to operate. Such published notice shall state the fact that such application has been made, the route proposed to be operated, the number of motor vehicles to be used, the number of trips to be made daily, and the name and address of the applicant. The commission shall, after the filing of such application, fix a date within thirty days for hearing upon the same, unless the commission in its discretion deems such hearing unnecessary and the best interests of the public require that said application be granted or rejected without such hearing. When a date for the hearing is fixed the commission shall give the applicant at least ten days' notice of such hearing. The applicant shall have the right, either before or after hearing or action by the commission to amend, modify or alter such application by filing with the commission an amendment to such application or a supplemental application which shall in turn be considered by the commission and be governed in the same manner as is provided in case of an original application. (110 v. 217.)

Section 614-92. (Operation restricted to specified routes.)

Except as otherwise expressly provided, it shall be unlawful for any motor transportation company as defined in this act to operate in this state on any route, other than the route provided for in the certificate granted by the commission; or to fail or refuse to operate on the whole of the route, in the manner and at the time specified in the certificate; except in case of emergency due to the act of God or unavoidable accident or casualty or the route becoming impassable, or in case it becomes necessary to make temporary detours; and it shall be unlawful for any such motor transportation company to neglect or refuse to comply with and obey any and all regulations and orders of the commission and other statutory laws and regulations of the state of Ohio governing and applying to such motor vehicles, provided, however, that nothing in this act shall prohibit a motor transportation company as defined hereunder and not operating between fixed termini from making casual trips over routes established hereunder. (110 v. 217.)

Section 614-93. (New application may be filed.) Any motor transportation company as defined in this chapter may, at any time after a certificate is granted or refused, file a new application or supplement any former application, for the purpose of changing, extending or shortening the route, or increasing or decreasing the number of vehicles, or for the doing of any other act or thing which the applicant might be permitted to do under the general statutory laws and regulations of the state of Ohio. (110 v. 218.)

Section 614-94. (Taxes paid to treasurer of state. Rates. Trailer.) Every motor transportation company now operating or which shall hereafter operate in this state shall at the time of the issuance of such certificate, and annually thereafter on or between January 1st and January 15th of each calendar year, pay to the treasurer of state the following taxes for the expense of the administration and enforcement of the provisions of sections 614-84 to 614-102 of the General Code, and for the maintenance and repair of the highways of the state; all taxes levied upon the issuance of a certificate to any motor transportation company shall be reckoned as from the beginning of the quarter in which such certificate is issued.

For each motor propelled vehicle operating between fixed termini or over a regular route, carrying seven passengers or less, forty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than seven but not more than twelve passengers, ninety dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than twelve but not more than eighteen passengers, one hundred and forty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than eighteen but not more than twenty-four passengers, one hundred and eighty dollars; and for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than twenty-four passengers, two hundred and thirty dollars.

For each motor propelled vehicle not operating between fixed termini or over a regular route, carrying seven passengers or less, twenty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than seven but not more than twelve passengers, fifty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than twelve but not more than eighteen passengers, ninety dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than eighteen but not more than twenty-four passengers, one hundred and fifteen dollars; and for each such motor propelled vehicle carrying more than twenty-four passengers, one hundred and fifty dollars.

For each motor propelled vehicle used for transporting property between fixed termini or over a regular route the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is one and three-fourths tons or less, forty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is more than one and three-fourths tons but not more than two and one-half tons, eighty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is more than two and one-half but not more than three and one-half tons, one hundred and forty dollars; and for each such motor propelled vehicle the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is more than three and one-half tons, two hundred dollars.

For each motor propelled vehicle used for transporting property not between fixed termini or over a regular route the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is one and three-fourths tons or less, twenty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is more than one and three-fourths but not more than two and one-half tons, fifty dollars; for each such motor propelled vehicle the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is more than two and one-half but not more than three and one-half tons, one hundred dollars; and for each such motor propelled vehicle the manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of which is more than three and one-half tons, one hundred and fifty dollars.

For each motor propelled vehicle used by any such company for transporting both persons and property simultaneously the tax shall be computed on the basis of either tonnage or passenger capacity and the basis which yields the greater revenue shall apply.

A trailer used by a motor transportation company hereunder shall be taxed at a rate equal to twenty percent of that levied upon the vehicle by which it is drawn.

In case of emergency, or unusual temporary demands for transportation, the taxes for additional motor propelled vehicles for limited periods shall be fixed by the commission in such reasonable amounts as may be prescribed by general rule or temporary order. (110 v. 218.)

Section 614-95. (Division of tax. Duties of treasurer of state with regard to taxes.) The treasurer of state shall open an account with each municipal corporation and county into, through or along which the route of each such motor transportation company runs or extends, and shall apportion fifty percent of the taxes imposed by section 614-94 in accordance with the lineal miles of route in each municipi-pal corporation and county. The remaining fifty percent of such taxes shall belong to the state of Ohio and shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the state maintenance and repair fund.

The treasurer of state shall be the custodian of such funds and shall disburse the same in the manner provided in section 614-96 of the General Code. The treasurer of state is hereby authorized to deposit any portion of the funds due municipal corporations and counties into, through or along which the route runs or extends, not needed for immediate distribution, in the same manner and subject to all the provisions of law with respect to the deposit of active state funds by such treasurer; and all interest earned by such funds so deposited shall be collected by him and placed in the state treasury to the credit of the "state maintenance and repair fund." On the first business day of each month, the auditor of state on the requisition of the treasurer of state shall draw and transmit to the auditor of each county a warrant on the treasurer of state for the amount of the tax collections apportioned to the municipal corporations and counties into, through or along which the route of such motor transportation company runs and extends, accompanying the same with a statement showing the distribution of the amount represented thereby to each such municipal corporation or county. The county auditor shall certify the amount so transmitted into the county treasury to be disposed of as herein provided (110 v. 219.)

Section 614-96. (Distribution of revenue.) The revenue collected under the provisions of section 614-94 of the General Code shall be distributed as follows:

(1) Fifty percentum of all taxes collected under section 614-94 of the General Code shall be for the use of the municipal corporations or counties into, through and along which the route of such motor transportation company runs and extends. Such moneys shall be paid into the treasury of the proper county as provided herein and the proper portions distributed to the municipal corporations in accordance with the miles of route in such municipal corporation. In the treasuries of such municipal corporations and counties, such money shall constitute a fund which shall be used for the maintenance and repair of public roads, highways and streets and for no other purpose, and shall not be subject to transfer to any other fund. "Maintenance and repair" as used in this section includes all work done upon any public road or highway or upon any street, in which the existing foundation thereof is used as the sub-surface of the improvement thereof, in whole or in substantial part.

(2) The "state maintenance and repair fund" shall be available for the use of the public utilities commission of Ohio in defraying the expenses incident to maintaining the bureau of the department for carrying out and enforcing the provisions of sections 614-84 to 614-102, inclusive, of the General Code, including the payment of salaries, traveling expenses, printing and other expenses, and for the use of the director of highways and public works in the manner provided by law. The General Assembly shall make appropriations therefrom for such purpose. (110 v. 220.)

Section 614-97. (Qualifications of chauffeur or driver. Examination and license of drivers.) It shall be unlawful for any motor transportation company as defined in this chapter to cause, allow or permit any motor propelled vehicle operated by it as a motor transportation company to be driven by any person under the age of twenty-one years; and such person shall be an American citizen and shall be skilled in the art of driving such public motor vehicle, and without physical disabilities or personal habits which would disqualify him or make him an unsuitable person to serve as driver of such public motor vehicle.

For the purpose of determining the qualifications of such chauffeur or driver, the secretary of state shall be governed by section 6302 of the General Code, in so far as the same may be applicable. Upon the issuance of the certificate to drive, the applicant shall pay the registration fee and no further fee shall be charged or examination required by the state or any local authorities in the state. The term "local authorities" as used herein means all officers, boards and commissions of counties, cities, villages or townships. In case of sickness, accident or other emergency, any other licensed driver may be substituted. (110 v. 221.)

Section 614-98. (Fees, Charges, etc.) The fees and charges provided under section 614-94 of the General Code shall be in addition to taxes, fees and charges fixed and exacted by other provisions of the general laws of Ohio; except the assessments required by section 606 of the General Code, but all fees, license fees, annual payments, license tax, or taxes or other money exactions, except the general property tax, assessed, charged, fixed or exacted by local authorities, such as municipalities, townships, counties, or other local boards, or the officers of such subdivisions shall be deemed to be illegal and be superseded by this act. On such motor transportation company complying with the provisions of this act, all local ordinances, resolutions, by-laws and rules in force shall cease to be operative as to them, except that such local subdivisions may make reasonable local police regulations within their respective boundaries not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. (110 v. 221.)

Section 614-99. (Insurance policy or bond must be filed with commission.) No certificate of convenience and necessity shall be issued by the commission to any motor transportation company until such motor transportation company shall have filed with the commission a liability insurance policy or bond satisfactory to the commission in such sum and with such other terms and provisions as the commission may deem necessary adequately to protect the interests of the public having due regard for the number of persons and amount of property affected, which policy, policies or bonds shall insure the motor transportation company against loss sustained by reason of the death of or injuries to persons and for loss of or damage to property resulting from the negligence of such motor transportation company.

Such policy or bond shall further provide that ten days' notice in writing shall be given to the public utilities commission of intention to cancel such policy of insurance.

If such policy or bond is cancelled during the term thereof or in event the same should lapse for any reason, the commission shall require such motor transportation company to replace such policy or bond with another fully complying with the requirements of this section, and in default thereof the certificate shall be deemed revoked. (110 v. 221.)

Section 614-100. (Penalty for violation.) Every officer, agent or employe of any corporation, and every other person who violates or fails to comply with or who procures, aids or abets in the violation of any provision of sections 614-84 to 614-102, inclusive, of the General Code, or who fails to obey, observe or comply with any order, decision, rule or regulation, direction, demand or requirement, or any part or provision thereof, of the public utilities commission, or who procures, aids or abets any corporation or person in his failure to obey, observe or comply with any such order, decision, demand or regulation, or any part or provision thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (110 v. 222.)

Section 614-101. (Interstate commerce only.) Neither sections 614-84 to 614-102, inclusive, of the General Code, nor any provisions thereof, shall apply or be construed to apply to commerce with foreign nations or countries, or among the several states of this Union, except in so far as the same may be permitted under the provisions of the constitution of the United States and the acts of congress. (110 v. 222.)

Section 614-102. (Each section and part thereof independent.) Each section of this act [G. C. §§ 614-84 to 614-102], and every part thereof, is hereby declared to be independent sections and parts of sections, and the holding of any section or part thereof to be void or ineffective for any cause shall not affect any other section or part thereof. (110 v. 222.)

Section 615. (Superintendent of insurance.) This section which provided for the appointment and term of office of the superintendent of insurance was repealed in 1921. (109 v. 132.) By section 154-39 the powers of the superintendent of insurance are vested in the department of commerce.

Section 617. (Duties of superintendent.) The superintendent of insurance shall see that the laws relating to insurance are duly executed and enforced. When violation of a law relating to insurance is reported to him, he shall take or cause to be taken the testimony under oath of any and all persons supposed to have knowledge of such violation, and cause such testimony to be reduced to writing. If of opinion that there is sufficient evidence, he shall cause the person suspected of such violation to be arrested and charged with such offense, and furnish the proper prosecuting attorney all information obtained by him, the names of witnesses and a copy of all material testimony taken in the case. (R. S. Sec. 268; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 265; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 3.)

This section authorizes the superintendent to revoke the license of a foreign insurance company for violations of the Ohio insurance laws, although such violation is not, by statute, expressly made a cause of forfeiture. State v. Tomlinson, 101 O. S. 459 (1920).

The license of a foreign insurance broker (see § 644-2) may be revoked if the broker uses his license in the interest of an unlicensed foreign broker. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 909.

Quo warranto is the proper remedy to test the validity of a license issued to an insurance company. State v. Gearheart, 104 O. S. 422 (1922).

Section 623. (Powers to compel the attendance of witnesses.) The superintendent of insurance, or when directed by him under his official seal, the deputy superintendent or warden, may summon and compel by order or subpoena the attendance of witnesses to testify in relation to any matter, which, by the laws of this state relating to insurance, is the subject of inquiry and investigation, and require the production of any book, paper or document pertaining to such matter. For such purpose they shall have the same power which is by law vested in justices of the peace to compel the attendance of witnesses and punish them for refusal to testify. Sheriffs and constables are required to serve and return any such process, and shall receive the same fees therefor as are allowed by law for like services. Witnesses shall receive the fees and mileage allowed in civil actions in courts of common pleas. All such fees, upon the presentation of proper vouchers approved by the superintendent of insurance, shall be paid out of the appropriation for the contingent fund of the insurance department. The fees and mileage of witnesses not summoned by the superintendent of insurance, deputy superintendent or warden shall not be paid by the state. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 543; R. S. Sec. 269; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 265; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 549; April 26, 1898, 93 v. 292; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 4.)

Section 624. (Instruments under seal of the superintendent.) A certificate, assignment or conveyance executed in pursuance of law by the superintendent of insurance with the seal of his office thereto affixed shall be received as evidence and may be recorded in the same manner and with like effect as a deed duly acknowledged by an officer authorized by law. In all cases copies of papers in the office of the superintendent, certified by him under the seal of his office, shall be equal to the original as evidence. (R. S. Sec. 271; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 5.)

Section 625. (Examination of insurance companies.) The superintendent of insurance, or a person appointed by him for that purpose, may make an examination of the affairs of any insurance company doing business in this state. Such company, its officers and agents shall submit their books and business to such examination and in every way facilitate it. The superintendent shall make or cause to be made each year an examination of the assets of every life insurance company organized under the laws of this state, and ascertain whether such assets are invested in the manner prescribed by law at the date such investments were made, and whether the last preceding annual statement of assets and unpaid death claims was correct. (R. S. Sec. 272; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 415; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 549; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 576, § 7; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 12.)

Insurance companies organized under special charters prior to the constitution of 1851 are subject to this section.

State v. Eagle Insurance Co. 50 O. S. 252 affirmed 153 U. S. 446.

Section 626. (Authority of examiners.) For the purpose of such examination, the superintendent, or other person so appointed, shall have authority to administer oaths to and examine the officers and agents of such insurance company relating to its business and affairs. If he deems it to the interest of the public, the superintendent may publish the result of such investigation in a newspaper printed at the seat of government and of general circulation in the state, and also a newspaper printed in the county where the principal office of such company is located. (R. S. Sec. 273; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 8.)

Section 627-1. (Authority and power of superintendent of insurance.) The superintendent of insurance is authorized and empowered to make written requisitions upon the officers or directors of any national bank, state bank, state bank and trust company or private bank, of this state, for such information as he may require relating to the financial transactions of any of such institutions with any insurance company, fraternal beneficiary association or assessment association authorized to do business in this state. (May 14, 1910, 101 v. 102, § 1.)

Section 627-2. (Duty of bank officers.) It shall be the duty of any officer or director of any such bank or trust company upon the receipt of such requisition, or within five days thereafter, to furnish to such superintendent in writing all the information called for in such requisition and in such manner and form as therein directed. (April 14, 1910, 101 v. 102, § 2.)

Section 627-3. (Penalty.) Any officer or director of any such bank or trust company who fails, neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of section two of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be fined not more than $500.00 nor less than $25.00. (April 14, 1910, 101 v. 103, § 3.)

Section 628. (Unsound companies.) If it appears to the superintendent of insurance upon satisfactory evidence that the assets of an insurance company organized under the laws of this state after deducting therefrom all liabilities including reinsurance, reserve or unearned premium fund, computed according to the laws of this state, are reduced twenty per cent or more below the capital required by law, he shall require such company to restore such deficiency within such period as he designates in such requisition. (R. S. Sec. 274; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 416; April 26, 1873, 70 v. 165, § 9.)

This section and § 629 confer powers and duties upon the superintendent of insurance, but do not confer power upon a court of equity, in the first instance, at the suit of stockholders and creditors, to wind up the affairs of an insurance company.

Benson v. Columbia Life Ins. Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 113.

Illegal method of restoring impaired capital. An insurance company can not make good its impaired capital stock by organizing a holding company, transferring its stock to the holding company, and having the holding company borrow the amount of the impairment on the stock so transferred.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, pp. 558, 561.

Unpaid assessment on stock. Right of company to withhold dividends. Where a stockholder, liable to assessment on his stock, failed to pay an assessment under this section, it was held that the insurance company had a right to withhold dividends subsequently declared, and to credit them on the unpaid assesment.

Rhodes v. Equitable, etc., Co., 3 C. C. 501; 2 C. D. 288.

A reinsurance reserve fund is not a debt which may be deducted in making returns for taxation.

Insurance Co. v. Cappellar, 38 O. S. 560.

Section 629. (Restrictions on unsound companies.) If such deficiency is more than forty per cent of the capital required by law, such company shall not thereafter issue any new policies or transact any new business until it receives from the superintendent of insurance a license authorizing it to do business, or until so authorized by a court in a proper proceeding therein. If the deficiency is more than twenty per cent and less than forty per cent of the capital required by law, and the officers of the company certify that the deficiency will be restored by the company, such company may continue business for thirty days from the date of such requisition. If at the expiration of the thirty days any portion of the deficiency is not restored, the company shall not thereafter issue new policies or transact new business until authorized by the superintendent or by a court in a proper proceeding therein. (R. S. Sec. 274; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 416; April 26, 1873, 70 v. 165, § 9.)

Section 633. (Action by attorney general.) Upon default of a company to comply with such requisition of the superintendent of insurance, the superintendent shall communicate the fact to the attorney general, who shall apply to the court of common pleas of the county in which the principal office of the company is located for an order requiring such company to show cause why its business should not be closed. The attorney general shall give the company such notice of the pendency of the application as the court directs, and thereupon the court shall hear the allegations and proof of the respective parties, or refer the application of the attorney general to a referee. (R. S. Sec. 276; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 416; April 26, 1873, 70 v. 165, § 11.)

Section 634. (Dissolution of unsound companies.) If it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the assets of such company are reduced below the amount so required by law, or that the interest of the public so requires, the court shall decree a dissolution of the company and a distribution of its assets. A transfer of stock of a company made during the pendency of such investigation shall not release the party making the transfer from his liability for losses which have occurred previous to the transfer. (R. S. Sec. 276; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 416; April 26, 1873, 70 v. 165, § 11.)

Section 634-1. (Application of sections 634-1 to 634-7.) This act shall apply to all domestic corporations, associations, societies and orders to which any insurance law of this state is applicable; the words "corporation" or "corporations" herein shall also include all such associations, societies or orders. (April 12, 1910, 101 v. 114, § 1.)

Section 634-2. (Superintendent to take charge of property in certain cases. Attorney general to represent superintendent.) Whenever any such corporation (a) is insolvent; or (b) has refused to submit its books, papers, accounts or affairs to the reasonable inspection of the superintendent of insurance of this state, or his deputy or examiner; or (c) has neglected or refused to observe an order of the superintendent to make good within the time prescribed by law any deficiency, whenever its capital, if it be a stock corporation, or its reserve, if it be a mutual corporation, shall have become impaired to the extent of twenty per cent.; or (d) has, by contract or reinsurance or otherwise, transferred or attempted to transfer substantially its entire property or business, or entered into any transaction the effect of which is to merge substantially its entire property or business in the property or business of any other corporation, association, society or order, without having first obtained the written approval of the superintendent; or (e) is found, by the superintendent of insurance to be in such condition that its further transaction of business will be hazardous to its policy holders, or to its creditors, or to the public; or (f) has willfully violated its charter or any law of the state; or (g) whenever any officer thereof has refused to be examined under oath by the superintendent of insurance touching its affairs, the superintendent may, the attorney general representing him, apply to the supreme court or any judge thereof or to the court of appeals of Franklin county or to the court of appeals of the county in which the principal office of such corporation is located for an order directing such corporation to show cause why the superintendent should not take possession of its property and conduct its business, and for such other relief as the nature of the case and the interests of its policy holders, creditors, stockholders or the public may require. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 407; April 12, 1910, 101 v. 115, § 2.)

Section 634-3. (Injunction.) On such application or at any time thereafter, such court may, in its discretion, issue an injunction restraining such corporation from the transaction of its business or disposition of its property until the further order of the court. On the return of such order to show cause, the court shall either deny the application or direct the superintendent forthwith to take possession of the property and conduct the business of such corporation, and retain such possession and conduct such business until, on the application either of the superintendent, the attorney general representing him, or of such corporation, it shall, after a like hearing, appear to the court that the ground for such order directing the superintendent to take possession has been removed and that the corporation can properly resume possession of its property and the conduct of its business, and such corporation shall have the right to prosecute appeal or error from such order as provided in other cases. (April 12, 1910, 101 v. 115, § 3.)

plication and order to show cause, and after a full hearing, the court shall order the liquidation of the business of such corporation, such liquidation shall be made by and under the direction of the superintendent, who may deal with the property and business of such corporation in his own name as superintendent or in the name of the corporation, as the court may direct, and shall be vested by operation of law with title to all of the property, contracts and rights of action of such corporation as of the date of the order so directing him to liquidate. The filing or recording of such order in any record office of the state shall impart the same notice that a deed, bill of sale or other evidence of title duly filed or recorded by such corporation would have imparted. (April 12, 1910, 101 v. 116, § 4.)

Section 634-5. (Special deputy, clerks, etc. Special counsel.) For the purposes of this act, the superintendent shall have power to appoint, under his hand and official seal when necessary, a special deputy superintendent of insurance, as his agent, and to employ such clerks as may by him be deemed necessary, and give each of such persons such powers to assist him as he may consider wise. The compensation of such special deputy superintendent, and clerks, and all expenses of taking possession of and conducting the business or of liquidating any such corporation shall be fixed by the superintendent, subject to the approval of the court, and shall, on certificate of the superintendent, be paid out of the funds or assets of such corporation. The attorney general shall act as counsel for the superintendent under this act and neither shall receive any compensation therefor in addition to their regular salary as fixed by law. Provided, however, that the attorney general may, whenever it shall become necessary in the course of his duties hereunder, employ special counsel to aid him, and the compensation of such special counsel shall be fixed by the attorney general, subject to the approval of the court and shall, on certificate of the superintendent of insurance, be paid out of the funds or assets of such corporation. (April 12, 1910, 101 v. 116, § 5.)

Section 634-6. (Rules and regulations.) For the purposes of this act, the superintendent shall have power, subject to the approval of the court, to make and prescribe such rules and regulations as to him shall seem proper, provided however that summons as in other cases shall first be served upon such corporation. (April 12, 1910, 101 v. 116, § 6.)

Section 634-7. (Annual report; contents.) The superintendent shall, in his annual report include the names of the corporations so taken possession of, whether the same have resumed business or have been liquidated, and such other facts as shall acquaint the policyholders, creditors, stockholders and the public with his proceedings in respect to such corporations so taken possession of, and, to that end, the special deputy superintendent in charge of any corporation shall file annually with the superintendent on the first day of July or sooner if the situation so requires, a report of the affairs of such corporation similar to that required by law to be filed by such corporation. (106 v. 513; April 12, 1910, 101 v. 116, § 7.)

Section 634-8. (Unpaid losses are preferred claims.) When a domestic fire insurance company, whether stock or mutual becomes insolvent, or is unable to pay in full its liabilities, unpaid losses arising from the contingencies insured against by the contracts shall, in the distribution of its assets, whether liquidation is affected by a receiver or otherwise, be deemed and treated as preferred claims over claims for return premiums on uncompleted contracts. But nothing in this act shall impair the obligations imposed by law upon the officers of a mutual company to make assessments to pay all legal obligations of the company. (April 12, 1910, 101 v. 108.)

Section 635. (Authority of unsound insurance company revoked.) If it appears to the superintendent of insurance upon satisfactory evidence that the affairs of an insurance company, partnership, or association, not organized under the laws of this state, are in an unsound condition, he shall revoke the authority granted to such company to do business in this state, and cause a notice thereof to be published in at least one newspaper published at the seat of government, and in a newspaper published in the county of this state where the general agency is located. After the publication of such notice, it shall be unlawful for the agents of such company to procure applications for insurance or to issue policies. (R. S. Sec. 277; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 12.)

See State v. Moore 42 O. S. 103, 106.

Injunction, not mandamus, is the proper remedy to prevent wrongful revocation of the license of an insurance company.

State v. Hahn 50 O. S. 714, 718.

Revocation of authority does not prevent a company from winding up old business. State v. Insurance Co., 22 C. C. n. s. 52 (1907).

Section 636. (Annual valuation of policies.) Each year the superintendent of insurance shall make or cause to be made net valuations of all outstanding policies, additions thereto, unpaid dividends, and all other obligations of each life insurance company transacting business in this state. For the purpose of such valuations, and for making special examinations of the condition of life insurance companies, as provided in the laws of this state relating to life insurance companies, and for valuing all policies of whatever description, and for any purpose whatever, the rate of interest shall be four per cent per annum, and the rate of mortality shall be established by the table known as the American Experience Table, but such valuations may be made according to the standards of valuation adopted by the company for the obligations to be valued, if the total valuation determined by any such standards for the obligations for which they have been adopted shall not be less than that determined by the legal minimum standard herein prescribed, and if such standards of valuation adopted by the company for the obligations to be valued shall not be less than the standards adopted by the company in computing its premiums and guarantees. (R. S. Sec. 279; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 178; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 437; February 7, 1889, 86 v. 11; Rev. Stat. 1880; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 580, § 14.)

Section 637. (When valuation of an officer of another state shall be received.) When the laws of any other state of the United States authorize a valuation of life insurance policies by some designated state officer, according to the standard prescribed in the next preceding section, or according to any other standard which makes the value of the policy not less than that of the standard so prescribed, the valuation made according to such standard, by such officer of the policies and other obligations of any life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state, and certified by such officer, shall be received as true and correct and the superintendent shall require no further valuation of such policies, if such officer accepts a like certificate from the superintendent of insurance of this state of the valuation of the policies of any life insurance company incorporated under the laws of this state. (R. S. Sec. 279; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 178; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 437; February 7, 1889, 86 v. 11; Rev. Stat. 1880; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 580, § 14.)

Section 638. (When valuation of an officer of another state shall not be received.) If such officer of another state of the United States is prohibited by law from accepting the certificate of valuation of the superintendent of insurance of this state, the superintendent shall require the officers of all companies located in such state to submit to him within a reasonable time the description of the policies thereof for valuation, and shall make, or cause to be made, a valuation thereof according to the standard prescribed. If such descriptions are not submitted to the superintendent within the time fixed by him, he shall revoke the license of such company and shall not renew it until such descriptions are submitted and a valuation by him is completed. (R. S. Sec. 279; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 178; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 437; February 7, 1889, 86 v. 11; Rev. Stats. 1880; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 580, §-14.)

Section 639. (When valuation of an officer of another state or country shall be received.) If by the laws of any other state or country an annual valuation of the policies of life insurance companies of such state or country is required to be made by a state officer of such state or by an officer of such country, the valuation so made by such state officer or officer of such country of the policies of any company organized under the laws of the state or country in which such valuation is made in accordance with the standards prescribed by the laws of such state or country may be accepted by the superintendent of insurance of this state, and if so accepted by the superintendent of insurance, such valuation shall stand in the place of any valuation of such policies required to be made by the superintendent of insurance of this state. (R. S. Sec. 279; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 178; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 437; February 7, 1889, 86 v. 11; Rev. Stats. 1880; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 580, § 14.)

See State v. Reinmund, 45 O. S. 214.

Section 640. (Securities to be deposited with state treasurer.) All securities deposited with the superintendent of insurance shall be deposited by him with the treasurer of state, and the treasurer shall not deliver such securities or coupons attached thereto, except upon the written order of the superintendent. No security shall be accepted for deposit by the superintendent unless it is of par and market value of one thousand dollars or more. (R. S. Sec. 281; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 410; April 26, 1873, 70 v. 165, § 16.)

For exceptions see §§ 9459 to 9461.

Attachment of securities. See 3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 531.

Taxation of securities deposited by foreign companies, see § 5437.

Section 641. (Sale and distribution of securities of defaulting companies.) If any company, corporation, or association required by law to make a deposit with the superintendent of insurance, or other state officer, to secure the contracts of such company, corporation, or association, or for any other purpose, fails to pay any of its liabilities upon such contracts, or other obligations, according to the terms thereof after the liability thereon has been determined, or if such company, corporation, or association, having ceased to do business within this state, leaves unpaid any such liability or has become insolvent, the attorney general of the state, on behalf of the superintendent of insurance, or such other officer, and upon the application of any person entitled to participate in such deposit, or the proceeds arising therefrom, shall commence a civil action in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, making the company, corporation, or association, a party defendant, to determine the rights of all parties claiming any interest in such deposit, to subject the deposit to the payment or satisfaction of all liabilities and to distribute such fund among the persons entitled thereto. (R. S. Sec. 281-1; 95 v. 480, § 1.)

See 3 Opins. Attys. Gen., 531.

Upon insolvency of a company, its deposit should be administered by the superintendent of insurance under direction of the Ohio court, for the benefit of Ohio policyholders. The deposit should not be turned over to the legal representatives of the company in the state of its domicile. Turner v. Insurance Co., 8 Ohio App. 285; 28 O. C. A. 113 (1917); Hogan v. Surety Co., 8 Ohio App. 172; 28 O. C. A. 139 (1916); s. c., 18 N. P. n. s. 380.

Section 642. (Notice to claimants.) Upon the filing of the petition in such case, the superintendent of insurance, or other officer, shall cause to be published for six consecutive weeks in three papers of general circulation within the state, one of which shall be published at the seat of government, a notice containing a succinct statement of the object and prayer of the petition in such action, and the time within which persons claiming to have an interest in such fund shall be required to answer. (95 v. 481, § 2; R. S. Sec. 281-2.)

The provision fixing the time for filing claims is not a statute of limitations. The court may, in its discretion, open up a default and permit a tardy claimant to set up his claim. Turner v. Ins. Co., 8 Ohio App. 285; 28 O. C. A. 113 (1917).

Section 643. (Procedure in such case.) The clerk of such court shall forward a copy of such notice to the last known address of such company, corporation or association. The code of civil procedure shall govern such proceedings in so far as it is applicable, and upon the hearing of the cause, such order, judgment or decree shall be entered by the court as is deemed just and equitable. (95 v. 481, §§ 2, 3; R. S. Secs. 281-2, 281-3.)

Section 644. (Agents license; appointment upon written notice; revocation or cancellation; renewal.) No person shall procure, receive, or forward applications for insurance unless a resident of this state and duly licensed by the superintendent of insurance. Upon written notice by an insurance company authorized to transact business in this state of its appointment of a person to act as its agent the superintendent of insurance shall, if he is satisfied that the appointee is a suitable person, and intends to hold himself out in good faith as an insurance agent, issue to him a license which shall state, in substance, that the company is authorized to do business in this state and that the person named therein is the constituted agent of the company in this state for the transaction of such business as it is authorized to transact therein. Such notice shall be upon a form furnished by the superintendent of insurance and shall be accompanied by a statement under oath by the appointee which shall give his name, age, residence, present occupation, his occupation for the five years next preceding the date of the notice, and such other information, if any, as the superintendent of insurance may require, upon a blank furnished by him. The superintendent of insurance after the granting of such license, for cause shown, and after a hearing may determine any person so appointed, or any person heretofore appointed as agent, to be unsuitable to act as such agent, and shall thereupon revoke such license and notify both the company and the agent of such revocation. Unless revoked by the superintendent of insurance, or unless the company by written notice to the superintendent cancels the agent's authority to act for it, such license and any other license issued to an agent or any renewal thereof shall expire on the last day of February next after its issue. But any license issued and in force when this act takes effect or thereafter issued, may, in the discretion of the superintendent, be renewed for a succeeding year or years by a renewal certificate without the superintendent's requiring the detailed information required by this act. A foreign company shall pay a fee of two dollars for every such license and for each renewal thereof. While such license remains in force, a foreign company shall be bound by the acts of the person named therein within his apparent authority as its acknowledged agent. (107 v. 698; R. S. Sec. 283; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 411; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 18.)

The sale of a fire insurance agency business, with good will, does not affect the right of the insurance companies to revoke the authority of the purchaser and to appoint a new agent. Custom of insurance agents does not entitle the purchaser to an injunction against the new agent, to prevent the securing of renewals by the new agent. Bryson Co. v. Archer, 18 C. C. n. s. 437 (1912); aff'd, no rep. 89 O. S. 413.

Where a life insurance agent promises to pay another person a commission upon the first premiums paid by persons recommended by him to the agent, this section does not bar a recovery on such promise.

Section 644-1. (Employment of solicitors by agents; solicitor's license; revocation.) Any agent duly authorized and licensed as provided in the preceding section, and representing one or more insurance corporations within this state, may employ such solicitors as he may desire to represent him and his agency, but such solicitors shall not represent themselves, by advertisement or otherwise, as agents of insurance companies for which their employer may be the authorized agent, and such solicitors shall in all instances represent themselves only as solicitors for said authorized agent. Upon written notice by any such duly authorized and licensed agent that he has employed such person as a solicitor, the superintendent of insurance shall, if he is satisfied that such solicitor is a suitable person, and intends to hold himself out in good faith as a solicitor of insurance, issue to him a license in such form as may be prepared by the superintendent, and such notice shall be upon a form furnished by the superintendent of insurance and shall be accompanied by a statement under oath by the solicitor which shall give his name, age, residence, present occupation, his occupation for the five years next preceding the date of the notice, and such other information, if any, as the superintendent of insurance may require, upon a blank furnished by him. The superintendent of insurance may at any time after the granting of such license, for cause shown, and after a hearing determine any person so employed to be unsuitable to act as such solicitor and shall thereupon revoke such license and notify both the agent and the solicitor of such revocation. Unless revoked by the superintendent of insurance, or unless the agent by written notice to the superintendent cancels the solicitor's authority as such solicitor, such license and any other license issued to a solicitor or any renewal thereof shall expire on the last day of February next after its issue. But any license may, in the discretion of the superintendent, be renewed for a succeeding year or years by a renewal certificate without the superintendent's requiring the detailed information required in this section. The agent giving such notice shall pay to the superintendent of insurance a fee of two dollars for every such license and for each renewal thereof. The issuance of a solicitor's license shall be limited to natural persons who shall be residents of the state of Ohio. (107 v. 698.)

Section 644-2. (Broker's license, resident and outside state. Application in writing; contents; revocation of license.) The superintendent of insurance may upon the payment of ten dollars issue to any suitable person resident in any other state, a license to act as an insurance broker to negotiate contracts of insurance or reinsurance or place risks or effect insurance or reinsurance, with any qualified domestic insurance company or its agent or with the authorized agent in this state of any foreign insurance company duly admitted to do business in this state and not otherwise upon the following conditions: The applicant for such a license shall file with the superintendent of insurance an application which shall be in writing upon a form to be provided by the superintendent, and shall be executed by the applicant under oath and kept on file by the superintendent of insurance. Such application shall state the name, age, resident and occupation of the applicant at the time of making application, his occupation for the five years next preceding the date of filing the application, and shall state that the applicant intends to hold himself out and carry on business in good faith as an insurance broker, and shall give such other information as the superintendent may require. The application shall be accompanied by a statement upon a blank furnished by the superintendent of insurance as to the trustworthiness and competency of the applicant, signed by at least three reputable citizens of this state. If the superintendent of insurance is satisfied that the applicant is trustworthy and competent and intends to hold himself out and carry on business in good faith as an insurance broker, he may issue to him the license applied for. The superintendent may at any time after the granting of a broker's license, for cause shown, and after a hearing, determine that the licensee has not complied with the insurance laws or is not trustworthy or competent, or is not holding himself out and actually carrying on business as an insurance broker, or is not a suitable person to act as such broker, or has placed insurance on risks in this state in companies or other insurers not authorized to transact business in this state, and he shall thereupon revoke the license of such broker and notify him that the license has been revoked. Such broker's license shall expire on the last day of February next after its issue, unless sooner revoked by the superintendent of insurance for cause. The superintendent of insurance shall publish a notice of the revocation of a broker's license in such manner as he deems proper for the protection of the public. Brokers' licenses issued on application as herein provided may, in the discretion of the superintendent of insurance, be renewed upon the payment of the proper fees without his requiring anew the details required in the original application. (107 v. 698.)

A foreign broker licensed under this section is not authorized to maintain a resident representative in Ohio. He is authorized to deal only with the parties specified in § 644-2. An Ohio corporation, organized and controlled by such a foreign broker, engaged in soliciting business for him, is not entitled to a license. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 909.

A licensed foreign broker is not authorized to negotiate insurance contracts in Ohio for an unlicensed foreign broker. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 909.

Section 644-3. (When license shall be refused or revoked.) It shall be the duty of the superintendent of insurance to withhold any license applied for, or revoke any license to any agent, solicitor or broker when he is satisfied that the principal use of such license is to effect insurance upon the property of such agent, broker or solicitor, or to evade or violate the provisions of section 9589-1 of the General Code. (107 v. 698.)

Section 644-4. (Payment of commission, etc., except to licensed agent prohibited.) It shall be unlawful for any insurance company authorized to do business in this state to pay or allow or cause to be paid or allowed for negotiating any contract of insurance on any property within the state of Ohio any commission, consideration, money or other thing of value to any person, firm or corporation not licensed in accordance with the provisions of this act. [G. C. §§ 644 to 644-5.] (107 v. 698.)

Section 644-5. (Application of act.) Nothing in this act shall be construed as modifying or repealing the provisions of section 654-1 and section 5438 of the General Code nor shall the provisions hereof apply to insurance companies other than companies organized or admitted for the purposes provided in sub-division 1 of section 9510 of the General Code, nor shall it apply to mutual protective associations nor to companies operating on the mutual or assessment plan, organized under the laws of Ohio. (107 v. 698.)

Section 645. (When non-residents may not act as agent.) The superintendent of insurance shall issue no license to any person as agent of an insurance company if such person is a resident of a state which by its laws, prohibits residents of this state from acting as agents of insurance companies in such state, and if the superintendent is satisfied that any person holding a license as such agent is a resident of such state, he shall revoke such license. (R. S. Sec. 283a; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 152.)

Section 646. (Certificate of compliance.) Upon the filing of each of its annual statements or as soon thereafter as practicable, the superintendent of insurance shall issue to each insurance company or association authorized to do business in this state, a certificate that it has complied with the laws of this state. Such certificate of compliance shall also contain a statement of the amounts of its paid up capital stock, assets, liabilities, income and expenditures for the preceding year, as shown by its annual statement for that year. The superintendent shall issue to each newly applying company or association which he finds should be authorized to do business in this state, a certificate that it has complied with the laws of this state, which certificate shall contain a statement of the amounts of its paid up capital stock, assets, liabilities, income and expenditures as shown by a financial statement submitted by it under the oath of its officers. (R. S. Sec. 284; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 405; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, §§ 19, 21; S. & S. 227.)

It is said that the superintendent of insurance should refuse a certificate to an insurance company, the majority of whose stock is owned by a holding company.

Section 650. (Certificate as to circulation of newspaper.)

Before publication of any such certificate, the manager, editor or proprietor of a newspaper shall certify under oath on a prepared blank, furnished him on application by the superintendent of insurance, the information prescribed in the preceding section, and if such affidavit shows that such newspaper is one of general circulation under the provisions of such section, the superintendent shall deliver to him a certificate that such newspaper is one of general circulation, as defined by the preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 284; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 405; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, §§ 19, 21; S. & S. 227.)

The superintendent shall keep a book in which shall be recorded the names of the newspapers so certified as newspapers of general circulation, which book shall be open to inspection, and every such certificate of circulation shall remain in force until revoked, provided that whenever he deems proper the superintendent may demand further certificates as to the circulation of any such newspaper. Section 654. (Foreign company may appoint general and other agents.) By resolution of its board of directors or managers, an insurance company not organized under the laws of this state may appoint one or more general agents with authority to appoint other agents in this state. A certified copy of such resolution and appointment shall be filed with the superintendent of insurance, and agents so appointed by such general agents, shall be deemed to be the agents of such company as if directly appointed by such company. Agents for such company may be appointed in writing by the president, vice-president, chief manager or secretary thereof, and when so appointed shall be deemed to be the agents of such company as fully as if appointed by the board of directors or managers thereof. Every insurance company organized under the laws of this state and transacting the business of life insurance, or the business of casualty insurance, shall certify under the hand of one of its principal officers or of its duly authorized officer or agent, to the superintendent of insurance of this state, the names and addresses of the persons authorized by it, as its agents, to solicit or place insurance. The authority of such agent shall continue until cancelled by the company by like certificate filed with the superintendent of insurance, unless the authority of the agent shall be revoked by the superintendent of insurance.

The superintendent of insurance shall record the names and addresses so certified in such manner that duly authorized agents and their respective companies may conveniently be inspected.

No person shall act as agent for such company in soliciting or placing insurance, unless the unrevoked certificate of his authority is so filed with the superintendent of insurance.

Upon the conviction of any such insurance agent, for the violation of any insurance law of this state, the superintendent of insurance may revoke the authority of such agent for not more than one year and cancel his name on the records of the superintendent of insurance, and notify the agent and his company or companies of such revocation; and thereafter, such agent shall not act as an insurance agent or transact any insurance business for or on behalf of any insurance company until new certificate or certificates of his authority, by the company or companies thereafter appointing him, shall be duly filed with and approved by the superintendent of insurance.

When a life insurance company doing business in this state decides to discontinue its business, the superintendent of insurance upon application of such company or association shall give notice, at its expense, of such intention at least once a week for six weeks in a paper published and of general circulation in the county in which such company or its general agency is located. After such publication the superintendent shall deliver to such company or association its securities held by him, if he is satisfied on an exhibition of its books and papers, and on an examination made by himself or by some competent disinterested person or persons appointed by him, and upon the oath of the president, or principal officer, and the secretary or actuary of such company, that all debts and liabilities due or to become due upon any contract or agreement made with any citizen or resident of the United States are paid and extinguished; but the superintendent from time to time may deliver to such company or association or its assigns any portion of such securities on being satisfied that an equal proportion of the debts and liabilities due or to become due upon any such contract or agreement have been satisfied, if the amount of securities retained by him is not less than twice the amount of the remaining liabilities. (R. S. Sec. 286; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 22.)

Where a company reinsured all its unmatured risks in conformity with statute, the policyholders having notice thereof and making no objection but paying subsequent premiums to the second company, and a rider was placed by the second company upon each policy, assuming the obligations, the first company is presumably released, and the superintendent of insurance is justified in considering such obligations released and extinguished under § 655. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 588.

After such publication, the superintendent shall deliver to such company or association its securities held by him, if he is satisfied by the affidavits of the principal officers of the company and on an examination made by him or by some competent, disinterested person or persons appointed by him, if he deems it necessary, that all liabilities and obligations which said deposit has been made to secure have been paid and extinguished; but the superintendent may, from time to time, deliver to such company or its assigns, under like condition, any portion of such securities on being satisfied that an equal proportion of said liabilities and obligations have been satisfied, if the amount of securities retained by him is not less than twice the amount of the remaining liabilities and obligations. (March 21, 1913, 103 v. 135; April 28, 1910, 101 v. 147; R. S. Sec. 286a; March 22, 1893, 90 v. 103.)

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, pp. 554, 556.

The amendment of this section (101 v. 147) did not repeal §§ 9373 and 9565.

Section 658. (Retaliatory provision.) When by the laws of any other state, district, territory or nation, any taxes, fines, penalties, license fees, deposits of money, securities, or other obligations, or prohibitions are imposed on insurance companies of this state doing business in such state, district, territory or nation, or upon their agents therein, the same obligations and prohibitions shall be imposed upon insurance companies of such other state, district or nation doing business in this state and upon their agents. Such bond shall be deposited with the secretary of state and kept in his office. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 530; R. S. Sec. 3656-2: April 22, 1908, 97 v. 158, § 2.)

For contract deemed in violation of this section, see Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 340.

Section 667. (When certificates shall expire.) All certificates of authority and licenses of companies, organized or admitted to do business under the provisions of the revised statutes relating to life insurance companies and of their agents, shall expire on the first day of April next after they are issued, and all certificates of authority and licenses of companies organized or admitted to do business under the provisions of the revised statutes relating to insurance companies other than life, and of their agents, shall expire on the first day of March next after they are issued. (R. S.

Sec. 284; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 405; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, §§ 19, 21; S. & S. 227.)

Section 668. (How certain provisions shall apply.) The provisions of this chapter, relating to insurance companies organized under the laws of any other state of the United States shall apply to any company organized under the laws of the United States, for any of the purposes specified in this chapter. The provisions of this chapter relating to agents of companies organized under the laws of any state shall apply to the agents of such companies organized under the laws of the United States. Any violation of the provisions of this chapter by any person, or agent, in the employment of any such company, organized under the laws of the United States, shall subject the offender to the same penalties provided by this chapter for a violation of its provisions by persons acting for similar companies organized under the laws of any other state of the United States. (R. S. Sec. 287; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 23.)

Section 669. (To what associations insurance laws shall not apply.) No law of this state pertaining to insurance shall be construed to apply to the establishment and maintenance by individuals, associations or corporations, of sanatoriums or hospitals for the reception and care of patients for the medical, surgical or hygienic treatment of any and all diseases, or for the instruction of nurses in the care and treatment of diseases and in hygiene, or for any and all such purposes, nor to the furnishing of any or all such services, care or instruction in or in connection with any such institution, under or by virtue of any contract made for such purposes, with residents of the county in which such sanatorium or hospital is located. (R. S. Sec. 289; April 9, 1908, 99 v. 131; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 287; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 533; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 25.)

See Rep. of Atty. Gen. 1909, p. 108.

Section 670. (How provisions of this chapter shall apply.) The provisions herein relating to the superintendent of insurance shall apply to all persons, companies and associations, whether incorporated or not, engaged in the business of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 289; April 9, 1908, 99 v. 131; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 287; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 533; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 25.)

By this section, the insurance laws are made applicable to individuals. It may be questioned whether authority to carry on the business of insurance could be granted to an individual. But if this section be construed to authorize it, the individual would be subject to all the restrictions and requirements of an incorporated company. Renschler v. State, 90 O. S. 363 (1914).

Section 671. (Record of proceedings of superintendent; report.) The superintendent of insurance shall keep and preserve a full record of his proceedings, including a concise statement of the condition of each insurance company or association authorized to transact business in this state. Each year in his annual report, he shall report their general conduct and condition, including the information contained in the statement required of them, arranged in tabular form in two separate reports, one pertaining to life insurance companies and the other to insurance companies other than life. (106 v. 509; May 21, 1910, 101 v. 347; R. S. Sec. 278; March 12, 1872, 69 v. 32, § 13.)

Section 672. (Penalty.) Whoever violates any provision herein relating to the superintendent of insurance or any provision of an insurance law of this state, for the violation of which no penalty is elsewhere provided, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than six months or both. (R. S. Sec. 288; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 331; April 17, 1885, 82 v. 138; 69 v. 32, § 24.)

This section does not preclude a quo warranto proceeding against an unauthorized association.

State v. Ackerman 51 O. S. 163.

Section 673. (Forfeiture.) Any association, company or corporation which violates any provision herein relating to the superintendent of insurance or any insurance law of this state, for the violation of which no forfeiture or penalty is elsewhere provided, shall forfeit and pay not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars to be recovered by an action in the name of the state and on collection paid to the superintendent of insurance to be paid by him into the state treasury. (R. S. Sec. 288; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 331; April 17, 1885, 82 v. 138; 69 v. 32, § 24.)

This section does not preclude a quo warranto proceeding against an unauthorized association.

State v. Ackerman 51 O. S. 163.

BUREAU OF BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Section 674. (Inspector of building and loan associations.) This section was repealed in 1921. (109 v. 132.) By section 154-39 the powers of the inspector of building and loan associations are vested in the department of commerce.

Section 676. (Duties of inspector.) The inspector of building and loan associations shall see that the laws relating to building and loan associations are duly executed and enforced. When a violation of a law relating to building and loan associations is reported to him he shall take, or cause to be taken, the testimony, under oath, of any and all persons supposed to have any knowledge of such violation, and cause such testimony to be reduced to writing. If he be of the opinion that there is sufficient evidence, he shall cause the person suspected of such violation to be arrested and charged with such offense, and shall furnish the attorney general or the proper prosecuting attorney with the information obtained by him, the names of the witnesses and a copy of all material testimony taken in the case. (April 23, 1913, 103 v. 181, § 3; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 532, § 30.)

Section 677-2a. (Divulging information; penalty.) Whoever, being the superintendent of building and loan associations, a deputy, assistant or clerk in his employ or an examiner, fails to keep secret the facts and information obtained in the course of an examination, or by reason of his official position, except when the public duty of such officer requires him to report upon or take official action regarding the affairs of the association so examined, or wilfully makes a false official report as to the condition of such association, shall be removed from office and shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or, imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than five years, or both. Nothing in this section shall prevent the proper exchange of information relating to building and loan associations and the business thereof, with the representatives of building and loan departments of other states, but in no case shall the private business or affairs of any individual, association or company be disclosed. Any official, violating any provision of this section, in addition to the penalties therein provided shall be liable, with his bondsmen, in damages to the person or corporation injured by the disclosure of such secrets. (110 v. 63, § 2.)

Section 677-6. (All instruments sealed with the seal, received in evidence.) Every certificate or other instrument executed, or order made, by the inspector of building and loan associations, in pursuance of any authority conferred upon him by law, and sealed with the seal of his office, or copies thereof duly authenticated under such seal, shall be received in evidence in all courts of this state. (April 23, 1913, 103 v. 182, § 10.)

Section 678. (Requirements from foreign associations.) Foreign building and loan associations doing business in this state shall conduct such business in accordance with the laws governing domestic associations. No foreign building and loan association shall do business in Ohio until it procures from the inspector of building and loan associations a certificate of authority to do business in this state after complying with the following provisions:

1. It shall deposit with the inspector one hundred thousand dollars, in cash or bonds of the United States or this state, or of a county or municipal corporation therein, satisfactory to the inspector.

2. It shall file with the inspector a certified copy of its charter, constitution and by-laws, and other rules and regulations showing its manner of conducting business together with a statement such as is required annually from all associations.

3. It shall also file with the inspector a written instrument, duly executed, agreeing that a summons may issue against it from any county in this state directed to the sheriff of the county in which the office of inspector is situated, commanding him to serve it by certified copy personally upon the inspector or by leaving a copy thereof at his office. The inspector shall mail a copy of any papers served on him to the home office of such association. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 533, § 31; see R. S. Sec. 3836-12; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Foreign associations defined, G. C. § 9643.

Where stock in a foreign association was subscribed for and issued, and a loan made by the foreign association, before enactment of §§ 678 to 681, a subsequent change in the form of the certificate of stock was held not to invalidate the transaction. Demland v. Loan Co., 20 C. C. 223; 11 C. D. 249 (1899).

An advertisement in an Ohio newspaper, by a foreign building and loan association, offering "6% on savings and paid-up stock" is not "doing business" in violation of this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 335.

Section 679. (Certificate of authority to do business.) When a foreign building and loan association has complied with the provisions of the preceding section, and the inspector is satisfied that it is doing business according to the laws of Ohio and is in sound financial condition, he shall issue his certificate of authority to the association to do business in this state. Annually thereafter, upon filing the annual statement herein provided for, if the inspector is satisfied as herein provided, he shall issue a renewal of such certificate. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 533, § 32; see R. S. Sec. 3836-13; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 680. (Collection of interest and exchange of securities.) A foreign building and loan association may collect and use the interest on securities deposited as provided by law so long as it fulfills its obligations and complies with the laws of this state. It may also exchange them for other securities of equal value satisfactory to the inspector. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 534, § 33; see R. S. Sec. 3836-14; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 681. (Securities liable for claimants.) The deposit made by a foreign building and loan association with the inspector of building and loan associations shall be held as a security for all claims of residents of this state against such association, and be liable for all judgments or decrees thereon, and subjected to the payment thereof in the same manner as the property of other non-residents. Should an association cease to do business in this state, the inspector may release securities in his discretion, retaining sufficient to satisfy all outstanding liabilities. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 534, § 34; see R. S. Sec. 3836-15; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 682. (Report.) Every building and loan association doing business in this state, annually at the end of each fiscal year or within forty days thereafter shall make a full and detailed report in writing of the affairs and business of the association for the preceding year, showing its financial condition at the end thereof. (110 v. 64; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 534, § 35; see R. S. Sec. 3836-16; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

An officer of an association making a false report of assets or liabilities, under oath, may be guilty of perjury. State v. Williams, 104 O. S. 232 (1922).

Section 683. Form and contents of report. Time of filing ing report.) The report required in the preceding section shall be in such form and contain such information as is prescribed by the superintendent of building and loan associations. It shall be sworn to by the secretary and its correctness attested by at least three directors or an auditing committee appointed by the board. The original shall be filed with the superintendent of building and loan associations within forty days after the close of the fiscal year. Such an abstract thereof as the superintendent requires shall be posted for sixty days in the office or meeting place of such association and a statement of assets and liabilities shall be published in a newspaper or periodical, regularly issued and of general circulation in the county in which such association is located. Where an association is in process of liquidation the liquidating officer or officers shall make all reports to the superintendent of building and loan associations that are required by law from solvent associations. (110 v. 64; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 534, § 36; see R. S. Sec. 3836-17; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

A monthly magazine is not such a newspaper as is contemplated by this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 863.

Section 684. (Annual examination.) At least once each year the inspector of building and loan associations shall make an examination into the affairs of each such association, or cause it to be made by a person appointed by him for that purpose. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 534, § 37; see R. S. Sec. 3836-18; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 614; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 685. (Expenses of examination.) The expenses of all examinations shall be paid by the state, except that when, by the laws of any other state, district, territory or nation, examinations of such associations of this state are required or permitted to be made by any official or other authority of such other state, district, territory or nation at the expense of such associations, then the expenses of all such examinations made by the inspector of this state, of such associations of that state, district, territory or nation, must be respectively charged to and collected from such associations so examined. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 534, § 37; see R. S. Sec. 3836-18; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 614; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 686. (Revocation of charter for illegal practices.) If upon examination, the inspector of building and loan associations finds any domestic association conducting its business in whole or part contrary to law, or failing to comply therewith, he shall notify the board of directors of such association of such fact in writing. If, after thirty days, such illegal practices or failure continues, he shall communicate the facts to the attorney general, who shall cause proceedings to be instituted in the proper court to revoke the charter of such association. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 535, § 38; see R. S. Sec. 3836-18; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 614; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Suit by the attorney general is not authorized, unless notice is given to the directors as required by this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 648.

If an association is illegally organized or misusing its franchises, the proper remedy is quo warranto. A suit can not be maintained by one stockholder for an accounting of corporate funds and a receiver. Ellis v. Savings Co., 104 O. S. 599 (1922).

Section 687. (Dissolution if condition unsound.) If, upon examination, the inspector of building and loan associations finds that the affairs of a domestic building and loan association are in an unsound condition, and that the interests of the public demand its dissolution and the winding up of its business, he shall so report to the attorney general, who shall institute the proper proceedings for that purpose. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 535, § 39; see R. S. Sec. 3836-18; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 614; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Where the inspector finds the affairs of an association in an unsound condition it is improper for him to permit an officer of the association to personally advance funds to declare and pay a dividend.

Webb v. Stasel 4 N. P. n. s. 587, 589; 17 L. D. 317 (C. P. 1906).

On liquidation, depositors are entitled to interest up to the date of insolvency at the rate agreed upon with the association. After the date of insolvency, they are entitled to six percent interest, if the funds are sufficient. One association having funds in another association has no priority over other depositors unless the deposit was under a trust arrangement. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1020.

Section 688. (Powers of examiners.) An examiner appointed by the inspector of building and loan associations under the provisions herein relating to such associations, shall have access to and may compel the production of all books, papers, securities, moneys and other property of an association under examination. He may administer oaths to, and examine the officers and agents of such association as to its affairs. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 535, § 40; see R. S. Sec. 3836-19; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 689. (Inspector may publish result.) If the inspector of building and loan associations deems it to the interest of the public, he may publish the results of such examination in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which such association is located, if it is a domestic association, and in some newspaper in the city of Columbus if it is a foreign association. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 535, § 41; see R. S. Sec. 3836-20; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 690. (May cancel authority of foreign association.) If upon examination the inspector of building and loan associations finds that a foreign association does not conduct its business in accordance with law, or that its affairs are in an unsound condition, or if it refuses to permit an examination to be made, he may cancel its authority to do business in this state, and cause a notice thereof to be mailed to the home office of the association and published in at least one newspaper published in the city of Columbus. After the publication of such notice no such association or agent thereof shall receive further stock deposits from members residing in this state, except payments on stock on which a loan has been taken. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 535, § 42; see R. S. Sec. 3836-21; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 691. (Fees to be collected.) Foreign building and loan associations shall pay to the superintendent of building and loan associations the following fees:

For filing an application for admission to do business in this state, five hundred dollars.

For each certificate of authority and annual renewal thereof, two hundred dollars.

Every building and loan association doing business in this state, whether foreign or domestic, shall pay to the superintendent of building and loan associations, for filing each annual report, at the time said annual report is filed, the sum of ten dollars, and in addition thereto, one-eightieth of one percent of its assets, as shown in such report unless omitted as hereinafter provided. All such fees collected shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of a fund for the use of the department of building and loan associations, and shall be used upon the order of the superintendent of building and loan associations, and shall not be used or paid out or appropriated for any other purpose.

(Collection omitted.) In any year when in the opinion of the superintendent of building and loan associations the amount of such fund on hand at the close of business, June 30, is sufficient for maintaining the department of building and loan associations for the ensuing year, then the fees provided for in this section to be paid at the time of the filing of annual reports shall be omitted for such year. (110 v. 64;

106 v. 236; April 23, 1913, 103 v. 191; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 535, § 43; see R. S. Sec. 3836-22; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 615; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 692. (Securities to be deposited with treasurer of state.) All securities or cash deposited with the inspector of building and loan associations shall be deposited with the treasurer of state, who, with his sureties, shall be responsible for the safe keeping thereof. The treasurer shall deliver such securities only upon the written order of the inspector. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 44; see R. S. Sec. 3836-23; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 693. (Dissolution or consolidation of building and loan associations.) A building and loan association or a savings association may provide in its constitution and by-laws for the time and terms of its dissolution and for its consolidation with one or more of such corporations on terms and conditions to be determined upon by their board of directors. In case of the dissolution of such a corporation its board of directors by a majority vote may be authorized to sell and transfer its mortgage securities or other property, or both, to another corporation, person or persons, subject to the vested and accrued rights of the mortgagors. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 537, § 48; see R. S. Sec. 3836-27; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 315; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469; April 11, 1889, 86 v. 238, § 3835j.)

Section 694. (Forfeiture for non-compliance.) A building and loan association which does business in this state without first complying with the provisions herein or which violates or fails to comply with provisions of law relating to building and loan associations shall forfeit and pay not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered by an action in the name of the state and on collection paid into the state treasury. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 45; see R. S. Sec. 3836-24; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 695. (Annual report.) The superintendent of building and loan associations shall keep and preserve in permanent form a full record of his proceedings, including a concise statement of each association examined, and make an annual report to the governor of the general conduct and condition of the building and loan associations doing business in this state, with such suggestions as he may deem proper. The report shall include such information contained in the statements required of the associations as he may deem necessary. He shall also include in said report a statement of the building and loan associations whose business has been closed during the year, the amount of their assets and liabilities, and the amount paid to the creditors thereof. He shall also include a statement of the building and loan associations liquidated or in the process of liquidation and the status of the affairs of each of such building and loan associations at the time of said report, including the amount of their assets and liabilities and the nature of the same and the amounts paid to the creditors. He shall report the names and compensation of the clerks employed by him, the whole amount of income of his office, the source thereof, and the expenditures of his department during the year ending the thirtieth of June. (110 v. 64; 106 v. 510; May 21, 1910, 101 v. 348; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 537, § 47; see R. S. Sec. 3836-26; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

BANKS AND BANKING.

Section 710-1. (Definitions of terms.) The following definitions shall be applied to the terms used in this act:

The term "surplus" means a fund created pursuant to the provisions of section 130 (G. C. § 710-130) of this act by a bank or trust company from its net earnings or undivided profits, which to the amount specified and any additions thereto set apart and designated as such is not available for the payment of dividends and cannot be used for the payment of expenses or losses so long as such bank or trust company has undivided profits.

The term "undivided profits" means the credit balance of the profit and loss account of any bank or trust company.

The term "net earnings" means the excess of the gross earnings of any bank or trust company over expenses and losses chargeable against such earnings during any dividend period.

The term "time deposits" means all deposits the payment of which cannot legally be required within thirty days.

The term "demand deposits" means all deposits the payment of which can legally be required within thirty days.

The term "unincorporated bank" shall include every unincorporated person, firm or association transacting banking business in this state; and the term "board of directors" shall include the owner or owners of such banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 80.)

The banking code (§§ 710-1 to 710-189, inclusive) was enacted April 4, 1919, filed in the office of the secretary of state April 12, 1919, and became effective July 11, 1919.

Section 710-2. (What the term "bank" shall include. All banks subject to examination and regulation.) The term "bank" shall include any person, firm, association, or corporation soliciting, receiving or accepting money, or its equivalent, on deposit as a business, whether such deposit is made subject to check or is evidenced by a certificate of deposit, a passbook, a note, a receipt, or other writing, and unless the context otherwise requires as used in this act includes commercial banks, savings banks, trust companies and unincorporated banks; provided that nothing herein shall apply to or include money left with an agent pending investment in real estate or securities for or on account of his principal; nor to building and loan associations or title guarantee and trust companies incorporated under the laws of this state. All banks, including the trust department of any bank, organized and existing under laws of the United States, shall be subject to inspection, examination and regulation as provided by law. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 80.)

A national bank must comply with § 710-150 et seq., before it is authorized to accept trusts in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, pp. 1244, 957; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 854; 19 O. L. R. 421.

A national bank is subject to examination by the superintendent. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1244.

A company incorporated for the purpose of "contracting for and buying and selling securities and bonds, also borrowing and loaning on same and making loans on real estate security" is not authorized to engage in the business of banking. The solicitation and receipt of government bonds on deposit at its Ohio place of business, upon an agreement to return the same or like bonds on demand, at stipulated interest, for use as collateral, may be enjoined. Security Co. v. State, 105 O. S. 113 (1922); 20 O. L. R. 113.

The mere making of loans is not the transacting of banking business. A company may be incorporated for the purpose of making loans and investments under the general corporation law. Rep. Atty.

Gen. 1905-1906, p. 50. See Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885); Bank v. Insurance Co., 41 O. S. 1 (1885); Hall v. Kummer, 7 N. P. 394; 5 L. D. 176 (1897).

A mercantile or manufacturing corporation is not authorized to accept deposits from employees under usual savings bank rules. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1777.

Section 710-3. (Words "bank", "banker", etc., in foreign language restricted to definition. Persons, firms, etc., prohibited from using "bank", "banker", etc.; penalty.) The use of the word "bank", "banker" or "banking", or "trust", or words of similar meaning in any foreign language, as a designation or name, or part of a designation or name, under which business is or may be conducted in this state, is restricted to banks as defined in the preceding section. All other persons, firms or corporations are prohibited from soliciting, accepting or receiving deposits, as defined in section 2 of this act (G. C. § 710-2) and from using the word "bank", "banker", "banking", or "trust", or words of similar meaning in any foreign language, as a designation or name, or part of a designation or name, under which business may be conducted in this state. Any violation of this prohibition, after the day when this act becomes effective, shall subject the party chargeable therewith, to a penalty of $100.00 for each day during which it is committed or repeated. Such penalty shall be recovered by the superintendent of banks by an action instituted for that purpose, and in addition to said penalty, such violation may be enjoined and the injunction enforced as in other cases.

(When and how long the word "trust" may be used.) Provided, however, that any corporation now incorporated under the name which includes the word "trust", and which is qualified to transact a trust business, may continue the use of such word so long as it complies with the requirements of this act; provided, that every corporation incorporated under a name which includes the word "trust" and is not qualified to transact a trust business is required to change its name so as to eliminate the word "trust" therefrom within two years from the date when this act becomes effective during which period such company shall not be subject to the penalty of this section, but nothing herein shall prevent a title, guaranty and trust company from continuing the use of the word "trust" in its name provided such company is qualified to do business under the provisions of section 9851 of the General Code. (108 (Pt. 2) v. 1191; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 81; G. C. § 744-1; 103 v. 379, § 1.)

See Constitution, Article 13, Section 3.

This section is constitutional. Inglis v. Pontius, 102 O. S. 140 (1921); affirming, 15 Ohio App. 228.

The designation "Investment Bankers", on letter heads and in advertisements, is a violation of this section, although not a part of the name or business title of the party using the designation. Inglis v. Pontius, 102 O. S. 140 (1921); affirming, 15 Ohio App. 228.

The designation "bank", etc., is unlawful unless the institution submits to regulation under the superintendent and pays the fees. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 826; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 192.

A bank incorporated prior to July 11, 1919, with a name containing the word "trust", which failed to qualify to transact a trust business by making the deposit required by § 710-150, was required to change its name by eliminating the word "trust" within two years from the effective date of the original act, rather than the effective date of the amendment of this section. 108 (Pt. 2) 1911; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1223.

Section 710-4. ("Federal Reserve Act," "Federal Land Banks" and "Joint Stock Land Banks" defined.) Wherever the term "Federal Reserve Act" is used in this act the same shall be held to mean the act of the 63rd congress of the United States, entitled "An act to provide for the establishment of federal reserve banks, to furnish an elastic currency, to afford means of rediscounting commercial paper, to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States, and for other purposes," approved by the President of the United States on December 23rd, 1913, and subsequent amendments thereto; and wherever the terms "Federal Land Banks" and "Joint Stock and Banks" are used in this act the same shall be held to mean banks organized under the act of the 64th congress of the United States approved by the president July 17, 1916, and known by the short title of "The Federal Farm Loan Act," and subsequent amendments thereto. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 81; G. C. § 9796-1; 104 v. 185.)

Section 710-5. (Every bank may become member under Federal Reserve Act; rights and powers of member banks. Subject to state supervision and examination of Federal Reserve Board.) Every bank, in addition to the powers, rights and privileges possessed by it under the laws of Ohio shall have the right and power to become a member bank under the federal reserve act upon the terms and conditions set forth in said federal reserve act, or hereafter provided by law. Every bank which becomes a member bank shall have the right and power to do everything required of or granted by said federal reserve act to member banks which are organized under state laws; and compliance by banks with the reserve requirements of said federal reserve act, shall be accepted in lieu of the reserve requirements provided by the laws of Ohio. Any such bank or trust company shall continue to be subject to the supervision and examinations required by the laws of this state, except that the federal reserve board shall have the right, if it deems necessary, to make examinations; and the authorities of this state having supervision over such bank or trust company may disclose to the federal reserve board, or to examiners duly appointed by it, all information in reference to the affairs of any bank or trust company which has become, or desires to become, a member of a federal reserve bank. Nothing contained in this section shall in any way or manner affect or have reference to banks which do not become member banks under said federal reserve act except as provided in this act. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 81; G. C. § 9796-2; 104 v. 185.)

Section 710-6. (Superintendent of banks; appointment, term, duties.) The governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint the superintendent of banks in the department of commerce, who shall hold his office for the term of two years unless sooner removed at the will of the governor.

The superintendent of banks shall execute the laws in relation to banks. (109 v. 125; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 82; G. C. § 710; 99 v. 287, § 78.)

Section 710-24. (Power to administer oaths.) For the purpose of such examination, the superintendent of banks or such examiner may administer oaths to and examine any officer, agent, clerk, customer, depositor, shareholder of such bank or other person touching its affairs and business. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 86; G. C. § 725; 99 v. 289, § 96.)

Section 710-25. (Authority to summon officer, agent, clerk, etc.) The superintendent of banks may summon in writing under his seal any such officer, agent, clerk, customer, depositor, shareholder or any person resident of the state to appear before him or a deputy or examiner and testify in relation thereto. If a person so summoned to appear and give testimony, fails to appear or neglects or refuses to answer any pertinent or legal question that may be put to him by the superintendent of banks or such examiner or deputy, touching the matter under examination, the superintendent shall apply to the probate court of the county in which such inquiry is conducted to issue a subpoena to such person to appear before him. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 86; G. C. § 726; 99 v. 290, § 97.)

Section 710-28. (Books, assets, papers, etc., shall be submitted; possession taken of bank on refusal.) The officers

(108 (Pt. 1) v. 87; G. C. § 729; 101 v. 277; 99 v. 290, § 99.)

Every bank whose capital stock has not been paid in as required by law, and every bank whose capital shall have become impaired by losses or otherwise, shall within three months after receiving notice from the superintendent of banks, cause the deficiency in such capital to be paid in by assessment upon the stockholders pro rata for the amount of capital stock held by each. If any stockholder of such bank neglects or refuses to pay such assessment as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to cause a sufficient amount of the capital stock of such stockholder or stockholders to be sold at public auction, upon thirty days' notice given by posting such notice of sale in the office of the bank and by publishing such notice in a newspaper in the place where the bank is located, and if none, then in a newspaper published nearest thereto, to make good the deficiency, and the balance, if any, shall be returned to such delinquent shareholder or shareholders. If any bank shall fail to cause to be paid in such deficiency in its capital stock for three months after receiving such notice from the superintendent of banks, the superintendent of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be finally liquidated as provided by law.

(Sale shall effect cancellation.) A sale of stock as provided in this section, shall effect an absolute cancellation of the outstanding certificate, or certificates, evidencing the stock so sold, and shall make said certificate null and void, and a new certificate shall be issued by the bank to the purchaser of such stock. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 87; G. C. §§ 730, 731; 99 v. 291, §§ 100, 101.)

Where directors, in order to make good a loss, execute a note to the bank and the bank in consideration thereof executes a note of the same amount to the directors, one obligation offsets the other.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 765.

Under § 710-30 the superintendent may, in his discretion, permit the voluntary liquidation of a bank, although its capital stock is impaired, if he is satisfied that it is solvent. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 568.

Every bank shall make to the superintendent of banks four, and if the superintendent of banks so orders, then five reports during each calendar year, according to and in the form which may be prescribed by him, verified by the oath or affirmation of the president, vice-president, cashier, secretary or treasurer of such bank. Each such report shall exhibit in detail and under appropriate heads, the resources, assets and liabilities of such bank at the close of business on any past day by the superintendent of banks specified, and shall be transmitted to the superintendent of banks within ten days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor, from him; and in the form prescribed by the superintendent of banks, a summary of such report shall be published in a newspaper published in the place where such bank is established, or if there is no newspaper in the place, then in the one published nearest thereto in the same county, at the expense of such bank; and such proof of such publication shall be furnished the superintendent of banks as may be required by him. So far as possible the day specified by the superintendent of banks, shall be the same as that specified by the comptroller of the currency for reports from national banking associations. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 88; G. C. §§ 737, 739; 99 v. 292, §§ 108, 110.)

The superintendent of banks may call for a special report whenever in his judgment it is necessary to inform him fully of the condition of any bank; which report shall be in and according to the form prescribed by the superintendent of banks, shall be transmitted to him within five days after the receipt of a requisition therefor from him, shall be verified as provided in the last preceding section, and shall be published as therein provided if required by the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 88; G. C. § 740; 99 v. 292, § 111.)

C. § 710-17). (108 (Pt. 1) v. 88; G. C. § 741; 99 v. 202, § 112.)

Section 710-34. (Official communication submitted to board of directors; record; certification.) Each official communication directed by the superintendent of banks or one of his deputies to a bank or to any officer thereof, relating to an examination or investigation conducted by the banking department or containing suggestions or recommendations as to the conduct of the business of the bank, shall if required by the superintendent of banks be submitted by the officer receiving it to the executive committee or board of directors of such bank, and duly noted in the minutes of such meeting. The receipt and submission of such notice to the executive committee or board of directors shall be certified within five days thereafter to the superintendent of banks by three members of such committee or board. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 88.)

Section 710-35. (Facts and information obtained in examination kept secret; penalty for violation.) Whoever, being the superintendent of banks, a deputy, assistant, clerk in his employ or an examiner, fails to keep secret the facts and information obtained in the course of an examination, except when the public duty of such officer requires him to report upon or take official action regarding the affairs of the person, partnership, corporation, company, society or association so examined, or wilfully makes a false official report as to the condition of such person, partnership, corporation, company; society or association, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than five years, or both. Nothing in this section shall prevent the proper exchange of information relating to banks and the business thereof, with the representatives of the banking departments of other states, with the national bank authorities, or with clearing house association examiners.

(Removal.) It was said that the superintendent could testify as to affairs of a defunct bank. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 151.

Section 710-36. (Signing and verifying papers in proceedings.) In proceedings connected with any authority exercised under this act, all accounts and other papers may be signed and sworn to in behalf of such bank by any officer thereof duly authorized by it. The answers and examinations under oath, of such officer, shall be received as the answers and examinations of the bank. A court may order and compel any officers of such bank to answer and attend such examination the same as if they, instead of the bank, were parties to the proceedings or inquiry. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 88; G. C. § 9791; 99 v. 286, § 74.)

Section 710-37. (Minimum capital of commercial or savings banks and trust corporations.) The capital of a corporation transacting a trust business shall be not less than one hundred thousand dollars and if such business is combined with that of a commercial or savings bank, or a combination of both, such capital shall be in addition to the capital required for such commercial or savings bank, or a combination of both, as provided herein. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 88; G. C. § 9704; 99 v. 269, § 2.)

Section 710-38. (Existing banks must increase capital within three years.) Every incorporated bank now having a lesser capital than that required by section 37 (G. C. § 710-37), except societies for savings and savings societies heretofore chartered and incorporated under a special act, shall within three years from the enactment of this act cause the amount of its capital to be increased and paid up to the amount of said minimum capital prescribed in said section. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 89.)

Section 710-39. (When articles of incorporation may be filed and recorded.) All corporations hereafter incorporated as commercial banks, savings banks, trust companies, or a corporation having departments for two or more, or all such classes of business, shall be incorporated and organized with a capital stock, and under the provisions of this act. The secretary of state shall not file or record articles of incorporation for any such proposed corporation, unless in accordance therewith, and only upon certificate of the superintendent of banks, as provided in sections 44 and 46 of this act [G. C. §§ 710-44, 710-46]. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 90; G. C. § 9723; 99 v. 272, § 18.)

Section 710-40. (Foreign bank prohibited from doing other than loan business.) No bank or banking institution incorporated under the laws of any other state shall be permitted to receive deposits or transact any banking business of any kind in this state, except to lend money, or as otherwise provided by law in relation to trust companies. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 90; G. C. § 9796; 99 v. 287, § 80.)

Foreign trust companies, see § 710-150 et seq.

A state may prohibit, altogether, the banking institutions of other states from exercising corporate powers within its territorial limits, and this right to exclude necessarily involves the power to specify the terms and conditions upon which the privilege may be exercised.

Section 710-41. (Number and qualifications of persons required to establish bank.) Any number of persons, not less than five, a majority of whom are citizens of this state, may associate and become incorporated to establish a commercial bank, a savings bank, a trust company, or to establish a bank having departments for two or more or all of such classes of business, upon the terms and conditions and subject to the limitations hereinafter and by law prescribed.

(Requisites of articles of incorporation.) Such persons shall subscribe and acknowledge before an officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, the form of which shall be prescribed by the secretary of state, which must contain:

a. The name by which such corporation is to be known, which shall begin with the word "The" and end with the word "bank" or "company."

b. The place where its business is to be transacted, designating the particular city, village or township.

c. The purpose for which it is formed, whether that of a commercial bank, savings bank, trust company, or a combination of two or more or all, of such classes of business, or a special plan bank, as provided in section 180 of this act (G. C. § 710-180).

d. The amount of its capital, which shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 90; G. C. §§ 9702, 9703; 99 v. 269, §§ 1, 2; 102 v. 171.)

A bank should be incorporated under this chapter, not under the general corporation law. The articles must definitely state the nature of the banking business to be transacted.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 80.

Sections 710-41 et seq. provide a method of organization, similar to, but exclusive of, the general corporation law.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 570.

The purpose clause of the articles of a trust company should not include power to act as a real estate or insurance agent.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, pp. 326, 330.

If the articles of incorporation state that the corporation is formed for the purpose of a commercial bank and a savings bank, the fact that it may not transact any commercial business does not relieve it from complying with the legal obligations of a commercial bank, such as reserve requirements. The articles of incorporation control in determining the corporate purpose. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 85.

The official character of the officer before whom the acknowledgment of articles of incorporation is made, shall be certified by the clerk of courts of common pleas of the county in which the acknowledgment is taken and the articles shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall forthwith transmit to the superintendent of banks a copy of such articles of incorporation and shall not record the same until duly authorized so to do by the superintendent of banks as hereinafter provided. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 90; G. C. § 9705; 99 v. 269, § 3.)

Section 710-43. (Publication of notice of proposed bank.) Such persons shall, at or before the time such articles of incorporation are forwarded to the secretary of state, cause notice to be published in a newspaper published in the place where such bank is to be located, and if no newspaper is published in such place, then in one published nearest thereto. Such notice shall specify the name of the proposed bank, its location, the amount of its proposed capital and the names of the persons who propose to incorporate the same. Such notice shall be published for two weeks and a certified copy thereof furnished to the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 90.)

Section 710-44. (Duties of superintendent relative to proposed bank.) Upon receipt of a copy of the articles of incorporation of such proposed bank, the superintendent of banks shall at once examine into all the facts connected with the formation of such proposed corporation including its location and proposed stockholders and if it appears that such corporation, if formed, will be lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, the superintendent of banks shall so certify to the secretary of state, who shall thereupon record such articles of incorporation. But the superintendent of banks may refuse to so certify to the secretary of state, if upon such examination and investigation he has reason to believe that the proposed corporation is to be formed for any other than legitimate banking business, or that the character and general fitness of the persons proposed as stockholders in such corporation, are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which such bank is proposed to be located or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment, or that the name of the proposed corporation is likely to mislead the public as to its character or purpose; or if the proposed name is the same as one already adopted, or appropriated by an existing bank in this state, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public, unless the place of business of such proposed corporation is to be located in a county other than the one in which the corporation bearing such similar name is then doing business and the corporation so adopting such name adds thereto the word "of _____." (Indicating thereby the name of the city, village or township in which its place of business is situated.) (108 (Pt. 1) v. 91; G. C. § 9921; 102 v. 171; 99 v. 272, § 16.)

This section authorizes the superintendent of banks, in his discretion, to withhold a certificate. The remedy for abuse of discretion is by appeal under § 710-45. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 272.

Const Art. 13, § 3.

The superintendent of banks, and not the secretary of state, determines whether the name of a proposed bank infringes the name of an existing bank. After he has certified approval of a name and the articles have been recorded by the secretary the superintendent cannot revoke his certificate, unless it has been obtained by fraud. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1485; 11 Dept. Rep. 272.

Section 710-45. (Appeal when certificate withheld; hearing.) If the superintendent of banks withholds such certificate an appeal may be made to a board composed of the governor, superintendent of banks and the attorney general. The decision of such board in the matter shall be final.

Such board shall prescribe the rules and procedure under which all appeals shall be heard, and may from time to time amend the same. No commission or fee shall be paid to any person, association or corporation for selling such stock. The superintendent of banks shall refuse authority to commence business to any bank, if commissions or fees have been paid, or have been contracted to be paid, directly or indirectly by the bank, or by anyone in its behalf, to any person, association or corporation for securing subscriptions for or selling stock in such bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 93.)

Section 710-55. (Examination on certificate of notification of compliance with law.) When a certificate is transmitted to the superintendent of banks, signed by the president, secretary or treasurer of such corporation, notifying him that the entire capital stock of such corporation is subscribed, and paid in, and that such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to be done before it can be authorized to commence business, the superintendent of banks shall examine into its affairs, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each director, the amount of capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith, and whether such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to entitle it to engage in business. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 93; G. C. § 9720; 99 v. 272, § 15.)

Before issuing a certificate to a bank whose articles of incorporation confer trust powers, the superintendent may require the deposit to be made under § 710-150. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 124.

Section 710-57. (Publication of certificate of authority.) The corporation shall cause such certificate to be published in some newspaper printed in the city, village or county where it is located, once a week for four successive weeks or if no newspaper is published in such county, then in a newspaper published at the nearest county seat. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 94; G. C. § 9722; 99 v. 272, § 17.)

Section 710-60. (Reduction of capital stock.) Such a corporation may reduce its capital stock in the manner provided for other corporations, but notice of such reduction shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the city, village or county, in which it is doing business. No reduction shall be made to an amount less than the minimum amount of capital stock required for such bank by law, nor shall such reduction be valid or warrant the cancellation of stock certificates until it has been approved by the superintendent of banks. Such approval shall not be given except upon a finding by him that the security of existing creditors of the corporation will not be impaired. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 94; G. C. § 9726; 99 v. 273, § 21.)

Minimum capital stock. § 710-37. Proceedings to reduce capital stock under General Corporation Law. § 8700.

Such board shall consist of not less than five directors, to be chosen by the stockholders, who shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. Where stockholders have fixed the number of directors, that number should be elected at each regular election, until the stockholders change the number. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 792.

A quorum consists of a majority of the whole number of directors. Vacancies on the board do not reduce the number necessary to constitute a quorum. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 31.

Section 710-62. (Executive committee, powers and duties.) The board of directors may appoint an executive committee to consist of at least three of its members, with such duties and powers as are defined by the regulations or by-laws, who shall serve until their successors are appointed. Such executive committee shall meet as often as the board of directors require, which shall not be less frequently than once each month, and approve or disapprove all loans and investments. Any director at any time violating any of the provisions of this section shall be removed from office by the board of directors or by the superintendent of banks. At least three-fourths of the directors of every bank shall be residents of this state. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 95; G. C. § 9731; 99 v. 274, § 25.)

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 331.

Section 710-66. (Oath of director.) Every director shall within thirty days after his election, take and subscribe in duplicate, an oath that he will diligently and honestly perform his duties in such office, not knowingly violate, or permit to be violated, any provisions of this act, and that he is the owner in good faith of the shares of stock of the company required to qualify him for such office, standing in his own name, on its books, and one of such oaths shall be forthwith filed with the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 95; G. C. § 9732; 99 v. 274, § 26.)

An officer or employe of the bank may not administer the oath. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 804.

Section 710-67. (Liability of director for violations.)

Any director of a bank who shall knowingly violate, or who shall knowingly permit any of the officers, agents or employees of a bank to violate any of the provisions of this act shall be held liable in his personal and individual capacity for all damages which the bank, its stockholders, or any other person shall have sustained in consequence of such violation. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 95.)

Directors who, in settlement of their personal liability for making unauthorized loans, paid the amount thereof to the liquidating authorities and took an assignment thereof, were held not entitled to maintain, for their own benefit, an action to recover the loan from the borrowers. Lewis v. Bank, 274 Fed. 587 (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1921). Powers and duties of directors in general, see note to § 8660. Liability of bank directors and officers.

See note to § 8660.

Section 710-68. (Bond of officers.) The officers of such bank, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, shall give bond to the bank in the amount required by the directors and to the satisfaction of the superintendent of banks and with surety to be approved by them, for the faithful performance of their duties as such officers. The superintendent of banks or directors may require an increase of the amount of such bonds whenever they deem it necessary. The directors as such shall not be required to give bond. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 95; G. C. § 9734, 99 v. 274, § 28.)

Powers of president and cashier, see note to § 8664.

Bond. When the terms of a bond clearly indicate the intention of the obligor and obligee that there shall be an indemnity to the latter on account of the default of an employe, doubtful terms will be so construed as to effectuate rather than to defeat that intention.

A bond being executed for one year to indemnify a bank against the dishonesty of its cashier occurring during the term of the bond, or any renewal thereof, and discovered within six months of such term, or renewal, and there being a subsequent instrument to continue the former in force for another year according to its terms and conditions the instruments will be construed as though the bond had been originally executed for two years, there being no terms employed in either instrument to indicate the intention that an act of dishonesty occurring in the first year must be discovered within six months from the expiration of that year.

Cutts v. Spear, 8 N. P. n. s. 445; 19 L. D. 608 (C. P. 1909).

When the cashier of a bank, by a certificate which he knows to be false, extends to one as a depositor of the bank a credit to which he is not entitled, and this is done pursuant to an arrangement that the cashier shall derive financial benefit from the transaction, and loss to the bank results, there arises a liability upon a bond to indemnify the bank for all losses arising "from the fraud or dishonesty of the cashier amounting to embezzlement or larceny."

Rankin v. Guaranty Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

"Fraud or dishonesty" of a bank cashier "amounting to embezzlement or larceny" which a surety company promises "to make good and reimburse" comprehends such dishonest and fraudulent conduct resulting in loss as is equivalent to embezzlement or larceny, and is not confined to the technical offenses mentioned, or such misappropriation as would subject the cashier to a conviction for embezzlement or larceny.

Cutts v. Spear, 8 N. P. n. s. 445; 19 L. D. 608 (C. P. 1909).

See Rankin v. U. S. F. & G. Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

A provision in a bond of that character requiring the obligee upon the discovery of an act which may create a liability under the instrument to give notice thereof to the obligor at "the earliest practical moment" contemplates such and only such delay as in view of all circumstances may be reasonably necessary for the directors to acquire precise information respecting the default of the cashier and to enable them to determine whether it is of the grave character contemplated by the terms of the bond; and whether the giving of a notice 45 days after the first information of the bank's condition is a compliance with the provision should be determined by the jury under proper instructions.

Rankin v. Guaranty Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

Where a bond was given "to the directors" of a bank, as obligees, the bank is the real party in interest and may sue thereon.

Fancher v. Kaneen, 5 N. P. n. s. 614; 18 L. D. 834 (C. P. 1907).

Where a bond, silent as to the time for which it shall run, is given by a cashier, appointed by a finance committee to fill a vacancy, it will be held to cover the period intervening between such appointment and its confirmation by the directors, but not thereafter, where the directors on confirming the appointment, failed to provide for a new bond.

Fancher v. Kaneen, 5 N. P. n. s. 614; 18 L. D. 834 (C. P. 1907).

See Thompson v. Young, 2 Ohio 335 (1826).

Where it is admitted that certain property was embezzled by a bank officer during the term of his bond, the burden is on his sureties to show that such property was subsequently returned to the bank.

Fancher v. Kaneen, 5 N. P. n. s. 614; 18 L. D. 834 (C. P. 1907).

Where a bank officer transferred to the president, as trustee, property to partially secure the bank against loss through his embezzlement, without designating to what part of his indebtedness it should be applied, it was held that it should be applied on that portion of his indebtedness which was the most precarious.

Fancher v. Kaneen, 5 N. P. n. s. 614; 18 L. D. 834 (C. P. 1907).

President. A bankrupt who conducted a private bank gave permission to the president of a national bank, who had no account with the bankrupt, to draw checks on him to the amount of $25,000. These checks, by an arrangement between the two banks, were cleared through the clearing house by the national bank, which charged them to the bankrupt. Later the bankrupt gave his note to the national bank for the amount of the checks and the president of the bank gave the bankrupt his note for the same amount. Held, the note to the national bank, as between it and the bankrupt, was not an accommodation note, the transaction being for the benefit of the president individually.

Bank v. Galbraith, 157 Fed. 208; 16 O. F. D. 195 (C. C. A. 1907).

Treasurer. The treasurer need not be a director. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 793.

Section 710-69. (Annual examination; report to superintendent.) A committee of at least three directors or stockholders annually shall be appointed by the board of directors to examine, or to superintend the examination of, the assets and liabilities of the bank and to report to the board of directors the result of such examination, and the board of directors may provide for such examination by a certified public accountant, or a clearing house examiner in any city where such examination is provided by the rules of such clearing house association. A copy of such report attested and verified under oath by the signatures of at least three members of such committee, shall be forthwith filed with the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 95; G. C. § 9736; 99 v. 274, § 30.)

The penalty provided in G. C. § 710-33 can not be imposed upon directors for failure to make and file reports under this section. Directors failing to make the report under this section, however, may be personally liable to stockholders for losses caused thereby and the superintendent may, by action, compel the directors to comply with this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 786.

Section 710-70. (Record of stock; transfers.) A book shall be provided and kept by every such bank, in which shall be entered the name and residence of each stockholder, the number of shares held by each, the time when each person became a stockholder; together with all transfers of stock, stating the time when made, the number of shares and by whom transferred, which book shall be subject to the inspection of the directors, officers and stockholders of the bank at all times during the usual hours of transacting business. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 95; G. C. § 9738; 99 v. 275, § 34.)

The bank has no lien on full paid stock for indebtedness of the stockholder to it, as against a bona fide purchaser, unless the lien is stated on the certificate as required by § 8673-15. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 817.

Section 710-71. (Books and accounts; form prescribed by superintendent.) The superintendent of banks may prescribe the manner and form of keeping the books and accounts of banks, so that the books and accounts of banks of the same class may be as nearly uniform as circumstances permit. All entries in all books of banks and in pass books of depositors shall be made in ink. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 96.)

Section 710-72. (Fee, gift, etc., prohibited; penalty.) No gift, fee, commission or brokerage charge shall be received directly or indirectly by any officer, director or employee of a bank, on account of any transaction to which the bank is a party unless duly authorized by the directors. Whoever violates this provision shall be subject to a penalty of $100 for each violation to be recovered by the superintendent of banks, and shall be and thereafter remain ineligible as an officer, director or employee of such bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 96.)

Section 710-73. (Books and records shall be kept in bank and open to inspection of stockholder.) The books and records, except books and records of deposit and trust, of every bank, at all reasonable times shall be open to the inspection of every stockholder. All books and records of the bank shall be kept at all times in the bank. No branch bank shall be established until the consent and the approval of the superintendent of banks has been first obtained, and no bank shall establish a branch bank in any place other than that designated in its articles of incorporation, except in a city or village contiguous thereto. If such consent and approval is refused, an appeal may be taken therefrom in the same manner as is provided in section 45 of this act (G. C. § 710-45). (108 (Pt. 1) v. 96; G. C. § 9795; 99 v. 288, § 91.)

A stockholder may examine the books although the bank is in the hands of a receiver.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 747.

A bank may establish branches only in cities and villages which touch or abut upon the place designated in the articles of incorporation for the transaction of its business. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1066.

Where two banks, located in two nonabutting cities or villages in the same county, consolidate, banking business may not be conducted at both locations. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1189.

A bank may appoint an agent to transact a foreign exchange business at a place other than its regular place of business. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1338.

Prior to the enactment of this chapter it was held that a bank was not "situated" within a county within the meaning of the county depository law (G. C. § 2715 et seq.) by having a branch bank therein, its principal office being in another county.

State v. Oviatt, 4 N. P. n. s. 481; 17 L. D. 451 (C. P. 1906); affirmed, 8 C. C. n. s. 567.

Section 710-74. (Penalty for failure to comply with order or requisition.) Any bank which fails or neglects to comply with any lawful order or requisition of the superintendent of banks within the time specified by him in such order or requisition, if no penalty has been specifically provided, shall be subject to a penalty of $100, for each day after the expiration of five days from said date so specified by the superintendent of banks, that it fails or neglects to comply with such order or requisition; such penalty to be recovered by the superintendent of banks, by suit against such bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 96.)

Section 710-75. (Individual liability of stockholders.) Stockholders of banks shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts and engagements of such bank, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. The stockholders in any bank who shall have transferred their shares or registered the transfer thereof within sixty days next before the failure of such bank to meet its obligations, or with knowledge of such impending failure, shall be liable to the same extent as if they had made no such transfer, to the extent that the subsequent transferee fails to meet such liability; but this provision shall not be construed to affect in any way recourse which such stockholders might otherwise have against those in whose names such shares are registered at the time of such failure. At any time after taking possession of a bank for the purpose of liquidation when the superintendent of banks ascertains that the assets of such bank will be insufficient to pay its debts and liabilities he may enforce the individual liability of the stockholders." (108 (Pt. 1) v. 97.)

The liability of bank stockholders is for double the amount of their subscriptions, not merely double the amount paid in. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 708.

See Constitution of Ohio, Article 13, Section 3 and notes, supra.

Section 710-76. (Duly organized corporation only shall transact banking business.) No authority to transact a banking business in this state shall be granted, except to a corporation duly organized and qualified for that purpose. Unincorporated banks now authorized to transact and actually transacting a banking business may continue such banking business in the city, village, or township in which they are now located so long as they comply with the provisions of this act. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 97.)

The Thomas banking act of 1908 did not affect the legal existence of banks organized under the free banking act. State v. Barkman, 91 O. S. 248 (1915).

Section 710-77. (Unincorporated banks; detailed statement by, required.) Every unincorporated bank now trans-

Every such unincorporated bank shall on or before January 1, 1920, and annually thereafter, file with the superintendent of banks a detailed statement as provided herein. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 97.)

Section 710-78. (Minimum of capital stock of unincorporated banks. Segregated capital and unimpaired security.)

Every unincorporated bank transacting a banking business in this state shall have a capital actually paid in and remaining in its possession, bona fide, as the property of such bank and to be used for its sole purposes and for the security of its creditors, of not less than $10,000.00; in villages, and cities the population of which exceeds two thousand and does not exceed ten thousand, such paid in capital shall be not less than twenty-five thousand dollars; in cities, the population of which exceeds ten thousand, such paid in capital shall be not less than fifty thousand dollars.

Such capital shall at all times be segregated from all other property or business of the owner or owners of such bank, and shall be kept and maintained unimpaired for the security of the creditors of such bank.

All such unincorporated banks shall comply with the provisions of this section within one year from the day this act goes into effect. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 98.)

Section 710-79. (Property of bank shall be held, how; assets subject to execution, when.) All property, real or personal, owned by an unincorporated bank, shall be held in the designated name of such bank or in the name of an individual as trustee therefor and not in the name of the owner or owners of such bank. All the assets of such bank shall be exempt from attachment or execution by any creditor of such owner or owners until all the liabilities of such bank shall have been paid in full. No person, firm or association owning or conducting an unincorporated bank shall use any of the fund of such bank for his or their private business, except as a borrower in due course of business. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 98.)

Section 710-80. (Depositors have first lien on assets.) The depositors in any unincorporated bank shall have first lien on the assets of such bank, in case it is wound up, to the amount of their several deposits, and for any balance remaining unpaid, such depositors shall share in the general assets of the owner or owners alike with the general creditors. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 98; G. C. § 744-6; 103 v. 381, § 6.)

As to general assets of the owner, bank depositors pro rate with general creditors. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 29.

Section 710-81. (List of owners and persons interested must be posted conspicuously.) Every such unincorporated bank shall post in the room in which it transacts its business, and in plain view of its customers a printed list of all the owners of, and parties interested in, such bank, and a statement that the bank is an unincorporated bank. Should the interests of any members of such bank, or, of an individual doing a banking business under the provisions of this act, change either by death, devise, sale or otherwise, then and in that case the superintendent of banks of the State of Ohio shall be notified of such change and printed notice shall be posted in the room of any such bank. No such bank shall advertise by newspaper, letterhead, or in any other way, a larger capital than has been actually paid in. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 98; G. C. § 744-5; 103 v. 381, § 5.)

Section 710-82. ("Unincorporated" must be printed on advertising and stationery.) Every unincorporated bank shall have printed on all its advertising matter and business stationery, the word "unincorporated" immediately following the name of the firm or business title. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 99; G. C. § 744-6; 103 v. 381, § 6.)

Section 710-83. (Reports shall be kept on file and open for inspection.) All reports received from unincorporated banks shall be kept on file in the office of the superintendent of banks, and open to the inspection of all persons, at the discretion of the superintendent of banks. The provision of section 31 of this act (G. C. § 710-31) as to publication of reports of banks shall apply to unincorporated banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 99; G. C. § 744-7; 103 v. 382, § 7.)

Section 710-84. (Permitted to bid upon public funds.)

Whenever any of the funds of the state, or any of the political subdivisions of the state, shall be deposited under any of the depositary laws of the state, every unincorporated bank shall be permitted to bid upon and be designated as depository of such funds, upon furnishing such surety or securities therefor as is prescribed by the law. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 99.)

Section 710-85. (When and how bank may go into liquidation.) A bank may go into liquidation and be closed by the vote of its stockholders owning two-thirds of its stock, in number and amount. When a vote to go into liquidation is so taken, the board of directors shall cause notice of such fact to be certified under seal of the bank, by its president or vice president and secretary, treasurer or cashier, to the superintendent of banks, together with certified copies of all proceedings had by directors and stockholders of such bank, which such stockholders' proceedings shall set forth that stockholders owning at least two-thirds of the capital stock voted in favor of placing the bank in liquidation and shall also set forth the reasons for placing the bank in liquidation. After such certified copies have been filed with the superintendent of banks, he shall make an examination of the bank, to determine whether or not the interests of its depositors and creditors will suffer by such liquidation and his consent to or rejection of such liquidation shall be based thereon and no such liquidation shall be made without the consent of the superintendent of banks. The expenses of such examination shall be paid by such bank. In case the superintendent of banks consents to such liquidation, such bank shall make a report to the superintendent of banks, at least once each thirty days from and after the date when the bank ceased to transact business as such, which report shall give a list of assets wholly or partially realized upon, together with the amount of each so remaining uncollected, and also a list of the liabilities retired by application of such amount so realized. The superintendent of banks shall have power to examine into the affairs of the bank so liquidated, at any time, to determine whether the rights of creditors and depositors are being protected, and if at any time he finds that such liquidation is being improperly conducted, or that the interests of the depositors and creditors are not being properly protected, he may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank and complete the liquidation thereof in the same manner as is provided in other cases. All unclaimed deposits and dividends remaining in the hands of such bank, shall be subject to the provisions of sections 9864, 9866, 9868 and 9869 of the General Code of Ohio, except that the time of the payment to the treasurer of the county shall be subject to the order of the superintendent of banks. When the superintendent of banks consents to such liquidation, such bank shall immediately publish notice thereof in a newspaper published in the place in which such bank is located, and if none is there published, then in the place nearest thereto, that it is closing up its affairs and notifying creditors to present their claims against the bank for payment. Such notice shall be published for four consecutive weeks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 99; G. C. § 9747; 99 v. 277, § 39.)

Section 710-86. (Consolidation with or transfer of assets to another bank; procedure.) A bank may consolidate with or transfer its assets and liabilities to another bank. Before such consolidation or transfer shall become effective, each bank concerned in such consolidation or transfer, shall file, or cause to be filed, with the superintendent of banks, certified copies of all proceedings had by its directors and stockholders which such stockholders' proceedings shall set forth that holders of at least two-thirds of the stock, voted in the affirmative on the proposition of consolidation or transfer. Such stockholders' proceedings shall also contain a complete copy of the agreement made and entered into between said banks, with reference to such consolidation or transfer.

Upon the filing of such stockholders' and directors' proceedings as aforesaid the superintendent of banks shall cause to be made an examination of each bank to determine whether the interests of the depositors and creditors and stockholders of each bank are protected and that such consolidation or transfer is made for legitimate purposes, and his consent to or rejection of such consolidation or transfer shall be based upon such examination. No such consolidation or transfer shall be made without the consent of the superintendent of banks. If such consent is refused, an appeal may be taken therefrom in the same manner as is provided in section 45 of this act (G. C. § 710-45). The expenses of such examination shall be paid by such banks. Notice of such consolidation or transfer, shall be published for four weeks, before or after the same is to become effective, at the discretion of the superintendent of banks, in a newspaper published in a city, village or county, in which each of such banks is located, and a certified copy thereof shall be filed with the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 100; G. C. § 9748; 99 v. 277, § 40.)

A bank has power to purchase the assets of another bank, and to agree to discharge its liabilities. Stetson v. Bank, 12 O. S. 577 (1861).

Where two banks, situated in noncontiguous cities or villages, consolidate, banking business may not be conducted at both places. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1189.

Section 710-87. (Rights of creditors protected.) In case of either transfer or consolidation, the rights of creditors shall be preserved unimpaired and the respective companies deemed to be in existence, to preserve such rights. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 100.)

Section 710-88. (Copy of agreement of consolidation and approval filed with secretary of state. Property and rights transferred. When secretary of state shall refuse to file articles of incorporation.) In case of consolidation, when the agreement of consolidation is made and a duly certified copy thereof is filed in the office of the secretary of state, together with a certified copy of the approval of the superintendent of banks to such consolidation, the banks, parties thereto, shall be held to be one company possessed of the rights, privileges, powers and franchises of the several companies, but subject to all provisions of law relating to the different departments of its business. The directors and other officers named in the agreement of consolidation shall serve until the first annual election, the date for which shall be named in the agreement. On filing such agreement all and singular the property and rights of every kind of the several companies, including the exclusive right in and to the corporate name of each of the banks parties to such agreement shall thereby be transferred to and vested in such new company, and be as fully its property as they were of the companies parties to such agreement. The secretary of state shall not file or record any articles of incorporation of any company organized to do the business of a bank, a building and loan association, or a mortgage or investment company, within the county within which said consolidated bank is situated, if such name, or the distinguishing part thereof, is that of any bank party to such agreement, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public, unless the written consent of the consolidated bank, signed by its president and secretary, be filed with such articles. (109 v. 56; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 100.)

Section 710-89. (Superintendent may take possession of bank, when.) The superintendent of banks may forthwith take possession of the business and property of any bank to which this act is applicable, whenever it shall appear that such bank:

1—Has violated its charter or any law applicable thereto;

2—Is conducting its business in an unauthorized or unsafe manner;

3—Is in an unsound or unsafe condition to transact its business;

4—Has an impairment of its capital for a period of ninety days;

Such bank may with the consent of the superintendent of banks, resume business upon such conditions as may be approved by him. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 101; G. C. § 9749; 101 v. 283; 99 v. 277, § 41.)

The superintendent may combine two or more liquidations under one head when they reach a point where the services of special agents and other help can be dispensed with. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 788.

Section 710-90. (Notice of taking possession of bank.)

The superintendent of banks shall cause notice to be given by advertisement in such newspapers as he may direct weekly for four consecutive weeks, calling on all persons who may have claims against such bank to present the same to the superintendent of banks, and to make legal proof thereof at a place and within a time not later than the last day therein specified. The superintendent of banks shall mail a similar notice to all persons whose names appear as creditors upon the books of said bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 101; G. C. § 9750; 99 v. 278, § 42; G. C. § 742-1; 106 v. 360, 742-3; 101 v. 277, 278.)

Depositors who fail to present claims within the time specified are not barred from subsequently presenting them. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 820; § 710-106.

Section 710-91. (Rights and liabilities after possession taken.) No bank, trust company, corporation, firm, association or individual knowing that the superintendent of banks has taken possession of such bank, shall have a lien or charge for any payment advanced or any clearance thereafter made, or liability thereafter incurred against any of the assets of the bank of whose property and business the superintendent of banks shall have taken possession. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 102; G. C. § 742-1; 101 v. 277.)

If the superintendent of banks doubts the justice and validity of any claim, he may reject the same and serve notice of such rejection upon the claimant, either by mail or personally, an affidavit of the service of such notice, which shall be prima facie evidence thereof, shall be filed in his office. An action upon a claim so rejected must be brought within six months after such service. Claims presented and allowed after the expiration of the time fixed in the notice to creditors, shall be entitled to be paid the amount of all prior dividends thereon if there be funds sufficient therefor and share in the distribu-

The superintendent of banks shall require from such agent or agents such surety for the faithful discharge of their duties as he may deem proper. All bonds given shall be deposited with the superintendent of banks and kept in his office. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 103; G. C. § 742-2; 103 v. 530; 101 v. 278.)

Employees of the liquidating department are in the employ of the state and are subject to the civil service act. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1619; 12 O. L. R. 447. See Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 738.

The superintendent of banks may, with the approval of the common pleas court, employ expert accountants. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 251.

A special deputy can not be appointed by the superintendent to act as attorney. Special counsel can under G. C. §§ 333, 336, be appointed only by the attorney general. The fees of counsel so appointed may be paid under § 710-97.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 795.

Section 710-95. (Powers and duties after taking possession.) Upon taking possession of the property and business of such bank, the superintendent of banks is authorized to collect money due to such bank, and to do such other acts as are necessary to preserve its assets and business, and shall proceed to liquidate the affairs thereof, as hereinafter provided. The superintendent of banks shall collect all debts due and claims belonging to it, and upon the order of the common pleas court in and for the county in which the office of such bank was located, may sell or compound all bad or doubtful debts, and on like order may sell the real estate and personal property of such bank, on such terms as the court shall direct. The superintendent of banks shall give notice to such bank of the time and place of making application to said court for such order. The superintendent of banks upon the terms of sale or compromise directed by the court, shall execute and deliver to the purchaser of such real and personal property such deeds or instruments as shall be necessary to evidence the passing of the title; and if said real estate is situated outside the county in which the office of the bank was located, a certified copy of such order authorizing and ratifying said sale shall be filed in the office of the recorder of the county within which said property is situated; and may, if necessary to pay the debts of such bank, enforce the individual liability of the stockholders. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 103; G. C. § 742-2; 103 v. 530; 101 v. 278.)

An order of court is necessary before a sale of real or personal property, and before compromising bad or doubtful claims. A sale or composition without a court order is a nullity. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 633.

Actions to collect claims should, under § 710-14, be brought in the name of the state on relation of the superintendent.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 759.

Where public deposits are secured by bonds exceeding in value the amount of such deposits, the superintendent is authorized by this section to pay such deposits and redeem the bonds, in order to prevent loss by a forced sale thereof.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 785.

Where loans are secured by assignments of construction contracts, the superintendent is authorized by this section to make further advances to the contractors if necessary to preserve the securities. It is possible that under this section, the superintendent may obtain the approval of the common pleas court to such action. The court has power to order a sale of "doubtful debts" and perhaps has power to authorize proper steps to preserve the same.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 767.

Section 710-96. (Disposition of moneys on liquidation.)

The moneys collected in process of such liquidation by the superintendent of banks shall be from time to time deposited in one or more banks organized under the laws of this state, subject to his order as herein provided. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 103; G. C. § 742-6; 101 v. 280.)

Use by the superintendent of banks, for the payment of a private debt, of funds of a bank in his possession for liquidation, constitutes embezzlement, although he replaces the same before his breach of trust became known. State v. Baxter, 89 O. S. 269 (1914); reversing, 14 N. P. n. s. 223.

Section 710-97. (Expenses of liquidation; how paid.)

The expenses incurred by the superintendent of banks in the liquidation of any bank in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall include the expenses of deputies or assistants, clerks and examiners employed in such liquidation, together with reasonable attorney fees for counsel employed by said superintendent of banks in the course of such liquidation. Such compensation of counsel, deputies, assistants, clerks and examiners in the liquidation of any such bank, and all expenses of supervision and liquidation shall be fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located, on notice to such bank. The expense of such liquidation shall be paid out of the property of such bank in the hands of said superintendent of banks, and such expenses shall be a valid charge against the property in the hands of said superintendent of banks and shall be paid first in the order of priority; provided, however, that no such expense shall be paid out of the property of such bank until an account of such expense shall have been filed with and approved by the common pleas court of the county in which such bank is located, and the superintendent of banks shall give notice, by publication of the application for the approval of such expense account, in a newspaper of general circulation in the community in which such bank is located at least ten days before such court shall pass upon such application. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 103; G. C. § 742-4; 106 v. 360; 101 v. 279.)

The notice to the corporation should state the time when the statement of expenses will be submitted to the common pleas court for approval. Such notice may be served upon an officer of the bank corporation in accordance with the method prescribed for service of summons on corporations (G. C. § 11288).

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 757.

The notice should be served at such time prior to submitting the expenses to the court as will give all parties a reasonable time for filing objections thereto. The superintendent of banks need not employ an attorney to present the account. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 25.

Liquidation expenses are payable from the bank assets and not from the state treasury. Expenses cannot legally be paid until approved by the court. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, pp. 193, 633.

The superintendent is personally liable for expenses paid by him out of bank funds, which are disallowed by the court. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1458.

Approval by the common pleas court of the compensation of a deputy, before services are rendered, is not a compliance with the section. State v. Hall, 96 O. S. 487 (1917).

Section 710-98. (Dividends, when and how paid; unclaimed deposits.) At any time after the expiration of the date fixed for the presentation of claims, the superintendent of banks may, out of the funds remaining in his hands after the payment of expenses, declare one or more dividends, and after the expiration of one year from the first publication of notice to creditors, he may declare a final dividend, such dividends to be paid to such persons and in such amounts and upon such notice as may be directed by the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located. Dividends due to stockholders on claims as depositors or otherwise, to the extent of the individual liability of such stockholders shall be withheld by the superintendent of banks until it is ascertained that it will not be necessary to enforce their individual stock liability. The court shall make proper provision for unproved and unclaimed deposits. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 104; G. C. § 742-7; 101 v. 280.)

A final dividend may not be paid before the expiration of one year, except at the risk of the superintendent. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1635; 12 O. L. R. 449; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 685, 702.

Franchise taxes must be paid until dissolution. See note to § 710-90.

Section 710-99. (Objections to claims; how made; hearing.) Objection to any claim not rejected by the superintendent of banks may be made by any party interested by filing a copy of such objection with the superintendent of banks, who shall present the same to the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located, upon written notice to claimant and to the party filing the same, said notice setting forth the time and place of the presentation. The court upon return day of said notice shall hear the objections raised to said claim, or refer the determination of said objections to a referee for report, or upon demand of either the superintendent of banks or the party filing the objections may direct that the issues be tried before a jury. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 104; G. C. § 742-8; 101 v. 280.)

Section 710-100. (Application for injunction; proceedings; hearing.) Whenever any such bank of whose property and business the superintendent of banks has taken possession, as aforesaid, deems itself aggrieved thereby, it may at any time within thirty days after taking such possession apply to the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located, to enjoin further proceedings in liquidation, and said court, after citing the superintendent of banks to show cause why further proceedings should not be enjoined and hearing the allegation and proofs of the parties and determining the facts, may dismiss such application or enjoin the superintendent of banks from further proceedings, and direct him to surrender such such business and property to such person, partnership, corporation, company, society or association. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 104; G. C. § 742-9; 106 v. 360; 101 v. 280.)

Section 710-101. (Notice to superintendent before appointment of receiver or deed of assignment filed.) No receiver shall be appointed by any court, nor shall any deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors be filed in any probate court or court of insolvency within this state for any bank except upon notice to the superintendent of banks, unless in case of urgent necessity it becomes in the judgment of the court necessary so to do in order to preserve the assets of such bank. The superintendent of banks may within five days after the service of such notice upon him take possession of such bank, in which case no further proceedings shall be had upon such application for the appointment of receiver or under such deed of assignment, or, if a receiver has been appointed or such assignee shall have entered upon the administration of his trust, such appointment shall be vacated or such assignee shall be removed upon application of the superintendent of banks to the proper court therefor, and the superintendent of banks shall proceed in all such cases to administer the assets of such bank, as herein provided. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 105; G. C. § 742-10; 101 v. 281.)

Section 710-102. (Superintendent shall call meeting of stockholders; notice of meeting. When superintendent shall continue to administer assets.) Whenever the superintendent of banks shall have paid to each depositor and creditor of such bank, not including stockholders, whose claim or claims as such depositor or creditor shall have been duly proved and allowed, the full amount of such claims, and shall have made proper provision for unclaimed or unpaid deposits or dividents, and shall have paid all the expenses of the liquidation, the superintendent of banks shall call a meeting of the stockholders of such bank, by giving notice thereof for four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county wherein the office of such bank was located. At such meeting the stockholders shall determine whether the superintendent of banks shall continue to administer its assets and wind up the affairs of such bank, or whether an agent or agents shall be elected for that purpose; and in so determining the said stockholders shall vote by ballot in person, or by proxy, each share entitling the holder to one vote and the majority of the stock shall be necessary to a determination. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 105; G. C. §§ 742-11; 710-12; 101 v. 281.)

A majority of the stock issued and outstanding is required by this section, and not merely a majority of the stock present and voting as in § 710-103. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 698.

Liability for franchise taxes (§ 5495 et seq.) continues until the corporation has been dissolved. When there is a surplus of assets over liabilities, an order of dissolution under § 11975 may be procured after the stockholders meeting provided for in this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1065.

Before the enactment of the Banking Code of 1919 it was said that sections analogous to §§ 710-102 to 710-105 did not apply to unincorporated banks, and that, when depositors and creditors of such banks had been paid in full, the superintendent was authorized to turn over the assets, books and papers to the owners, or to a trustee named by them. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 415.

Section 710-103. (Distribution upon completion of liquidation. Agent may be appointed to liquidate.) In case it is determined to continue the liquidation under the superintendent of banks, he shall complete the liquidation of the affairs of such bank, and after paying the expenses thereof shall distribute the proceeds among the stockholders in proportion to the several holdings of stock, in such manner and upon such notice as may be directed by the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located. In case it is determined to appoint an agent or agents to liquidate, the stockholders shall thereupon select such agent or agents by ballot, a majority of the stock present and voting, in person or by proxy, being necessary to a choice. Such agent or agents shall file with the superintendent of banks a bond to the state of Ohio in such amount and with such sureties as shall be approved by the superintendent of banks for the faithful performance of all the duties of his or their trust, and thereupon the superintendent of banks shall transfer to such agent or agents all the undivided or uncollected or other assets of such bank then remaining in his hands; and upon such transfer and delivery the said superintendent of banks shall be discharged from all further liability to such bank and its creditors. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 105; G. C. § 742-13; 101 v. 282.)

Section 710-104. (Conversion of assets before distribution.) Such agent or agents shall convert the assets coming into his or their possession into cash, and shall account for and make distribution of the property of such bank as herein provided in the case of distribution by the superintendent of banks, except that the expenses thereof shall be subject to the direction and control of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 106; G. C. § 742-14; 101 v. 282.)

Section 710-105. (Successor in case of death or removal of agent.) In case of death or removal or refusal to act of any such agent, or agents, the stockholders may elect a successor as hereinbefore provided who shall have the same powers and be subject to the same liabilities and duties as the agent, or agents, originally elected. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 106; G. C. § 742-15; 101 v. 282.)

Section 710-106. (Deposit of dividends and unclaimed deposits with treasurer of state. Doubtful or conflicting claims.) Dividends and unclaimed deposits remaining in the hands of the superintendent of banks for six months after the order for final distribution shall be by him deposited with the treasurer of state who shall hold such funds as custodian, subject to the order of the superintendent of banks and without the necessity of appropriation by the general assembly. The superintendent of banks may pay over the moneys so held by the treasurer of state to the persons respectively entitled thereto, upon being furnished satisfactory evidence of their right to the same. In case of doubt or conflicting claims he may apply to the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such bank was located for an order authorizing and directing the payment thereof. All unclaimed deposits and uncalled for dividends for which no claim has been made within a period of five years, after the order of final distribution, shall be paid into the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 106; G. C. § 742-16; 106 v. 360; 101 v. 282.)

Unclaimed deposits and dividends must be deposited in accordance with this section, and should not be distributed to stockholders. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 713; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 820.

Section 710-107. (Books and papers deposited with clerk of courts after liquidation.) All books, papers and records of a bank which has been finally liquidated by the superintendent of banks, shall be deposited by the superintendent of banks in the office of the clerk of courts for the county in which the office of such bank was located, such books, papers and records to be held by the clerk of courts of such county subject to the order of the court of common pleas for such county. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 106.)

Section 710-108. (Real estate bank may purchase, lease, hold or convey.) A bank may purchase, lease, hold and convey real estate only as follows:

(a) A building or quarters therein, or lands whereon is erected or may be erected a building or buildings useful for the transaction of its business and from portions of which, not required for its use, a revenue may be derived; but the cost of such building or buildings and the lands whereon they are erected, in no case shall exceed sixty per cent of its paid-in capital and surplus;

(b) Such as is mortgaged or conveyed to it in good faith by way of security for loans made by or money due to such corporation;

(c) Such as has been purchased by it at sales upon the foreclosure of mortgages owned by it, or on judgments or decrees obtained or rendered for debts due to it, or in settlements effected to secure such debts. All real property referred to in this paragraph shall be sold by such bank within five years after it is vested therein, unless upon application by the board of directors, the superintendent of banks extends the time within which such sales shall be made. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 107; G. C. § 9753; 99 v. 279, § 46.)

Real estate acquired under paragraph (c) of this section must be sold within five years after acquisition, unless the time is extended by the superintendent. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 808.

Purchase of an undivided interest in real estate is not authorized by this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 773.

Power to acquire and hold stock in a building company owning the building occupied by the bank. See § 710-121; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 684.

Section 710-109. (Fire and burglar proof safes; safety deposit boxes.) A bank may provide fire and burglar proof safes and vaults in its banking premises and let out safety deposit boxes and other receptacles therein for the uses, purposes and benefits of depositors. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 107.)

Where three individuals interested in a company rent a safe deposit box, and it is stipulated in the contract that said box shall not be opened except in the presence of such three persons, a receiver of the business of such company can not maintain an action in replevin to obtain the contents of the box, nor can service of summons be had by publication upon an absent member of the company.

Rose v. Union, etc., Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 143 (C. P. 1913).

Section 710-110. (Property bank may receive for safe keeping.) A bank may receive on deposit for safe keeping in its vaults and safes, securities, stocks, bonds, coins, plate, jewelry, books, papers, documents and other valuable papers and property, upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 107.)

Where a national bank has been accustomed to receive United States bonds, as special deposits, gratuitously, it is liable for any loss thereof occurring through the want of that degree of care which good business men would exercise in keeping property of such value.

Bank v. Zent, 39 O. S. 105 (1883).

See Griffith v. Zipperwick, 28 O. S. 388 (1876).

Bonds, enclosed in a tin box fastened with a padlock, were deposited with a bank, as gratuitous bailee, the plaintiff depositor keeping the key. The bank had a small burglar proof safe in its vault, in which it kept similar bonds of its own and other depositors, but plaintiff's box and bonds of another depositor, also enclosed in a box, were kept in the vault, outside the safe, the other depositor consenting that his box should be so kept. Upon a loss of plaintiff's bonds by burglary, it was held that these facts were not conclusive evidence of a want of good faith or of gross negligence, and that it was not error for the court to charge the jury that they might take the character of plaintiff's box into consideration.

Griffith v. Zipperwick, 28 O. S. 388 (1876).

Section 710-111. (Securities designated in which investment may be made.) A bank may invest its capital, surplus, undivided profits and deposits in the following securities:

(a) Bonds or other interest bearing obligations of the United States, the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the District of Columbia, or those for which the faith of the United States is pledged to provide payment of the interest and principal, and in farm loan bonds issued by federal land banks and joint stock land banks.

(b) Bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of any foreign government not at war with the United States since 1900, and of the Dominion of Canada and New Foundland, which has not defaulted in the payment of principal or interest on its bonds or obligations within the period of twenty years last prior thereto.

(c) Bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of any state or territory of the United States.

(d) Bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of any county, town, township, city, school district, improvement district or sewer district, or other organized or political subdivision in this state.

(e) Bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of any city, town, county or other legally constituted political or taxing subdivision situated in one of the states of the United States, or any cities of the Philippines, Hawaii or Porto Rico, which city, town, county or taxing subdivision has been in existence ten years and which for a period of ten years previously has not defaulted for a period of more than ninety days in the payment of any part of either principal or interest of any debt contracted by it and whose net indebtedness after deducting the amount of its water bonds and bonds issued for other self sustaining public utilities and the amount of sinking funds which are available for the payment of its bonds or interest bearing obligations other than water bonds and self sustaining public utilities, does not exceed ten per cent. of the value of taxable property in such city, town, county or political or taxing subdivision to be ascertained by the valuation of property therein for the assessment of taxes next preceding such investment; provided, that no bonds or other interest bearing obligations of any such county shall be eligible for investment unless such county has a population of not less than ten thousand inhabitants, and, provided, that no bonds or other interest bearing obligations of any such city, town or political or taxing subdivision shall be eligible for investment unless such city, town or political or taxing subdivision has a population of not less than one thousand inhabitants as ascertained by United States or state census or by any municipal census taken by authority of the state next preceding such investment, and, provided, further, that there shall be eligible hereunder the bonds or other interest bearing obligations of a political or taxing subdivision which has not been in existence for ten years, but which is erected out of another eligible subdivision or comprises in whole or in part another eligible subdivision or subdivisions or parts of eligible subdivisions if such subdivision shall comply with the other requirements of this paragraph.

But nothing herein contained shall authorize the investment of funds in any special assessment or improvement bonds or other bonds or other interest bearing obligations which are not the direct obligations of the district issuing same and for which the full faith and credit of the entire district are not pledged.

(f) Bonds or debentures of any Province of the Dominion of Canada.

Bonds or debentures of any city or town or district except school district in the Dominion of Canada having a population of not less than ten thousand inhabitants, as ascertained by official census next preceding such investment and which has not since 1900 defaulted for more than ninety days in the payment of any part of principal or interest of any debt authorized to be contracted by it and which has a net indebtedness exclusive of water debt and bonds issued for other self sustaining public utilities and the amount of sinking funds available for the payment of its bonds other than water bonds and bonds issued for public utilities, which net indebtedness does not exceed seven per cent of the last valuation of its taxable property for the assessment of taxes preceding such investment, and in all other respects such bonds shall conform to the requirements of clause E of this section; and in the bonds or obligations of any city, town or district therein unconditionally guaranteed as to payment of principal and interest by the Dominion of Canada or any province thereof.

(g) Bonds of cities of foreign countries that have not been at war with the United States since 1900, having a population of more than one hundred thousand inhabitants, whose net indebtedness does not exceed seven per cent. of the last valuation of its taxable property for the assessment of taxes preceding such investment, exclusive of bonds issued for public utilities and sinking funds other than for public utilities and which have no defaulted for more than ninety days on any installment of any part of principal or interest of any debt authorized to be contracted by it for twenty-five years preceding such investment.

(h) Bankers acceptances of the kind and maturity made eligible by law for re-discount with federal reserve banks, provided the same are accepted by a bank incorporated under the laws of this state or any member bank of the federal reserve system.

(i) Mortgage bonds, collateral trust bonds, debenture bonds or notes of any regularly incorporated company which, or the constituent companies comprising which for four years (4) prior to the date of purchase has earned over and above all fixed charges other than interest on indebtedness, an amount equal to at least double the interest charges which it will be required to pay upon its outstanding obligations; or mortgage bonds, collateral trust bonds debenture bonds or notes of any regularly incorporated company, which bonds or notes plus all prior incumbrances are outstanding in an amount not in excess of 50% of the actual value of the property securing said bonds or notes.

(j) Railroad equipment bonds or car trust certificates issued in the United States or Canada, and bonds secured by first mortgage on steel steamships, in an amount not exceeding 50% of the value of such vessels.

(k) Bonds or notes secured by first mortgage on improved real estate as defined in section 113 hereof (G. C. § 710-113) of not more than 60% of the value thereof.

(Securities shall be charged on books at cost.) All securities as enumerated above, having a fixed maturity shall be charged and entered upon the books of the bank at their cost to the bank, and when a premium is paid therefor an annual amortization charge shall be made thereon so as to bring the cost of same to the face value of said bonds at maturity. The superintendent of banks shall have the power to require any security to be charged down to such sum as in his judgment represents its value. The superintendent of banks may order any securities which he deems undesirable removed from the assets of a bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 107; G. C. § 9758; 107 v. 147; 102 v. 173; 99 v. 280, § 50.)

Limit of investment in any one security. Investment in any one security is limited by § 710-121. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 664; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 788; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908, p. 192.

Bonds of a building company secured by real estate, under former statute. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 802.

Section 710-111a. (Application to superintendent to exercise certain powers.) Any bank organized under this act may file application with the superintendent of banks for permission to exercise, upon conditions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by the said superintendent of banks, either or both of the following powers:

(A) To invest its capital, surplus, undivided profits and deposits in bonds, notes, acceptances, debentures or first lien securities of one or more banks or corporations, chartered or incorporated under the laws of the United States and principally engaged in international or foreign banking, or banking in a dependency or insular possession of the United States either directly or through the agency, ownership or control of local institutions in foreign countries, or in such dependencies or insular possession; including the bonds, notes, trade acceptances, debentures or first lien securities of one or more banks or corporations chartered or incorporated under section 25a of the Federal Reserve Act, as approved December 24, 1919.

(B) To invest an amount not exceeding in the aggregate ten per centum of its capital stock and surplus in the stock of one or more banks or corporations chartered or incorporated under the laws of the United States and principally engaged in international or foreign banking, or banking in a dependency or insular possession of the United States either directly or through the agency, ownership or control of local institutions in foreign countries or in such dependencies or insular possessions; including the stock of one or more banks or corporations chartered or incorporated under section 25a of the Federal Reserve Act, as approved December 24, 1919.

(Information furnished superintendent.) Every bank organized hereunder and investing in the capital stock of banks or corporations as provided herein, shall be required to furnish information concerning the condition of such banks or corporations to the superintendent of banks upon demand. (109 v. 97.)

Where a savings bank made a loan to jewelers on pledges of jewelry and merchandise, the fact that the bank had not complied with statutes regulating pawn brokers was held not to affect its lien upon the property pledged, as against general unsecured creditors.

Griffith v. Goldsoll, 42 W. L. B. 264 (Supreme Ct., without report, 1899).

Section 710-112. (Loans upon mortgage; limitations.)

Loans by banks upon mortgage notes shall be made upon first mortgage upon real estate situated in this state, or in states contiguous thereto, and shall not exceed forty per cent (40%) of the value of such real estate if unimproved, and sixty per cent (60%) of such value if improved, and the improvements shall be kept adequately insured. In the case of commercial banks not more than fifty per cent (50%) and in the case of savings banks and trust companies, not more than sixty per cent (60%) of the amount of the paid in capital, surplus and deposits of such bank or trust company at any time shall be invested in such real estate securities. Loans on collateral enumerated in clauses (i), (j) and (k) of section 111 of this act (G. C. § 710-111), shall not exceed eighty per cent. of the value of such collateral. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 110; G. C. § 9758; 107 v. 147; 102 v. 173; 99 v. 280, § 50.)

A bank may not make loans upon real estate in states which do not bound or abut upon Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1066.

Under former statutes, it was said that a mortgage on a leasehold for ninety-nine years, not renewable forever, was not authorized. Such a mortgage, however, could be accepted by a savings bank as collateral security under § 710-139. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 677.

Section 710-113. ("Improved" real estate defined.) The term "improved" real estate as used in this act shall be held to mean land upon which buildings have been erected suitable and intended to be used for residence, business or other purposes and fit for use and occupancy, or under construction for such purposes; and in the case of farm property shall mean tillable land with farm buildings thereon and actually under use for farm purposes, and when so used the same may include pasture and wood lands. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 110:)

Section 710-114. (Loans may not be made upon shares of its capital stock; sale of pledged stock, when.) No bank shall loan money on the security or pledge of the shares of its capital stock; nor be the purchaser or holder of any such shares, unless such security or purchase be necessary to prevent loss upon debt previously contracted in good faith. Stock so acquired shall, within six months from the time of its purchase, be sold or disposed of at public sale on thirty days' notice from the superintendent of banks, and in default thereof the superintendent of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be finally liquidated, as herein provided. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 110; G. C. § 9761; 101 v. 284; 99 v. 281, § 53.)

Power of savings bank to invest in stock of other corporations. § 710-140.

A bank has no power to purchase stock in itself for the purpose of reselling at a profit. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 796.

A note given by a subscriber for national bank stock, in the amount of his subscription, secured by the stock as collateral was held not ultra vires or illegal. Bank v. McDonald, 2 Ohio App. 497; 21 C. C. n. s. 245 (1913).

Under the former free banking act a bank had a statutory lien, for claims other than subscriptions, on stock of its debtors, although it was prohibited from loaning money thereon (G. C. §§ 9683, 9684). State v. Davis, 85 O. S. 44; Conant v. Reed, 1 O. S. 298, 304.

Although certificates issued after July 1, 1911, were required to contain a notice of the lien. § 8673-15; Bank v. Hunt, 16 N. P. n. s. 65 (1914).

In the absence of a prohibitory statute a bank may acquire its own stock in payment of a debt from a stockholder, although he is solvent. Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 6 Ohio 176 (1833).

Under this section it is said that a bank has no power to reserve a lien on its stock by express stipulation on the certificates, to secure the indebtedness of its stockholders to it, and that such a lien is invalid.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 775.

Agreement of corporation to sell stock for stockholder. Liability for breach. Where a bank stockholder, who is indebted to the bank, is about to sell his stock through a broker to raise funds to pay the debt, and the bank agrees to sell the stock for him for the same price at which he has authorized the broker to sell, the bank is liable to him for such price, where it fails to sell the stock or to notify him of its failure. Brown v. Ginn, 21 C. C. n. s. 85 (1907); aff'd, no rep. 80 O. S. 718.

Section 710-115. (Loans to officer, director, etc., prohibited, unless authorized.) No loan shall be made, directly or indirectly to any officer, director or member of the executive committee of any bank unless duly authorized or approved by the directors. Such authorization or approval shall be recorded in the records of their proceedings, and all loans when so authorized and made to officers, directors or members of the executive committee shall be made and secured in the same manner as loans to other persons. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 110; G. C. § 9729; 99 v. 273, § 23.)

In the absence of statute, a bank may make loans to its officers.

State v. Bank, 10 Ohio 535, 541 (1841).

Directors who participate in the making of a loan to another director, in violation of statute, are individually liable for losses incurred thereby.

Purpose of restriction.

See State v. Bank, 5 O. S. 171, 177 (1855).

Section 710-116. (Separate books shall be kept, when.) A corporation formed to combine two or more classes of business under this act, shall keep separate books of accounts for each class. Receipts, investments and transactions relating to each of such classes of business shall be governed by the provisions and restrictions herein specifically provided therefor. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 110; G. C. § 9740; 99 v. 275, § 35.)

Section 710-117. (How deposits shall be entered.) All deposits of money, or its equivalent, made with a bank shall be entered on its books, in terms of lawful money of the United States, and in no other way, and shall be payable at the authorized place of business of such bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 110.)

Deposits.

A banking corporation has implied power to receive funds on deposit. See Corwin v. Insurance Co., 14 Ohio 6, 12 (1846).

Power to receive deposits.

Commercial banks, § 710-135.

Savings banks, § 710-141.

Authority of bank employe to receive deposit. Where a prospective depositor called at the "New Accounts" window of a bank and inquired for an employe with whom she was acquainted, and such employe, being called from another part of the bank, accepted her deposit and issued a pass book, the bank was held to be estopped from denying the authority of the employe to receive it. Toole v. Trust Co., 22 C. C. n. s. 112 (1908).

Special deposits. A deposit is presumed to be general and not special, unless it otherwise appear.

State v. Perrin, 9 N. P. n. s. 97; 19 L. D. 416 (C. P. 1909).

But where a trustee, having no authority to make a general deposit, deposits trust money, taking a certificate of deposit certifying that he as trustee has deposited the fund payable to himself on return of the certificate properly endorsed, the same not being subject to check, and no stipulation for interest being made, the presumption, in the absence of proof to the contrary, is that the trustee intended to perform and not violate his duty and that the deposit was intended as a special, and not a general deposit.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

See Towson v. Cole, 6 N. P. n. s. 388; 17 L. D. 282 (1906).

Money paid to a bank, by a subscriber for a liberty loan bond, to be transmitted to the government, is a special deposit. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 728.

General deposits. Money received by a bank on general deposit becomes the property of the bank, and its relation to the depositor is that of a debtor, and not of bailee or trustee of the money.

Bank v. Brewing Co., 50 O. S. 151 (1893).

Niles v. Olszak, 87 O. S. 229 (1912).

The bank agrees with its depositor to receive his deposits, to account with him for the amount, to repay to him on demand, and to honor his checks to the amount of his credit when the checks are presented, and for any breach of that agreement the bank is liable in an action by him. The deposits become the absolute property of the bank, impressed with no trust, and the bank's right to use the money for its own benefit is immediate and continuous, which right constitutes the consideration for the bank's promise to the depositor.

If the money is stolen, or destroyed, the loss must be borne by the bank, though it is free from negligence or fault.

Armstrong v. Warner, 21 W. L. B. 136 (Super. Ct. Cin.); aff'd, 49 O. S. 376.

Insolvency of the bank, and suspension of payments, dispenses with the necessity of a demand.

Armstrong v. Warner, 21 W. L. B. 136.

General or special deposit. Presumptions. A deposit is presumed to be a general one, unless it otherwise appear.

State v. Perrin, 9 N. P. n. s. 97; 19 L. D. 416 (C. P. 1909).

But where a trustee, having no authority to make a general deposit, deposits trust money, taking a certificate of deposit certifying that he as trustee has deposited the fund payable to self on return of the certificate properly endorsed, the same not being subject to check, and no stipulation for interest being made, the presumption, in the absence of proof to the contrary, is that the trustee intended to perform and not violate his duty, and that the deposit was intended as a special, and not a general, deposit.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

When is a deposit for collection only? In the absence of special agreement, the deposit of an uncertified check by the holder, whether drawn on that bank or another, is deemed to be for collection only, and if there be no funds to meet it, or if it is returned dishonored, the deposit bank may return it to the depositor and cancel the credit.

Blake v. Bank, 79 O. S. 189, 195 (1908); Bank v. Enright, 23 C. n. s. 381 (1915); motion to certify record overruled.

A deposit with a bank of a certificate of deposit issued by a distant bank, by the payee, with a request to credit the same, no other request or instruction being given, implies that the proceeds of the certificate, when collected, are to be deposited to the party's credit, and then subject to his check, and not remitted otherwise to the depositor.

Hilsinger v. Trickett, 86 O. S. 286 (1912).

A bank received by mail, from the payee, a certificate of deposit issued by a distant bank, the payee stating in the accompanying letter that it was for deposit to his credit, and asking for a deposit slip and two or three checks, the payee never having had previous dealings with the bank. The bank, by mail, acknowledged receipt of the certificate and advised that credit had been given to the account of the payee, and enclosed a slip advising that the certificate had been deposited to his credit, and also enclosed two or three checks, no other request being made or answer given. Held, that the transaction did not amount in law to a purchase of the certificate, but as a receipt of the same for collection only, the bank agreeing to use due diligence in efforts to collect and to be responsible for the proceeds in case of collection, and assuming responsibility for the paper only in case of its negligence by which the payee suffered loss.

Miles v. Reiniger, 39 O. S. 499 (1883).

Deposits by trustees. See § 710-131.

Deposits by commission merchants. Although a bank is charged with constructive notice that deposits made by commission merchants are largely the proceeds of sales of property of other parties, yet a bank is not constructively charged with knowledge of the particular ownership of deposits on any one day, so as to be liable for the payment in good faith of checks drawn against such deposits.

Smith v. City Hall Bank, 13 C. C. n. s. 122; 22 C. D. 342 (1910).

But a bank can not apply such deposits, belonging to other parties, on overdrafts of the commission merchant.

Deposits in insolvent bank. Where a bank is hopelessly insolvent, within the knowledge of its officers, it is a fraud for such bank to thereafter receive deposits, and title to deposits thereafter made does not vest in the bank. As a general rule a person, in order to recover a deposit made in an insolvent bank, must trace and identify his particular deposit.

But where on the last day on which the bank was open for business and two days before the receiver took possession, a person made a deposit of checks and cash, which was not credited on the books of the bank, and the checks were not collected, until after the receiver took possession, the depositor was permitted to recover the full amount of his deposit, although the cash had been mixed with other moneys.

A special deposit may be recovered, after insolvency, although it has been mingled with other funds of the bank.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

Where an insolvent bank received a check on deposit a few minutes before its doors were closed, the check being turned over to the S. bank which credited the insolvent bank with the amount thereof, on an overdraft, but with knowledge of its condition, it was held that the S. bank could not recover on the check against its drawer, who had deposited the same in the insolvent bank. Bank v. Enright, 23 C. C. n. s. 381 (1915); motion to certify record overruled.

Right of bank to apply deposits to payment of debts due bank. A bank may apply a deposit to the payment of indebtedness of the depositor of a bank. Where the deposit is a general deposit, the right of the bank is that of set-off. Where the deposit is special, the bank has a lien thereon.

Bank v. Brewing Co., 50 O. S. 151, 158, 159 (1893).

The bank may assert such rights, although checks have been issued by the depositor against the deposit.

Commercial deposits, see note to § 710-133.

Section 710-118. (Records preserved six years.) Every bank shall preserve all of its records, including cards used under a card system, and deposit tickets, for at least six years from the time of making same, and from the date of the last entry thereon. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 111.)

Section 710-119. (Accounts in name of minors.) When an account is opened in any bank by or in the name of a minor it shall be payable to such minor, and such payment shall be as valid as if such minor were of legal age. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 111; G. C. § 9770; 99 v. 283, § 62.)

Section 710-120. (Deposits in name of two or more persons.) When a deposit has been made, or shall hereafter be made in any bank or trust company transacting business in this state in the name of two or more persons, payable to either, or the survivor, such deposit or any part thereof, or any interest or dividend thereon, may be paid to either of said persons whether the other be living or not; and the receipt or acquittance of the person so paid shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge to the bank for any payments so made. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 111; G. C. § 9790-1; 101 v. 120, § 1.)

This section was not repealed by the inheritance tax law. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 143.

This section is for the protection of the bank and payment by the bank does not determine the title to the fund. Estate of Morgan, 28 O. C. A. 22 (1918).

deposit are equal, in the absence of any declaration of trust or agreement on the subject. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 473.

For inheritance tax see § 5348-2.

Section 710-121. (Limitation of capital and surplus invested in one stock or security.) Not more than twenty per cent of the capital and surplus of a bank doing business under this charter shall be invested in any one stock or security unless it be in bonds or other interest bearing obligations enumerated in paragraphs a, b, c, d, e and h of section 111 of this act (G. C. § 710-111); or in the stock of a corporation owning the land, building or buildings occupied by such bank for its banking quarters, and then not exceeding sixty per cent of its capital and surplus shall be so invested, which shall be carried on the books of the bank as an investment or equity in real estate; or in the bonds, notes, acceptances, debentures or first lien securities of banks or corporations chartered or incorporated under the laws of the United States and principally engaged in international or foreign banking, or banking in a dependency or insular possession of the United States either directly or through the agency, ownership or control of local institutions in foreign countries or in such dependencies or insular possessions; including the bonds, notes, acceptances, debentures or first lien securities of one or more banks or corporations chartered or incorporated under section 25a of the Federal Reserve Act, as approved December 24, 1919. (109 v. 97; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 111; G. C. § 9790; 99 v. 283, § 64.)

Collateral deposited to secure a loan is not an "investment", and a bank may accept, as security for a loan under the 20 percent limit, one security in excess thereof, as collateral. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 750.

In the absence of a statute, the selection of debtors and distribution of loans are within the discretion of the directors.

State v. Commercial Bank, 10 Ohio 535, 541 (1841).

In an action by a national bank on a note given as a renewal for a balance due on a previous loan, which had been reduced by renewals and payments below the maximum loan authorized to a single borrower, it is no defense that the original loan was for a larger sum than the bank was authorized to make.

Allen v. First N. B., 23 O. S. 97 (1872).

Section 710-122. (Limitation of loans to company, firm or corporation.) A bank shall not lend, including overdrafts, to any one person, company, corporation or firm, more than twenty per cent of its paid-in capital and surplus, unless such loan be secured by first mortgage upon improved farm property in a sum not to exceed sixty per cent of its value.

The total liabilities, including overdrafts, of any one person, company, corporation or firm, to any bank, either as principal debtor or as security or indorser for others, for money borrowed, except as additional security for a liability previously incurred, at no time shall exceed twenty per cent of its paid-in capital stock and surplus; provided, however, that (1) the discount of bills of exchange drawn in good faith against actually existing values, (2) the discount of trade-acceptances or other commercial and business paper actually owned by the person, company, corporation or firm, negotiating the same, and (3) the purchase or discount of any note or notes secured by not less than a like face amount of bonds of the United States, or certificates of indebtedness of the United States, shall not be considered as money borrowed within the meaning of this section. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 111; G. C. 9754; 99 v. 279, § 47.)

One who has obtained a loan from a bank, exceeding the legal limit in amount, cannot defend against a suit thereon, on the ground of ultra vires. And where such a loan is secured by notes or other obligations as collateral, the obligors on such collateral obligations can take no advantage of such violation of law. Mutual Bank v. Trust Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 306, 308, 309 (1911).

Section 710-123. (Loans to which limitations not applicable.) The limitations provided in section 122 (G. C. § 710-122) shall not be applicable to loans made by unincorporated banks for agricultural, industrial or commercial purposes or the proceeds of which have been used or are to be used for such purposes; but such loans shall not include notes, drafts or bills of exchange issued or drawn for the purpose of carrying or trading in stocks, bonds or other investments, except bonds and notes of the United States; provided, the total liabilities, including overdrafts of a person, company, corporation or firm to any unincorporated bank, either as principal debtor or as security or indorser for others, for money borrowed, except as additional security for a liability previously incurred, at no time shall exceed twenty per cent of the net worth of the owners of such bank, as shown by the report last filed in accordance with section 77 of this act (G. C. § 710-77). (108 (Pt. 1) v. 111.)

Section 710-124. ("Commercial or business paper" and "trade acceptance" defined.) As used in this act the term "commercial or business paper" is hereby defined to mean a promissory note, and the term "trade acceptance" to mean a draft or bill of exchange issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial or commercial purposes, or the proceeds of which have been used or are to be used for such purposes, but such definition shall not include notes, drafts or bills of exchange covering merely investments, or issued or drawn for the purpose of carrying or trading in stocks, bonds or other investment securities, except bonds and notes of the government of the United States. Such notes, drafts and bills of exchange shall have a maturity at the time of discount of not more than ninety days except when drawn or issued for agricultural purposes or based on live stock, when such maturities shall not exceed six months from the date thereof. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 112.)

Section 710-125. (Unauthorized deposits deemed loans.)

The deposit of funds by any bank in another bank or trust company, not duly designated as a depository by its board of directors as hereinafter provided, shall be held to be a loan within the meaning of section 122 of this act (G. C. § 710-122). (108 (Pt. 1) v. 112; G. C. § 9755; 99 v. 279, § 47.)

Section 710-126. (Borrowing of money and securities limited.) No bank may borrow money, bonds or other securities in any sum exceeding the amount of its capital stock and surplus, except with the written consent of the superintendent of banks, provided that the rediscount of notes, bills of exchange and acceptances shall not be considered money borrowed. Every such re-discount shall be entered upon the books of the bank, and the total amount thereof shall appear as a contingent liability upon every report of condition made to the superintendent of banks or published by said bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 112.)

Power to borrow money under general corporation law, § 8705.

Where a bank borrowed money from one of its directors, under an agreement to deliver him certain collateral securities therefor, an equitable lien was held to have been created upon the securities, enforceable against the assignee for creditors of the bank, where through no fault of the lender, the securities were not delivered. Klaustermeyer v. Trust Co., 89 O. S. 142 (1913).

Section 710-127. (Reserve banks may be designated; resolution certified to superintendent.) A bank may by resolution of its board of directors designate other banks organized under the law of this state, or of another state, or of the national banking act of the United States, as reserve banks in which such part of its reserve not required to be kept by it may be deposited, subject to payment upon demand. A copy of such resolution shall upon its adoption be forthwith certified to the superintendent of banks and the depository so designated shall be subject to the approval of the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 112; G. C. § 9759; 107 v. 186; 102 v. 173; 99 v. 281, § 51.)

Section 710-128. (Deposit in other bank as reserve, etc., limited.) No bank shall deposit as a reserve or otherwise in any other bank or national bank an amount in excess of 50% of the capital stock and surplus of such depository bank; nor shall any two banks be reciprocal depositories each for the other. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 113.)

Unauthorized deposits. § 710-125.

Section 710-129. (Loans, discounts or dividends of profits, prohibited, when.) When the reserve of a bank falls below the amount required by law, it shall not make new loans or discounts, otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange, payable at sight or on demand, nor make dividends of its profits, until the reserve required by law is restored. The superintendent of banks shall require any bank whose reserve falls below the amount required, immediately to make such reserve good. In case the bank fails for thirty days thereafter to make good its reserve, the superintendent of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be adjusted or finally liquidated, as provided by law. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 113; G. C. § 9760; 101 v. 284; 99 v. 281, § 52.)

Section 710-130. (Dividend of undivided profits may be declared, when. Undivided profits, how ascertained.) The board of directors of any bank may declare a dividend of so much of its undivided profits as they deem expedient. Before such dividend is declared, not less than one-tenth of the net earnings of the company for the preceding half-year, or for such period as is covered by the dividend, shall be carried to surplus until such surplus amounts to fifty per cent of its capital stock.

In order to ascertain the undivided profits from which such a dividend may be made, in the account of profit and loss there shall be charged and deducted from the actual profits:

(1) All ordinary and extraordinary expenses, paid or incurred, in managing the affairs and transacting the business of the bank,

(2) Interest paid or then due, on debts which it owes,

(3) All taxes due,

(4) All losses sustained by the corporation. In computing its losses, debts owing to it which have become due and which are not in process of collection and on which interest for one year or more is due and unpaid, unless same are well secured, and debts upon which final judgment has been recovered, but has been for more than one year unsatisfied, and on which also for said period of one year, no interest was paid, unless same are well secured, shall be included. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 113; G. C. § 9735; 103 v. 270; 99 v. 274, § 29.)

“Well secured” in clause 4 of this section means secured so that the entire debt could be collected from the security, without regard to the financial ability of the principal debtor. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1482.

Section 710-131. (Deposits in trust for another; to whom paid.) Whenever any deposit shall be made in a bank by any person in trust for another, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given in writing to the bank, in the event of the death of the trustee, the same, or any part thereof, together with the dividends or interest thereon, may be paid to the person for whom said deposit was made. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 113.)

Deposits by trustees. An assignee, receiver or trustee of an insolvent has no authority to make a general deposit, the title to which passes to the bank. Such a deposit is in legal effect a loan to the bank, and is unauthorized.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

Such a deposit may be authorized by a proper order of court.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

G. C. § 710-157 provides that a court may authorize deposits in a trust company on such terms and subject to such restrictions as may be deemed expedient.

A trustee may make a special deposit.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

Section 710-132. (Non-payment of check through error or mistake, bank not liable to depositor, when.) No bank shall be liable to a depositor because of the non-payment through mistake or error and without malice of a check which should have been paid unless the depositor shall allege and prove actual damage by reason of such non-payment and in such event the liability shall not exceed the amount of damage so proved. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 113.)

Checks.

A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand, G. C. § 8290.

A check is an order which may be countermanded and payment forbidden by the drawer any time before it is actually cashed or accepted. Railroad Co. v. Bank, 54 O. S. 60, 72 (1896).

After the death of the drawer, a bank has no right to pay or certify a check.

Covert v. Rhodes, 48 O. S. 66, 72 (1891).

The holder of a check has no priority over other creditors of its drawer, upon his bankruptcy or insolvency.

Covert v. Rhodes, 48 O. S. 66, 72 (1891).

Chaffee v. Bank, 40 O. S. 1 (1883).

Smith v. Bank, 13 C. C. n. s. 122; 22 C. D. 342 (1910).

A check does not of itself operate as an assignment of any part of the deposit, and the bank is not liable to the holder of the check unless and until it accepts or certifies the check.

G. C. § 8294.

Railroad Co. v. Bank, 54 O. S. 60 (1896).

Covert v. Rhodes, 48 O. S. 66 (1891).

But the depositor may arrange with the cashier that his deposits shall be used to pay certain checks only. In such case, the deposits are appropriated to such checks and may not be applied to the payment of other checks. Paige v. Bank, 12 Ohio App. 196; 30 O. C. A. 53 (1919); motion to certify record overruled. 17 O. L. R. 312.

A check drawn to order should be paid only to, or on the genuine and authorized endorsement of, the payee. Goldberg v. Bank, 17 N. P. n. s. 398 (1913).

After a check has been certified, the drawer of the check can not revoke or stop payment upon it. The certifying bank is liable on the check to another bank that has received it for deposit and given credit therefor to its depositor, although before payment to its depositor, it received notice that the check had been fraudulently obtained by the depositor.

Blake v. Bank, 79 O. S. 189 (1908).

See G. C. §§ 8292, 8293.

It is the duty of a bank to honor checks to the amount of the depositor's credit, when the checks are presented.

Railroad Co. v. Bank, 54 O. S. 60, 71 (1896).

The bank may decline payment of a check because of insufficient funds, and may pay out of the depositor's balance from time to time, smaller checks, although drawn subsequent to the dishonored check. If, when the larger check was first presented, the bank undertook the duties of a collection agent, its liability depends upon the terms of the agency. Paige v. Bank, 12 Ohio App. 196; 30 O. C. A. 53 (1919); motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 312.

Forged checks. A bank is bound to know the signature of its depositor on a check and makes payment at its own peril.

Bank v. Bank, 58 O. S. 207 (1898).

See Ellis v. Ohio, etc., Co., 4 O. S. 628 (1855).

A bank may, and should, withhold payment of a check until fully satisfied as to the genuineness of the endorsements.

Armstrong v. Bank, 46 O. S. 512 (1889).

The duty of a bank is to pay checks, drawn payable to order, to the person who becomes the holder by genuine endorsement. The depositor can not be charged with payments made otherwise unless the circumstances amount to a direction from the depositor to the bank to pay the check without reference to the genuineness of the endorsement, or are equivalent to a subsequent admission that the endorsement is genuine, in reliance on which the bank is induced to alter its position.

When there has been no fraud, or special understanding between bank and depositor, the liability of the bank can not be affected by conduct of the depositor in drawing the check, of which the bank had no notice.

Dodge v. Bank, 20 O. S. 234 (1870).

Dodge v. Bank, 30 O. S. 1 (1877).

Armstrong v. Bank, 46 O. S. 512 (1889).

Goldberg v. Bank, 17 N. P. n. s. 398 (1913).

The rightful possession of a check, payable to order, confers no authority on the bank to pay it to the person having such possession, without the genuine endorsement of the payee.

Dodge v. Bank, 30 O. S. 1 (1877).

Where, by the fraud of a third person, a depositor is induced to draw his check to the order of a fictitious person, or order, the drawer being in ignorance of the fact and intending no fraud, the bank is not authorized to pay the check and charge it to the account of the depositor.

Armstrong v. Bank, 46 O. S. 512 (1889).

Jones Sons v. Bank, 14 N. P. n. s. 129 (C. P. 1913).

Estoppel of depositor. It has been held that a depositor is not bound to look for forged signatures among his checks when his book is balanced, and the checks returned to him, and is not presumed to have acquiesced in the account charging him with the payment of such a check, where he failed for seventeen days to examine the checks and discover the forgery.

Bank v. Creasy, 18 W. L. B. 410 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1887).

See G. C. § 11225-1.

It is a depositor's duty, when his pass book has been written up and returned to him with the checks charged to his account, to examine them within a reasonable time thereafter, and report any forgeries discovered. After the lapse of a reasonable time, a presumption arises that the checks are correct, and the depositor having failed to examine them at a proper time can not recover from the bank the amount paid on checks subsequently discovered to be forgeries without proving that the bank could have, by the use of ordinary care, detected such forgery.

Jones Sons v. Bank, 14 N. P. n. s. 129; 23 L. D. 353 (C. P. 1913).

See Cumberland v. Bank, 20 C. C. n. s. 31.

A stranger, introduced to plaintiff by one W., who was known to plaintiff, represented that he was A. B., owner of a farm and applied for a loan. Plaintiff, finding the title to be in A. B., took a mortgage from the stranger on the farm, and gave him a check on defendant payable to A. B. The stranger was identified as A. B. at the bank by W. and the bank cashed the check. Held, that the bank was not liable to plaintiff.

McHenry v. Bank, 85 O. S. 203 (1911).

See Winters N. B. v. Roberts, 8 N. P. n. s. 294 (C. P. 1909).

A depositor drew a check to the order of M. R., who lived in New York, but by mistake mailed it to M. R. at Cleveland, where it was received by a person of the same name, who cashed the check. Held, the bank was not liable to the depositor.

Weisberger Co. v. Bank, 84 O. S. 21 (1911).

A check properly endorsed in blank was obtained without authority by a partner of its owner, and cashed. Held, as between the bank and depositor, the check was properly charged to his account.

Bowden v. Bank, 12 W. L. B. 184 (Dist. Ct. 1883).

Limitation of action against bank.

See § 11225-1.

Recovery of money paid on forged check. Where a bank pays a check to a bona fide holder, it can not recover the money back upon discovering the check to be a forgery. This rule has not been modified in Ohio except by local custom in Ellis v. Ohio, etc., Co., 4 O. S. 628.

Bank v. Bank, 58 O. S. 207, 211-212 (1898).

To shift the loss sustained upon a forged check the holder must give prompt notice of the forgery, when discovered, and return the check to the party upon whom the loss is sought to be cast, and reasonable opportunity should, if possible, be given such party to protect himself against loss.

Bank v. Bank, 6 C. C. 130; 3 C. D. 380 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 52 O. S. 630.

Where a bank paid a forged check to a bona fide holder, and upon discovery of the forgery, did not notify the party to whom it had been paid, but, on inquiry by such holder, assured him that the check was "all right," the bank is estopped from subsequently recovering the amount paid.

Bank v. Bank, 6 C. C. 130; 3 C. D. 380 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 52 O. S. 630.

Section 710-133. (What deemed due diligence in forwarding check, notes, etc., for collection.) Any bank, banker or trust company, organized under the laws of or doing business in this state, receiving for collection or deposit, any check, note or other negotiable instrument drawn upon or payable at any other bank, located within or without this state, may forward such instrument for collection direct to the bank on which it is drawn or at which it is made payable and such method of forwarding direct to the payor, shall be deemed due diligence and the failure of such payor bank, because of its insolvency or other default, to account for the proceeds thereof, shall not render the forwarding bank liable therefor, provided, however, such forwarding bank shall have used due diligence in other respects in connection with the collection of such instrument. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 114.)

Collections.

Powers of bank as to. Where a negotiable promissory note is endorsed for collection and sent to the place of payment, the bank receiving such note, with such indorsement, has no power to sell or transfer the note. Its power is limited to collection.

Bank v. Craig, 63 O. S. 374 (1900).

A bank having a "collateral note" in its possession, for collection, is not a "holder" thereof, within the meaning of a clause in the note authorizing its "holder" to become the purchaser of the securities pledged. Such bank has no right to purchase the securities at its own sale.

Moore v. Bank, 12 C. C. n. s. 529; 21 C. D. 614 (1910).

Where payment of a check is refused because of insufficient funds, the bank may agree to hold and undertake to collect it. Paige v. Bank, 12 Ohio App. 196; 30 O. C. A. 53 (1919); motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 312.

Method of collection. A person selecting a bank as a collecting agent impliedly agrees that the agency may be performed in accordance with such reasonable methods prevailing at the place of collection as have ripened into usage, not in conflict with the general law, although he has no actual knowledge of their existence.

Hilsinger v. Trickett, 86 O. S. 286 (1912).

See Bank v. Butler, 41 O. S. 519 (1885).

It is not negligence per se for a bank which has received a certificate of deposit, issued by a distant bank, for collection, to send it by mail to the bank issuing the same, with a request for payment, where such is the custom among banks, and there is no other bank in the town where the certificate was issued.

Hilsinger v. Trickett, 86 O. S. 286 (1912).

Bridge Co. v. Bank, 46 O. S. 224, 230 (1889).

It is not negligence per se for a collecting bank, in the absence of instructions to the contrary, to accept in conditional payment of a certificate of deposit, a draft or check of the issuing bank where such is the custom of banks in the vicinity.

Hilsinger v. Trickett, 86 O. S. 286 (1912).

When is a deposit for collection only? See note to § 710-117.

Title to paper held for collection and its proceeds. Where a draft is lodged for collection, the relation between the bank and the owner of the draft is that of principal and agent, and not that of creditor and debtor; and a trust character is impressed upon the draft and its proceeds.

Jones v. Kilbreth, 49 O. S. 401 (1892).

Bank v. Melhorn, 8 C. C. 191; 4 C. D. 401 (1894).

An indorsement "for collection" is notice to the drawee that the indorsee is not the owner of the paper, but only the agent of the owner authorized to receive payment for him.

Bank v. Bank, 58 O. S. 207 (1898).

Payment of note or draft by bank. Where a bank, holding a note for collection, pays the same out of its own funds, the transaction is a payment and extinguishment of the note and not a transfer thereof.

Bank v. Craig, 63 O. S. 374 (1900).

Where a bank pays a note held for collection, out of its own funds, it does not become the owner of the note unless payment is made with the assent of the maker of the note. If the maker assents, he is liable to the bank, but if he does not assent the bank can not recover from him.

Bank v. Craig, 63 O. S. 374 (1900).

Where a note is made payable at a bank designated therein, such bank may pay the note out of a general deposit of the maker of the note.

Francis v. Bank, 1 N. P. 281; 3 L. D. 185 (C. P. 1895).

Liability. Negligence. A bank holding for collection commercial paper, on which there are indorsers, is bound to take the proper steps to charge the endorsers and if, by its negligence, an endorser is discharged the bank is liable for the resulting damages.

Bank v. Bank, 49 O. S. 351 (1892).

Huff v. Hatch, 2 Dis. 63 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1858).

White v. Bank, 4 W. L. B. 791 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1879).

But where the bank, in accordance with a general usage of the place, hands a note to a reputable notary for presentment and protest it is not liable for negligence of the notary, whereby the endorser was released.

Bank v. Butler, 41 O. S. 519 (1885).

— On endorsement "for collection." An endorsement of a check, draft or bill of exchange "for collection" by one other than the payee, does not guarantee that the signature of the drawer is genuine. But such endorsement is a guaranty that the signatures of prior endorsers are genuine.

Bank v. Bank, 58 O. S. 207 (1898).

See G. C. § 8142.

— For default of correspondent. Where a bank receives for collection a draft payable in another place, and for the same purpose forwards the draft to its correspondent in such other place, it is responsible to the owner for the conduct of the correspondent and for the proceeds, immediately upon collection by the correspondent. The correspondent is the agent of the forwarding bank, and not the subagent of the owner of the draft. Payment to the correspondent is payment to the bank, unless there was some agreement or authority between the owner and the bank beyond the mere fact of the draft being received for collection.

Reeves v. Bank, 8 O. S. 465 (1858).

Bank v. Bank, 10 C. C. 233; 6 C. D. 452 (1895).

But where the correspondent is selected by the owner of the draft, and not by the forwarding bank, the bank is not liable for the acts of the correspondent.

Bridge Co. v. Bank, 46 O. S. 224 (1889).

And where the forwarding bank sends the check for collection with due diligence, and according to the prevailing banking custom or usage, the forwarding bank is not liable for loss arising from insolvency of the correspondent bank after it had collected the check. Iron Works v. Bank, 17 N. P. n. s. 365 (1915); affirmed by Court of Appeals without opinion.

— To whom liable. A bank receiving commercial paper, for collection, from another bank is liable only to the bank from which it received the paper. It is not liable to the person depositing, or placing, the paper with the forwarding bank.

Bank v. Bank, 10 C. C. 233; 6 C. D. 452 (1895).

See Cornwell v. Kinney, 1 Handy 496 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1855).

Pleading and evidence. Where the petition in a suit against a bank alleged that the plaintiff had deposited a sum of money, under an agreement whereby the bank was to safely keep the same and pay plaintiff's checks drawn against it, evidence tending to show that no money was deposited but that a certificate of deposit in a distant bank was endorsed by plaintiff to defendant, and was lost by negligence of defendant bank, is incompetent under the pleadings.

Hilsinger v. Trickett, 86 O. S. 286 (1912).

Section 710-134. (When and how surplus of bank may be used.) The surplus of any bank shall not be used for the payment of dividends nor shall the same be used for the payment of expenses or losses until the credit to undivided profits on the books of the bank has been exhausted. But any portion of such surplus may be converted into capital stock and distributed to stockholders by way of a stock dividend provided that such surplus shall not thereby be reduced below twenty per cent of the aggregate capital stock of said bank issued and outstanding after the payment of such dividend. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 114.)

Section 710-135. (Accounts subject to check may be received.) Commercial banks may receive deposits of funds subject to withdrawal or to be paid upon check of the depositor. All deposits in such banks shall be payable on demand without notice except when the contract of deposit shall otherwise provide. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 114; G. C. § 9757; 107 v. 186; 99 v. 280.)

As to deposits, see note to § 719-117.

Section 710-136. (Loans and discounts may be made.)
Commercial banks may loan money upon personal or collateral security, discount, buy, sell or assign promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, trade and bank acceptances, and other evidences of debt and buy and sell exchange, coin and bullion. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 114; G. C. § 9757; 107 v. 186; 99 v. 280, § 49.)

Collateral securities. A bank making a loan on collateral security is a bona fide holder for value thereof.

Cleveland v. Shoeman, 40 O. S. 176 (1883).

Where a note or certificate of deposit is held as collateral security for a loan, and the maker of the note or certificate of deposit becomes insolvent, the holder thereof is entitled to a dividend upon the full amount of the collateral, although the debt secured by the collateral has been reduced by payments, but not below the amount of the dividend. Mutual Bank v. Trust Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 306 (1911).

In the absence of a special agreement, a bank has no lien on collaterals, for its general or unsecured claim against the pledgor.

Stowe v. Bank, 1 C. C. 524; 1 C. D. 292 (1886).

In re Meyers, 7 N. P. 262; 10 L. D. 121.

A "collateral note" in terms giving the pledgee bank a lien, on the collateral security deposited, for the amount of the note and every other liability of the maker of the note to the bank, is valid and the bank has a lien for all other indebtedness.

Bank v. Lumber Co., 194 Fed. 732; 17 O. F. D. 37 (1911).

Stock of corporation. A national bank may make loans on the stock of a corporation, as collateral.

Bank v. Bank, 37 O. S. 208, 215 (1881).

Bank v. Wehrman, 69 O. S. 160, 171 (1903); reversed, 202 U. S. 295. And on the stock of another national bank.

Bank v. Bank, 37 O. S. 208, 215 (1881).

Under the free banking act (G. C. §§ 9676 to 9701) a bank which had made a loan on stock of another bank was held not entitled to a transfer of the stock on the books of such other bank on the ground that a corporation has no power to acquire stock of other corporations.

Franklin Bank v. Commercial Bank, 36 O. S. 350 (1881).

For power of a corporation, under present statutes, to acquire stock in other corporations, see § 8683.

Power to acquire its own stock.
§ 710-114.

See also note to § 8627.

Rights and remedies of pledgees of stock.

See note to § 8682.

Commercial paper. Where commercial paper is pledged to a bank, as collateral, it is the duty of the bank to use reasonable and ordinary care and diligence to collect the same.

Bridge Co. v. Bank, 46 O. S. 224 (1889).

Personal security. Under the national banking act which authorizes loans on "personal security" it is held that such banks are not limited to the personal undertaking of the borrower, or to the security afforded by the names of indorsers or personal sureties, but loans on a pledge of bonds, corporate stock, and other personal chattels are authorized.

Cleveland v. Shoeman, 40 O. S. 176, 181 (1883).

Where a savings bank made a loan to jewelers on pledges of jewelry and merchandise, the fact that the bank had not complied with statutes regulating pawn brokers was held not to affect its lien upon the property pledged, as against general unsecured creditors.

Griffith v. Goldsoll, 42 W. L. B. 264 (Supreme Ct. without report, 1899).

Discounts. The discounting of paper is only a mode of loaning money, with the right of taking the legal interest in advance.

Insurance Co. v. Carpenter, 40 O. S. 260, 265 (1883).

Bank v. Baker, 15 O. S. 68 (1864).

Usury. See also note to § 710-47. Contracts for usurious interest.

A bank authorized to discount paper may deduct interest in advance at the highest rate permitted by law.

McLean v. Lafayette, 3 McLean 587; 2 O. F. D. 412.

Insurance Co. v. Carpenter, 40 O. S. 260, 265 (1883).

See Ladow v. Bank, 51 O. S. 234 (1894).

But where an individual, in discounting paper, deducts interest in advance in such an amount that the interest on the money actually advanced exceeds eight percent, the transaction is usurious, and the lender can recover only the amount loaned, with interest at six percent.

Coppock v. Kuhn, 3 C. C. 599; 2 C. D. 347 (1889); aff'd, 50 O. S. 444.

The addition of the current rate of exchange to the legal rate of interest is not usury.

Unless it is charged as a mere shift or device to obtain illegal interest.

Exporting Co. v. Clark, 13 Ohio 1 (1844).

See Bank v. Haynes, 23 O. S. 637.

Gebhart v. Sorrels, 9 O. S. 461 (1859).

Sale of corporate bonds at a discount, as usury, see note to § 8797.

A purchase of commercial paper, at a greater discount than the legal rate of interest, is not usury.

Dunkle v. Renick, 6 O. S. 527 (1856).

Section 710-137. (Drafts, bills of exchange of future date may be accepted. Letters of credit may be issued, when. Limitation of amount of accepted drafts or bills. Word "goods" defined.) A commercial bank may accept for payment at a future date, drafts or bills of exchange having not more than six months sight to run, drawn upon it by its customers under acceptance agreements and which grow out of transactions involving the importation or exportation of goods; and issue letters of credit authorizing the holders thereof to draw upon it or its correspondents, provided that there is a definite bona fide contract for the shipment of goods within a specified reasonable time and the existence of such contract is certified in the acceptance agreement; or which grow out of transactions involving the domestic shipment of goods, provided that shipping documents conveying or securing to the accepting bank title to readily marketable goods, are attached or in the hands of an agent of the accepting bank, independent of the drawer, for its account, at the time of acceptance or which are secured at the time of acceptance, by warehouse receipts or other such documents conveying or securing to the accepting bank title to readily marketable goods fully covered by insurance, the warehouse receipts or other such documents to be those of a responsible warehouse independent of the drawer, the acceptor to remain so secured during the life of the acceptance unless other suitable security of the same character, or cash, be substituted; and, provided that no commercial bank shall accept drafts or bills under this section, to an aggregate amount at any time more than equal to the sum of its paid up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus; and provided further that no commercial bank shall accept whether in a foreign or domestic transaction, for any one person, firm or corporation, to an amount equal at any time to more than twenty per centum of its paid up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus, unless the accepting bank is secured either by the attached documents or those held for its account by its agent independent of the drawer, or by some other actual security of the same character. Should the accepting bank purchase or discount its own acceptances, such acceptances will be considered as a direct loan to the drawer and be subject to the limitation of section 122 of this act (G. C. § 710-122). The superintendent of banks may issue such further regulations as to such acceptances as he may deem necessary in conformity with this act.

As used herein, the word "goods" shall be construed to include goods, wares, merchandise or agricultural products, including live stock. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 114.)

A warehouse receipt for merchandise may be accepted by a national bank as collateral security.

Cleveland v. Shoeman, 40 O. S. 176 (1883).

Section 710-138. (Percentage of deposits kept as reserve.)

Commercial banks shall keep as reserve at least fifteen per cent of their total deposits; at least four per cent of that part of such deposits which is payable on demand, and at least two per cent of that part of such deposits which are time deposits shall be kept in the vaults of the bank in lawful money, national bank notes, federal reserve notes, federal reserve bank notes, or bills, notes and gold and silver certificates issued by the United States. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 115; G. C. § 9759; 107 v. 186; 102 v. 173; 99 v. 281, § 51.)

Deficiency in reserve. § 710-129.

Reserve depositories. §§ 710-125, 710-127, 710-128.

Reserve of savings bank, § 710-144.

Reserve of member bank of federal reserve bank, § 710-5.

Where a bank has, by its articles of incorporation, commercial bank powers, it must comply with the reserve requirements of a commercial bank, although it transacts savings bank business only. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 85.

Section 710-139. (Investments and loans by savings banks; enumeration of evidences of debt.) A savings bank may invest its funds in or loan money on, discount, buy, sell or assign promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, trade and bank acceptances and other evidences of debts; but all such investments or loans made except those secured by mortgages on real estate or pledge of collateral security shall be upon notes, drafts, bills of exchange, trade or bank acceptances, or other evidences of debt payable at a time not exceeding six months from the date thereof, but not more than thirty per cent. of the capital, surplus and deposits of such bank shall be so invested. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 115; G. C. § 765; 99 v. 282, § 57.)

Section 710-140. (Investment of funds by savings bank; securities enumerated.) A savings bank may invest its funds in:

(a) The securities mentioned in section 111 of this act (G. C. § 710-111) subject to the limitations and restrictions therein contained; except that investments in real estate securities shall be subject to the restrictions contained in section 112 of this act (G. C. § 710-112).

(b) Stocks of companies, upon which or the constituent companies comprising the same, dividends have been earned and paid for five consecutive years next prior to the investment; provided, every such investment shall be authorized by an affirmative vote of a majority of the board of directors of such savings bank.

No purchase or investment shall be made in the stock of any other corporation organized or doing business under the provisions of this act or of the national banking act of the United States.

(c) Promissory notes of individuals, firms or corporations when secured by a sufficient pledge of collateral approved by the executive committee or board of directors.

(d) Ground rents or certificates of participation or beneficial ownership in improved lands under lease for a period of not less than twenty-five years from the date thereof, and conditioned that the lessee shall pay all taxes and assessments thereon and keep and maintain said premises in full and complete repair, with insurance in an amount equal to the insurable value of the improvements thereon, provided that the aggregate par amount of such rents or certificates shall not exceed the value of the land nor sixty per cent of the total value of the land and improvements. But nothing in this section contained shall prevent the investment in such rents or certificates in unimproved lands, where by the terms of the lease thereof the construction of a new building thereon is provided for and funds have been deposited or will be deposited from the proceeds of the sale of such rents or certificates sufficient for the cost of such construction, and conditioned that such construction shall begin within six months thereafter and that the funds so deposited shall be paid out to meet the cost of such construction as the work progresses and for no other purpose. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 116; G. C. § 9765; 99 v. 282.)

Stock in a building and loan association is not an authorized investment, although paid up. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 608.

Stock in a building company which has earned and paid dividends for five consecutive years last past is authorized. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1656; 12 O. L. R. 493.

A mortgage on a leasehold for ninety-nine years may be accepted as "collateral" under this section (c); although the bank is not authorized to make a direct loan thereon. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 789; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 677.

This section does not prohibit an unincorporated bank from holding stock in a state bank. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, pp. 162, 975.

Section 710-141. (Savings banks may receive deposits from whom.) A savings bank may receive on deposit any sum of money offered for that purpose by any person, firm, society or corporation, or by any municipal corporation, township, school district, taxing district, county or state, or other body politic, or which is ordered to be deposited by any court of this or any other state, or of the United States, having custody of money, and make investment or loans thereof in the manner provided herein. It also may credit and pay such rates of interest thereon as may be agreed upon. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 116; G. C. § 9763; 99 v. 281, § 55.)

A national bank has power to maintain a savings department and pay interest on deposits. Clement N. B. v. Vermont, 231 U. S. 120, 139 (1913).

Section 710-142. (Terms upon which deposits received prescribed by directors.) The board of directors of a savings bank shall prescribe the terms upon which deposits shall be received and paid out and a pass book shall be issued to each savings depositor, containing the rules and regulations adopted by the board of directors governing such deposits, in which shall be entered each deposit made, the interest allowed thereon, and each payment made to such depositor. By accepting such book the depositor assents and agrees to the rules and regulations therein contained. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 117; G. C. §§ 9767, 9768; 99 v. 283, §§ 59, 60.)

Section 710-143. (Check against account may be paid, when and how.) No payment or check against any savings bank account shall be made or paid unless accompanied by and entered in the pass book issued therefor, except for good cause and on assurance satisfactory to the officers of the bank; but nothing herein shall prevent savings banks issuing time certificates of deposit or certificates for deposit specially issued according to the rules and regulations governing savings deposits. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 117; G. C. § 9769; 99 v. 283, § 61.)

In an action by a depositor to recover a balance of a savings account, the burden is on the bank to prove payment or withdrawal by the depositor. The burden is not on the depositor to show the balance claimed and that payment has not been made. Robison v. Upton, 12 C. C. n. s. 314; 21 C. D. 330 (1909); Bank v. Cereguti, 4 Ohio App. 1; 21 C. C. n. s. 38 (1914); aff'd, no rep. 92 O. S. 525.

Pass books.

Rules which require presentation of the pass book, or due notice to the bank in case of the loss of the book, as conditions precedent to payment to the depositor, or upon his written order, are reasonable conditions and become part of the contract between bank and depositor, when brought to the notice of the latter.

Where in such case the bank makes payment on presentation of the pass book, not to the depositor in person, but upon a written order, which turns out to be a forgery, the bank is at least bound to act in good faith and to exercise reasonable care with the view to avoid payment to a person who is not lawfully entitled to receive payment. If it does not act in good faith and exercise reasonable care, it is liable to pay again to the rightful owner of the deposit.

Savings Co. v. Anderson, 78 O. S. 341 (1908); affirming, 9 C. C. n. s. 13; 19 C. D. 107; 4 N. P. n. s. 22; 16 L. D. 490.

Whether the bank has exercised reasonable care is a question for the jury. Bank v. Cereguti, 4 Ohio App. 1; 21 C. C. n. s. 38 (1914); aff'd, no rep. 92 O. S. 525; Bank v. Karas, 14 Ohio App. 147 (1920).

Where the depositor signed only by mark, and the rules of the bank required identification in such cases, it was held that the identifying witness must know the man who signs by mark. Bank v. Cereguti, 4 Ohio App. 1; 21 C. C. n. s. 38 (1914); aff'd, no rep. 92 O. S. 525.

The bank is not authorized to require indemnity from the depositor. Bank v. Karas, 14 Ohio App. 147.

A delivery to a donee, of a savings pass book, containing entries of deposits to the credit of the donor, with the intention to give the donee the deposits represented thereby, with appropriate words of gift, is a sufficient delivery, as between the donee and the administrator of the donor, to constitute a valid gift of such deposits, without assignment or transfer in writing.

Polley v. Hicks, 58 O. S. 218 (1898).

Certificates of deposit. A certificate of deposit, payable to the order of the depositor, on return of the certificate, is, in effect, a negotiable promissory note.

Bank v. Brown, 45 O. S. 39 (1887).

Howe v. Hartness, 11 O. S. 449 (1860).

Where such a certificate is lost by the payee, and the same has never been endorsed by him, he may maintain an action at law against the bank which issued it, without tendering an indemnity against future liability.

Bank v. Brown, 45 O. S. 39 (1887).

Where a certificate, silent as to the time of maturity, bearing interest, is negotiated, two days after its date, to a bona fide holder, it will not be regarded as overdue at the time. To be regarded as overdue, a reasonable time must have elapsed for the purpose of negotiation or presentment for payment.

Howe v. Hartness, 11 O. S. 449 (1860).

A bank empowered to receive deposits is authorized to issue certificates therefor. Issuing, dealing in, buying and selling certificates of deposit is one of the incidents of, and properly pertains to, the business of banking.

Bank v. Blakesley, 42 O. S. 645, 651 (1885).

Where a banking partnership, on receipt of a deposit, issued a certificate therefor, and subsequently a savings bank was incorporated and carried on business in the rooms of the partnership, the former partners being the officers and managers of its business, and such officers issued a certificate of the savings bank to such depositor, in exchange for his former certificate, and the certificate was renewed several times, the savings bank was held liable thereon although the partnership had, in fact, no authority to exchange the certificate, and were indebted to the savings bank.

Bank v. Blakesley, 42 O. S. 645 (1885).

Where a bond or undertaking is required by statute a certificate of deposit can not be accepted in lieu thereof. A certificate of deposit is not a bond or undertaking.

Bank v. Street, 16 O. S. 1 (1864).

Certificates of deposit are not post notes within the meaning of U. S. Rev. Stats. § 5183.

Bank v. Williamson, 2 C. C. 118; 1 C. D. 395 (1887).

Where a trustee, having no authority to make a general deposit, deposits trust money, taking a certificate of deposit certifying that he as trustee has deposited the fund payable to himself on return of the certificate properly endorsed, the same not being subject to check, and no stipulation for interest being made, the presumption, in the absence of proof to the contrary, is that the trustee intended to perform his duty, and that the deposit was intended as a special, and not a general deposit.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

Section 710-144. (Percentages of deposits required as reserve.) Savings banks shall keep as reserve at least ten per cent of their time deposits, and at least fifteen per cent of their demand deposits; at least four per cent of that part of such deposits which is payable on demand, and at least two per cent of that part of such deposits which are time deposits shall be kept in the vaults of the bank in lawful money, national bank or federal reserve notes, federal reserve bank notes, and gold and silver certificates issued by the United States. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 117; G. C. § 9764; 104 v. 186; 99 v. 282, § 56.)

Reserve depositories. §§ 710-127, 710-128, 710-125.

Deficiency in reserve. § 710-129.

Reserve of commercial bank, § 710-138.

Reserve of member bank of federal reserve bank. § 710-5.

Where a bank has both commercial and savings bank powers, it is not entitled to maintain a reserve of only ten percent on its entire time deposits. The ten percent reserve applies only to its savings department. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 874.

Section 710-145. (Associations and societies formerly incorporated may continue; election.) Associations incorporated under the act entitled "an act to incorporate savings societies," passed April 16, 1867, and the act passed March 19, 1868, entitled "an act to amend an act entitled, 'an act to incorporate savings societies,' passed April 16, 1867," may continue their business under such acts, and without prejudice to any rights acquired. Such institutions and other savings and loan institutions organized under the laws of this state, if they so elect may continue their business under this act, by signifying such election, under their seal, to the secretary of state, and conforming their action thereto. The secretary of state shall record it, and his certificate be evidence thereof. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 117; G. C. § 9810; R. S. § 3811; 70 v. 40, § 23.)

A society for savings cannot be incorporated under present laws. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 66.

Deposits in a savings society belong to the depositors, and taxes thereon can not be assessed against the society.

Collett v. Savings Society, 13 C. C. 131; 7 C. D. 146 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 56 O. S. 776.

Such deposits should be returned for taxation by the depositors as "money" or "personal property". Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 575.

Trustees of a corporation organized under a former statute authorizing savings societies were held personally liable where such trustees made no attempt to organize or conduct it as a savings society, but instead carried on a general banking business.

Ridenour v. Mayo, 40 O. S. 9 (1884).

A society for savings is not taxable under § 5407 et seq. but is required to make returns to the auditor.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 645.

See Collett v. Society, 13 C. C. 131; aff'd, no rep., 56 O. S. 776.

Section 710-146. (Investment of funds of such societies.)

Savings societies organized and doing business under the acts named in the preceding section, in addition to the investments authorized in such acts, may invest their funds in the bonds of a county or municipal corporation issued pursuant to any law of this state, and charge interest on loans of not more than eight per cent per annum payable semi-annually. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 117; G. C. § 9811; R. S. § 3812; 72 v. 150, §§ 1, 2.)

Section 710-147. (Investment of societies incorporated by general assembly.) (108 (Pt. 1) v. 117; G. C. § 9812; R. S. § 3813; 63 v. 62, § 1; S. & S. 187.)

Section 710-148. (Dividends may be paid, when.) (108 (Pt. 1) v. 118; G. C. § 9814; R. S. § 3815; 74 v. 26, § 2.)

Section 710-150. (Trust companies may accept trusts, when; capital; deposit with treasurer of state.) No trust company, or corporation, either foreign or domestic, doing a

From time to time said treasurer shall, with the approval of the superintendent of banks, permit withdrawals of such securities or cash, or part thereof, upon deposit with him and approval of the superintendent of banks, of cash or other securities of the kind heretofore named, so as to maintain the value of such deposits as herein provided, and so long as it continues solvent he shall permit it to collect the interest on its securities so deposited. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 118; G. C. §§ 9778, 9779; 99 v. 284, § 69.)

Every foreign trust company shall, upon being admitted to do business within this state as otherwise provided by law, filed a certified copy of its certificate of admission with the superintendent of banks, together with a certified copy of the last published statement made by it and filed with the proper department of the state in which it is organized and doing business, and upon approval thereof and of the funds and securities to be deposited as in the preceding section provided, he shall certify that fact to the treasurer of state, and upon deposit of such funds and securities with the treasurer of state the superintendent of banks shall thereupon, and upon the payment of a license fee of one hundred dollars therefor, license said trust company to transact business within this state for the period of one year thereafter. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 119.)

Section 710-156. (How and from whom moneys may be received and held.) A trust company may receive and hold moneys, or property in trust, or on deposit from executors, administrators, assignees, guardians, trustees, corporations or individuals upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between the parties. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 120; G. C. § 9819; R. S. § 3821a; 79 v. 101, 102.)

A deposit is presumed to be general and not special, unless it otherwise appear. Bank v. Brewing Co., 50 O. S. 151, 159 (1893); State v. Perrin, 9 N. P. n. s. 97; 19 L. D. 416 (C. P. 1909).

But where a trustee, having no authority to make a general deposit, deposits trust money, taking a certificate of deposit certifying that he as trustee has deposited the fund payable to himself on return of the certificate properly endorsed, the same not being subject to check, and no stipulation for interest being made, the presumption, in the absence of proof to the contrary, is that the trustee intended to perform and not violate his duty and that the deposit was intended as a special, and not a general deposit. Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912). See Towson v. Cole, 6 N. P. n. s. 388; 17 L. D. 282 (1906).

A trustee appointed to wind up and settle the affairs of an insolvent bank has no right or power, in the absence of a proper order of court, to make a general deposit of funds in a bank. Such a deposit is in legal effect a loan to the bank, and, unless authorized by the court, is a violation of duty by the trustee.

Smith v. Fuller, 86 O. S. 57 (1912).

Section 710-158. (Empowered to act as agents relative to evidences of indebtedness.) A trust company may act as agent or trustee for the purpose of registering, countersigning or transferring the certificates of stock, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness of a corporation, association, municipality, state or public authority, upon such terms as may be agreed upon, and act as trustee under any mortgage or deed of trust to secure bonds issued by any corporation, association, municipality or body politic, and may accept and execute any other corporate or municipal trusts not inconsistent with the laws of the state. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 120; G. C. § 9817; R. S. § 3821a; 79 v. 101.)

A trust company may act as agent, and take, accept and execute any and all trusts, duties and powers in regard to the holding, management and disposition of any property or estate, real or personal, which may be committed or transferred to, or vested in said trust estate, and the rents and profits thereof or the sale thereof, as may be granted or confided to it by any person, association, corporation, municipal or other authority; and may act as trustee under any will or deed or other instrument creating a trust for the care and management of property under the same circumstances and in the same manner, and subject to the same control by the court having jurisdiction of the same as in the case of a legally qualified person. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 120; G. C. § 9828; R. S. § 3821b; 95 v. 98; 79 v. 101, 104.)

A trust company, holding the legal title to land, in trust, as testamentary trustee, may bring a proceeding under G. C. §§ 11084 and 11085 to recover compensation for such land when unlawfully taken by a railroad company.

Trust Co. v. Railroad Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 497; s. c., 6 N. P. n. s. 454 (Ct. of Insol. 1908).

The bringing of such a proceeding by a foreign trust company is not "doing business" in the state within the meaning of § 178 et seq.

Trust Co. v. Railroad Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 497 (1908).

Section 710-160. (Trusts of fiduciary character; may accept and execute on order of court.) A trust company may take, accept and execute all such trusts which may be committed to it by order of any court of record or probate court of this or any other state or of the United States, to act as executor, administrator, assignee, guardian, receiver, or trustee, or in any other trust capacity, and receive and take title to any real estate which may be the subject of any such trust; and such courts of record and probate courts may appoint such trust company to act as executor, administrator, assignee, guardian, receiver, trustee or in any other trust capacity, provided that any such appointment as guardian shall apply to the estate only and not to the person. But no such trust company shall be required to assume or execute a trust without its consent thereto. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 120.)

Under former statutes a trust company was not authorized to act as executor, administrator, receiver, assignee or trustee for creditors. Schumacher v. McCallip, 69 O. S. 500 (1903); Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 957.

But its appointment could not be collaterally attacked. Trust Co. v. Telegraph Co., 79 O. S. 89 (1908).

And where appointed before a former statute was held unconstitutional, it was entitled to compensation. Trust Co. v. Smith, 4 C. C. n. s. 237, 16 C. D. 317 (1904); aff'd, no rep. 74 O. S. 505.

Section 710-161. (Capital and deposits with state treasurer held as security.) The capital stock of such trust company, with the liabilities of the stockholders existing thereunder, and the fund deposited with the treasurer of state as provided by law shall be held as security for the faithful discharge of the duties undertaken by such trust company in respect to any trust, and no bond or other security, except as hereinafter provided, shall be required from any such trust company for or in respect to any trust, nor when appointed executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, receiver, assignee, or depositary; except that the court or officer making such appointment may, upon proper application, require any trust company which shall have been so appointed to give such security for the faithful performance of its duties as to the court or officer shall seem proper, and upon failure of such trust company to give security as required may remove such trust company and revoke such appointment. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 121; G. C. § 9777; 99 v. 284, § 69; G. C. § 9829; R. S. § 3821b; 95 v. 98; 79 v. 101, 104.)

The exemption from bond does not apply where a bond was given prior to the enactment of § 710-161. The trust company must maintain the bond until the trust is administered. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 805.

Bond may be required of a trust company only on application by an interested party. The court may not, on its own motion, require security. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 210.

Section 710-162. (Court may order investigation of company, when; expense.) Any judge of a court in which such trust company is acting in such trust capacity, if he deems it necessary, or upon the written application of any party interested in the estate which it holds in a trust capacity, at any time, may appoint a suitable person or persons, who shall investigate the affairs and management of such trust company concerning such trust and make sworn report to the court of such investigation. The expense thereof shall be taxed as costs against the party asking for such examination, or the trust fund of such trust company as the court decrees. Such court at any time may examine any officers of such trust company, under oath or affirmation, as to its trust matters in the court, or as to its affairs and management while considering its appointment in such capacity; and for any cause, applicable to natural persons in the same capacity, order that such trust company forthwith settle its trust. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 121.)

Section 710-163. (Officer empowered to sign and swear to accounts, papers, etc.) In proceedings in the probate court or any court of record, connected with any authority exercised under this act, all accounts, returns and other papers may be signed and sworn to in behalf of such trust company by a duly authorized officer thereof. The examination and answers of such officer under oath shall be received as the examination and answers of the trust company. The court may order and compel any of its officers to attend such examinations and to answer such questions as may be put to him relating to any such proceedings, in all respects as otherwise provided by law. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 121; G. C. § 9830; R. S. § 3821b; 95 v. 98; 79 v. 101, 104.)

Section 710-164. (Investment of money and property held in trust.) In the management of money and property held by it as trustee, such trust company may invest such money and property in a general trust fund of the trust company. But it shall be competent for the authority making the appointment to direct whether such money and property shall be held separately or any part thereof invested in a general trust fund of the trust company. The trust company always shall follow and be entirely governed by the directions contained in any will or instrument under which it acts. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 122; G. C. § 9831; R. S. § 3821b; 95 v. 98; 79 v. 101, 104; G. C. § 9788; 99 v. 286, § 76.)

A "general trust fund" is a fund in which all the money and property held as trustee may be invested, each trust being credited with its proportionate share of the increment, and being charged with its share of the management cost. It may be invested in a ground rent (§§ 710-166, 710-140), the title being held in the name of the trust company, as trustee. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 700.

Section 710-165. (Mingling of property or securities, prohibited.) No property or securities received or held by any trust company in trust shall be mingled with the investments of the capital stock or other properties belonging to such trust company or be liable for its debts or obligations. Moneys pending distribution or investment may be treated as a deposit in the trust department, or may be deposited in any other department of the bank, subject in other respects to the provisions of law relating to deposit of trust funds by trustees and others. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 122; G. C. § 9832; R. S. § 3821b; 95 v. 98; 79 v. 101, 104; G. C. § 9789; 99 v. 286, § 76.)

Section 710-166. (Investment of trust funds; securities enumerated.) A trust company may invest in or loan its trust funds upon the securities, bonds and other interest-bearing obligations enumerated in section 111, 112 and 140 of this act (G. C. §§ 710-111, 710-112 and 710-140), but subject to all limitations as to the amount of the investment or loan therein or thereon as provided by law, and in stocks and bonds of corporations when authorized by the affirmative vote of the board of directors, or of the executive committee of such trust company. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 122; G. C. § 9781; 99 v. 285, § 70.)

Section 710-167. (Reserve fund required.) A trust company shall keep the same reserve as is required of savings banks, and shall be governed by the same provisions of law in all respects relating thereto, but shall not be required to keep a reserve on trust funds or property held in trust. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 122; G. C. § 9787; 99 v. 286, § 75.)

Section 710-168. (Title guaranty and trust company may establish bank, how.) A title guaranty and trust company heretofore organized and now existing may be granted the power to establish a commercial or a savings bank or a combination of both in the manner provided in this act for the organization, conduct and supervision of commercial and savings banks; provided, that such title guaranty and trust company shall, in addition to its present capital, establish and maintain the capital required for a commercial or a savings bank or a combination of both as prescribed in section 37 of this act (G. C. § 710-168); provided, such capital and all other assets of the commercial savings bank or both of such title guaranty and trust company, shall be held solely for the repayment of the depositors of said bank and shall not be liable for or be pledged or used to pay any other obligation or liability of such title guaranty and trust company until provision has been made for payment in full of all of the depositors of said bank; provided, further, that said commercial or savings bank or both shall be governed by all of the provisions of law applicable to commercial and savings banks; but nothing in this act shall limit the powers now granted by law to title guaranty and trust companies. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 122.)

Powers of title guaranty companies. See § 9850 et seq.

Section 710-169. (Subject to supervision and inspection laws.) When a title guaranty and trust company has complied with the provisions of this act and acquired banking powers herein granted, such company as to business transacted under powers heretofore granted to such title guaranty and trust company, shall thereafter make its report to and be examined by the superintendent of banks, who shall inspect and supervise such company according to the provisions of sections 9850, 9851, 9852 and 9855 of the General Code; and as to the banking powers granted herein, it shall be subject to all requirements of this act as to commercial and savings banks. A title guaranty and trust company accepting the provisions of this act shall not be subject to the limitations prescribed by section 9853 of the General Code. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 123.)

Section 710-170. (May have trust company powers when qualified.) A title guaranty and trust company heretofore organized and now existing may accept the provisions of this act and be granted trust company powers provided that it shall qualify and comply with all the requirements herein provided for the organization, conduct and supervision of trust companies; provided also that upon the acceptance of the powers granted under this act, all trust powers heretofore granted to title guaranty and trust companies are thereby revoked. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 123.)

Section 710-171. (Reports to auditor of state and superintendent. Application of fees.) Title guaranty and trust companies shall make such reports to the auditor of state as are required to be made by trust companies to the superintendent of banks, and shall be subject to like examination, penalties and fees; such examination to be made by and such fees and penalties assessed by and paid to the auditor of state.

Fees so received by the auditor of state and by him paid into the state treasury to the credit of the general rev-venue fund are hereby appropriated for the express purpose of paying the cost of such examinations. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 123; G. C. § 9856; R. S. § 3821ggg; 98 v. 153; 95 v. 222.)

Section 710-172. (Embezzlement, misapplication, etc., of funds, unlawful; penalty.) Whoever being an officer, employe, agent or director of a bank, embezzles, abstracts, or wilfully misapplies any of the money, funds, credit or property of such bank whether owned by it or held in trust, or wilfully and fraudulently issues or puts forth a certificate of deposit, draws an order or bill of exchange, makes an acceptance, assigns a note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment or decree, or makes a false entry in a book, report or statement of such bank, or makes a false statement or certificate as to a trust deposit, fund or contract, for or under which such bank is acting as trustee, or fictitiously borrows or solicits, obtains or receives money for the bank not in good faith intended to become and be the property of the bank, with intent to defraud or injure the bank or another person or corporation, or to deceive an officer of the bank or an agent appointed to examine the affairs of such bank, or publishes a false statement or report relating to the financial condition of the bank with intent to defraud or injure it or another person or corporation, shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than thirty years, or both. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 123; G. C. § 12473; G. C. § 13183; G. C. § 13184; 99 v. 278, § 44; G. C. § 744-11; 103 v. 383, § 11.)

In a report, the change of an overdraft on an individual account into the column of loans is a false entry under this section. If the report is made properly but such change occurs in the published report, the offense would be against § 710-33. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 799.

Section 710-173. (Wrongful charge on account or certifying checks; penalty.) Whoever, being an officer, employe, agent or director of a bank, wilfully certifies a check drawn on such bank and fails forthwith to charge the amount thereof against the account of the drawer thereof, or wilfully certifies a check drawn upon the bank unless the drawer of such check has on deposit with the bank an amount of money subject to the payment of such check and equal to the amount specified therein, shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned not less than one year nor more than five years, or both. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 1124; G. C. §§ 13185, 13186; 99 v. 275, §§ 31-33; G. C. § 744-10; 103 v. 383, § 10.)

Section 710-174. (Receiving money, etc., when insolvent; penalty.) Whoever, being an officer or employe of a bank, receives or, being an officer thereof, permits an employe to receive money, checks, drafts or other property as a deposit therein when he has acknowledged that it is insolvent, shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than five years, or both. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 124; G. C. § 13182; 99 v. 293, § 116; G. C. § 744-11; 103 v. 383, § 11.)

Section 710-175. (Receiving fictitious obligation, etc.; penalty.) Whoever, being an officer or employe of a bank, resorts to a device, or receives a fictitious obligation in order to evade the provisions of this section and the next two preceding sections, or certifies a check unless there has been regularly entered to the credit of the drawer thereof upon the books of such bank, an amount at least equal to the amount of such check, shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned not less than one year nor more than five years, or both. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 124; G. C. § 13187; 99 v. 275, § 33; G. C. § 744-10; 103 v. 383, § 10.)

Section 710-176. (Drawing check, draft, etc., without credit; penalty.) Any person who, with intent to defraud, shall make or draw or utter or deliver any check, draft or order for the payment of money upon any bank or other depository, who, at the time thereof, has insufficient funds or credit with such bank or depository, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty dollars and not more than two hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the Ohio state penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than three years or both.

(Prima facie evidence of intent to defraud.) As against the maker or drawer thereof, the making, drawing, uttering or delivery of a check, draft or order, payment of which is refused by the drawee, shall be prima facie evidence of intent to defraud, and knowledge of insufficient funds in, or credit with, such bank or other depository. The word "credit" as used herein shall be construed to mean any contract or agreement with the bank or depository for the payment of such check, draft, or order, when presented. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 124; G. C. § 13193-1; 106 v. 443.)

Section 710-177. (False advertising of capital; penalty.) It shall be unlawful for a bank to advertise by newspaper, letter head, or in any other way, a larger capital than actually has been paid in.

A bank violating this provision shall forfeit and pay to the state of Ohio five hundred dollars for each and every such offense, to be recovered with costs of suit in an action, to be prosecuted by the superintendent of banks, before any court of competent jurisdiction in the county wherein it is located. Two or more violations of the provisions of this section may be joined in the same prosecution. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 124; G. C. §§ 9745, 9746; 99 v. 277, § 38.)

Section 710-178. (Use of word "State" prohibited to un-organized banks; penalty.) It shall be unlawful for any bank not organized or transacting business under the provisions of the laws of this state and for all persons, corporations, firms or partnerships doing the business of bankers, brokers or savings institutions, not organized or transacting business under the provisions of this act, to use the word "State" as a portion of the name or title of such bank, corporation, firm or partnership.

Any violation of the foregoing provisions shall subject the party chargeable therewith to a penalty of fifty dollars for each day during which it is committed or repeated, to be recovered with costs of suit in an action, to be prosecuted by the superintendent of banks, before any court having jurisdiction of such bank or of such person, corporation, firm or partnership. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 125; G. C. §§ 9752-1, 9752-2.)

Section 710-179. (Banks subject to this act.) Every bank now existing, or which may hereafter become incorporated, shall be subject to the provisions of this act. (G. C. § 710-1 to § 710-189). Nothing in this act shall affect the legality of corporations heretofore organized or investments or loans heretofore made, or of transactions heretofore had, but the superintendent of banks may require the change of investments or loans for those named herein, as it can be done by the sale or redemption of securities so invested in or loaned upon, in such manner as to prevent loss or injury to the bank. No renewal or extension of such a loan or investment shall be made by such a bank unless it be approved by the superintendent of banks. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 125; G. C. § 9744; 99 v. 276, § 37; G. C. § 9793; 99 v. 288, § 91.)

A company incorporated for the purpose of "contracting for and buying and selling securities and bonds, also borrowing and loaning on same and making loans on real estate security" is not authorized to engage in the business of banking. The solicitation and receipt of government bonds on deposit at its Ohio place of business, upon an agreement to return the same or like bonds on demand, at stipulated interest, for use as collateral, may be enjoined. Security Co. v. State, 105 O. S. 113 (1922); 20 O. L. R. 113.

Section 710-180. (Special plan banks; reserve required.)

Any bank organized and doing business as a special plan bank, and which by the terms of its contract with its depositors provides for the receipt of deposits which are not payable unconditionally upon demand or at a fixed time, may in the case of any loan made upon the security of the character and earning capacity of the borrower and of the co-makers or endorsers on the borrower's note evidencing the loan, in addition to discounting interest at the rate allowed by law, require such borrowers as additional security for such loan to make equal periodical deposits in such bank during the period of the loan, with or without an allowance of interest on such deposits, and such transaction shall not be deemed usurious. A special plan bank shall keep only the same reserve as is required of savings banks against all deposits, which by the contract with the depositor are not to be paid upon demand or at a fixed time, and no reserve shall be required against deposits hypothecated to secure indebtedness of the depositor to the bank. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 125.)

Prior to the enactment of this section Morris Plan Banks were unauthorized. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1401.

FIRE MARSHAL TAX.

Section 841. (Tax on insurance companies; credit of money.) For the purpose of maintaining the department of state fire marshal and the payment of the expenses incident thereto, each fire insurance company doing business in this state shall pay to the state in the month of November each year, in addition to the taxes required to be paid by it, one-half of one per cent, on the gross premium receipts after deducting return premiums and considerations received for re-insurances as shown by the next preceding annual statement of such company made pursuant to section fifty-four hundred and thirty-two and section ninety-five hundred and ninety of the General Code. The money so received shall be placed to the credit of a special fund for the maintenance of the office of state fire marshal. If any portion of such special fund remain unexpended at the end of the year for which it was required to be paid, and the state fire marshal so certifies, it shall be transferred to the general fund of the state. (106 v. 502; 106 v. 240; R. S. § 409-56; 97 v. 418; 95 v. 474; 94 v. 388.)

Sections 5432 et seq. have no application to the tax under § 841. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 643.

Foreign corporations doing solely a reinsurance business are not liable for the fire marshal tax unless the contract of reinsurance is made in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 805.

The treasurer of state is not authorized to make any reductions or accept any amount less than the amount certified to him under §§ 841 and 5433. But as these sections impose different taxes, he may accept payment of the tax assessed under one section and refuse an insufficient amount tendered under the other section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2354.

As to computation of tax for the year 1915, see Rep. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 106.

ASSOCIATIONS FOR CARE OF CHILDREN

Section 1352-2. (Certificate required before filing articles of incorporation.) No association whose object may embrace the care of dependent, neglected or delinquent children or the placing of such children in private homes shall hereafter be incorporated unless the proposed articles of incorporation shall have been submitted first to the board of state charities. The secretary of state shall not issue a certificate of incorporation unless there shall first be filed in his office the certificate of the board of state charities that it has examined the articles of incorporation, and that in its judgment the incorporators are reputable and respectable persons, and that the proposed work is needed, and the incorporation of such association is desirable and for the public good. Amendments proposed to the articles of incorporation of any such association shall be submitted in like manner to the board of state charities, and the secretary of state shall not record such amendment or issue his certificate therefor unless there shall first be filed in his office the certificate of the board of state charities that it has examined such amendment, that the association in question is, in its judgment, performing in good faith, the work undertaken by it, and that such amendment is, in its judgment, a proper one, and for the public good. (103 v. 864.)

Articles of incorporation filed without the certificate of the board of state charities, required by this section, are a nullity. Persons attempting to act as a corporation thereunder may be proceeded against under § 12303. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2436.

Section 1465-12. (Inspection of books, records, etc.) To carry out the purposes of the laws which it is required to administer, the commission, or any commissioner, or any person or persons employed by the commission for that purpose, shall, upon demand, have the right to inspect books, accounts, records and memoranda of any company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, subject to the provisions of such laws, and to examine under oath any officer, agent or employe of any such company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility. Any person, other than one of such commissioners, who shall make such demand, shall produce his authority to make such inspection. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 225, § 14; 101 v. 401, § 14.)

Officers of banks may be required to testify concerning their depositors.

Section 1465-13. (Power to require production of books, etc., by order or subpoena. Penalty.) The commission may require, by order or subpoena, to be served on any such company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, in the same manner that a summons is served in a civil action in the court of common pleas, the production, within this state, at such time and place as it may designate, of any books, accounts, papers or records kept by it in any office or place within or without the state of Ohio, or verified copies in lieu thereof, if the commission shall so order, in order that an examination thereof may be made by the commission or under its direction. Any such company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, failing or refusing to comply with any such order or subpoena, shall, for each day it so fails or refuses, forfeit and pay into the state treasury a sum of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 226, § 15; 101 v. 401, § 15.)

Section 1465-14. (Agent.) For the purpose of making any investigation with regard to any company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, subject to the provisions of the laws which the commission is required to administer, the commissioner shall have power to appoint, by an order in writing, an agent whose duties shall be prescribed in such order. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 226, § 16; 101 v. 401, § 16.)

Section 1465-15. (Powers of agent.) In the discharge of his duties such agent shall have every power whatsoever of an inquisitorial nature granted by law to the commission and the same powers as a notary public, with regard to the taking of depositions; and all powers given by law to a notary public relative to depositions are hereby given to such agent. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 226, § 17; 101 v. 401, § 17.)

Section 1465-16. (Penalty for disclosure of information.) Except in his report to the commission, or when called on to testify in any court or proceeding, any such agent who shall divulge any information acquired by him in respect to the transactions, property or business of any company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership, or public utility, while acting or claiming to act under such order, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and shall thereafter be disqualified from acting as agent or in any other capacity under the appointment or employment of the commission. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 226, § 18; 101 v. 401, § 17.)

Section 1465-17. (Decision.) The commission may conduct any number of such investigations, contemporaneously, through different agents, and may delegate to any agent the taking of all testimony bearing upon any investigation or hearing. The decision of the commission shall be based upon its examination of all testimony and records. The recommendations made by an agent shall be advisory only, and shall not preclude the taking of further testimony, if the commission so order, nor further investigation. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 226, § 19; 101 v. 402, § 18.)

Section 1465-18. (Returns and answers by firm, company, corporation, etc.) Each company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, shall furnish the commission in the form of returns prescribed by it all information required by law and all other facts and information, in addition to the facts and information in this act specifically required to be given, which the commission may require to enable it to carry into effect the provisions of the laws which the commission is required to administer, and shall make specific answers to all questions submitted by the commission. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 226, § 20; 101 v. 402, § 19.)

In 1914 the attorney general ruled that the tax commission could require foreign corporations, which report to it, to furnish, as a part of their returns, a list of their stockholders residing in Ohio. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1409.

Section 1465-20. (Verification of answers.) (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 227, § 23; 101 v. 402, § 22.)

Section 1465-22. (Proceedings for contempt, for refusal or disobedience.) In case of disobedience on the part of any person or persons, to comply with an order of the commission or a commissioner, or subpoena, or on the refusal of a witness to testify to any matter regarding which he may be lawfully interrogated before the commission, or its agents, authorized as provided by law, the court of common pleas of the county in which the person resides, or a judge thereof, on application of a commissioner, shall compel obedience by attachment proceedings as for contempt as in the case of disobedience of the requirements of a subpoena issued from such court or a refusal to testify therein. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 227, § 24; 101 v. 402, § 22.)

A copy of such transcript shall be furnished on demand to any party upon the payment of the fee therefor, as provided for transcripts in courts of common pleas. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 228, § 28; 101 v. 403, § 25.)

Only parties to hearings and investigations are entitled to demand transcripts of evidence. The fee therefor is eight cents per one hundred words.

Section 1465-27. (Production of testimony.) No person shall be excused from testifying or from producing accounts, books and papers in any proceedings based upon or growing out of any violation of the provisions of the laws which the commission is required to administer, on the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him, may tend to incriminate him or subject him to penalty or forfeiture, but no person having so testified shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for, or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may have testified or produced any documentary evidence; but no person so testifying shall be exempted from prosecution or punishment for perjury in so testifying. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 228, § 29; 101 v. 403, § 26.)

Section 1465-28. (Blanks. Extension of time.) The commission shall cause to be prepared suitable blanks for carrying out the purposes of the laws which it is required to administer, and, on application, furnish such blanks to each company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, subject thereto.

The commission, when it deems the same necessary or advisable, may extend to any corporation or public utility a further specified time not to exceed ninety days within which to file any report required by law to be filed with the commission in which event the attaching or taking effect of any penalty for failure to file such report or pay any tax or fee shall be extended or postponed accordingly. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 228, § 30; 101 v. 426, § 109.)

Section 1465-29. (Other information.) If any company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership or public utility, subject to the provisions of this act, fails or refuses to make out and deliver to the commission any statement required by law, or furnish the commission with any information requested, the commission shall inform itself as best it may on the matters necessary to be known in order to discharge its duties. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 229, § 31; 101 v. 428, § 114.)

Within the time specified in the order of the commission every person or corporation upon whom it is served, if so required by the order, shall notify the commission, in like manner, whether the terms of the order are accepted and will be obeyed. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 229, § 32; 101 v. 429, § 118.)

Section 1465-31. (Injunction.) No injunction shall issue suspending or staying any order, determination or direction of the commission, or any action of the auditor of state, treasurer of state, or attorney general, required by law to be taken in pursuance of any such order, determination or direction, but nothing herein shall affect any right or defense in any action to collect any tax or penalty. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 229, § 33; 101 v. 429, § 119.)

Under this section injunction will not lie to restrain the tax commission from certifying the gross earnings of a railway company to the auditor of state to be used as a basis for an excise tax. Where a constitutional right is infringed, the company has other adequate remedies.

Section 1465-32. (Mandamus.) In addition to the other remedies provided for by law for the prevention and punishment of any violation of the laws which it is required to administer, and the orders of the commission, the provisions of such laws and such orders may upon the application of the commission be enforced by proceedings in mandamus, injunction or other appropriate proceedings. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 229, § 34; 101 v. 429, § 120.)

Section 1465-36. (Definitions.) No such disinterment shall be made during the months of April, May, June, July, August and September, and in no event if the deceased died of a contagious or infectious disease, until a permit has been

of venue. Street, interurban, suburban railways or terminals, etc.) Municipal corporations shall have special power to appropriate, enter upon and hold real estate within their corporate limits. Such power shall be exercised for the purposes, and in the manner provided in this chapter.

1. For opening, widening, straightening, changing the grade of, and extending streets, and all other public places, and for this purpose the corporation may appropriate the right of way across railway tracks and lands held by railway companies, when such appropriation will not unnecessarily interfere with the reasonable use of the property so crossed by such improvement, and for obtaining material for the improvement of streets and other public places;

aqueducts, water pipes, dams, reservoirs, reservoir sites and water works, and for the protection thereof; and to provide for a supply of water for itself and its inhabitants, any municipal corporation may appropriate property within or without the limits of the corporation; and for this purpose any such municipal corporation may appropriate in the manner provided in this chapter, any property or right or interest therein, theretofore acquired by any private corporation for any purpose by appropriation proceedings or otherwise. Either party to such appropriation proceedings shall have the same right to a change of venue as is now given by law in the trial of civil actions.

14. For the construction or operation of street, interurban, suburban or other railways or terminals and the necessary tracks, way stations, depots, terminals, workshops, conduits, elevated structures, subways, tunnels, offices, sidetracks, turnouts, machine shops, bridges and other appurtenances for the transportation of persons, packages, express matter, freight and other matter, in, from, into or through the municipal corporation; and for such purpose or purposes any municipal corporation may appropriate any property within or without its corporate limits; any municipal corporation may appropriate any property or right or interest therein theretofore acquired by any private or public utility corporation for any purpose by appropriate proceedings, as well as the right to cross on, over or under any street, avenue, alley, way or public place or part thereof of any other municipality, township or country. Right of way across railway tracks. Where a municipal corporation is about to file an application in court for the assessment of compensation for the extension of a street over railway tracks, a suit for injunction may be maintained by the railway company, in which suit it may be determined whether such street extension will unnecessarily interfere with the reasonable use of the railway property.

That the street crossing will inconvenience the railroad company, and cause it additional expense in operation, is no defense, providing the use of the property by the railroad company is not "unnecessarily" interfered with and the municipality acts in good faith.

The railroad company is entitled to compensation for the cost of a bridge or viaduct to carry its trains over the street.

Railway Co. v. Troy, 68 O. S. 510 (1903).

The grade crossing act (§ 8897 et seq.) did not repeal or modify § 3677, and appropriation proceedings therein authorized cannot proceed until it is judicially determined that the appropriation will not unnecessarily interfere with the reasonable use of the property to be crossed by the street. The court of common pleas may, in one proceeding, hear and determine all questions under §§ 3677 and 8899. Railroad v. Martins Ferry, 92 O. S. 158.

Where the court found that the benefit to the public from a proposed street extension would be small and the burden upon the railroad company serious, it refused to order the appropriation. Warren v. Railway, 23 N. P. n. s. 161 (1919).

Property of water power company. This section (paragraph 13), giving a municipality power to appropriate, for purposes of water supply, property theretofore appropriated by a private corporation, is constitutional. Under this section the property of a hydro-electric power company may be appropriated. Power Co. v. Akron, 210 Fed. 524 (D. C. Ohio 1913); reversed on other grounds, 240 U. S. 461.

Estoppel of railroad company. Where a railroad company obtains the right to cross certain streets on condition that when it becomes necessary to open or extend the same it shall grant a right of way, it is estopped from denying the right to make such opening or extension.

Title to railway company extinguished when. The title to land not used or needed for railway purposes is wholly extinguished by the establishment of a street. But if the land is so used, such use is not superseded.

Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 5 C. C. n. s. 583; 16 C. D. 180 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 364.

Dedication of street by railroad. An intention by a railroad company to dedicate a street is not clearly shown by proof that a way over its tracks and unenclosed lands was used for forty years by the public, when during the entire time the way was maintained by the company and was used by its patrons, and the use by the public was merely permissive.

Railroad v. Roseville, 76 O. S. 108 (1907).

Section 3714. (Council to have care, supervision and control.) Municipal corporations shall have special power to regulate the use of the streets, to be exercised in the manner provided by law. The council shall have the care, supervision and control of public highways, streets, avenues, alleys, sidewalks, public grounds, bridges, aqueducts, and viaducts, within the corporation, and shall cause them to be kept open, in repair, and free from nuisance. A municipal corporation may, by ordinance, regulate the length of time a train may remain standing across street crossings. Akron v. Temple, 16 C. C. n. s. 327 (1909.)

This section does not authorize a municipality, by penal ordinance, to prescribe the qualifications of motormen and conductors.

This section authorizes a municipality to establish regulations for the operation of a street railway, which promote public safety, and which do not unreasonably interfere with its franchise.

Millcreek, etc., Co. v. St. Bernard, 8 N. P. 288; 11 L. D. 454 (1901).

Prior to the constitutional amendments of 1912, sections 3714 and 10129 authorized a municipality to make a contract with a gas company or other public utility to use its streets in consideration of the payment of a lump sum or a percentage of its gross receipts. Gas Co. v. Columbus, 96 O. S. 530 (1917).

A. Must emanate from legislature. A franchise must emanate either directly or indirectly from the legislature.

State v. Railway, 1 C. C. n. s. 145; 14 C. D. 609 (1903); aff'd no rep., 73 O. S. 363.

B. Defective franchise. Validity of curative act.

The legislature may by a subsequent law validate acts or contracts made ultra vires by a municipality, if the act might have been authorized by prior law.

C. Ordinance granting. Requisites of.

Generally, see G. C. §§ 4224 to 4235.

Street railways, § 3768 et seq.

1. Must contain but one subject. "No ordinance, resolution or by-law shall contain more than one subject which shall be clearly expressed in its title . . ."

G. C. § 4226.

Where a granting ordinance contains but one subject matter, which is clearly expressed in its title, other provisions contained in the ordinance which are merely incident to the main subject matter do not render the ordinance invalid.

Belle v. Glenville, 5 C. C. n. s. 461; 17 C. D. 181 (1904); affirmed, no rep., 73 O. S. 392, 397; 75 O. S. 574.

A provision in a franchise for a waterworks system, for a lease of the system to the municipality and for an option to purchase, does not render the ordinance invalid as containing more than one subject.

Moore v. Elmore, 13 N. P. n. s. 651; 23 L. D. 50 (C. P. 1910).

2. Reading on three different days.

G. C. § 4224.

Smith v. Columbus, etc., Co., 8 N. P. 1; 10 L. D. 441.

Contra under former law, State v. Oakwood St. R. Co., 11 C. C. n. s. 263; 20 C. D. 632 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 81 O. S. 502.

3. Publication. The duty of publishing an ordinance rests upon the municipality. In an action to oust a street railway company from its franchise, the burden of proof as to defective publication rests upon the municipality.

State v. Oakwood St. Ry. Co., 11 C. C. n. s. 263; 20 C. D. 632 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 81 O. S. 502.

It has been held that an ordinance granting a franchise is not required to be published. State v. Orgill, 17 C. C. n. s. 260 (1910). Contra. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1655.

Estoppel by recital in ordinance as to publication.

Raynolds v. Cleveland, 8 C. C. n. s. 278; 18 C. D. 463 (1906); aff'd, no rep., 77 O. S. 631.

4. Delegation of franchise granting power to administrative board. An ordinance authorizing an administrative board to grant to a corporation the right to operate a public utility owned by the municipality, upon the terms and conditions specified in the ordinance, and empowering the board to perform specified administrative duties which are necessary to the carrying out of the plan, is not an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. State v. Railway, 97 O. S. 283 (1918).

D. By grant of franchise municipality not divested of control of part of street occupied by street railway. A municipality is not divested of its control of streets by the grant of a franchise to a street railway company, by the terms of which the company is required to keep in repair that part of the streets between the rails, and which further provides that failure to comply with the terms of the grant, or with any general ordinances of the municipality regulating the use of the streets, should render the company liable for damages.

Columbus v. Street Railroad Co., 45 O. S. 98 (1887).

Gas Co. v. Columbus, 50 O. S. 65.

See New Orleans, etc., Co. v. Drainage Commission, 197 U. S. 453 462.

Union, etc., Co. v. Railway Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 171 (1913).

A municipality may change the grade of its streets, without liability to the grantee of the franchise for damage occasioned by the necessity of relaying the pipes, etc. Gas Co. v. Columbus, 50 O. S. 65.

The municipality may require a street railway company to relocate its tracks. Railway v. Springfield, 15 N. P. n. s. 241; 24 L. D. 277.

E. Permission to occupy street, when acted upon, a vested property right in the nature of a franchise or easement. When accepted by the grantee, and acted upon, a grant of the right to occupy streets for a street railway is more than a license; "it is a vested property right, in the nature of a franchise or easement in or to the particular portion of the street designated in the grant itself." Hamilton, etc., Traction Co. v. Hamilton, etc., Transit Co., 69 O. S. 402, 410 (1903).

F. Franchise as a contract. The grant of a right to construct street railway tracks in the streets of a municipality, when accepted by the grantee, is a contract, which can not be rescinded by one party without consent of the other. Interurban Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 287 (1918); Interurban Ry. v. Cincinnati, 93 O. S. 108 (1915); Street Ry. Co. v. Smith, 29 O. S. 291 (1876); Wyoming v. Traction Co., 104 O. S. 325 (1922).

The same rule applies to a renewal grant.

Street Ry. v. Cleveland, 7 N. P. n. s. 161; 17 L. D. 763.

And to a grant by county commissioners.

State, ex rel., v. C. E. Ry. Co., 15 C. C. 200; 8 C. D. 474 (1897).
 Railway v. Springfield, 15 N. P. n. s. 241; 24 L. D. 277 (1913).

The public utilities commission is not authorized to change rates which have been fixed in a valid franchise contract. Interurban Railway v. Commission, 98 O. S. 287 (1918).

A franchise can not be abrogated by the vacation of the street.

Union, etc., Co. v. Railway Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 171 (1913).

That operation of a public utility is unprofitable and the franchise contract cannot be performed without serious loss, is no defense in an action brought to compel performance. Cincinnati v. Ry., 14 N. P. n. s. 420 (1913). See also 98 O. S. 287; Columbus Co. v. Columbus, 249 U. S. 399; 17 O. L. R. 49 (1919); affirming, 253 Fed. 499; 16 O. L. R. 377 (D. C. 1918); Columbus v. Commission, 103 O. S. 79 (1921).

Grants of franchises are subject to the tacit condition that they may be lost for non-user or mis-user. The condition thus implied is a condition subsequent. Where no steps to exercise a franchise are taken within a reasonable time, it may be revoked by the municipality. N. Y. Electric Lines v. Empire City Subway, 235 U. S. 179 (1914).

G. Council has no power to grant exclusive franchise, in the absence of power clearly conferred. The council of a municipality can not grant an exclusive franchise in its streets in the absence of power expressly conferred upon the municipality by the legislature, or so far necessary to the execution of express powers as to make its existence free from doubt.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309, 339 (1907).

State, ex rel., v. Cincinnati Gas, etc., Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868); approved in 115 U. S. 659.

State ex rel., v. Hamilton, 47 O. S. 52, 70, 71 (1890).

Cincinnati St. R. R. Co. v. Smith, 29 O. S. 291 (1876).

But the grantee of a franchise for a street railway over a right of way already occupied by a street railway, under a prior franchise, can not, without appropriation proceedings, take possession of the right of way, where the new use will materially interfere with and abridge the use of the prior franchise.

Hamilton, etc., Co. v. Hamilton, etc., Co., 69 O. S. 402, 409 (1903).

Isom v. Low Fare Ry. Co., 10 C. C. n. s. 89, 101; 19 C. D. 583 (1907); aff'd, no rep., 77 O. S. 638.

H. Grant silent as to duration. Franchise continues merely by consent of parties. Where the grant is silent as to its duration, the franchise is not perpetual, but exists only so long as the parties mutually agree thereto. The grantee may wholly withdraw from the exercise of its franchise.

East Ohio Gas Co. v. Akron, 81 O. S. 33 (1909).

Gas Co. v. Cleveland, 106 O. S. 489 (1922).

Compare State, ex rel., v. Columbus Ry. Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 145; 14 C. D. 609 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 363.

But where there is no provision in the state constitution and statutes, and no prior adjudication by its courts to the contrary, a franchise is perpetual. A franchise granted by county commissioners, prior to the decision of East Ohio Gas Co. v. Akron, 81 O. S. 33, not specifying the duration, was held by the United States Supreme Court to be perpetual and not subject to annulment by the county commissioners (at least until the expiration of twenty-five years under § 3771). Northern Ohio T. & L. Co. v. Ohio, 245 U. S. 574 (1918); reversing, 93 O. S. 466 and affirming, 2 Ohio App. 113; 15 C. C. n. s. 577; 24 C. D. 262.

Where the street franchise of an electric light company is silent as to its duration, but the municipality fixes the rate under § 3982 for a fixed period and the rate is accepted by the company under § 3983, the duration of the franchise is for the period of the contract so made. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 468.

I. Grants of franchises; how construed.

1. Rule of strict construction. Every grant in derogation of the rights of the public in the streets will be construed strictly against the grantee and liberally in favor of the public, and never extended beyond its express terms when not indispensable to give effect to the grant.

2. Exception: Provisions for forfeiture.

Toledo v. Toledo Ry. & Light Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 97; 15 C. D. 441 (1903).

3. Conditions precedent or subsequent. Where the conditions of a franchise do not clearly appear to be conditions precedent, they will be regarded as conditions subsequent.

State, ex rel., v. Boyce, 43 O. S. 46 (1885).

Toledo v. Toledo Ry. & Light Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 97, 105; 15 C. D. 441 (1903).

4. Provisions as to time for beginning or completing construction work. A requirement that the road be completed within a specified time does not prevent the laying of additional switches, etc., thereafter.

Chambers v. C. & S. W. Tr. Co., 5 C. C. n. s. 298; 17 C. D. 193 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 348.

A condition that the grantee street railway company begin the removal of its old tracks and the construction of new by July 1, 1920, is not such a condition precedent as will authorize a forfeiture of the grant, in the absence of a provision therefor. State v. Traction Co., 104 O. S. 245 (1922).

Where work is delayed by an injunction suit, involving the validity of the franchise, the time for commencing work, as required by the ordinance, should be computed from the date of judgment in the injunction suit.

State, ex rel., v. Boyce, 43 O. S. 46 (1885).

Where a street railway grant required the road to be in operation within six months after the city had completed certain grading, the completion of such grading dates, not from acceptance of work by city from contractor, but from time when the street so graded is in condition for railway to be safely built thereon.

Toledo v. Toledo Ry. & Light Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 97; 15 C. D. 441 (1903).

J. Invalid conditions in valid franchise. That grantee shall not exercise one of its corporate powers.

A condition in a franchise prohibiting the grantee corporation from exercising one of its corporate powers is invalid.

A provision, in an ordinance granting a franchise to a natural gas company, that natural gas shall not be furnished for illuminating purposes, but for heat and power only, is void, and the company may be compelled to furnish natural gas for illuminating purposes.

K. Invalid franchises.

1. Injunction against exercise of.

See notes to §§ 9101 and 9105.

2. Limitation of action to enjoin.

See Defiance Water Co. v. Defiance, 68 O. S. 520 (1903).

Defiance v. McGonigale, 150 Fed. 689 (1907); affirming 140 Fed. 621.

3. What defects render franchise invalid. To render a grant invalid the defects or irregularities must be in some respect which is jurisdictional to the grant, or of such a nature that equity and justice require interference by the courts.

Sloane v. People's, etc., Ry. Co., 7 C. C. 84; 3 C. D. 674 (1891).

Defects in a street railway franchise can not be cured by an amendment to the granting ordinance which merely sets forth the facts as to the publication of notice before bids were received, and declares that the publication was sufficient to meet the requirements of the granting ordinance.

Raynolds v. Cleveland, 8 C. C. n. s. 278; 18 C. D. 463 (1906); aff'd on the ground of laches, 77 O. S. 631.

Invalid conditions, not constituting moving consideration for the grant, do not invalidate grant; when.

See Columbus v. Federal Gas & Fuel Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 277 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 632.

Where the financial interests of the mayor of a municipality will be advanced by the franchise, whatever may be his motive, the franchise is void. Railway v. Cleveland, 19 N. P. n. s. 577, 25 L. D. 467 (1916).

4. Estoppel of municipality permitting expenditures in reliance on grant. Where the grantee of a franchise has expended a large amount of money in reliance thereon, a suit in equity to enjoin the enjoyment thereof, on the ground that the contract was ultra vires, can not be maintained. The municipality will be left to its remedy at law.

5. Estoppel of grantee. A gas company which accepts franchise ordinances, and lays and maintains pipes in the streets pursuant thereto, is estopped from questioning the validity of the ordinances.

Columbus v. Federal Gas & Fuel Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 394 (C. P. 1910).

L. Forfeiture of franchises.

1. In general. Must be declared by council, before suit will lie. Toledo v. Toledo Ry. & Light Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 97; 15 C. D. 441 (1903).

The declaration of forfeiture must be unconditional. State v. Northern Ohio Co., 2 Ohio App. 113; 15 C. C. n. s. 577; 24 C. D. 262; reversed, 93 O. S. 466; judgment, 93 O. S. 466; reversed by U. S. Sup. Ct., 245 U. S. 574.

Notice must be given as a condition precedent to forfeiture, where the franchise ordinance provides that failure to comply with its terms and conditions, after twenty days' notice from the council, shall operate as a forfeiture.

Akron v. Northern Ohio, etc., Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 445; 17 C. D. 536 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 75 O. S. 565.

A condition, in a franchise from county commissioners, that removal of old and construction of new tracks begin by a specified date, is not such a condition precedent as will authorize a forfeiture for non-compliance. State v. Traction Co., 104 O. S. 245 (1922).

A franchise, in a consideration of three instalment payments by the grantee, providing for a forfeiture for non-payment "after said third instalment is due" does not authorize a forfeiture for failure to pay the second instalment. State v. Traction Co., 104 O. S. 245 (1922).

A forfeiture may be waived by the municipality and neither a competing company nor an abutting owner may bring suit to enforce the forfeiture and thus prevent the municipality from exercising its right of waiver.

State v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 167 (1905).

M. Abandonment of franchise. The failure for over twenty years to operate a railway on certain streets raises a presumption of abandonment of the grant as to such streets.

Louisville Trust Co. v. Cincinnati, 76 Fed. 296 (1896).

Where an electric light company removed and dismantled a portion of its equipment from streets, voluntarily and without consent of the municipality, and disabled itself from furnishing electricity for public lighting, it can not resume occupancy of the streets without consent of the municipality. N. Expired franchise.

1. Rights of corporation in streets. After the expiration of its franchise, a gas company has no right to further use of the streets without a new grant. In making such new grant the municipality is not limited to regulating the price of gas but may impose other reasonable regulations.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 331 (1907).

The municipality may require the company to remove its equipment from the streets within a reasonable time.

Right of telephone or telegraph company to renewal of franchise.

See State v. Telephone Co., 14 C. C. 273; 7 C. D. 536 (1897); § 9178.

2. Title to property. After the expiration of a franchise of a street railway company, the title to the rails, poles, etc., is in the company. The right to take possession of such property can not, by ordinance, be conferred upon another company.

C. E. Ry. Co. v. Cleveland, 204 U. S. 116 (1907).

3. Duty to continue service. After the expiration of its contracts with a municipality, a gas company may wholly withdraw therefrom. It is under no obligation to continue service.

But a street railway company has no right to tear up the streets in order to remove its equipment, without restoring the streets to the condition in which it found them. Mt. Vernon v. Berman, 100 O. S. 1 (1919); reversing 11 Ohio App. 472; 30 O. C. A. 81.

Under some circumstances, the municipality may be enjoined from interference with the property of the utility. Toledo v. Ry. & Lt. Co., 259 Fed. 450 (1919).

4. Renewal of franchise as surrender of rights and obligations under prior franchise.

See Cleveland v. C. C. Ry. Co., 194 U. S. 517 (1904).

O. Remedies.

1. Injunction against street railway involving validity of franchise.

See notes to §§ 9101 and 9105.

2. Of municipality to compel performance of contract obligations. The solicitor may, under G. C. § 4311 et seq., bring suit in the name of the municipality to enjoin a public utility company from violating its obligations to the municipality and to compel it to perform its duty.

4. Forfeiture of deposit, made by grantee of franchise, as security for performance. A deposit made by the successful bidder for a street railway franchise, to secure performance, may, on total failure to construct the railway within the specified time, and on abandonment of the enterprise, be forfeited as liquidated damages.

But citizens can not maintain an action at law for failure to furnish service.

STREET RAILROADS.

See § 9100 et seq.

Section 3748. (Tax levy therefor; railway companies to pay portion of cost.) To provide a fund to pay all or part of the cost of such sprinkling, the board or officer having charge of the repair of streets in the corporation, each year may estimate the cost thereof, and cause to be levied a tax therefor upon the general tax duplicate of the corporation, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as other levies for municipal purposes, except that the levy may be in addition to the amount authorized for municipal purposes. Upon such estimate, the levy shall be made by the council in the corporation. Street railroad companies operating within such corporation shall annually pay into the treasury of the municipal corporation one cent per lineal foot of track upon sprinkled streets as their part of the cost of such sprinkling. (95 v. 448, § 4; R. S. Bates § 1536-175.)

Section 3749. (Council may require street railway company to sprinkle its right of way.) The council of a municipality by resolution may require any interurban or street railway company to sprinkle with water its right of way on any street, alley or public highway, or any portion thereof lying within the limits of the municipality. (February 9, 1906, 98 v. 5, § 1; Bates § 1536-175a.)

Section 3750. (Municipality may contract, when. Costs and penalty; a lien.) Upon failure of any interurban or street railway company after sixty days' notice to the person having charge or management of such interurban or street railway company in such municipality, to comply with the provisions of such resolution, the municipality may do such sprinkling or contract therefor, through its proper officials in accordance with the laws relating to contracts, and the cost thereof shall be charged against such interurban or street railway company so directed to sprinkle, and shall be a lien upon all the real estate and leasehold interest of such interurban or street railway company within the county wherein such municipality is situate, and such charge and cost together with a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every day of failure on the part of such interurban or street railway company to sprinkle as required, may be collected in any court of competent jurisdiction or the lien enforced in the manner provided by law. All charges, costs and penalties collected under the provisions of this section shall be paid into the general fund of the municipality to be disposed of as the council thereof may direct. (February 9, 1906, 98 v. 5, § 2; April 11, 1911, 102 v. 48; R. S. Bates § 1536-175b.)

LIGHTING BRIDGES AND RAILROADS.

Section 3762. (Council may require bridge or railway to be lighted.) When deemed necessary by the council of a municipality to have a bridge or railway, located in whole or in part in such corporation, owned, possessed, or operated by an individual, company, association or corporation, or any portion thereof, lighted, the council shall pass an ordinance for that purpose, requiring such individual, company, association, or corporation, to light such bridge or railway within a specified time, but it shall not require such railway or portion thereof to be lighted with electric arc lights. (R. S. Sec. 2494; May 7, 1902, 95 v. 419; March 23, 1872, 69 v. 47, § 429; R. S. Bates § 1536-175.)

This act is constitutional, being a police regulation.

C. H. & D. R. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 32 O. S. 152 (1877).

C. C. C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. St. Bernard, 15 C. C. 588; 8 C. D. 385 (1898).

This section applies only to steam railroads. A street or interurban railway can not be compelled to light its bridge or railroad.

Railway v. Ottawa, 85 O. S. 229 (1912); reversing, 13 C. C. n. s. 562; 22 C. D. 197.

A company operating a railroad, the track of which extends within the municipality, is subject to this act, although it is neither the owner nor lessee.

C. H. & D. R. R. Co. v. Bowling Green, 57 O. S. 336 (1897) affirming 9 C. C. 524; 6 C. D. 531.

No notice to the railway company of the intention of the council to pass an ordinance is required. The only notice provided is under § 3764.

C. C. C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. St. Bernard, 19 C. C. 299; 10 C. D. 415 (1898).

See also Ravenna v. Penna. Co., 45 O. S. 118, 123 (1887).

Section 3763. (Specifications in ordinance. Removal of lights and fixtures obstructing view of fixed signal.) The ordinance shall specify the manner in which such bridge or railway shall be lighted, the number and style of lamp posts, gas posts, electric lights or other lights and fixtures, and the time such lights shall be kept burning in each twenty-four hours; but no such lights, poles or fixtures, nor any lights, poles or fixtures, located by any municipal corporation on its streets, alleys or public grounds shall be required to be so placed as to interfere with a clear view of any fixed signal used in the operation of such railroad from such points thereon as such view is required for safe operation. And all lights, poles or fixtures heretofore placed so as to interfere with such clear view shall, within a reasonable time, be re-located to conform to this act. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as excusing any railway company from lighting its bridges and tracks, when required so to do or from paying any reasonable assessment or charge therefor. (May 3, 1913, 103 v. 470; April 13, 1894, 91 v. 147; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 220, § 430; R. S. § 2495.)

The municipality has authority to prescribe the kind of light that shall be employed, and where an electric light plant is in operation within such city or village lighting its streets and furnishing light to its inhabitants, an ordinance is not unreasonable because it requires a railroad company to use the particular kind of lamp and illuminating material in use for lighting the streets of such municipality.

Railway Co. v. Bowling Green, 57 O. S. 336 (1897); affirming 9 C. C. 524; 6 C. D. 531.

See also s. c., 10 C. C. 63; 4 C. D. 39.

An ordinance under this section should receive a reasonable construction. The instrument should be reasonably certain in its requirements, but no particular form of words is necessary. It will not be held defective as failing to fix a specified time for the performance of such requirement by the company, if its language, taking the ordinance altogether, is sufficiently definite to inform the company that such lighting is required to be done, how and when it is to be done.

St. Mary's v. Railroad Co., 60 O. S. 136 (1899); reversing 14 C. C. 202; 7 C. D. 661.

A requirement that the company proceed to do the lighting by electricity within twenty days after notice of the passage of the ordinance is not necessarily unreasonable.

St. Mary's v. Railroad Co., 60 O. S. 136 (1899); reversing 14 C. C. 202; 7 C. D. 661.

An ordinance prescribing that "the number of hours that said electric lights shall be required to be lighted during each period of twenty-four hours shall be the same as the said council does now or may hereafter require for electric lamps within the limits of said village for lighting streets, shall be lighted," is sufficiently definite.

Railroad Co. v. Bowling Green, 57 O. S. 336 (1897); affirming 9 C. C. 524; 6 C. D. 531.

It is a good defense that the ordinance is unreasonable in that the light required will obscure headlights and endanger the service of the company.

Railway Co. v. St. Bernard, 15 C. C. 588; 8 C. D. 385 (1898).

An electric light company in a municipality is bound to furnish light impartially to all applicants, including railroad companies, at a reasonable price.

Railway Co. v. Bowling Green, 57 O. S. 336 (1897); affirming 9 C. C. 524; 6 C. D. 531.

Section 3764. (Notice of requirement shall be given; time and manner.) Notice of such requirement shall be given at least twenty days before penalty or charge shall be imposed for default, and such notice may be given by delivering a written or printed copy of the ordinance to an owner or part owner, or any person having possession, charge or management of such bridge or railway. When such ordinance requires the lighting of a railway, service of such written or printed copy of the ordinance upon a ticket or freight agent of such railway company in such municipality, and if there is no such ticket or freight agent therein, upon any ticket or freight agent of such railway company in the county wherein such municipality is located, shall be sufficient, and shall charge the person, company, corporation, or partnership, owning or operating such railway with notice of the passage of the ordinance and the requirements thereof. (R. S. Sec. 2496; May 6, 1902, 95 v. 369; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 220.)

For insufficient service of notice under former law, see Dayton v. C. C. C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 46 W. L. B. 287 (1901). C. C. C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. De Graff, 20 C. C. 710; 10 C. D. 825 (1899).

No notice to the railway company of the intention of the council to pass an ordinance is required. The only notice required is under this section.

Railway Co. v. St. Bernard, 19 C. C. 299; 10 C. D. 45 (1900).

A requirement that the company proceed to do the lighting by electricity within twenty days after the passage of the ordinance is not necessarily unreasonable.

St. Mary's v. Railroad Co., 60 O. S. 136 (1899).

Section 3765. (Procedure on failure to light bridge or railway.) If the person, company, or corporation, owning, possessing or operating such railway or bridge, neglects or fails to do such lighting in conformity with the provisions of the ordinance, for twenty days after such notice, the council may immediately cause the lighting to be done at the expense of such person, company, or corporations. (R. S. Sec. 2497; March 23, 1872, 69 v. 47, § 432.)

Although the lamps were not placed by the municipality on the track, the municipality may recover where the lamps lighted the tracks, although the street was incidentally lighted as well.

Railway Co. v. St. Bernard, 19 C. C. 299; 10 C. D. 415 (1900).

Section 3766. (Assessment for expense of such lighting.) The council may direct the manner in which the expense of lighting such bridge or railway shall be assessed and collected. When so assessed, the amount shall be a debt due against and payable by such person, company, or corporation, and shall be a lien to be enforced as any other lien on such bridge and the land on which it is built, or upon the real estate of the railway company or leasehold interest within the county wherein such municipality is located. (R. S. Sec. 2498; March 23, 1872, 69 v. 47, § 433.)

When, on default of the railway company, such lighting is procured to be done by the council, the expense of such lighting may, by the council, be assessed or declared a lien upon any of the real estate of the railway company within the municipality.

C. H. & D. R. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 32 O. S. 152 (1877).

The liability of the railway company to pay such expenses can only be enforced by suit or action, or in the language of the constitution, "by due course of law." It is not a tax or an assessment in the nature of a tax for local improvements, and can not therefore be summarily placed upon the county duplicate and collected as a tax or assessment proper.

C. H. & D. R. R. v. Sullivan, 32 O. S. 152 (1877).

Where an assessing ordinance, fixing the expense of such lighting, has been enacted in conformity with this section, such ordinance of itself furnishes prima facie evidence of the expense of the lighting.

St. Mary's v. Railroad Co., 60 O. S. 136 (1899).

Section 3767. (How lien may be enforced.) The charge may be collected or the lien enforced in the manner provided for the assessment of damages and expenses for making public improvements. (R. S. Sec. 2499; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 221, § 434.)

The mode of collecting such charge or enforcing the lien thereof, prescribed by this section, is by suit in the name of the municipal corporation, in a court of competent jurisdiction.

Railroad v. Sullivan, 32 O. S. 152 (1877).

STREET RAILWAYS.

Section 3768. (Terms and conditions of construction and operation to be fixed by council; renewal of grant.) No corporation, individual or individuals shall perform any work in the construction of a street railroad, until application for leave is made to the council in writing, and the council by ordinance has granted permission, prescribed the terms and conditions upon, and the manner in which, the road shall be constructed and operated, and the streets and alleys to be used and occupied therefor, but the council may renew any such grant at its expiration upon such conditions as may be considered conducive to the public interest. (R. S. Sec. 2501; April 21, 1896, 92 v. 206; March 4, 1887, 84 v. 40; R. S. 1880; June 12, 1879, 76 v. 156, § 4; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 217, § 411.)

Sections 3768 to 3780 apply to street railway lines wholly within municipalities. Sections 9100 et seq. relate to street railways wherever located.

In case of conflict between the special provisions of § 3768 et seq. and the general provisions of § 9100 et seq., the more specific provisions of § 3768 et seq. will prevail.

Permission to occupy streets is a franchise and easement. The presentation to the council of an ordinance for a street railway grant is a sufficient written application.

Sanfleet v. Toledo, 10 C. C. 460; 8 C. D. 711 (1893); affirmed, no rep., 54 O. S. 620.

The application may be for two routes in the alternative, leaving it to the municipality to grant either one.

Simmons v. Toledo, 5 C. C. 124, 141; 3 C. D. 64 (1889).

See Somers v. Cincinnati, 8 Am. L. R. 612, 622.

A grant to a corporation is not invalid because the application was filed before the articles of incorporation had reached the secretary of state, where the corporation was fully organized before the grant was made.

Sloane v. People's, etc., Co., 7 C. C. 84; 3 C. D. 674 (1891).

Grant must be made by council. A street railway franchise within a municipality can only be granted by the council, by ordinance. G. C. § 9101.

The authority to grant a franchise can not be delegated by the council to a board or officer. State v. Bell, 34 O. S. 194 (1877); Sommers v. Cincinnati, 8 Am. L. R. 612, 622.

Hamlet trustees, under the former municipal code, were authorized to grant a street railway franchise. Commissioners v. Railway Co., 21 C. C. 769; 11 C. D. 664 (1896). See in re Newburgh Twp., 15 C. C. 78; 8 C. D. 24 (1897).

Ordinance. Preliminary or establishing ordinance under former statute. See note to § 3769.

Granting ordinance, requisites, etc. See note to § 3714.

As a contract. When accepted by the grantee, a franchise ordinance constitutes a contract. Interurban Ry. v. Commission, 98 O. S. 287 (1918); Hattersly v. Waterville, 4 C. C. n. s. 242; 16 C. D. 226 (1904); affirmed, no rep., 74 O. S. 466; Cincinnati St. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 29 O. S. 291 (1876); Cleveland v. Ry. Co., 194 U. S. 517, 534 (1904); Hamilton, etc., Co. v. Hamilton, etc., Co., 69 O. S. 402, 410 (1903); Columbus v. Street Railroad Co., 45 O. S. 98 (1887).

The repeal of a granting ordinance is of no effect after acceptance. Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. Carthage, 36 O. S. 631 (1881).

Terms and conditions of franchise. See also note to § 3770.

The council may, in the grant, reserve the right to thereafter impose terms and conditions other than those expressly stipulated. Kinsman, etc., Co. v. Broadway, etc., Co., 36 O. S. 239 (1880).

Payments to municipality. Car license fees, etc. Car license fees can not be imposed, where the franchise requires the company to repair, clean and sprinkle streets between tracks. Columbus v. Jeffrey, 1 N. P. n. s. 265; 12 L. D. 756 (1903).

But when provided for in the grant, such fees are a valid obligation. Cincinnati v. Mt. Auburn, etc., Co., 28 W. L. B. 276 (1892); Cincinnati St. Ry. Co. v. Cincinnati, 8 N. P. 80; 11 L. D. 15; Cincinnati v. Cincinnati St. R. Co., 6 N. P. 140; 9 L. D. 235 (1899); Cincinnati v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 22 L. D. 723 (1911).

It has been held that liability for car license fees ceases on expiration of the franchise.

Cincinnati v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 30 W. L. B. 321.

Such fees are the property of the municipality and not of the state.

Cincinnati St. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 29 O. S. 291, 296, 306 (1876).

Percentage of gross receipts. See § 14770. Cincinnati v. Railway, 12 N. P. n. s. 305, 22 L. D. 723 (1911); Telephone Co. v. Columbus, 88 O. S. 466 (1912); Gas Co. v. Columbus, 96 O. S. 530 (1917).

A contract, providing that whenever the municipality should desire to reinforce a viaduct so that it would be safe for heavy vehicular traffic or electric cars, the railway company would pay a stipulated sum toward the expense, was held to render the company liable whenever the viaduct was so reinforced, although the company had ceased to use the viaduct, with the consent of the municipality. Railway Co. v. Cincinnati, 96 O. S. 297 (1917); affirming, 24 C. C. n. s. 241; 9 O. L. R. 190; 24 L. D. 201.

Route. The council can not make a grant of two or more routes in the alternative, leaving the choice of routes to the company.

Somers v. Cincinnati, 8 Am. L. R. 612, 622.

See Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. Smith, 29 O. S. 291 (1876).

But the application may be for two routes in the alternative, leaving it to the municipality to grant either one.

Simmons v. Toledo, 5 C. C. 124, 141; 3 C. D. 64 (1889).

The grant must be of the route as published under § 3769. A grant can not be made of only a part of such route, nor can another street be included.

Raynolds v. Cleveland, 2 C. C. n. s. 139, 152, 154; 14 C. D. 215 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 76 O. S. 619.

But the grant may include only a part of the route described in the application.

Simmons v. Toledo, 5 C. C. 124; 3 C. D. 64 (1889); aff'd, no rep., 30 W. L. B. 392.

A line may fork and be but one route.

A franchise over a street to the "corporation line" does not, by virtue of an extension of municipal limits over tracks which had been built under a franchise from the county commissioners, supersede and abrogate the latter franchise. Railway v. Springfield, 15 N. P. n. s. 241, 249; 24 L. D. 277 (1913).

Paving. See § 3776 and note.

Maintenance of bridge or viaduct. A franchise provided that "whenever the * * * city shall desire to reinforce the Liberty Street viaduct * * * so that it will be safe for the operation of heavy vehicular traffic or electric cars over the entire structure, the * * * Railway Company shall be required to pay $7,000 towards defraying the expenses thereof". Subsequently by consent the route was abandoned, the tracks removed and use of the viaduct by the company ceased. Thereafter the city reconstructed the viaduct. Held, the railway company was liable for the $7,000 being part of the consideration for the franchise and not conditional upon its continued use by the railway. Railway Co. v. Cincinnati, 96 O. S. 297 (1917); affirming, 24 C. C. n. s. 241; 9 O. L. R. 190; 24 L. D. 201.

A franchise granted by county commissioners, over a free turnpike, required the railway company to repair certain bridges. Subsequently the territory was annexed to a city which, after notice to the railway company, repaired a bridge. Held, that as the duty of repair rested on the county commissioners, the city, in making the same, was a mere volunteer and could not recover the cost from the railway company. Interurban Co. v. Cincinnati, 94 O. S. 269 (1916); affirming, 18 N. P. n. s. 553.

Limitation of time for beginning or completing construction work. See note to § 3714.

Rate of fare. See note to § 3770.

Transfers. A provision requiring transfers is valid; although a company operating intersecting lines is placed at a disadvantage in bidding.

See Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309, 339 (1907).

A provision that "only one set of wires and poles shall be erected upon any one street" was construed not to give grantee a monopoly of the street, but to limit the grantee to one set of poles and wires on a street.

Mulhenny v. Toledo Central St. Ry., 20 C. D. 686.

Grant over right of way of another company. Straddle tracks. The grantee of a street railway franchise in streets already occupied and used under a prior franchise can not, without appropriation proceedings, take possession of the streets, where the new use will materially interfere with the use under prior franchise.

See §§ 9103, 9108.

Duplication of grant over same right of way by consent. Consent of the stockholders of the corporation holding the prior grant is necessary to a grant over the same right of way to other persons.

Joint use of tracks by other street railways. Under a franchise stipulating that another company, then in existence, should have the right to jointly use the tracks of the grantee, upon a reasonable compensation, and stipulating that the franchise was subject to such other terms and conditions as the council might thereafter prescribe, it was held that a subsequent grant of franchise over the route of the grantee, to a company subsequently organized, subject to the payment of a reasonable compensation, was valid.

A franchise for an extension of tracks, to terminate with the franchise for the main line, should be construed with reference to the main line franchise at that time, and not as subsequently extended.

C. E. Ry. Co. v. Cleveland, 204 U. S. 116 (1907).

The words "other appliances" in a grant for "all necessary side tracks, curves, switches, and other appliances," do not include a shelter house in the middle of the street.

Misnomer of grantee. Use of the word Railroad instead of Railway in the name of grantee company does not invalidate a grant where there is no such Railroad company, and the grant was accepted by the grantee and expenditures made thereunder.

See § 9103.

Ordinance, renewing all rights, covers unconstructed lines. cation therefor has been given by the clerk of the council once a week, for the period of at least three consecutive weeks in one or more of the daily papers, if there be such, and if not, then in one or more weekly papers published in the corporation. Publication of notice.

Is jurisdictional to grant. A written application and publication of notice are conditions precedent to passage of final grant. Raynolds v. Cleveland, 2 C. C. n. s. 139, 152; 14 C. D. 215 (1902); affirmed, no rep., 76 O. S. 619.

Defective publication, rendering franchise invalid, can not be cured by an amendment to the granting ordinance declaring the publication sufficient.

Raynolds v. Cleveland, 8 C. C. n. s. 278; 18 C. D. 463 (1906); affirmed, without report, 77 O. S. 631.

The duty of publishing an ordinance rests upon the municipality. In an action by a city solicitor to oust a street railway company from its franchise, it is incumbent on the municipality to establish the omission. In the absence of evidence, a presumption arises that publication was regularly made.

State v. Railway, 11 C. C. n. s. 263; 20 C. D. 632 (1908); affirmed, without report, 81 O. S. 502.

Estoppel of municipality. A recital in a granting ordinance that proper publication had been made, when relied upon by the grantee of the franchise and expenditures made on the faith thereof, estops the municipality from maintaining an action to invalidate the grant because of defective publication.

Grant must be of route as advertised. A grant can not be made of a part only of route as advertised; nor can a street not included in advertisement or bids be embraced in grant.

Section 3770. (When consent of property owners necessary.) No such grant shall be made, except to the corporation, individual or individuals, that agree to carry passengers upon such proposed railroad at the lowest rates of fare, and shall have previously obtained the written consent of a majority of the property holders upon each street or part thereof, on the line of the proposed street railroad, represented by the feet front of the property abutting on the several streets along which such road is proposed to be constructed. When within the year preceding, a street railway has been operated upon such street or part thereof, under a grant or renewal of a grant which has expired or will expire within two years, it shall not be necessary to obtain the consent of the property holders abutting thereon, if the number of tracks on the street, public way or part thereof is not increased beyond the number for which consents were originally obtained. (April 15, 1908, 99 v. 103, § 30; October 22, 1902, 96 v. 32, § 30; Bates Stats. § 1536-185.)

Consents of property owners. See notes to §§ 9105 and 9106.

Lowest rates of fare. The council is not authorized to grant a franchise to the company which will bid "the lowest price of commutation tickets in packages." Such a bid is not in compliance with this section.

By whom made. A bid by an individual "for himself and associates" not named is the bid of the individual. The reference to associates does not invalidate the bid.

But only on clear proof that the council erred in determining which bid was the lowest.

A deposit was made by a depot company, pursuant to the terms of a franchise, to become the property of the municipality if the franchise should be forfeited. The council subsequently revoked the franchise, and authorized the return of the deposit. Held, the return of the deposit was authorized. Depot Co. v. Cincinnati, 105 O. S. 311 (1922).

Section 3771. (Grant not valid for more than twenty-five years.) No grant or renewal of a grant for the construction or operation of a street railroad, shall be valid for a greater period than twenty-five years from the date of such grant or renewal, and after such grant or renewal of a grant is made, whether by special or general ordinance, the municipality shall not, during the term of such grant or renewal, release the grantee from any obligation or liability imposed by the terms of such grant or renewal of a grant. A purchaser of a street railway at judicial sale assumes the obligation of the original grantee of the franchise to operate the road. Gress v. Fort Loramie, 100 O. S. 35 (1919); reversing, 21 N. P. n. s. 81.

Section 3775. (Grade of streets when street railroad is constructed.) Before a street railroad shall be constructed on any street less than sixty feet in width, with a roadway of thirty-five feet or under, the council shall provide that the crown of the street shall be made a nearly flat uniform curve from curb to curb, without ditch gutters, and in such manner as to give wheeled vehicles the full use of the roadway up to the face of the curb. When the tracks of two street railroads, or of a street railroad and a steam railroad, cross each other at a convenient grade on a street, the crossings shall be made with crossing-frogs of the most approved pattern and materials, and kept up and in repair at the joint expense of the companies owning such tracks. (R. S. Sec. 2503; April 20, 1881, 78 v. 296; R. S. 1880; May 7, 1867, 66 v. 217 § 413.)

The grade may be established in the granting ordinance.

Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co. v. Carthage, 36 O. S. 631 (1881).

Crossing-frogs. This requirement is constitutional. It applies to all companies, whether their lines were constructed before or after its passage. All companies are under the duty of renewing with crossing frogs which may be found of a more approved pattern.

Cincinnati St. R. Co. v. C. H. & D. R. R., 32 W. L. B. 4 (1894).

Grade crossing over steam railroad. A street railway company will not be enjoined from constructing a crossing over a steam railroad at grade, under a franchise from the municipality. It is for the council to determine the grade.

Railway Co. v. Railroad Co., 21 C. C. 391; 12 C. D. 113 (1898); aff'd, no rep., 64 O. S. 550.

An agreement by a street railway to construct and maintain, at its own expense, a crossing over a steam railroad, in a highway, at grade, is numdum pactum where the only consideration is a grant, by the steam railroad, of the right to cross. Harmon v. Traction Co., 10 Ohio App. 372; 31 O. C. A. 575 (1918). Motion to certify record overruled; s. e., 21 N. P. n. s. 76.

Section 3776. (Pavement of streets where railroads are constructed.) The council may require any part or all of the track, between the rails of any street railroad constructed within the corporate limits, to be paved with stone, gravel, boulders, or wooden or asphaltic pavement, as may be deemed proper, but without the corporate limits, paving between the rails with stone, boulders, wooden or asphaltic pavement shall not be required. (R. S. Sec. 2504; April 21, 1890, 87 v. 246; May 7, 1867, 66 v. 217, § 414.)

Under this section the council may require a street railway to pave between the rails, although the franchise is silent in regard thereto.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 1571.

Brick pavement is not authorized by this section. Railway v. Springfield, 15 N. P. n. s. 241, 249; 24 L. D. 277 (1913).

Where a street railway was built beyond the municipal limits, under a franchise from county commissioners which required certain macadam paving, and the municipal limits are extended, this section does not authorize the municipality to assess against the street railway, the cost of brick paving between the tracks thus brought within the municipal limits, although the municipal franchise provided that the cost of paving ordered by the municipality should be assessed against the street railway. Railway v. Springfield, 15 N. P. n. s. 241, 249; 24 L. D. 277 (1913).

In the absence of a statute or franchise obligation, a street railway company can not be required to pave. Railway v. Springfield, 15 N. P. n. s. 241, 249; 24 L. D. 277 (1913).

Franchise obligation to repair. When the granting ordinance provides that the company shall repair the street between rails, and that in case of default the city may do the work and recover the cost; the city is not divested of its right to control the street, and it may cause new improvements to be made and determine the kind of improvement. The company, in accepting the grant, incurs the obligation to repair.

Columbus v. Street R. R. Co., 45 O. S. 98 (1887).

Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co. v. Carthage, 36 O. S. 631 (1881).

A franchise required a street railway to keep certain space "in constant repair", but provided that it "shall not be required to repave by virtue of this obligation to repair". The renewal of worn out paving blocks on a viaduct was held to be a "repair" and not a repaving. Railway v. Cleveland, 97 O. S. 122 (1918).

Where a company operating a single track street railway, when a street was paved, paid for seven feet of pavement, as required by its franchise, and nine years later laid another track in the street, replacing the pavement, it is not liable to pay for fourteen feet of pavement, as if it had been operating a double track railway at the time the pavement was first laid. Traction Co. v. Stewart, 19 C. C. n. s. 27 (1908).

Under a franchise requiring the railway to pave between tracks "simultaneously" with the paving of the rest of the street, it was held to be the duty of the railway, upon reasonable notice from the authorities, to proceed. State ex rel. v. C. D. & M. Electric Co., 103 O. S. 280 (1921); s. c., 104 O. S. 120.

Failure to keep a street in repair, as required by its franchise, may render the street railway company liable in damages to a person injured by reason of the defect in the street. Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Heller, 15 Ohio App. 346 (1921). Motion to certify record overruled, 19 O. L. R. 652.

On failure of railway company to pave, as required by its franchise, within a reasonable time, a cause of action accrues to the municipality without notice or demand on the company.

Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co. v. Carthage, 36 O. S. 631 (1881).

Unless the franchise ordinance provides for notice.

Columbus v. Street Ry. Co., 45 O. S. 98 (1887).

Measure of damages is the reasonable cost of the work. Ib.

A municipality can not assess the cost of paving against a street railway company under G. C. § 3812 but should collect directly from the company under its franchise. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1832.

But the municipality may agree with the street railway that the entire street shall be paved by the municipality and that the street railway's share of the cost be paid to the municipality upon the same terms as special assessments against abutting owners are payable. Newark v. Fromholtz, 102 O. S. 81 (1921).

Assessment for street improvements. An interurban railway operating upon a public highway under a franchise is not subject to assessment for improvement of such highway as an owner of property abutting thereon. Railway Co. v. Scott, 101 O. S. 13 (1920).

Miscellaneous. A requirement to pave "between the rails" does not include the "devil strip," nor require paving to the end of the ties. Street Ry. v. Cleveland, 7 N. P. n. s. 161; 17 L. D. 763.

Car license fees can not be imposed by a municipality where franchise requires company to repair, sprinkle, etc., streets between tracks.

Columbus v. Jeffrey, 1 N. P. n. s. 265; 13 L. D. 639 (1903).

A provision in a franchise requiring the company to pay paving assessments is valid.

Such a provision does not make the railway company liable to the municipality for any part of the damages awarded to property owners as caused by the improvement of the street.

Acceptance of franchise requiring railway company to pay paving assessment precludes railway company from certain defenses otherwise available.

Barber, etc., Co. v. N. O. T. & L. Co., 202 Fed. 817 (C. C. A. 1913).

Section 3777. (Council may grant extension of street railroad.) The council of a municipality may grant permission, by ordinance, to any corporation, individual, or company, owning, or having the right to construct, a street railroad, to extend the track, subject to the provisions of law relating to the construction, operation and extension of street railways, within or without, or partly within or without any municipal corporation, on any street or streets where council deems such extension beneficial to the public. When such extension is made, the charge for carrying passengers on a street railroad so extended and its connections made with any other road or roads, by consolidation, shall not be increased by reason of such extension or consolidation. (R. S. Sec. 2505; Bates Stats. § 1536-188; March 9, 1880, 77 v. 43; R. S. 1880; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 140, § 1.)

Power of council to require extensions. See § 614-51.

The reference to passengers in this section does not prohibit the transportation of freight.

What constitutes an extension.

See Sommers v. Cincinnati, 8 Am. L. R. 612, 623, 624.

An extension can only be predicated of an existing line, or a present right to construct a line.

An extension is not a new route; it has no independent life; it depends upon, and is a part of, the line to which it is added.

C. E. Ry. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 Fed. 111, 130, 132; 3 O. L. R. 75, 102, 106 (1905); aff'd, 204 U. S. 116.

May be by branches from main line. The extension need not begin at terminus of line, or run in same general direction. It may be by branches from the main line.

INTERURBAN RAILROADS.

Section 3778. (Franchises to interurban railroads for the purpose of securing terminals.) The council of any municipality may grant a franchise upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe for the building of any interurban railroad having, constructing, or building, ten miles or more of track outside of such municipality, to any company or companies using electric or other motive power, save steam, for the purpose of securing to such company or companies access to or terminals within such municipality. The council may authorize such company to build and construct tracks and to operate cars thereon, on any street or streets, or parts of streets, of such municipality, upon which tracks have not already been laid and where the consent of the owners of a majority foot frontage has already been obtained by such company. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 253, § 1.)

493, 31 O. C. A. 513 (1920). Motion to certify record overruled, 19 O. L. R. 51.

Section 3779. (Condemnation proceedings when they can not agree.) The council may permit such interurban railroad to make use of the tracks or such parts of the tracks of any existing street railroad company within the limits of the municipality by agreement with such existing company. If no such agreement can be arrived at, the interurban railroad company may be authorized by council to condemn the right to make use of the tracks of such existing company upon the payment of proper compensation. But the interurban railroad company shall be permitted to condemn and make use of not more than one-eighth of the trackage of such company within the municipality, or so much as may be necessary to give the interurban company access to terminals within the municipality, or to enable such company to secure a right of way over such tracks through such municipality. The interurban railway company seeking permission to enter or pass through a municipality shall not be required to submit to competitive bidding on such routes. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 253, § 1.)

Appropriation of use of tracks.

See notes to § 9108.

Section 3780. (Competitive bidding shall not be required.) No grant or franchise shall be made to such interurban company for a period longer than twenty years, and no franchise so granted shall be used for the purpose of operating a municipal street car system, it being the only intent hereof to provide a method whereby bona fide interurban railroads may gain access to, and a terminal within, and an exit from, a municipality. (April 2, 1906, 98 v. 253, § 1.)

STEAM RAILROADS.

Section 3781. (Regulation of rate of speed.) When a railroad track is laid in a municipal corporation, the council by ordinance may regulate the speed of all locomotives and railroad cars within the corporate limits, but such ordinance shall not require a less rate of speed than four miles an hour, and in villages having a population of two thousand or less, it shall not require a less rate than eight miles an hour. The corporate authorities, by civil action, may recover from an engineer, conductor, or company, violating such ordinance, not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense. (R. S. Sec. 2500; April 27, 1877, 74 v. 132, § 1.)

This section applies to places within municipal limits other than public crossings. Blancke v. Railroad, 103 O. S. 178 (1921).

An ordinance regulating the speed of trains is rendered invalid by a provision for its enforcement by criminal proceedings.

Caskey v. Belle Center, 8 N. P. n. s. 153; 19 L. D. 726 (1908). But designating the penalty a "fine" does not render an ordinance "invalid" so long as no imprisonment or criminal process is sought to be enforced thereunder. The "fine" may be collected by civil action as a penalty. Toledo C. & O. R. R. Co. v. Miller, 108 O. S. — (1923); Railroad v. De Leone, 289 Fed. 201 (1923).

An ordinance "regulating the speed of automobiles and railway trains" is not invalid as containing more than one subject. Railroad v. De Leone, 289 Fed. 201 (C. C. A. Ohio 1923).

An ordinance regulating the speed of trains is prima facie reasonable, but the presumption may be rebutted. Railway v. Grambo, 103 O. S. 471 (1921); Blancke v. Railroad, 103 O. S. 178 (1921); Railroad v. De Leone, 289 Fed. 201 (1923).

Violation of speed ordinance; effect of in negligence cases. In an action to recover for an injury alleged to have been caused by cars moving on a railroad track, proof that the company was moving its cars in violation of a city ordinance at the time the injury was inflicted, while not sufficient per se to create a liability, is yet competent to go to the jury as tending to show negligence and to excuse contributory negligence.

Section 3809. (Council may provide for light, water and certain public necessities.) The council of a city may authorize, and the council of a village may make, a contract with any person, firm or company for lighting the streets, alleys, lands, lanes, squares and public places in the municipal corporation, or for furnishing water to such corporation, or for the collection and disposal of garbage in such corporation, or for the leasing of the electric light plant and equipment, or the waterworks plant, or both, of any person, firm, company or municipality or for the purchase of electric current for furnishing light, heat or power to such municipi-pality or the inhabitants thereof for a period not exceeding ten years, and the requirement of a certificate that the necessary money is in the treasury, shall not apply to such contract, and such requirement shall not apply to street improvement contracts extending for one year or more, nor to contracts made by the board of health, nor to contracts made by a village for the employment of legal counsel, nor to contracts by a municipality for the leasing or acquisition of the electric light plant and equipment, or the waterworks plant, or both, of any person, firm or corporation therein situated. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 526; October 22, 1902, 96 v. 37, § 45; Bates Stats. § 1536-205.)

A village prevented from constructing a waterworks system, by inability to vote sufficient bonds, may grant a franchise to an individual to construct the system, and at substantially the same time lease the same, as provided by this section.

Section 3981. (Municipalities may contract for a water supply; contract to be submitted to a vote.) A municipal corporation may contract with any individual or individuals or an incorporated company for supplying water for fire purposes, or for cisterns, reservoirs, streets, squares and other public places within the corporate limits, or for the purpose of supplying the citizens of such municipal corporation with water for such time, and upon such terms as may be agreed upon. But such contract shall not be executed or binding upon the municipal corporation until it has been ratified by a vote of the electors thereof, at a special or general election, and the municipal corporation shall have the same power to protect such water supply and prevent the pollution thereof as though the water works were owned by such municipal corporation. (R. S. Sec. 2434; Bates Stats. § 1536-545; 71 v. 93, § 54; R. S. 1880; 78 v. 42; 80 v. 71; 82 v. 11.)

A contract by a private corporation to furnish water to a municipal corporation, the latter to filter and distribute it to consumers, is not governed by this section and need not be submitted to a vote. | § 3986. Forfeiture of charter for neglect to furnish gas. | § 3994. Contracts to supply municipality with electric light or gas. |

Section 3982. (Council may regulate price of electric light, gas and water.) The council of a municipality in which electric lighting companies, natural or artificial gas companies, gas light or coke companies, or companies for supplying water for public or private consumption, are established, or into which their wires, mains or pipes are conducted, may regulate from time to time the price which such companies may charge for electric light, or for gas for lighting or fuel purposes, or for water for public or private consumption, furnished by such companies to the citizens, public grounds, and buildings, streets, lanes, alleys, avenues, wharves, and landing places, or for fire protection. Such companies shall in no event charge more for electric light, natural or artificial gas, or water, furnished to such corporation or individuals, than the price specified by ordinance of council. The council may regulate and fix the price which such companies shall charge for the rent of their meters, and such ordinance may provide that such price shall include the use of meters to be furnished by such companies, and in such case meters shall be furnished and kept in repair by such companies and no separate charge shall be made, either directly or indirectly, for the use or repair of them. (R. S. Sec. 2478; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 170; April 20, 1904, 97 v. 114; March 1, 1889, 86 v. 62; March 4, 1887, 84 v. 39; R. S. 1880; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 218, § 415.)

Appeal to public utilities commission from price fixed. §§ 614-44 to 614-46.

Gas and water companies, powers, etc., §§ 9320 to 9338.

The regulation of rates is an exercise of the police power. The regulation of rates by a municipality under Section 3 of Article XVIII of the Constitution as amended September 3, 1912, must not be in conflict with the general laws of the state. Telephone Co. v. Cleveland, 98 O. S. 358 (1918).

The public utilities commission is not authorized to summarily fix a rate for gas, subsequent to the expiration of a contract with a municipality, and during a period within which the operation of a new ordinance fixing the rate is suspended by the filing of a referendum petition. Cincinnati v. Commission, 96 O. S. 270 (1917).

The price of electricity for power purposes may be regulated. Washington v. Commission, 99 O. S. 70 (1918); Ohio River Power Co. v. Steubenville, 99 O. S. 421 (1919).

A contract for street lighting, authorized by ordinance, does not regulate the price of electric light to private consumers. Universal Machine Co. v. Ohio Northern Co., 13 Ohio App. 271 (1919). Motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 475.

But the price may be regulated in the same ordinance which authorizes a contract for public lighting under § 3994. Mutual Electric Co. v. Pomeroy, 99 O. S. 75 (1919).

Limitations on power to regulate price. The intention of the legislature was to permit councils to limit gas companies to fair and reasonable prices. The power is discretionary, but must be exercised in good faith and for the purpose for which it was given.

An ordinance fraudulently passed, fixing the price at a rate for which council knew gas could not be manufactured and sold without loss, would be invalid.

State v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 18 O. S. 262, 301 (1868).

Cleveland, etc. Co. v. Cleveland, 35 W. L. B. 155; 71 Fed. 610; 9 O. F. D. 258 (1891).

Peoria Gas & Electric Co. v. Peoria, 200 U. S. 48 (1906).

But to invalidate an ordinance, it must appear that the rates fixed are plainly unreasonable and will result in the taking of property without just compensation. It should be ascertained whether the net profits from operation will produce a reasonable return on the value of the plant of the company at the time of the inquiry. Where the value of the property rests largely upon opinion evidence, the fact that prior to the ordinance the company had voluntarily reduced its rate to that fixed by the ordinance and continued the same for several years may be controlling. When it is not clearly shown that a rate will be confiscatory, the company should be required to abide the test of experience under such rate. Gas Co. v. Newark, 92 O. S. 393 (1915); affirmed, 242 U. S. 405; s. c., 3 Ohio App. 383; 20 C. C. n. s. 254; 25 C. D. 94; 22 N. P. n. s. 187; 30 O. C. A. 362.

Free gas for municipal purposes may not be required. United Fuel Gas Co. v. Commission, 103 O. S. 168 (1921).

Effect of contract of a gas distributing company with a producing company for gas supply upon a basis of meter readings. Gas Co. v. Newark, 92 O. S. 393; affirmed, 242 U. S. 405.

The council has no power to compel a gas company to furnish gas in a manner and at a rate entirely at the option of the consumer.

Logan, etc., Co. v. Chillicothe, 65 O. S. 186 (1901); reversing 8 N. P. 88; 11 L. D. 24.

An ordinance attempting to fix rates on both a meter and flat basis, and to give consumers the privilege of changing from one to the other, at their option, is not enforceable.

Granville v. Crawford, etc., Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 421; 24 C. D. 256 (1911); reversing, 11 N. P. n. s. 641, 23 L. D. 694.

The council has no power to make a contract that for an indefinite period delegates to other parties the regulation of the price, quality and quantity of gas.

Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. Avondale, 43 O. S. 257 (1885).

Section § 3983 is a limitation on the general power of regulation conferred by this section.

Logan, etc., Co. v. Chillicothe, 65 O. S. 186, 209 (1901).

Provisions in an ordinance which fixed the price of gas according to the use to which the heat produced by the gas was applied, and which provided that consumers having a flat rate prior to the passage of the ordinance should not be compelled to receive gas by meter, were held unreasonable.

Toledo v. Gas Co., 5 C. C. 557; 3 C. D. 273 (1890); s. c., 6 N. P. 631; 8 L. D. 277.

Provision in franchise ordinance. Where a maximum price is fixed in the franchise ordinance, which is accepted by the grantee, it is a legislative regulation of the price of gas, and a limitation upon the franchise, and must stand as such until changed by subsequent legislation.

Manhattan Trust Co. v. Dayton, 59 Fed. 327; 9 O. F. D. 310 (1893).

Where an ordinance granted a franchise to a natural gas company for twenty-five years "subject, however, to the right of the city to regulate the price of natural gas from time to time, as provided by law", the acceptance, by the company, of the ordinance constitutes a contract which determines the rights of the parties. The fixing of a rate for the first ten years of the franchise does not exhaust the power of the city to regulate. The contract continues as one entire contract. Cincinnati v. Commission, 98 O. S. 320 (1918).

Where the street franchise of an electric light company is silent as to its duration, but the municipality fixes the rate under § 3982 for a fixed period and the rate is accepted by the company under § 3983, the duration of the franchise is for the period of the contract so made. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 468. See Gas Co. v. Cleveland, 106 O. S. 489 (1922).

Ordinance regulating price presumed to be valid. The presumption is in favor of the good faith and validity of the action of the council in passing an ordinance regulating prices. Inadequacy of the price fixed by the council is not the subject of inquiry in the absence of facts showing fraud or bad faith on the part of the council.

State v. Columbus, etc., Co., 34 O. S. 572 (1878).

Power to regulate price after expiration of contract. After the expiration of a contract with a gas company, a municipal corporation may regulate the price of gas so long as the gas company continues to exercise its franchise within the municipal corporation. But where the franchise in the streets has expired, the gas company may wholly withdraw, and the municipality can not prevent it from removing its property.

Gas Co. v. Cleveland, 106 O. S. 489 (1922).

Gaslight Co. v. Zanesville, 47 O. S. 35 (1889).

Where no action taken by council, reasonable price only may be charged. Where no action has been taken by the council of a municipality towards fixing the price of electric light, and the electric light company and a consumer are unable to agree as to a price, the company may be compelled to furnish light at a reasonable price.

C. H. & D. R. R. Co. v. Bowling Green, 57 O. S. 336, 346 (1898).

Council may regulate prices of company chartered under former constitution. A gas company chartered by an act of the legislature, passed before the adoption of the present constitution, is subject to this section, unless the right to fix its own prices is expressly conferred in its charter.

Price. Natural and artificial gas furnished by same company. A gas company authorized by ordinance to supply natural gas, and, under certain conditions, artificial gas at a higher price, the existence of such conditions to be determined by the board of public service of the municipality, can not be compelled, at the suit of a property owner, to furnish artificial gas for the price of natural gas, where the board has found that the conditions exist under which artificial gas may be furnished.

A citizen may, by mandamus, compel a gas company to supply him gas in accordance with its franchise. Such remedy is not provided by § 3982 but exists without express statutory provision.

State v. Union Gas & El. Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 97 (1913).

The laws giving the commission power over rates do not deprive the courts of equitable jurisdiction. Where a municipality brought suit to enforce an unaccepted ordinance fixing the rate of gas, an answer of the gas company alleging facts showing the rate to be confiscatory states a case of which a court of equity has jurisdiction.

State v. Ct. of App., 104 O. S. 96 (1922).

Where the price has been fixed by the municipality, accepted by the public utility, no appeal taken under § 614-44, service furnished to the municipality, and a warrant drawn for its payment, but the treasurer of the municipality refuses to pay, the utility may compel its payment by mandamus. State v. Burris, 91 O. S. 70 (1914).

Courts have jurisdiction over a controversy between a municipality and a public utility, as to rates which have been fixed by contract, although the commission may also have jurisdiction. New Lexington v. Ohio Co., 24 C. C. n. s. 537 (1913).

The only mode of judicial relief in federal courts against unreasonable rates is by suit against the governmental authority which established them or is charged with the duty of enforcing them. It is not competent for each individual having dealings with the regulated company to raise a contest in the courts over the questions which ought to be settled in this general and conclusive way. Rates for electric lighting. Findings by public utilities commission on appeal. 16 O. L. R. 350, 422.

Section 3983. (Minimum price not to be reduced during term agreed upon.) If council fixes the price at which it shall require a company to furnish electricity or either natural or artificial gas to the citizens, or public buildings or for the purpose of lighting the streets, alleys, avenues, wharves, landing places, public grounds or other places or for other purposes, for a period not exceeding ten years, and the company or persons so to furnish such electricity or gas assents thereto, by written acceptance, filed in the office of the auditor or clerk of the corporation, the council shall not require such company to furnish electricity or either natural or artificial gas, as the case may be, at a less price during the period of time agreed on, not exceeding such ten years. (R. S. Sec. 2479; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 263; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 218, § 416.)

Term for which municipalities may contract for public lighting under § 3994 is limited to ten years by this section.

Acceptance of ordinance constitutes a contract. Where an ordinance, granting a franchise in streets of a municipality upon certain terms and conditions, has been accepted in writing by a gas company, such action constitutes a contract which determines the rights of the parties.

Filing schedules with the public utilities commission is not an acceptance of a price-fixing ordinance, although the schedules contain the same rates as those fixed in the ordinance. Newcomerstown v. Gas Co., 100 O. S. 494 (1919); affirming, 30 O. C. A. 283 (1919).

Provision as to price in franchise ordinance. Where a maximum price is fixed in the franchise ordinance, which is accepted by the grantee, it is a legislative regulation of the price of gas, and a limitation upon the franchise, and must stand as such until changed by subsequent legislation.

Manhattan Trust Co. v. Dayton, 59 Fed. 327; 9 O. F. D. 310.

Under a contract to furnish gas at a stipulated rate, with no meter rental charge, the company has no right to exact a "readiness to serve" charge. Lima v. Commission, 100 O. S. 416 (1919). See Gas Co. v. Commission, 102 O. S. 628 (1920).

If ordinance not accepted, power of council to regulate continues. A provision in an ordinance fixing the price of gas for a specified period operates as a proposition to the gas company. If not accepted the power of the council to regulate during such period remains as if the ordinance contained no such provision.

Section 3984. (When council may occupy streets for gas purposes.) If at any time any such company required by the council to lay pipes and light a street, alley, avenue, wharf, landing place, public ground or building, refuses or neglects for six months after being notified by authority of the council to comply with such requirement, the council may lay pipes and erect gas works for lighting such streets, alleys, or public grounds, and all other streets, alleys, and public grounds not already lighted, and such company shall thereafter be precluded from using or occupying any of the streets, alleys, public grounds or buildings not already furnished with gas pipes of such company, and council may open any street for the purpose of so conveying gas. (R. S. Sec. 2480; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 218, § 417.)

This section does not authorize a municipality to engage in the business of selling natural gas.

Central, etc., Co. v. Columbus, 16 L. D. 359 (1905).

See note to § 3990.

Section 3985. (Gas companies may be permitted to occupy streets.) At any time after the default mentioned in the preceding section, the council may permit such companies to use and occupy the streets, alleys, and public grounds of such corporation for the purpose of lighting them and furnishing gas to the citizens and public buildings. (R. S. Sec. 2481; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 218, § 418.)

Section 3986. (Forfeiture of charter for neglect to furnish gas.) A neglect to furnish gas to the citizens and other consumers of gas or to the corporation by any company in accordance with the prices fixed and established by the council from time to time shall forfeit all rights of such company under the charter by which it has been established, and the council may proceed to erect, or, by ordinance, empower any person to erect gas works, for the supply of gas to such corporation and its citizens. (R. S. Sec. 2482; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 218, § 419.)

A person who installed electric light in his premises and thereafter used gas only occasionally or in cases of emergency is not a "consumer" of gas under this section, and the company is not bound to continue gas connections with his premises.

Adams Exp. Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 21 W. L. B. 18 (1888).

A municipality may erect a gas plant, although the gas company has not been negligent in furnishing gas.

State v. Hamilton, 47 O. S. 52 (1890).

A natural gas company may be compelled to furnish natural gas for illuminating purposes although its franchise prohibited such use.

Springfield v. Gas Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 392; 21 C. D. 446 (1907); aff'd, no rep., 81 O. S. 537.

Section 3987. (A temporary failure shall work no forfeiture.) A temporary failure to furnish gas shall not operate as a forfeiture, unless such failure is through the neglect or misconduct of such gas-light or gas-light and coke company. (R. S. 2483; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 219, § 420.)

Section 3988. (Council may provide for electric current and gas inspection.) In a municipality in which gas works are constructed, council may provide, by ordinance, for the appointment of an officer, to be known as inspector of gas, whose duty it shall be to inspect all gas and gas meters, and certify the correctness of all bills against consumers of gas, make photometric tests, and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by ordinance, and the council shall fix his compensation. Council may also provide for the inspection and testing of meters used for measuring electric current for electric light, power or other purposes, furnished by any individual or company within the corporation, and may prescribe a suitable charge for such inspection and testing, and the manner of collecting it. (R. S. Sec. 2484; May 18, 1894, 91 v. 300; April 12, 1876, 73 v. 227, § 4; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 219, § 421.)

Constitutionality.

See Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. State, 18 O. S. 237 (1868).

A provision in a franchise requiring the grantee to pay a reasonable sum annually to compensate the municipality for supervision and inspection is valid. A clause in the franchise ordinance providing that the payments are "for the benefit of the gas and light fund of said city" does not render the ordinance invalid, as a means to raise revenue, the clause being subordinate to the principal obligation.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309 (1907).

Section 3989. (Exclusive monopoly shall not be allowed to gas companies.) Council shall not agree by ordinance, contract, or otherwise, with any person or persons for the construction or extension of gas works for manufacturing or supplying the corporation or its inhabitants with gas, which gives or continues to such person or persons the exclusive privilege of using the streets, lanes, commons, or alleys, for the purpose of conveying gas to the corporation, or the citizens thereof, or which deprives council of the right to designate, inspect or regulate the kind of meter to be used for the correct measurement of the gas furnished under such agreement, or which does not specify the exact quality of the gas to be furnished, and reserve to the council the right to enforce an exact compliance with such specification, under such rules as the council may prescribe, nor shall the council make any such agreement which does not secure to the council the right to purchase such works, and all the appurtenances belonging thereto, at any time within the existence of such contract or agreement (R. S. Sec. 2485; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 219, § 422.)

This section does not apply to natural gas companies.

The right to use the streets of a municipality for the laying of gas pipes is a franchise, and must emanate either directly or indirectly from the legislature.

The council of a municipality has no power to grant an exclusive gas franchise in its streets. Such power must have been expressly conferred by the legislature, or be so far necessary to the execution of express powers as to make its existence free from doubt.

A contract by a gas company to furnish gas to a municipality for public lighting under § 3994 is valid, although it fails to secure to the municipality the right to purchase the plant.

Lima Gas Co. v. Lima, 4 C. C. 22; 2 C. D. 396 (1889).

This section was not repealed by the public utilities commission acts. A franchise ordinance, which fails to specify the quality of artificial gas, is invalid. Stiver v. Gas Co., 13 Ohio App. 276, 31 O. C. A. 554 (1920).

Section 3990. (Council may erect or purchase gas or electric works.) The council of a municipality may, when it is deemed expedient and for the public good, erect gas works or electric works at the expense of the corporation, or purchase any gas or electric works already erected therein, but in villages where gas works or electrical works have already been erected by any person, company of persons, or corporation, to whom a franchise to erect and operate gas works or electric works has been granted, and such franchise has not yet expired, the council shall, with the consent of the owner or owners, purchase such gas works or electric works already erected therein. If the council and owner or owners of such gas or electric works are unable to agree upon the compensation to be paid therefor, the council may file in the probate court of the county where such gas works or electric works are located, a petition to appropriate such gas works or electric works, and thereupon the same proceedings of appropriation shall be had as is provided for the appropriation of private property by a municipal corporation. A municipal contract existing between any village and such person, company of persons or corporation for the public or street lighting shall be considered as an element of value in fixing the compensation to be paid for such gas works or electric works. (R. S. Sec. 2486; 95 v. 599; 93 v. 59; 66 v. 219, § 423.)

A franchise granted to a gas company does not confer vested rights which are violated by the municipality erecting its own gas plant.

This section is in violation of the home rule amendment of 1912 to the constitution (Sec. 4, Art. XVIII) in so far as it requires the purchase of existing gas or electric works. Franchise or contract rights acquired while this section was in force were not annulled by the subsequent adoption of Section 4, Article XVIII of the Constitution. But contracts made after its adoption are controlled thereby. Dravo-Doyle Co. v. Orrville, 93 O. S. 236 (1915).

Section 3994. (Contracts to supply municipality with electric light or gas.) A municipal corporation may contract with any company for supplying, with electric light, natural or artificial gas, for the purpose of lighting or heating the streets, squares and other public places and buildings in the corporation limits. Section 4000-1. ("Public utility" defined. "Indeterminate permit" defined.) Wherever in this act and for the purpose of this act, the term "public utility" shall be taken to mean and include any street railroad operated in whole or in part under the act passed April 22, 1896, commonly known as "The Rogers Law" and entitled "An act to amend and supplement sections 2505a and 2505b of the Revised Statutes of Ohio enacted May 1, 1891, and amended April 18, 1892" or any street railroad operated in connection with or upon the tracks of any such street railroad and any corporation which owns, operates or leases any such street railroads.

The term "indeterminate permit" as used in this act, shall mean and embrace any grant of a municipality to any person, association of persons, company or corporation, of power, right or privilege to own, operate, manage or control any plant or equipment or any part of a plant or equipment within this state of any public utility created under said acts as herein defined, which by the terms thereof is to continue in force until such time as the municipality shall exercise its right to purchase the property of such public utility, in accordance with the terms of this act or until it shall be otherwise terminated according to law. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 726, § 1; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-2. (Authority to surrender franchise and accept indeterminate permit. Purchase by municipality of public utility; how amount of payment determined.) Any such public utility is hereby authorized to surrender any existing license, permit, grant or franchise, and to accept in lieu thereof any indeterminate permit, and the municipality in which all or the major part of the property of such public utility is situated may accept such surrender and grant an indeterminate permit, and at the time or times provided in the grant of such permit, or, if no time be provided in such grant, then at any time after such grant, the municipal corporation may purchase all the property of such public utility actually used and useful for the convenience of the public, upon paying therefor just compensation as determined or agreed upon in accordance with the terms of this act. Any such municipality is authorized to purchase and operate such property, and every such public utility is hereby required to sell such property for the compensation determined or agreed upon in accordance with the terms of this act. The amount to be paid for the property may be determined, first, by condemnation proceedings, or second, by proceedings as hereinafter described before the public utilities commission of Ohio, or third, by agreement between the municipality and the public utility as hereinafter described. In the ascertainment of the compensation to be paid by any municipality for the property of any public utility, either by condemnation proceedings before the public utilities commission, the compensation shall be made and awarded only for such property of the public utility as is used and useful for the convenience of the public, excluding therefrom the value of any franchise or right to own, operate or enjoy the same, in excess of the amount actually paid to such municipal corporation as the consideration for the grant of such indeterminate permit. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 727, § 2; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-3. (Authority to grant indeterminate permit.) Any municipality may grant an indeterminate permit to any such public utility upon such terms and conditions as may be considered conducive to the public interests, and as provided in this act. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 727, § 3; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-4. (How compensation determined.) When the municipality determines to acquire the property by condemnation, the compensation therefor shall be determined in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of private property by a municipal corporation. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 728, § 4; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-5. (Procedure when municipality desires to acquire public utility.) When the municipality so desires, as expressed in the ordinance determining to acquire the property of any such public utility, to have the compensation determined by the public utilities commission of Ohio, the municipality shall make a request in writing to such commission in accordance with the provisions of section 21 [G. C. § 499-8] of an act passed April 28, 1913, entitled "An act to create the public utilities commission of Ohio, to prescribe its organization, its powers and its duties, and to repeal sections 487 to 499 inclusive, sections 543 to 551 inclusive, sections 614-24, 614-25, 614-26, 614-69, 614-70, 614-80, 614-81, and 614-83 of the General Code". Thereupon the public utilities commission shall proceed to make an inventory and valuation of the property of such public utility in accordance with the provisions of said act. The proceedings for a review of such valuation shall be as prescribed in section 29 of said act [G. C. § 499-16.] Such valuation shall not become binding upon the municipality, however, unless the council thereafter passes an ordinance accepting the same, which ordinance shall be subject to a referendum in accordance with the provisions of law relating to referenda upon municipal ordinances. If not accepted, the municipality shall reimburse the public utility for its expenses reasonably incurred in the valuation proceedings, the amount to be ascertained and fixed by the commission. In the absence of agreement as to compensation as provided in section 6 hereof [G. C. § 4000-6] the acceptance of an indeterminate permit shall be construed as a consent on the part of the public utility to the procedure provided for in this section. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 728, § 5; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-6. (Agreement by municipality with public utility as to compensation and time of purchase; proceedings.) Any municipal corporation may contemporaneously with or at any time after the grant of an indeterminate permit, as provided in sections 2 and 3 of this act [G. C. §§ 4000-2, 4000-3], agree with the public utility upon the compensation to be paid for its property, and the time or times for the exercise of the privilege of purchase; provided, however, that no period between the times fixed for such purchase shall exceed five years. Upon the determination of the municipality to acquire the property of such public utility, the amount to be paid by the municipality and the terms and conditions of the acquisition shall be as thus agreed upon. The agreement of the municipality shall be by ordinance. In the same or other ordinances, the municipality and public utility may agree upon the amount of or basis of calculating the amount of annual payment, if any,

to be made to the city to be treated as operating expenses of the utility or otherwise; also upon the basis of a division of earnings between the utility and the city; also the purposes for which and the amounts or the basis for calculating the amounts in which new stock, bonds or other securities may be issued; also the minimum net earnings or basis of or device for calculating the minimum net earnings which the utility may earn as a condition precedent to a reduction of fares or rates, and as a test of the reasonableness of extensions; also the initial rates, fares and charges, and the dates of revision of rates, fares or charges, but no period between dates fixed for revision shall exceed five years; also the obligations of the utility with reference to minimum maintenance, renewal and depreciation reserve funds; also for arbitration of differences, also any other terms and conditions relative to the construction, maintenance, financing, operation and control of service of the utility consistent with the terms and conditions of this act and an indeterminate permit. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 728, § 6; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-7. (Ordinance shall not take effect until submission of question to electors; notice of election.) No ordinance passed pursuant to the provisions of section 6 hereof [G. C. § 4000-6], shall take effect until submitted to the electors of the municipality, at a special or general election held in the municipality at such time as council may determine, and approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon. The ordinance shall be duly passed by an affirmative vote of not less than a majority of the members elected or appointed to the council, and shall be subject to the approval of the mayor as provided by law. The ordinance shall specify the form or phrasing of the question to be placed upon the ballot. Thirty days' notice of the election shall be given by publication once a week for four consecutive weeks in two daily or weekly newspapers published or circulated in the municipality, which notice shall contain the full form or phrasing of the question to be submitted. The clerk of the council shall certify the passage of such ordinance to the officers having control of elections in such municipality, who shall cause such question to be voted on at the general or special election as specified in the ordinance. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 729, § 7; in effect August 8, 1913.)

granted under the terms of this act shall continue in force until such time as the municipality shall acquire the property of the public utility as provided in this act, or until otherwise terminated according to the terms and conditions of the permit. The acceptance of an indeterminate permit shall be deemed to deprive the public utility of all rights under any license, permit, grant or franchise or granted in any municipal ordinance or resolution existing at the time of the granting of the permit. From the time of such grant, the rates, fares, charges, service, accounts, equipments, repairs, additions, extensions, improvements, transfers, joint use, depreciation, capitalization, bonded or other indebtedness and all other terms and conditions relating to the financing, construction, maintenance, and operation of such utility shall be subject to municipal regulation; provided, however, that such power of municipal regulation shall not be exercised in a manner inconsistent with the express terms of the ordinance granting the permit.

Provided, also, that the capitalization and bonded or other indebtedness for improvement and other purposes beyond the limits of the municipality granting the permit shall remain subject to regulation by the state public utilities commission as provided by law; but no such capitalization or indebtedness shall be given effect as a basis for purchase price to or rate regulation by the municipality contrary to the agreement of the municipality and public utility as expressed in the ordinance granting the permit.

Nothing in this act shall be construed as conferring upon any municipality, officer, department, or commission thereof any power to grant an indeterminate permit to any such public utility in any other manner than by ordinance, or to prescribe that such ordinance shall take effect in any other manner than by acceptance by the public utility to which it is granted by filing a written acceptance thereof with the clerk of the city council or other officers named in such permit. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 729, § 8; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-9. (Rates, tolls or charges.) In the absence of agreement as to rates, fares or charges, as provided in section 6 hereof [G. C. § 4000-6], all rates, fares, tolls and charges for services rendered and commodities furnished by any public utility shall be sufficient to yield a reasonable compensation to the public utility operating under an indeterminate permit, and in the ascertainment of what shall constitute such reasonable rates, fares, tolls, and charges, the municipal corporation shall have due regard, among other things, to the value of all the property of the public utility actually used and useful for the convenience of the public, excluding therefrom the value of any franchise or right to own, operate or enjoy the same, in excess of the amount actually paid to such municipal corporation as the consideration for the grant of such indeterminate permit and exclusive of any value added thereto by reason of a monopoly or merger, and also with due regard to the necessity of making reservation out of the income for surplus, depreciation and contingencies. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 730, § 9; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-10. (Department may be created to exercise the powers conferred; procedure before department.) In the event that any municipality shall establish any department for the purpose of exercising any of the powers herein conferred, such department is hereby granted such powers of supervision and regulation of any public utility operating under an indeterminate grant, as are provided by law and in the ordinance granting the permit, and as may be from time to time prescribed by the terms of any ordinance not inconsistent with the express provisions of the ordinance granting the permit. It is hereby made the duty of every such public utility to comply with all orders and regulations of such department issued by virtue of the powers herein granted. The procedure of, by and before such department shall be as ordained by the council of the municipality in the permit and other ordinances. The council shall also have power to prescribe the penalties for non-compliance with and the methods of enforcement of the orders and regulations of such department, not inconsistent with the express provisions of the ordinance granting the permit. The provisions of the permit or of any ordinance or order of the municipality passed or issued under this act shall be binding upon all public officers and commissions. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 730, § 10; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-11. (Appeals, when ordinance contains no provisions.) When the ordinance granting the permit contains no provisions whatever relative to appeal from or arbitration concerning the orders of the municipality, the utility may appeal to the public utilities commission of Ohio from any order of the municipality which is in violation of law or of the permit, or from any unreasonable order concerning matters upon which the parties have not agreed in the permit itself. Such appeal shall be by petition filed within thirty days from the issuance of the order. The filing of any such appeal shall not suspend the operation of the order appealed from unless the public utility shall give an undertaking payable to the municipality in such amount and containing such conditions as may be fixed by said commission. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 731, § 11; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-12. (Procedure on appeals to public utilities commission.) In the event that the ordinance granting the permit provides for an appeal to or arbitration by the state public utilities commission, then such commission shall determine such appeal or arbitration according to the procedure, methods, terms and conditions provided for in such ordinance. The provisions of law specially providing for judicial review of the orders of the public utilities commission shall not apply to actions of the commission upon such appeals or arbitration. Except as provided in this and the next preceding section, the provisions of law relating to appeals, complaints, or applications to the public utilities commission shall not apply to public utilities operating under indeterminate permits. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 731, § 12; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-13. (How duties shall be enforced.) In addition to the methods of enforcement herein provided, the duties herein imposed upon public utilities shall be enforceable by mandamus and all other judicial proceedings provided by law for the enforcement of the duties of public utilities. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 731, § 13; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-14. (Other methods unaffected.) Nothing in this act shall be construed to deprive any municipality of its rights to prescribe, by charter, any other methods, terms or conditions according to and upon which indeterminate permits may be granted in such municipality. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 731, § 14; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 4000-15. (Independent sections.) The invalidity of any section or any part of this act shall not be deemed to affect the validity of any other section or part thereof. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 731, § 15; in effect August 8, 1913.)

That whenever in any city the city council thereof, shall, by ordinance, declare it to be essential to the interest of such city that a rapid transit commission, with the powers and duties described in this act, be appointed, the mayor of such city shall appoint a board of commissioners to be known as the board of rapid transit commissioners. Said board shall consist of five members, and they shall be electors of the county within which such city is located, and a majority of such commissioners shall be electors of such municipal corporation. (108 (Pt. 2) v. 1101; 107 v. 406; 106 v. 286.)

This act is constitutional. State v. Railway, 97 O. S. 283 (1918).

An ordinance authorizing an administrative board to grant to a corporation the right to operate a public utility owned by the municipality upon the terms and conditions specified in the ordinance, and empowering the board to perform specified administrative duties which are necessary to the carrying out of the plan, is not an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. State v. Railway, 97 O. S. 283 (1918).

It is a violation of Section 6, Article VIII of the Constitution for an ordinance to grant to a street railway company the right to operate jointly a subway or street railway owned by the city with a system of railways owned by the company, and provide that the gross receipts from operation shall be used for the payment of existing and future securities of the company. State v. Railway, 97 O. S. 283 (1918).

Ordinance of the city of Cleveland providing for the appointment of a board of rapid transit commissioners, held not to be in violation of the Cleveland charter. State v. Otis, 98 O. S. 83 (1918).

Section 4000-17. (Organization of board; rules and regulations.) Said board of rapid transit commissioners shall elect one of its members president and another vice-president, who in the absence or disability of the president shall perform his duties. The board shall make its own rules, but its meetings shall be open to the public and all questions acted upon shall be decided by a yea and nay vote, with the name of each member voting recorded on the journal, and no question shall be decided unless approved by a majority of the members of the board. (106 v. 286, § 2.)

Section 4000-18. (Employment of clerks, engineers, superintendents, etc.; duties.) The board of rapid transit commissioners may employ clerks, engineers, superintendents, real estate experts, attorneys, and such other employes as may be necessary. The chief engineers of the subdepartment of engineering of the department of public service may be employed as the chief engineer of said board and receive compensation in addition to that paid him as chief engineer of the subdepartment of engineering of the department of public service. The duties performed by the chief engineer of the subdepartment of engineering of the department of public service as engineer of the board of rapid transit commissioners and the compensation paid to said engineer shall be separate and distinct from the duties and compensation of said engineer as the chief engineer of the subdepartment of engineering of the department of public service and the duties of said engineer as engineer of the board of rapid transit commissioners, as provided by law, shall not be construed as being in conflict with his duties as chief engineer of the subdepartment of engineering of the department of public service under the provisions of this act. The subdepartment of engineering shall perform such engineering services as may be determined by said board. The board of rapid transit commissioners shall fix the compensation and term of service of all of its employes. The superintendents, clerks, engineers, real estate experts, and attorneys of the board shall be in the unclassified civil service and all other employes shall be in the classified civil service of the municipality. Sections 4000-16 and 4000-18 of the General Code authorizing the creation of a board of rapid transit commissioners in cities, defining its powers, passed May 17, 1915, as herein amended shall apply to and govern all pending proceedings. (107 v. 406; 106 v. 286, § 3.)

This section authorizes the board of rapid transit commissioners to employ an attorney and fix his compensation. State v. Leimann, 97 O. S. 334 (1918); note to section 4000-18.

Section 4000-19. (Control and management in construction, maintenance, etc. Construction of boulevard or parkway.) The board of rapid transit commissioners shall have control and management of the construction of a rapid transit railway system, in, through, under, on, or upon any lands including also canal lands or parts thereof, together with the streets, alleys and public ways outside of such canal lands, whether within or without the limits of such corporation, and of depots and terminals for interurban, suburban, street and other electric railways, and the construction of interurban, suburban, street or rapid transit electric railways, and of any combination of two or more of such purposes, and shall have power of the acquisition, repair, control, operation, management and maintenance of the utilities so constructed and acquired.

In all cases where the construction of a rapid transit system is in, through or under any land, including also canal lands or parts thereof, such board may construct a boulevard or parkway on, upon or adjacent to such lands or canal lands; plans therefor shall, however, be first approved by the board of park commissioners in cities having such a board. On completion of any such boulevard or parkway the same shall be committed to the control, charge and maintenance of the municipal board or officer in charge of the park system of such city. (106 v. 286, § 4.)

Section 4000-20. (Control and expenditure of appropriations. How moneys shall be provided. Rejection of bids.) The board of rapid transit commissioners shall have control of the expenditure of all moneys appropriated by the city council or received from sale of bonds provided for in this act or from any other source whatever, for the purchase, construction, improvement, maintenance, equipment or enjoyment of all such rapid transit property, but no liability shall be incurred or expenditure made unless the money required therefor is in the city treasury to the credit of the board of rapid transit commissioners' fund and not appropriated for any other purpose, and moneys to be derived from the sale of bonds, the issue of which has been lawfully authorized shall be deemed to be in the treasury to the credit of said fund. All moneys expended for the construction and acquisition of parkways or boulevards, as authorized by this act, shall be provided for by special appropriation or bond issue, or partly by such special appropriation or bond issue and also partly by assessments, as specified in section 6 of this act, shall be separately accounted for, and such expenditure shall not be considered a part of the rapid transit expenditure as herein authorized. Said board may let contracts for any and all part of the work to the lowest and best bidder after three weeks' advertisement in two newspapers of general circulation in the municipality.

Said board shall have the right to reject any and all bids, and the proceedings for said contracts and payment therefor shall be the same as are provided for the director of public service except the requirement of the approval of the board of control. (106 v. 286, § 5.)

Section 4000-21. (Assessment against property owners for construction of boulevard or parkway; limitations.) Such board of rapid transit commissioners may assess upon the abutting, adjacent, contiguous or other specially benefited lots or lands in the corporation fifty per cent. of the entire cost or expense connected with the construction of any boulevard or parkway as authorized by this act, and the proceedings by said board for the levying and collecting of any special assessments, including the issuance and sale of bonds in anticipation of the collection of such special assessments shall be as provided by law for the levy and collection of special assessments and the issuance and sale of bonds in anticipation of the collection of such assessments for street improvements in municipalities; providing that resolutions of necessity, determinations to proceed with the improvements, the making of the assessments and letting of contracts, the appointment of estimating and equalizing boards in cases of assessments in proportion to benefits, the authorizing, the issuance, and sale of bonds in anticipation of the levy or collection of such assessments, and all other steps and proceedings preceding or relating to the levy of such assessments shall be adopted, passed, made, taken or performed by such board of rapid transit commissioners, and such board is hereby granted full power to adopt, pass, make, take and perform all such resolutions, steps and proceedings; and in such municipal corporations the plans, specifications and estimates shall at the time of the passage of the resolution of necessity be on file in the office of such board, and notice of such resolution shall be served by said board or any person or persons designated by it for the purpose, and objections to assessments and property owners claims for damages shall be filed with the clerk of said board, and said board shall determine whether claims for damages shall be judicially inquired into before commencement or after completion of the improvement, and in general all steps required by law to be taken by or with the clerk of council shall as regards said parkway construction authorized by this act be taken by or with the clerk of such board of rapid transit commissioners. Assessments for the above purpose shall be subject to the limitations provided by law for assessments for street and other improvements, and all collections made pursuant thereto shall be credited by the city auditor to the respective parkway improvement. (106 v. 286, § 6.)

Section 4000-22. (Issue of bonds; procedure; election.)

When the board of rapid transit commissioners deems it necessary to issue bonds secured by the general credit of the municipality or to levy a tax for the purpose of carrying into effect the powers herein conferred the board shall, by written resolution, so declare its judgment and state therein the amount of bonds to be issued or the tax to be levied for such purposes and transmit the resolution to the city council, which may authorize the issuance of such bonds or levy a tax for the aforesaid purposes. Provided, however, that the total aggregate amount of bonds issued without being first submitted to a vote of the people shall not exceed one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. If the council fails to enact legislation for the issuance of bonds at its next regular or special meeting after the resolution has been received by the clerk of council, it shall then be the duty of council at its next regular or special meeting by ordinance to submit the question of the issuance of the bonds to a vote of the qualified electors of the municipality and the clerk of council shall file the ordinance with the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of the county; said board of deputy state supervisors shall then submit the question of the issuance of such bonds to the qualified electors of the city at either a special or a general election, as the ordinance may specify. Thirty days' notice of the election shall be given in one or more newspapers printed in the municipality once a week for four consecutive weeks prior thereto, stating the amount of bonds to be issued and the purpose for which they are to be issued, and the time of holding the election. If a majority of the voters voting at such election upon the question of issuing the bonds vote in favor thereof it shall then become the duty of the council of the city to enact within ninety days thereafter all legislation necessary to carry into effect the will of the majority of the voters voting at such election and bonds shall be issued from time to time as they may be needed. (106 v. 286, § 7.)

Section 4000-23. (Aggregate amount not limited by any law of Ohio.) The aggregate amount of such bonds authorized by vote of the people or total indebtedness created under the authority of this act shall not be limited by the provisions of any act or statute of Ohio or law, except by the limitation herein set forth, and such aggregate or total indebtedness shall not exceed two per cent. of the total value of all property in such municipal corporation as listed and assessed for taxation. (106 v. 286, § 8.)

Section 4000-24. (Application of proceeds from sale of bonds.) The proceeds from the sale of such bonds may be used by said board of rapid transit commissioners for the construction in, through, on, over, upon or under any canal lands or property leased by such municipal corporation from the state of Ohio, or any lands, rights of way, or property outside of such canal lands, whether within or without the municipal corporation, of depots and terminals for street, interurban or suburban or rapid transit or street electric railways, or for the construction of interurban, suburban, street or rapid transit electric railways, or of any combination of two or more of such purposes, and the necessary tracks, way stations, depots, work shops, conduits, elevated structures, subways, tunnels, offices, sidetracks, turnouts, machine shops, bridges and other appurtenances, and for the purchase, acquisition or condemnation of the necessary lands, easements and rights of way, and for the purchase of the equipment necessary for the operation thereof; and the proceeds of bonds specially issued therefor shall be used to pay the cost for the construction of boulevards or parkways on, upon or adjacent to such lands or canal lands, subject to the provisions relative to the construction of and assessments for boulevards or parkways, as specified in sections 4, 5 and 6 of this act. (106 v. 286, § 9.)

Section 4000-25. (Power in acquisition and appropriation of property.) The board of rapid transit commissioners is hereby given power to acquire by purchase or to appropriate, enter upon and hold any real estate or easement, partial or otherwise, therein, thereon, thereunder, or thereover, or any interests therein, both within and without the limits of the municipality, which it deems necessary for the purposes above specified; such power to be exercised in the manner provided by law for the acquisition and appropriation of property by municipal corporations. The board of rapid transit commissioners shall have the same powers and rights to cross and occupy streets and highways as are provided by law for street, suburban or interurban electric railways, and to receive from city, township, or county officers grants of the right to use or occupy streets and other public highway which officers are empowered to donate said grants to said board. The board shall have the power to order the removal of pipes, sewers, conduits, poles and other structures that are in the way of construction authorized by this act, and to temporarily suspend street car traffic. The cost of changing sewers and water pipes shall be included as part of the cost of construction, and the said board shall have the right to enter upon lands or buildings for examination and surveys prior to appropriation proceedings, if any, therefor. (106 v. 286, § 10.)

Section 4000-26. (Disposition of incomes.) All rentals, payments and fees of every description and all other income, earnings or revenues, received from all persons, firms and corporations for the use of said depot terminals and railways, shall be kept in a separate and distinct fund, and after paying the expenses of the municipal corporation for the maintenance, conducting and managing said depots, terminals and railways, including the setting aside of a reasonable sum annually for depreciation to be applied to the repair or replacement of any portion of said work, from the remainder of said receipts there shall annually be paid into the sinking fund of the city such sum or sums as are necessary for the payment of accruing interest on the bonds, if any, issued and outstanding for the construction of such rapid transit system, and for providing a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity; and to the extent that said remainder shall not be sufficient for the said payment of the interest on said bonds and for the bonds issued during construction and for the said accumulation of a sinking fund sufficient for payment thereof at maturity, the municipal corporation shall annually levy a tax sufficient for such purposes, and said taxes for bonds issued by vote of the people shall not be subject to any of the limitations provided by law for maximum tax rates on property in the municipal corporation, except the combined maximum rate fixed in section 5649-5b of the General Code and in addition thereto, one-half mill may be levied.

The surplus in any year above said expenses, depreciation charges, interest and sinking fund charges, shall up to the amount necessary to equal said deficiencies of previous years, be paid into the sinking fund of said city until the amounts paid into the sinking fund from the said revenues shall equal the total accrued interest and sinking fund charges on said bonds, and any amounts thus paid in on account of such past deficiencies, may be applied to interest or sinking fund charges on any indebtedness of said city. Any surplus above said expenses, depreciation charges, current interest and sinking fund charges and reimbursement of past deficiencies of interest and sinking fund charges, may be used for the reconstruction of, improvement of, additions to, or extensions of such depots, terminal and railway equipment. (106 v. 286, § 11.)

Section 4000-27. (Power to lease depots, terminals, etc.; submission of question.) Said board of rapid transit commissioners may grant to any corporation organized for street railway or interurban railroad purposes the right to operate by lease or otherwise such depots, terminals and railways upon such terms and conditions as said board shall be authorized by ordinance to agree upon with such corporation, subject to the approval of a majority of the electors of the municipal corporation voting thereon. Said board shall certify said lease or agreement to the board of deputy state supervisors of election of the county, and said board of deputy state supervisors shall then submit the question of the approval of said lease or agreement to the qualified electors of the city at either a special or general election as the ordinance may specify. Thirty days' notice of the election shall be given in one or more of the newspapers printed in the municipality once a week for four consecutive weeks prior to the time of holding said election as heretofore specified, setting forth the terms of said lease or agreement and the time of holding the election. On the approval by a majority of the voters voting at such election said corporation is invested with the power to operate such depots, terminals and railways as provided in said lease or agreement, and corporations organized under the laws of Ohio for street railway or interurban railroad purposes are hereby invested with power to lease and operate such depots, terminals and railways. (106 v. 286, § 12.)

Section 4000-28. (Section or provision held invalid shall not affect any other part.) Should any section or provision of this act be decided by the courts to be invalid, the same shall not affect the validity of the act as a whole or any part thereof, other than the part so decided to be invalid, and all acts of said board of rapid transit commissioners shall be authorized or approved by ordinance as may be required by the constitution of Ohio. (106 v. 286, § 13.)

In making up the sum of such debts owing, there shall not be taken into account an obligation to a mutual insurance company, nor an unpaid subscription to the capital stock of a joint stock company, nor a subscription for a religious, scientific, literary, or charitable purpose; nor an acknowledgement of indebtedness, unless founded on some consideration actually received, and believed at the time of making such acknowledgment to be a full consideration therefor; nor an acknowledgment made for the purpose of diminishing the amount of credits to be listed for taxation; nor a greater amount or portion of a liability as surety, than the person required to make the statement of such credits believes that such surety is in equity bound, and will be compelled to pay, or to contribute, in case there are no securities, nor any tax, fee or assessment due or to become due to the Government of the United States or to the state of Ohio, or to any political subdivision thereof. Pensions receivable from the United States shall not be held to be credits; and no person shall be required to take into account in making up the amount of credits, a greater portion of any credits than he believes will be received or can be collected, or a greater portion of an obligation given to secure the payment of rent than the amount that has accrued on any lease and remains unpaid. (110 v. 23; R. S. Sec. 2730; 56 v. 175, § 1 § 2); 71 v. 96, § 78; 75 v. 436, § 1; 76 v. 28, § 1; S. & C. 1439; 95 v. 533.)

Section 5348-2. (Transfer or delivery of shares, stocks, deposits, etc., not allowed without consent of tax commission; liability for tax.) No corporation organized or existing under the laws of this state, shall transfer on its books or issue a new certificate for any share or shares of its capital stock belonging to or standing in the name of a decedent or in trust for a decedent, or belonging to or standing in the joint names of a decedent and one or more persons, without the written consent of the tax commission of Ohio. No safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, person or persons, having in possession or in control or custody, in whole or in part, securities, deposits, assets or property belonging to or standing in the name of a decedent, or belonging to or standing in the joint names of a decedent and one or more persons, including the shares of the capital stock of, or other interest in, such safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, shall deliver or transfer the same to any person whatsoever whether in a representative capacity or not, or to the survivor or survivors when held in the joint names of a decedent and one or more persons, without retaining a sufficient portion or amount thereof to pay any taxes or interest which would thereafter be assessed thereon under this subdivision of this chapter, and unless notice of the time and place of such delivery or transfer be served upon the tax commission of Ohio and the county auditor at least ten days prior to such delivery or transfer; but the tax commission of Ohio may consent in writing to such delivery or transfer, and such consent shall relieve said safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, person or persons, from the obligation to give such notice or to retain such portion. The tax commission or the county auditor, personally or by representatives, may examine such securities, deposits or other assets at the time of such delivery or otherwise. Failure to comply with the provisions of this section shall render such safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, person or persons, liable for the amount of the taxes and interest due under this subdivision of this chapter on the succession to such securities, deposits, assets or property. Such liability may be enforced by action brought by the county treasurer in the name of the state in any court of competent jurisdiction. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 572.)

This section does not affect the validity of payments to a survivor on joint deposit, but the bank or building and loan association making such payment without consent of the tax commission remains liable for the tax. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1271; 11 Dept. Rep. 169.

A joint deposit in the name of a decedent and one or more other persons does not create a joint estate in the nominal depositors. Presumably, the interests of the depositors are equal, in the absence of agreement or declaration of trust on the subject. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 473. See also § 710-120.

Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 203.

Stock in a railroad company consolidated under the laws of Ohio and other states is taxable. The probate court of the county in which the general office of the county is located, or of any county in Ohio in which the company has property has jurisdiction to determine the tax. capital stock, or delivery or transfer of securities, deposits, assets or property, was made in good faith, without knowledge of the death of the decedent and without knowledge of circumstances sufficient to place the defendant on inquiry. (108 (Pt. 2) v. 1197.)

A corporation which, without knowledge of the facts, transfers on its books, stock, the certificate for which, indorsed in blank by the record owner, is presented for transfer after the death of the record owner, is not liable for the tax, if it used due care, although in fact the certificate was transferred in contemplation of death. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1491.

(R. S. Sec. 2735; April 8, 1865, 62 v. 105, § 4.)

No person shall be required to list for taxation any shares of the capital stock of a company, the capital stock of which is taxed in the name of such company, or any mortgage hereafter executed and recorded, or the debt secured thereby, on real estate located and taxed within the state; but such mortgage, except it be a mortgage given to correct an error in a mortgage previously recorded, or to indemnify the guarantee as surety upon an unliquidated liability, shall be duly recorded in the manner provided by law and a special registration fee of one-half of one per centum on the amount secured by such mortgage in addition to the fee fixed by law for recording such instruments, shall be paid to the county recorder upon presentation of such mortgage for record; and the county recorder shall pay on the first of each month to the county treasurer to the credit of the undivided tax fund the sum collected by him during the preceding month under the provisions hereof; and no mortgage of real property subject to the registration fee imposed by the provisions of this act shall be recorded unless and until the fee for the registration thereof has first been paid in accordance with the provisions of this act. Section 5387-1. (When new corporation business listed.)

When a company is incorporated after the first day of January and prior to the first day of July in any year, and the personal property employed in such business has not been previously listed for taxation for the then current year, the president, secretary or principal accounting officer of such corporation shall list for taxation with the auditor of the county wherein located the probable average value of the personal property by him intended to be employed until January 1st thereafter. (110 v. 385.)

Section 5404. (Corporation returns.) The president, secretary, and principal accounting officer of every incorporated company, except banking or other corporations whose taxation is specifically provided for, for whatever purpose they may have been created, whether incorporated by a law of this state or not, shall list for taxation, verified by the oath of the person so listing, all the personal property thereof, and all real estate necessary to the daily operations of the company, moneys and credits of such company or corporation within the state, at the true value in money. (April 12, 1911, 102 v. 61; April 8, 1876, 73 v. 139, § 16; R. S. Sec. 2744.)

All the listing and valuation of the personal property, moneys, credits, investments in stocks, bonds, joint stock companies, or otherwise, of incorporated companies, and all the averages of the stocks of merchandise and material used as a manufacturer, of such incorporated companies, shall be listed, valued and ascertained as of the first day of January, annually.

All such listing together with all supplementary forms and all information necessary in the proper fixing of such values for taxation, shall be filed with the county auditor on or before the first day of March, annually. (110 v. 385; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 132.)

Property of an individual, in possession of a corporation as his agent, should be returned as of the day preceding the second Monday in April. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1161.

Section 5405. (Returns. Valuation by county auditor. Apportionment.) Return shall be made to the several auditors of the respective counties where such property is situated, together with a statement of the amount thereof which is situated in each township, village, city, or taxing district therein. Upon receiving such returns, the auditor shall ascertain and determine the value of the property of such companies, and deduct from the aggregate sum so found of each, the value as assessed for taxation of any real estate included in the return. The value of the property of each of such companies, after so deducting the value of all the real estate included in the return, shall be apportioned by the auditor to such cities, villages, townships, or taxing districts, pro rata, in proportion to the value of the real estate and fixed property included in the return, in each of such cities, villages, townships, or taxing districts. The auditor shall place such apportioned valuation on the tax duplicate and taxes shall be levied and collected thereon at the same rate and in the same manner that taxes are levied and collected on other personal property in such township, village, city or taxing district. (April 12, 1911, 102 v. 61; April 8, 1876, 73 v. 139, § 16; R. S. Sec. 2744.)

Corporation returns are made under § 5404 and bank returns under § 5411. In both cases real estate must be included in the return, and the deductions for real estate values are made by the auditor.

Rep.. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 1352.

Moneys, credits and investments of an Ohio corporation are "situated" in the taxing district wherein the corporation has its principal place of business. "Fixed property" probably includes all tangible personal property except that which is habitually moved about, such as the rolling stock of a railroad. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 1139.

The personal property of a corporation should be valued at its true value in money without reference to the use made of it. Taking the market value of the shares of the stock of the company and deducting the value of the real estate is not a proper method of valuation. Nor is it proper to fix the value of the corporate property by capitalizing its net earnings. Resort Co. v. Nuhn, 15 N. P. n. s. 449 (1913); aff'd by court of appeals, 12 O. L. R. 33.

Section 5406. (Duty of county auditor.) The auditor of each county, on or before the first Monday of May, annually, shall furnish the president, secretary, principal accounting officer, or agent as provided in the next two preceding sections, the necessary blanks for the purpose of making such returns, but neglect or failure on the part of the county auditor to furnish such blanks shall not excuse such president, secretary, accountant, or agent, from making the returns within the time specified herein. If the county auditor to whom returns are made is of the opinion that false or incorrect valuations have been made, that the property of the corporation or association has not been listed at its full value, or that it has not been listed in the location where it properly belongs, or if no return has been made to the county auditor, he must have the property valued and assessed. This section and the next preceding section shall not tax any stock or interest held by the state in a joint stock company. (R. S. Sec. 2744; April 8, 1876, 73 v. 139, § 16.)

BANKS AND BANKERS.

Section 5407. ("Bank" and "bankers" defined.) A company, association, or person, not incorporated under a law of this state or of the United States, for banking purposes, who keeps an office or other place of business, and engages in the business of lending money, receiving money on deposit, buying and selling bullion, bills of exchange, notes, bonds, stocks, or other evidences of indebtedness, with a view to profit, is a bank, or banker, within the meaning of this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 2758; 64 v. 204, § 12; S. & S. 765.)

See Robinson v. Ward, 13 O. S. 293.

A society for savings incorporated under a special charter (see § 9812 et seq.), having no capital stock is not taxable under this chapter. Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 645.

A firm or corporation engaged in a general merchandising business, not incorporated for banking purposes, which accepts deposits subject to check and pays interest thereon, but does not loan money or buy and sell evidences of indebtedness, is not a bank within the meaning of this section and is not required to make returns under this chapter.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 662.

Section 5408. (Shares or capital of banks, incorporated or unincorporated.) All the shares of the stockholders in an incorporated bank or banking association, located in this state, incorporated or organized under the laws of the state or of the United States, and all the shares of the stockholders in an unincorporated bank, located in this state, the capital stock of which is divided into shares held by the owners of such bank, and the capital employed, or the property representing it, in an unincorporated bank the capital stock of which is not divided into shares, located in this state, shall be listed at the true value in money, and taxed only in the city, ward, or village where such bank is located. (R. S. Sec. 2762; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 279; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 348; April 16, 1867, 64 v. 204, § 1.)

National bank stock. The state has power to tax shares in national banks located in Ohio, subject to the limitations of U. S. Rev. Stats. § 5219, that such tax shall not exceed the rate imposed upon other moneyed capital of individuals, nor that imposed upon shares in state banks.

Frazer v. Siebern, 16 O. S. 614 (1866).

See Lander v. Mercantile N. B., 186 U. S. 458 (1902).

The restriction of § 5219 R. S. U. S. requires that both the tax rate and the assessed value of shares shall not be greater than on moneyed capital of individuals.

Cleveland Trust Co. v. Lander, 62 O. S. 266 (1900); aff'd, 184 U. S. 111.

Where a tax upon national bank shares exceeds the restrictions of § 5219 R. S. U. S. its collection will be enjoined only upon payment of a sum which is a fair equivalent for the tax on state banks.

Frazer v. Siebern, 16 O. S. 614 (1866).

Where other moneyed capital is systematically and intentionally valued for taxation far below its true value while national bank shares are assessed at their true value, the state taxing authorities may be enjoined, in federal court, upon tender of an amount equal to the tax on other property, from collecting the excess, although the state statutes require all property to be taxed at its true value.

Where officers of a national bank misappropriated assets of the bank to such an extent that the shares of its stock were worthless, but the cashier made a fraudulent return under § 5411 showing that the shares were of value and paid the tax based thereon, the tax commission is authorized to remit such taxes. A finding of the comptroller of the currency showing the actual value of the shares is a quasi-judicial finding which can not be collaterally attacked. The action of the cashier in making the return and paying the tax was vitiated by fraud and illegal. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 532.

Section 5410. (Names of stockholders and shares of each.) There shall be kept in the office at all times where the business of such bank or banking association is transacted, a full and correct list of the names and residences of the stockholders therein, and the number of shares held by each, which at all times during business hours shall be open to the inspection of all officers who are or may be authorized to list or assess the value of such shares for taxation. Section 5412. (Auditor to fix value of bank shares or property.) Upon receiving such report the county auditor shall fix the total value of the shares of such banks, and the value of the property representing the capital employed by unincorporated banks, the capital stock of which is not divided into shares, each, according to their true value in money, and deduct from the aggregate sum so found, of each, the value of the real estate included in the statement of resources as it stands on the duplicate. Thereupon he shall make and transmit to the annual state board of equalization for banks a copy of the report so made by the cashier, manager or owner with the valuation of such shares or property representing capital employed as so fixed by the auditor. (R. S. Sec. 2766; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 279; March 9, 1883, 80 v. 54; April 13, 1880, 77 v. 191; April 12, 1877, 74 v. 88, § 2; April 16, 1867, 64 v. 204, § 5.)

Market value of the shares is not the proper rule of valuation. The corporate franchise and good will of a bank is not property for taxation. Doerfler v. Commission, 21 N. P. n. s. 361 (1918).

Where real estate is valued on the tax duplicate at a larger amount than on the books of the bank, the auditor or tax commission is justified in adding to the return the amount in which the tax value exceeds the book value. Bank v. Searles, 9 Ohio App. 76; 27 O. C. A. 407; 30 C. D. 179 (1917).

If a bank fails to make and furnish to the county auditor the statement required, within the time herein fixed, the auditor shall examine the books of the bank; and also any officer or agent thereof under oath, with such other persons as he deems proper, and make such statement. The auditor shall have like powers, and the probate judge of the county shall exercise like powers, and perform like duties in aid of the auditor in the performance of his duties under this section, as are authorized by law in cases where the county auditor is informed, or has reason to believe, that any person has failed to make a return, or has made a false return for taxation. An increase in the amount of a return, made as the result of a clerical error, may be enjoined. Bank v. Hopkins, 17 N. P. n. s. 55 (1915).

Section 5414. (Penalty for making false return.) A bank officer who fails to make out and furnish to the county auditor the return required by section fifty-four hundred and eleven, or wilfully makes a false statement in such return, shall forfeit not more than one hundred dollars together with the costs and other expenses incurred by the auditor or other proper officer in obtaining such statement. (R. S. Sec. 2769; April 16, 1867, 64 v. 204, § 9.)

(June 2, 1911, 102 v. 230, § 40; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 404, 406, 409, §§ 28, 29, 30, 39, 46; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 324; R. S. Secs. 2777, 2780-7, 2780-12, 2780-17; April 15, 1902, 95 v. 136; March 19, 1896, 92 v. 79.)

Under this section an interurban railroad is classed as a street railroad.

Electric St. R. Co. v. Lohe, 68 O. S. 110 (1903).

Definitions in public utilities commission act. §§ 614-2, 501.

Railroad or interurban railroad company. Whether a railroad is a commercial or an interurban road is determined, not exclusively by its charter, but from its method of operation and the character of its business.

Railway v. Poland, 10 N. P. n. s. 617; 21 L. D. 630 (C. P. 1910); aff'd, no rep., 88 O. S. 596.

See note to § 9117.

"Interurban service" consists of cars or trains run more frequently than through passenger trains, and making frequent stops. Railway v. Commission, 92 O. S. 9 (1915).

A commercial railroad does not become an interurban railway under § 5416 by installing electric passenger cars and operating with frequent stops, when train service is no more frequent than it was prior to electrification. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 865.

Electric light company. A corporation organized for the sole purpose of furnishing electric current, heat and water, to a group of manufacturing plants, which does not use streets, nor exercise the power of eminent domain, nor serve the general public, its stock being owned by the factories in proportion to the service supplied to each, is not a public utility. It is liable for a franchise tax based on its capital stock, but not for an excise tax. State v. Factory Power Co., 16 N. P. n. s. 545 (1915). For opinion of the attorney general to the contrary, see Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 578.

A manufacturing company which, as an incident to its business, furnishes electric current to consumers for light, heat or power purposes, is a public utility and must make reports and pay excise taxes on its gross receipts. It is not required to make reports under the franchise tax law (§ 5495 et seq.). Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 545.

A building company which furnishes electricity to tenants for light, heat or power purposes, making a separate charge therefor, is a public utility. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 575.

But a company having no plant, which purchases electric current for its stockholders, each of whom pays at cost for the current used by him, is not a public utility. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 578.

Pipe line company. The power to own and operate pipe lines can not be joined in the articles of incorporation of a company formed to bore for oil, gas, etc.

Rep. of Atty. Gen., 1909-10, p. 147.

Rep. of Atty. Gen., 1908, p. 69-79.

A corporation engaged in drilling and operating gas wells, which sells part of its gas to a manufacturer, is not a pipe line company merely by reason of the fact that it owns and uses the pipe through which such gas passes.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 630.

A corporation, engaged only in producing oil, is not a public utility by reason of the fact that it owns a pipe line through which its product is transmitted. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 658.

A company which buys oil from producers and transports and sells it to refiners is a pipe line company. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, pp. 658, 670; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 813.

But a refinery which produces and also buys oil from producers, and transports it in pipes to its refinery, making no charge for transportation and selling none from the line, is not a pipe line company. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 673.

A foreign pipe line company is not liable for franchise taxes under § 5495 et seq. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 670.

Natural gas company. A corporation engaged in drilling and operating gas wells which sells a part of its gas to a manufacturing company is a natural gas company under this section, as it sells to a "consumer" for "power purposes."

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 630.

A corporation which is mainly engaged in producing and transporting natural gas and selling it to distributing companies and also, to some extent, to consumers, is a natural gas company. Public Utilities Commission v. Landon, 249 U. S. 236; 17 O. L. R. 8 (1919); Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 901.

Telephone company. A mutual or assessment telephone system is said to be a public utility under the tax commission act. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, pp. 649, 1223.

Water transportation company. A company operating Ohio River steamers to an amusement park, having the exclusive privilege of landing and selling tickets good for transportation and admission to the park (the park being operated by another party) is a water transportation company. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 916.

Freight line company. Although freight line companies are not expressly excepted by § 5420, no method of apportionment of value is provided for such companies in § 5422, and they are not required to report their gross receipts. They are subject to a tax on their rolling stock in Ohio by §§ 5462 and 5468. The tax commission assesses only the rolling stock of such companies. Other property is returned for taxation locally. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 610.

Messenger company. An association of individuals engaged in the special delivery business, handling parcels and packages from stores and factories, furnishing guides to strangers, delivering letters and packages in connection with a taxicab and auto livery business is a messenger company under this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 644.

Section 5417. ("Gross receipts" defined.) The term "gross receipts" shall be held to mean and include the entire receipts for business done by any person or persons, firm or firms, co-partnership or voluntary association, joint stock association, company or corporation, wherever organized or incorporated, from the operation of any public utility, or incidental thereto or in connection therewith. The gross receipts for business done by an incorporated company, engaged in the operation of a public utility, shall be held to mean and include the entire receipts for business done by such company under the exercise of its corporate powers, whether from the operation of the public utility itself or from any other business done whatsoever. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 232, § 41.)

Section 5418. ("Gross earnings" defined.) The term "gross earnings" shall be held to mean and include the entire earnings for business done by any person or persons, firm or firms, co-partnership or voluntary association, joint stock association, company or corporation, wherever organized or incorporated, from the operation of any public utility, or incidental thereto, or in connection therewith. The gross earnings for business done by an incorporated company, engaged in the operation of a public utility, shall be held to mean and include the entire earnings for business done by such company under the exercise of its corporate powers, whether from the operation of the public utility itself or from any other business done whatsoever. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 232, § 42.)

Rentals paid by an interurban railway to a street railway can not be deducted by the interurban company from its gross receipts, whether the rentals are in the form of a lump sum, or are arrived at by computations based on passenger or freight traffic. Traction Co. v. State, 94 O. S. 24 (1916).

A manufacturing company which engages in electric lighting or other public utility business, although only as an incident to its principal business, should report its gross receipts from all intra-state business. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 546.

A foreign railroad company, which does no intra-state transportation business, is not liable for excise taxes on rental receipts from property acquired and held with a view to use as a right of way, but not actually so used. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 498.

Section 5419. (Definitions.) The property owned or operated by a public utility, required to make return to the commission of its property to be assessed for taxation by the commission, shall be deemed and held to include such utility's plant or plants and all real estate necessary to the daily operations of the public utility and all other property, moneys and credits owned or operated, or both, by it wholly or in part within this state, used in connection with or as incidental to the operation of the public utility, whether the same be held in common or by the individuals operating such public utility. In the case of incorporated companies, all the real estate, personal property, moneys and credits owned and held by such corporation within this state in the exercise of its corporate powers, or as incidental thereto, whether such property, or any portion thereof, is used in connection with such public utility business or not, shall be conclusively deemed and held to be the property of such public utility. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 232, § 43.)

The scheme of taxation of the property of a public utility adopted by this act is termed "the unit rule or rule of entirety," and is similar to the plan previously in effect applying to express, telegraph and telephone companies (R. S. §§ 2777 to 2780), upheld in State v. Jones, 51 O. S. 492; Express Co. v. Auditor, 165 U. S. 194 and 166 U. S. 183.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 603.

Section 5420. (Exceptions.) Each public utility, as defined in this act, except express, telegraph and telephone companies, shall annually, on or before the first day of March, make and deliver to the tax commission of Ohio, in such form as the commission may prescribe, a statement, with respect to such utility's plant or plants and all property owned or operated, or both, by it wholly or in part within this state. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 233, § 44.)

A railroad company which runs trains into the state for interstate business only, and which does no intra-state business, is not liable for excise or franchise taxes. Its rolling stock, however, is taxable as property and, for the assessment thereof, the company should make a report as a public utility. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1358.

Section 5421. (Statement under oath.) Such statement shall be signed and sworn to under the oath of the person constituting such public utility, if a person or under the oath of the president, secretary, treasurer, superintendent or principal accounting officer or person of such firm, association or corporation, if a firm, association or corporation. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 233, § 45.)

Section 5422. (Shall contain, what. Real estate, value and separate statement. Personal property inventory and statement. Property outside of state. Bonded indebtedness. Statement by street and other railroad companies. Pipe line, gas and other companies.) Such statement shall contain:

2. The nature of the company, whether a person or persons, firm, association or corporation, and under the laws of what state or country organized.
3. The location of its principal office.

8. A detailed statement of the real estate owned by the company in this state, where situated, and the value thereof as assessed for taxation, making separate statements of that part used in connection with the daily operations of the company, and that part used otherwise, if any such there be.

9. An inventory of the personal property, including moneys, investments and credits, owned by the company, in this state, on the first day of the month of January in which the statement is made, where situated, and the value thereof, making separate statements of that part used in connection with the daily operations of the company, and that part used otherwise if any such there be.

10. The total value of the real estate owned by the company and situated outside of this state, making separate statements of that part used in connection with the daily operations of the company, and that part used otherwise if any such there be.

11. The total value of the personal property owned by the company and situated outside of this state, making separate statements of that part used in connection with the daily operations of the company, and that part used otherwise if any such there be.

12. The total amount of bonded indebtedness and of indebtedness not bonded; the gross receipts for the preceding calendar year from any and all sources, and the gross expenditures for the preceding calendar year.

13. In the case of street, suburban or interurban railroad companies, and railroad companies, such statements shall also give:

(a) The whole length of their lines and the length of so much of their line as is without and is within this state, including branches in and out of the state, which shall include lines and branches such companies control and use under lease or otherwise.

(b) The railway track in each county in the state, through which it runs; giving the whole number of miles of road in the county, including the track and its branches and side and second tracks, switches, and turnouts therein and the true and actual value per mile of such railway in each county, stating the valuation of main track, second or other main tracks, branches, sidings, switches and turnouts, separately.

(c) Such statement as to character, classes, number, amounts, values, locations, ownership or control and use of rolling stock, as the commission may require.

(d) The depots, station houses, section houses, freight houses, machine and repair shops and machinery therein, and all other buildings, structures and appendages connected thereto or used therewith, including tool houses, and the tools usually kept therein, together with telegraph and telephone lines owned or used, and the true and actual value of all buildings and structures, and all such machinery, tools and appendages, including such telegraph and telephone lines; and the true and actual value thereof in each county in this state in which it is located.

(e) The gross earnings for the year, including earnings from telegraph lines, which shall be stated separately, on the whole length of the road, including the branches thereof, in and out of the state, and also such earnings within this state on way freight and passengers.

14. In case of pipe line, gas, natural gas, waterworks and heating or cooling companies, such statement shall also show:

(a) The number of miles of pipe line owned, leased or operated within this state, the size or sizes of the pipe composing such line, and the material of which such pipe is made;

(d) Its pumping stations, machine and repair shops and machinery therein, tanks, storage tanks and all other buildings, structures and appendages connected or used therewith, including telegraph and telephone lines and wires, and the true and actual value of all such stations, shops, tanks, buildings, structures, machinery and appendages and of such telegraph and telephone lines, and the true and actual value thereof in each county in this state in which it is located; and the number and value of all tank cars, tanks, barges, boats and barrels. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 233, § 46; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 414, § 72.)

Section 5423. (Assessment; when made.) On the second Monday of June of each year, the commission shall ascertain and assess, at its true value in money, all the property in this state of each such public utility, subject to the provisions of this act, other than express, telegraph and telephone companies. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 235, § 47; 101 v. 417, § 73.)

Section 5424. (How assessment shall be made.) In determining the value of the property of each such public utility to be assessed and taxed within the state, the commission shall be guided by the value of the property as determined by the information contained in the sworn statements made by the public utility to the commission and such other evidence and rules as will enable it to arrive at the true value in money of the entire property of such public utility within this state, in the proportion which the value of such property bears to the value of the entire property of such public utility. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 235, § 48; 101 v. 417, § 73.)

Section 5425. (Property to be assessed.) The property of such public utilities to be so assessed by the commission shall be all the property thereof, as defined in section forty-three (G. C. § 5419) of this act. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 235, § 49; 101 v. 417, § 73.)

Section 5426. (Hearing.) Before the assessment of such property each of such public utilities shall have the right, upon written application, to appear before the commission and to be heard in the matter of the valuation of its property for taxation. (102 v. 235, § 50; 101 v. 417, § 74.)

Section 5427. (Corrections.) Between the date herein fixed for the assessment of the property of any such public utility for taxation by the commission, and the date herein fixed for the certification by it of the apportioned value to the county, or to the several counties as herein provided, the commission may, on the application of such public utility or any person interested therein, or on its own motion, correct the assessment or valuation of its property in such manner as will in its judgment make the valuation thereof just and equal. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 235, § 51; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 417, § 74.)

This act does not divest county auditors of the power to correct assessments made by them prior to the passage of the act, and before appointment of the tax commission.

Railway v. Edmondson, 13 N. P. n. s. 377; 57 Bull 434; 23 L. D. 33 (C. P. 1912).

Section 5428. (Deductions.) The commission shall deduct from the total value of the property of each of such public utilities in this state, as assessed by it, the value of the real property owned by such public utilities, if any there be, as otherwise assessed for taxation in this state, and shall justly and equitably equalize the relative values thereof. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 236, § 52; 101 v. 417, § 74.)

For railroads and interurban railways, the deductions include only real estate not used in daily running operations. For other public utilities, the deductions include all real estate. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1054.

Section 5429. (Valuation of railroad properties.) The commission shall ascertain all of the personal property, roadbed, stations, power houses, poles, wires, water and wood stations and real estate necessary to the daily running operations of the road, moneys and credits of each railroad company and each suburban or interurban railroad company, having any line, or road, or part thereof in this state and the undivided profits, reserved or contingent fund of the company, whether in moneys, credits, or in any manner invested, and the actual value thereof in money, and also locomotives, motors and cars not belonging to the company, but hired for its use or run under its control on its road by a sleeping car company or other company. Such rolling stock not belonging to it, but under its control, may be returned by such public utility separate from its own property, and if so returned the commission shall fix the valuation of such property separately, but must include the amount in the aggregate valuation. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 236, § 53; 101 v. 418, § 75; R. S. Sec. 2772; 64 v. 114, § 3.)

Personal property under this section includes the road bed, water stations, moneys, credits and undivided profits.

Lee v. Sturges, 46 O. S. 153, 166 (1889).

The "roadbed" and "real estate necessary to the daily running operations of the road" are by this section made personal property for taxation purposes.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345, 349; 17 L. D. 163 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, no rep., 77 O. S. 628.

The bridge of the Cincinnati Southern Railway which spans the Ohio River, together with the viaduct or trestle leading up to it, constitutes with the underlying ground, a part of the roadbed, and is property necessary to the daily operation of the road, and there being no additional charge to shippers or passengers on account of the use thereof, it should be taxed with the remainder of the road as a unit and "averaged" over the entire road.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345; 17 L. D. 163 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, 77 O. S. 628.

Side tracks, in daily use for loading and unloading of freight, and land purchased for the purpose of establishing a connection track with another railroad do not constitute real estate, structures or stationary personal property to be "localized" for taxation but should likewise be "averaged" for taxation over the entire road. After such property has been valued under this section, it can not again be taxed as omitted property, nor as property which has escaped taxation.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345; 17 L. D. 163 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, 77 O. S. 628.

Where a railroad of this state which terminated at low water mark on the Ohio River was leased to a company owning a railroad on the Kentucky side of the river, and connected by a bridge and an approach on the Ohio side owned by the lessee which extended back from low water mark, and an additional charge was made for freight and passengers crossing the bridge, it was held that the approach on the Ohio side was subject to taxation as a separate "structure" belonging to the lessee, although the roadbed, etc., to the low water mark had been averaged for taxation.

Cowan v. Aldridge, 114 Fed. 44; 14 O. F. D. 21 (C. C. A. 1902).

Taxation of terminals of railroad owned by a municipality.

See Railway v. Roth, 17 C. C. n. s. 562 (1913) reversing, 13 N. P. n. s. 633.

It is the duty of the tax commission, and not of county auditors, to value the real estate of railroads used in daily running operations. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1054.

Section 5430. (Apportionment.) The value of such property, moneys and credits of each such street, suburban and interurban railroad and railroad companies, as found and determined by the commission, shall be apportioned by the commission among the several counties through which the road, or any part thereof, runs, so that to each county and to each taxing district therein, shall be apportioned such part thereof as will equalize the relative value of the real estate, structures and stationary personal property of such company therein, in proportion to the whole value of the real estate, structures and stationary personal property of the company in this state; and so that the rolling stock, main track, roadbed, power houses, poles, wires, supplies, moneys and credits of the company shall be apportioned in like proportion that the length of the road in such county, bears to the entire length thereof in all the counties, and to each city, village and district or part thereof therein. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 236, § 54; 101 v. 418, § 77; R. S. Sec. 2774; 82 v. 160; R. S. 1880; 64 v. 58; 59 v. 88, § 5.)

This section is valid. A railroad passing through a taxing district created under the "one mile assessment pike law," is subject to taxation in such district, in the proportion fixed under this section.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345; 17 L. D. 163 (1906);
aff'd, 77 O. S. 628.

See State v. Jones, 51 O. S. 492, 508 (1894).

Construction of former act.

Wabash, etc., Ry. Co. v. Kelsey, 11 W. L. B. 234 (1884).

In entering for taxation the property of a railroad which lies partly within and partly without the state, sections 5445, 5423 and 5429, should govern and not this section or sec. 5431.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345; 17 L. D. 163 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, no rep., 77 O. S. 628.

Method of apportionment. See Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, pp. 1047, 1448; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1358.

Section 5431. (Apportionment.) If the line of such company is divided into separate divisions or branches, so much of the rolling stock thereof as belongs to or is used solely upon such divisions or branches shall be apportioned in like manner to the county, or counties, and to each taxing district therein, through which such branch or division runs. The commission shall certify to each such county auditor such apportionment. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 236, § 55; 101 v. 417, § 77; R. S. Sec. 2774; 82 v. 160; R. S. 1880; 64 v. 58; 59 v. 88, § 5.)

The phrase "belongs to . . . such division or branches" has reference to cases in which a division or branch is separately equipped.

Section 5432. (Annual statements of foreign insurance companies.) Every insurance company incorporated by the authority of another state or government, in its annual statement to the superintendent of insurance, shall set forth the gross amount of premiums received by it from policies covering risks within this state during the preceding calendar year, without deductions for commissions, return premiums, considerations paid for reinsurance or any deductions whatever. It shall also set forth therein in separate items, return premiums paid for cancellations and considerations received from other companies for reinsurances in this state during such year. If the superintendent of insurance has reason to suspect the correctness of such statement he may make an examination, at the expense of the state, of the books of such company or its agents for the purpose of verifying them. (R. S. Sec. 2745; March 9, 1909, 100 v. 67; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 401; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 290; March 27, 1894, 91 v. 91; April 19, 1893, 90 v. 201; April 12, 1889, 86 v. 274; April 11, 1888, 85 v. 183; R. S. 1880; April 8, 1876, 73 v. 138.)

“Gross amount of premiums received * * * without * * * any deductions whatever” contemplate the gross amount of premiums stipulated on the face of the policies in force in Ohio for the period specified in this section. State v. Tomlinson, 99 O. S. 233 (1919).

Assessment receipts are not “premiums”. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 643.

A casualty insurance company may not deduct estimated cost of inspection of boilers, etc., from premiums in making annual statement.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1908, p. 166.

This section does not apply to foreign mutual protective associations admitted to do business in Ohio under § 9435 et seq.; nor to assessment companies doing business under § 9445 et seq.; nor to fraternal benefit societies.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen., 343 (1900).

It does apply to mutual fire companies admitted under § 9559.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 343, 347 (1900).

Section 5433. (Payment of tax to treasurer of state.) If the superintendent of insurance finds such report to be correct, prior to the month of November in each year, he shall compute an amount of two and one-half per cent. of the balance of such gross amount after deducting such return premiums and considerations received for reinsurances as shown by the next preceding annual statement and charge them to such company as a tax upon the business done by it in this state for the period shown by such annual statement, which amount shall be paid by each such company to the treasurer of state in the month of November next succeeding. All taxes so collected shall be credited to the general revenue fund of the state. (106 v. 502; R. S. Sec. 2745; 100 v. 67; 97 v. 401; 95 v. 290; 91 v. 91; 90 v. 201; 86 v. 274; 85 v. 183; R. S. 1880; 73 v. 138.)

The treasurer of state is not authorized to make any reductions or accept any amount less than the amount certified to him under §§ 841 and 5433. But as these sections impose different taxes, he may accept payment of the tax assessed under one section and refuse an insufficient amount tendered under the other section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2354.

Taxes due under this section are subordinate to the claims of policy holders against the deposit of foreign companies, made in compliance with § 9510. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

The tax imposed by this section is a privilege or excise tax. Such tax does not relieve a corporation from the taxation of its property.

State v. Hahn, 50 O. S. 714 (1893).

Section 5433-1. (Term "gross premiums" defined for taxation purposes. What annual statement shall show.) For the purpose of computing franchise taxes, on gross premiums, to be paid under any law of this state, now or hereafter in force, by any mutual fire insurance company authorized to do business under the laws of this state, the amount of premium deposits received by such company upon any risk within this state in excess of the net cost of insurance to the insured, shall not be included where such excess deposit is returned ratably by such company to its policy holders; but the amount of gross or aggregate premiums received by any such company shall be deemed to be the balance remaining after deducting from the gross amount of premium deposits received or collected by it on risks in this state during the preceding calendar year ending on the thirty-first day of December, that portion of gross premium deposits returned by it to policy holders during said preceding calendar year, upon the cancellation or expiration of risks upon property situated within this state. In addition to the matters of return required to be made by insurance companies for the purpose of computing taxes, any such company shall also return for such purpose in its annual statement:

(a) The total gross amount of premium deposits received or collected by it on risks in this state during the preceding calendar year ending on the thirty-first day of December;

(b) The total amount of gross premium deposits returned to policy holders during such preceding calendar year upon cancellation and upon expiration of risks upon property situated within this state. (May 7, 1913, 103 v. 713; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 5434. (Failure to pay tax or make true statement.) If a company fails or refuses to pay such tax, after a statement thereof has been made and mailed to it, or if the statement required to be made by it under section fifty-four hundred and thirty-two is false or incorrect, the superintendent of insurance may revoke the license of such company doing business in this state. Upon failure or refusal to pay the tax, the superintendent of insurance shall certify that fact to the attorney-general, who shall thereupon begin an action against the company in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, or of any other county, as he may elect, to recover the amount of the tax. If such company ceases to do business in this state, it shall thereupon make report to the superintendent of insurance of the gross amount of premiums, not theretofore reported as provided in section fifty-four hundred and thirty-two, received by it from policies covering risks within this state, prior to such discontinuance of business after deducting return premiums and considerations received for reinsurance, not theretofore so reported, and shall forthwith pay to the superintendent of insurance a like per cent of tax thereon. (R. S. Sec. 2745; March 9, 1909, 100 v. 67; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 401; 95 v. 290; 91 v. 91; 90 v. 201; 86 v. 274; 85 v. 183; 73 v. 138.)

The license of an insurance company may be revoked although an action to recover the tax is pending.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

Injunction is the proper remedy to test the amount of the tax and to prevent a revocation of the license. Mandamus is not a proper remedy.

State v. Hahn, 50 O. S. 714 (1893).

Section 5435. (Penalty for non-payment of taxes.) If such company refuses to pay such tax, upon demand being made therefor, it shall be liable to the state of Ohio at the suit of the attorney-general, to a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars per month for each month it has failed, after demand therefor, to pay the tax. Service of process in such action shall be made according to the requirements of law governing suits brought against such companies by a policy holder therein. (R. S. Sec. 2745; 100 v. 66; 97 v. 401; 95 v. 290; 91 v. 91; 90 v. 201; 86 v. 274; 85 v. 183; 73 v. 139.)

Section 5436. (Retaliatory provision.) If the laws of another state, territory or nation authorize charges for the privilege of doing business therein, or taxes against insurance companies organized in this state, exceeding the charges provided in this chapter, like amounts shall be charged against all insurance companies of such state, territory or nation, doing business in this state, instead of the charges herein provided. (R. S. Sec. 2745; 100 v. 67; 97 v. 401; 95 v. 290; 91 v. 91; 90 v. 201; 86 v. 274; 85 v. 183; 73 v. 138.)

Section 5437. (Deposits with superintendent of insurance not taxable.) Neither insurance companies and associations, incorporated by the authority of another state or government, nor the superintendent of insurance, shall be required to make returns for taxation of the deposits of such companies or associations, made as required by law, with the superintendent of insurance, for the benefit and security of policy holders; nor be governed with respect to such deposits, by the provisions of law relating to the listing of personal property or to the making of tax returns by corporations. (R. S. Sec. 2745; March 9, 1909, 100 v. 67; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 401; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 290; March 27, 1894, 91 v. 91; 90 v. 201; 86 v. 274; 85 v. 183; R. S. 1880; 73 v. 138.)

Section 5438. (Where policy on Ohio property shall be placed.) An insurance company or agent legally authorized to transact insurance business in this state shall not write, place or cause to be written or placed, a policy, renewal of policy or contract for insurance upon property, situated or located in this state, except through a legally authorized agent in this state, who shall countersign all policies so issued and enter the payment of the premium upon his record. The writing, renewal, placing or causing to be written or placed of a policy of insurance, in any other manner or form is a violation of the law providing for the payment of taxes by foreign insurance companies doing business in the state of Ohio, as set out and provided in this chapter. Provided, that any authorized agent of an insurance company duly authorized to transact business in this state may procure the insurance of risks or parts of in other like companies duly authorized to transact business in this state, and may pay a commission thereon to such agent. But such insurance shall be consummated through a duly licensed resident agent only of the company taking the risk. Provided further, that any authorized agent of an insurance company duly authorized to transact business in this state may accept business from such insurance brokers only as duly authorized and licensed as provided in section 644-2, and such agent may pay a commission thereon to such broker. (107 v. 671; R. S. Sec. 2745a; 94 v. 299; 88 v. 487.)

Insurance against damage in transportation of goods transported from a place without the state to a place within the state need not be written or placed through an agent residing in Ohio.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen., 432 (1901).

Section 5439. (Reinsuring, etc., risk with unauthorized foreign company.) No fire insurance company or association, authorized to do business in this state, shall reinsure, dispose of, cede, pool, divide or in any manner or form, reduce a portion of its risk or liability, covering property wholly or partially located in this state, in or with a company, association, person or persons, incorporated or otherwise, not authorized by law to do the business of fire insurance in this state, or to reinsure, or assume as a reinsuring company or otherwise, in any manner or form, the whole or part of a risk or liability, covering property wholly or partially located in this state, of or for an insurance company, association, person or persons, incorporated or otherwise, not authorized by law to do business of fire insurance in this state. (R. S. Sec. 2745a; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 299; 88 v. 487.)

A contract of reinsurance of liability risks made in another state by a foreign company which has not made the deposit required by § 9510 is a violation of the Ohio laws for which its license to do other business in Ohio may be revoked. State v. Tomlinson, 101 O. S. 459 (1920).

Section 5440. (Annual report required of chief officer.) The superintendent of insurance of this state annually, and at such times as he may see fit, shall require the president or other chief officer of each company or association, to file a statement under oath, showing the names of each fire insurance company, or association, with whom or for whom liability for insurance on property located wholly or partially in this state has been reinsured, disposed of, ceded, pooled, divided, or in any manner or form reduced or increased. (R. S. Sec. 2745a; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 299; 88 v. 487.)

Section 5441. (When authority of insurance company revoked.) Any company violating any of the provisions of the next three preceding sections, upon notice and satisfactory proof thereof being made to the superintendent of insurance of this state, shall have its authority to transact business in this state revoked for a period of not less than ninety days. Any insurance company whose license to do business in this state is so revoked, shall not be again permitted to do business in this state, until all taxes and penalties due from it have been paid, together with any expense that may be due under the provisions of this chapter. Such company shall only be re-admitted to transact business in this state upon a complete re-compliance with the laws in regard to the admission of such company. (R. S. Sec. 2745b; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 488.)

Section 5442. (When superintendent to inspect company.) When notice of a violation of any provision of the next four preceding sections is received by the superintendent of insurance, he shall forthwith in person, or by deputy, visit the office of the company where such contract of insurance has been written or made, and demand an inspection of the books and records thereof. Any company refusing to exhibit its books and records for his inspection shall be guilty of violating such provisions, and the penalties provided by law shall forthwith be enforced against such company by the superintendent of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 2745c; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 242; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 488.)

Section 5443. (When foreign insurance company not admitted in state.) When application is made by a foreign insurance company to the superintendent of insurance of this state for admission to do business in this state, it shall not be admitted until it has paid all taxes and penalties assessed against it for the violation of the laws relating to insurance. If such foreign company has been reported to the superintendent of insurance as having violated any of the laws of this state relating to insurance, he shall make or cause to be made an examination of the books and records of the company seeking admission, and before granting license to do business in this state, he shall require it to pay into the office of the state treasurer a penalty equal to twenty per cent of all premiums written in this state, for the six years next preceding the date of request for admission, and upon which such taxes have not already been paid. (R. S. Sec. 2745c; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 242; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 488.)

Section 5444. (Expenses of inspection to be paid by company.) The superintendent of insurance shall receive, as compensation for services rendered under the provisions of this chapter, his necessary expenses. Such sum shall be charged against the company or companies so visited by him, and be collected by suit in any court of competent jurisdiction. (R. S. Sec. 2745d; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 488.)

Section 5445. (Tax Commission of Ohio. Appointment of commissioners; terms of office, etc. Vacancy.) A tax commission is hereby created, to be known as the tax commission of Ohio, to be composed of three commissioners, electors of the state, not more than two of whom at any time shall be of the same political party. On or before July first, 1910, the governor shall appoint such commissioners as follows: the term of one such appointee, who shall belong to the same political party as one of the other members appointed on such commission, if there be two appointees from the same political party, shall terminate on the second Monday of February, 1911; the term of the second such appointee shall terminate on the second Monday of February, 1912; the term of the third such appointee shall terminate on the second Monday of February, 1913. In February, 1911, and annually thereafter, in the month of February, there shall be appointed in the same manner, one commissioner for the term of three years, from the second Monday of February of such year. Each commissioner so appointed shall hold his office until a successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy on the commission shall be filled by appointment of the governor for the unexpired term. No appointee shall be qualified to act until after his appointment has been confirmed by the senate, unless appointed during a recess or adjournment of the senate. (May 10, 1910, 101 v. 399.)

There are two sections numbered § 5445.

See G. C. § 1465-1.

Section 1465-1 amends § 5445 only as to the terms of members of the commission. Section 5445 controls as to their appointment and confirmation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 5. See also § 1465-1a.

Section 5445. (Valuation when part of road in another state.) When a street, suburban or interurban railroad or railroad company has part of its road in this state and part thereof in another state or states, the commission shall take the entire value of such property, moneys and credits of such public utility so found and determined, in accordance with the provisions of this act, and divide it in the proportion the length of the road in this state bears to the whole length thereof, and determine the principal sum for the value of the road in this state accordingly, equalizing the relative value thereof in this state. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 237, § 56; 101 v. 419, § 78; G. C. § 5431 (original number); R. S. Sec. 2776; 59 v. 88, § 8.)

The words "such property" refer back to §§ 5423 and 5429.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345, 349; 17 L. D. 163 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, no rep., 77 O. S. 628.

Where property of a railroad lies partly within and partly without the state this section—§ 5423 and § 5429 should govern, and not §§ 5430, 5431.

Railway Co. v. Hynicka, 4 N. P. n. s. 345; 17 L. D. 163 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, no rep., 77 O. S. 628.

Section 5446. (Apportionment.) The commission shall apportion the value of the property of all other public utilities assessed according to the provisions of this act as follows:

(a) When all the property of such public utility is lo-ated within the limits of a county, the assessed value thereof shall be apportioned by the commission between the several taxing districts therein, in the proportion which the property located within the taxing district in question, bears to the entire value of the property of such public utility, as ascertained and valued as herein provided, so that, to each taxing district there shall be apportioned such part of the entire valuation as will fairly equalize the relative value of the property therein located, to the whole value thereof.

(b) When the property of such public utility is located in more than one county in this state, the assessed value thereof shall be apportioned by the commission between the several counties and the taxing districts therein, in the proportion which the property located therein, bears to the entire value of the property of such public utility as ascertained and valued, as herein provided, so that to each county and each taxing district therein, there shall be apportioned such part of the entire valuation as will fairly equalize the relative value of the property therein located to the whole value thereof.

(c) When the property of such public utility, required to be assessed by the provisions of this act, is located in more than one state, the assessed value thereof shall be apportioned by the commission in such manner as will fairly and equitably determine the principal sum for the value thereof in this state, and after ascertaining such value it shall be apportioned by the commission, as herein provided. (102 v. 237, § 57; 101 v. 419, § 79.)

Section 5447. (Certified to county auditors.) On the second Monday of July, the commission shall certify such apportionment to the auditor of each county in which any of the property of the public utility is located. (102 v. 237, § 58.)

Section 5448. (Entry on tax duplicate.) The county auditor shall place the apportioned value on the tax list and duplicate and taxes shall be levied and collected thereon, in the same manner and at the same rate, as other personal property in the taxing district in question. (102 v. 237, § 59.)

Section 5449. (Annual statement to tax commission.) On or before the first day of March, annually, every express, telegraph and telephone company, doing business in this state, under the oath of the person constituting such company, if a person, or under the oath of the president, secretary, treasurer, superintendent or chief officer in this state of such association or corporation, if an association or corporation, shall make and file with the commission a statement in such form as the commission may prescribe. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 141; 106 v. 571; 102 v. 238; § 60; 101 v. 404, § 31; R. S. Sec. 2778; 91 v. 220; 90 v. 330; 62 v. 174, § 1.)

Amendment of 106 v. 571. See Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 930.

The phrase "entire gross receipts" does not include receipts which pass through the hands of a company but do not belong to it. Where a local gas company obtains its supply from another company, under a contract by which the receipts are divided on a percentage bases, the local company may be assessed only on its proportion of the receipts.

State v. Coshocton Gas Co., 12 N. P. n. s. 570; 22 L. D. 412 (C. P. 1912); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 608. See Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 766; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 603.

But where gas, purchased by a local distributing company from a producing company, is paid for according to the volume of gas, and not on a percentage basis, all the receipts from local business constitute gross receipts of the distributing company. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1621.

Contract between a distributing company and a producing company construed to be a contract of agency and not of sale. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1756.

A pipe line company which receives, at the state line, gas produced in and transported from another state, is engaged in interstate commerce, and the receipts from such business need not be reported. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 600.

Where gas is produced by a gas company in another state and is transported through main line pipe to a point of common distribution to consumers, interstate commerce ceases at such point. If the gas is sold to another company at that point, the producing company is engaged in interstate commerce. But if the producing company distributes the same to consumers, its business is intrastate. A sale by the producing company to a single customer, without entering a common distribution point, is interstate commerce. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 625; Public Utilities Commission v. Landon, 249 U. S. 236; 17 O. L. R. 8 (1919).

Section 5475. (Valuation determined.) On the first Monday of September the commission shall ascertain and determine the entire gross receipts of each electric light, gas, natural gas pipe line, waterworks, messenger or signal, union depot, heating, cooling and water transportation company for business done within this state for the year then next preceding the first day of May, and of each express, telegraph and telephone company for business done within this state for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June, excluding therefrom, as to each of the companies named in this section, all receipts derived wholly from interstate business or business done for the federal government. (102 v. 245, § 86; 101 v. 411, § 55; R. S. Sec. 2780-19; 97 v. 326; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5476. (Gross receipts of electric light, gas, etc., companies.) The amount so ascertained by the commission, in such instance, for the purposes of this act, shall be the gross receipts of such electric light, gas, natural gas, pipe line, waterworks, express, telegraph, telephone, messenger or signal, union depot, heating, cooling or water transportation companies for business done within this state for such year. (102 v. 245, § 87; 101 v. 411, § 55; R. S. Sec. 2780-19; 97 v. 326; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5477. (Gross earnings.) On the first Monday of October, the commission shall ascertain and determine the gross earnings as herein provided, of each railroad company whose line is wholly or partially within this state, for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June next preceding, excluding therefrom all earnings derived wholly from interstate business or business done for the federal government. The amount so ascertained by the commission shall be the gross earnings of such railroad company for such year. (102 v. 245, § 88; 101 v. 412, § 56; R. S. Sec. 2780-19; 97 v. 326; 95 v. 138, 92 v. 79.)

Transportation of iron ore from lake ports to points within the state is interstate commerce, if it is a part of a continuous transit begun outside of the state. But if, when landed from a vessel, it is held by the owner for sale at the port, and the subsequent transportation is in pursuance of the sale, it is not interstate commerce. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2510.

Storage of ore at docks awaiting rail transportation does not make the transportation intra-state. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 682.

Interest on bank deposits probably does not constitute earnings from business done, nor does rental from real estate not used in operation if the railroad retains no control over the real estate. Rentals from advertising privileges constitute earnings, as also do receipts from the rental of joint facilities and earnings from meals served on dining cars. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 633.

Section 5478. (Gross earnings.) On the first Monday of October, the commission shall ascertain and determine the gross earnings, as herein provided, of each street, suburban and interurban railroad company whose line is wholly or partially within this state, for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June next preceding, excluding therefrom, as to each of the companies named in this section, all earnings derived wholly from interstate business or business done for the federal government. The amount so ascertained by the commission shall be the gross earnings of such street, suburban or interurban railroad company for such year. (102 v. 245, § 89; 101 v. 412, § 57; R. S. Sec. 2780-19; 97 v. 326; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5479. (Hearing.) Before the gross receipts or earnings of any such public utility are determined, any company, or person interested, shall have the right, on written application, to appear before the commission and be heard in the matter of such determination. (102 v. 246, § 90; 101 v. 412, § 58; R. S. Sec. 2780-19; 97 v. 326; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5480. (Corrections.) Between the dates herein fixed for the determination of the amount of the gross receipts or earnings of any such public utility, and the dates herein fixed for the certification to the auditor of state of such amount, as provided in this act, the commission may, on the application of any person or company interested, or on its own motion, review and correct its findings. (102 v. 246, § 91; 101 v. 412, § 59; R. S. Sec. 2780-19; 97 v. 326; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

After the expiration of the time limited by statute, the commission has no power to revise or change its findings. State v. Buckeye, etc., Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 401 (1913).

Section 5481. (Certified to auditor of state.) On the first Monday of October the commission shall certify to the auditor of state, the amount of the gross receipts so determined, of electric light, gas, natural gas, pipe line, waterworks, express, telegraph, telephone, messenger or signal, union depot, heating, cooling and water transportation companies, for the year covered by its annual report to the commission, as required in this act. (102 v. 246, § 92; 101 v. 412, § 60; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5482. (Gross earnings certified to auditor of state.) On the first Monday of November the commission shall certify to the auditor of state the amount of the gross earnings so determined of each street, suburban and inter-urban railroad and railroad company for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June next preceding. (102 v. 246, § 93; 101 v. 412, § 60; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5483. (Excise tax.) In the month of October, annually, the auditor of state shall charge, for collection from each electric light, gas, natural gas, waterworks, telephone, messenger or signal, union depot, heating, cooling and water transportation company, a sum in the nature of an excise tax, for the privilege of carrying on its intra-state business, to be computed on the amount so fixed and reported by the commission as the gross receipts of such company on its intra-state business for the year covered by its annual report to the commission, as required in this act, by taking one and two-tenths per cent. of all such gross receipts, which tax shall not be less than ten dollars in any case. (102 v. 246, § 94; 101 v. 412, § 61; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

State v. Factory Power Co., 16 N. P. n. s. 545 (1915).

Section 5484. (Excise tax on street, etc., railway companies.) In the month of November, the auditor of state, shall charge, for collection from each street, suburban and interurban railroad company, a sum in the nature of an excise tax, for the privilege of carrying on its intra-state business, to be computed on the amount so fixed and reported to him by the commission as the gross earnings of such company on its intra-state business for the year covered by its annual report to the commission, as required in this act, by taking one and two-tenths per cent. of all gross earnings, which tax shall not be less than ten dollars in any case. (102 v. 246, § 95; 101 v. 413, § 62; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5486. (Excise tax on railroads.) In the month of November, the auditor of state shall charge for collection, from each railroad company, a sum in the nature of an excise tax, for the privilege of carrying on its intra-state business, to be computed on the amount so fixed and reported to him by the commission, as the gross earnings of such company on its intra-state business for the year covered by its annual report to the commission, as required in this act, by taking four per cent. of all such gross earnings, which tax shall not be less than ten dollars in any case. (102 v. 247, § 97; 101 v. 413, § 64; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

The tax imposed by this section is an excise tax for the privilege of doing business. Being on intrastate business only it is not unconstitutional as imposing a burden on interstate commerce. (102 v. 247, § 98; 101 v. 413, § 65; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5488. (Collection by treasurer of state. Notice of taxes.) After determining the amount of taxes or fees payable to the state, as provided in this act, the auditor of state shall thereupon prepare proper duplicates and reports, and certify them to the treasurer of state for collection.

Upon the receipt of such duplicate, the treasurer shall notify each company charged with taxes or fees thereon, of the amount due from it. (102 v. 247, § 99; 101 v. 413, § 66; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5489. (Daily statement to auditor.) The treasurer of state shall proceed to collect such taxes and render a daily itemized statement to the auditor of state of the amount of taxes or fees collected and the name of the company from whom collected, under all provisions of this act. (102 v. 247, § 100; 101 v. 413, § 66; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5491. (Tax credited to general revenue fund. Penalty.) All taxes received by the treasurer of state, under the provisions of this act, shall be credited to the general revenue fund. If any public utility fails or refuses to pay, on or before the fifteenth day of December, the tax assessed against it, or if any corporation fails or refuses to pay, on or before the dates fixed, in this act, the fee charged against it, the treasurer of state shall certify the list of such utilities or corporations, so delinquent, to the auditor of state, who shall add to the tax or fee due, a penalty of fifteen per cent. thereon. The auditor of state shall thereupon forthwith prepare proper duplicates and reports of such taxes and fees and penalties thereon and certify them to the treasurer of state for collection. Thirty days after he receives such duplicates of delinquent taxes and fees and penalties thereon from the auditor of state, the treasurer of state shall certify to the commission a list of such public utilities and corporations as have failed to pay such taxes or fees and penalties thereon. (102 v. 248, § 102; 101 v. 414, § 68; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Such taxes or fees and penalties thereon may be recovered by an action in the name of the state, which may be brought in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, or of any county, in which such corporation has an office or place of business, or in which such public utility is doing business, or the line of any street, suburban or interurban railroad company or railroad company is located, and such court of common pleas shall have jurisdiction of such action regardless of the amount involved therein. The attorney general, on request of the commission, shall institute such action in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, or of any of such counties as the commission may direct. In any such action it shall be sufficient to allege that the tax, fee or penalty sought to be recovered, stands charged on the delinquent duplicate of the treasurer of state, and that the same has been unpaid for a period of thirty days after having been placed thereon. Sums recovered in any such action shall be paid into the state treasury, to the credit of the general revenue fund. (102 v. 248, § 103; 101 v. 414, § 68; R. S. Sec. 2780-21; 97 v. 329; 95 v. 138; 92 v. 79.)

Section 5493. (Effect when tax charged invalid.) In case the tax or fee herein authorized to be charged and collected against any class of corporations or public utilities, defined in this act, shall for any reason, be declared invalid, such invalidity shall in no wise affect the validity of the law, as applicable to any other class or classes of corporations or public utilities, defined in this act, nor shall the abrogation or repeal of any section or clause of this act be held to abrogate or repeal any other section or clause thereof. Section 5495. (Report of corporation for profit.) Annually during the month of May each domestic corporation incorporated for profit shall make a report in writing to the commission in such form as the commission may prescribe. For purposes of this act, domestic corporations shall be considered incorporated upon the filing of articles of incorporation. (109 v. 94; June 2, 1911, 102 v. 249, § 106; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 421, § 82; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 1.)

§ 5495 and succeeding sections, popularly known as the Willis law, were originally G. C. §§ 5522 to 5542. The fee or tax imposed is a franchise or privilege tax and not a tax on property.

Southern Gum Co. v. Laylin, 66 O. S. 578 (1902).

The law is a general revenue measure, under Section 10, Article 12 of the Ohio Constitution. Air-way Corporation v. Archer, 279 Fed. 878 (D. C. Ohio 1922).

Constitutionality. The state may impose a tax on privileges or franchises, not to exceed the reasonable value of the privilege or franchise originally conferred, or its continued annual value thereafter. Act of 95 v. 124 held constitutional.

Southern Gum Co. v. Laylin, 66 O. S. 578 (1902).

State v. Covington, etc., Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 55; 18 L. D. 273 (C. P. 1907).

Held constitutional as to foreign corporations. Air-way Corporation v. Archer, 279 Fed. 878 (D. C. Ohio 1922).

Franchise tax does not affect property tax. The imposition of a franchise or privilege tax does not relieve corporations from the taxation of their property.

Scottish, etc., Ins. Co. v. Bowland, 196 U. S. 611 (1905).

Company incorporated in several states. A corporation, organized by concurrent legislation of two or more states, is a domestic corporation in each state. Such a corporation is subject to the franchise tax as a domestic corporation.

State v. Covington, etc., Bridge Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 55; 18 L. D. 273 (C. P. 1907).

Corporations in bankruptcy or under receivership. Whether reports must be made and taxes paid by a receiver, assignee for creditors or trustee in bankruptcy seems to depend upon whether he continues the corporate business. So long as an assignee, receiver or trustee continues the business, it is his duty to make reports and pay taxes. Gerke Co. v. Kuerze, 7 Ohio App. 37; 26 C. C. n. s. 17 (1916); Morley v. Cleveland, 23 C. C. n. s. 295 (1914).

If, however, he does not continue the business, but merely liquidates the assets for creditors, he need not make reports and is not liable for franchise taxes. State v. Harris, 229 Fed. 892; 14 O. L. R. 95 (C. C. A. Ohio 1916); certiorari denied, 242 U. S. 634; s. e., 225 Fed. 625.

If a corporation has exercised its corporate franchise any part of the tax year, corporate assets in the hands of its trustee in bankruptcy are liable for the tax, although the amount is not ascertained and charged until after the adjudication. Bates v. Archer, 288 Fed. 182 (C. C. A. Ohio 1923).

The attorney general has ruled that an insolvent bank, whose assets are being liquidated by the superintendent of banks, continues to be liable for franchise reports and taxes until dissolution. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1065.

Corporations not for profit are not required to make reports or pay franchise taxes. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 617; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 697.

Section 5496. (Verification of report.) If the corporation has organized, such report shall be signed and sworn to before an officer authorized to administer oaths by the president, vice president, secretary or general manager of the corporation. In the event the corporation has not organized, then such report shall be signed and sworn to by one of the incorporators of said corporation and forwarded to the commission. (109 v. 94; 102 v. 249, § 107; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 421, § 82; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 1.)

Before the amendment of 109 v. 94, a corporation was not liable for the tax until ten percent of its capital stock has been subscribed and its directors chosen. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1196, 14 O. L. R. 36; 5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 999 (1903). Contra. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 530.

1. The name of the corporation.
2. The location of its principal office.
3. The names of the president, secretary, treasurer and members of the board of directors, with the postoffice address of each.
4. The date of the annual election of officers.
5. The amount of authorized capital stock and the par value of each share.
6. The amount of capital stock subscribed, the amount of capital stock issued and outstanding, and the amount of capital stock paid up.

7. The nature and kind of business in which the corporation is engaged and its place or places of business.

8. The change or changes, if any, in the above particulars, made since the last annual report. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 249, § 108; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 421, § 83; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 1.)

Where preferred stock has been redeemed under § 8669 it is extinguished, and should not be included as a basis for the franchise tax. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 907.

Stock subscribed for but not yet issued should be included. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 288.

Stock which has been issued, but is subsequently acquired by the corporation, should be included as a basis for the franchise tax, unless the capital stock is reduced under § 8700. This applies to stock purchased by the corporation (Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, pp. 1322, 288). And to stock surrendered by the stockholders, on a sale of a part of the corporate property and distribution of the proceeds to the stockholders. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1543; 15 O. L. R. 415.

Shares donated to the corporation to be given as a bonus to purchasers of preferred stock, and shares deposited with the commissioner of securities to be held until the corporation has earned certain dividends, are "issued and outstanding". Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 102.

Where changes in subscribed or issued and outstanding stock occur during May, the latest condition should be reported. If the report is made after the month of May, the condition at the end of the month should be reported. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1585.

Section 5498. (Amount of capital stock determined; certified to auditor of state. Fee. Minimum.) Upon the filing of the report, provided for in the last three preceding sections, the commission, after finding such report to be correct, shall, on the first Monday of July, determine the amount of the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of each such corporation. On the first Monday in August, the commission shall certify the amount so determined by it to the auditor of state, who shall charge for collection, on or before August fifteenth, as herein provided, from such corporation, a fee of three-twentieths of one per cent. upon its subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock, which fee shall not be less than ten dollars in any case. Such fee shall be payable to the treasurer of state on or before the first day of the following October. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 249, § 109; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 422, § 84; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 1.)

Rate of tax on corporations having no-par-value common stock. § 8728-11.

The tax should be assessed on stock subscribed for but not yet issued, and also upon the issued and outstanding stock. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 288; 5 O. L. R. 122 (Atty. Gen. 1907).

The fee is probably for the current calendar year. State v.

Harris, 229 Fed. 892; 14 O. L. R. 95 (C. C. A. Ohio 1916). See Bates v. Archer, 288 Fed. 182 (1922).

Although it was held by a referee in bankruptcy to be for the year next ensuing after the filing of the annual report and not for past enjoyment of the franchise. Emmerman v. Ohio Co., 14 O. F. D. 289; aff'd, by District Court, 14 O. F. D. 298. See also Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906-1907, p. 59.

A corporation which was in existence during the entire month of May is liable for the tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 586; Bates v. Archer, 288 Fed. 182 (1922).

The tax is for the entire year. The act does not provide for consideration of fractional parts of a year, nor does it provide for remitting part of the tax where a corporation discontinues business during a year.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, pp. 69, 70.

Bates v. Archer, 288 Fed. 182 (1922).

Section 5499. (Report by foreign corporations.) Annually during the month of July, each foreign corporation for profit, doing business in this state, and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, or, having complied with the provisions of section 183 of the General Code and having been authorized by the secretary of state to transact business in this state, in addition to all other statements required by law, shall make a report in writing to the commission in such form as the commission may prescribe. (109 v. 94; June 2, 1911, 102 v. 249, § 110; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 422, § 85; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 2.)

Filing a report under this section was held not doing business in the state, so as to subject the foreign corporation to the service of process on its designated agent in a suit on a cause of action arising outside of the state, where the corporation had withdrawn from the state, prior to such service, and prior to the filing of the report. Robert Mitchell Furniture Co. v. Selden Breck Construction Co., 257 U. S. 213 (1921).

Rulings prior to the amendment of 109 v. 94. A foreign corporation is not subject to the Willis law unless it is also subject to G. C. § 183 et seq. A foreign corporation may be subject to G. C. § 178 without being subject to G. C. § 183 or to the annual franchise tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 569, 59.

A foreign corporation which owns property but transacts no business in the state need not file a report or pay a franchise tax. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 995.

A foreign corporation which transacts no business in the state except interstate business, is not required to make reports or pay an annual franchise tax. The fact that such a corporation voluntarily complied with G. C. §§ 178-183 does not render it liable for the tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 59, 569.

A foreign freight line company is not subject to the franchise tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 610.

Section 5500. (Verified.) Such report shall be signed and sworn to before an officer, authorized to administer oaths, by the president, vice-president, secretary, superintendent or managing agent in this state, and forwarded to the commission. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 249, § 111; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 422, § 85; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 2.)

Section 5501. (Contents.) Such report shall contain:

1. The name of the corporation and under the laws of what state or country organized.

2. The location of its principal office.

3. The names of the president, secretary, treasurer and members of the board of directors, with the postoffice address of each.

4. The date of the annual election of officers.

5. The amount of authorized capital stock, and the par value of each share.

6. The amount of capital stock subscribed, the amount of capital stock issued, and the amount of capital stock paid up.

7. The nature and kind of business in which the company is engaged and its place or places of business, both within and without the state.

8. The name and location of its office or offices in this state, and the name and address of the officers or agents of the corporation in charge of its business in this state.

9. The value of the property owned and used by the company in this state, where situated, and the value of the property owned and used outside of this state, and where situated.

10. The change or changes, if any, in the above particulars, made since the last annual report. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 249, § 112; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 422, § 86; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 2.)

Section 5502. (Valuation certified to auditor of state.)

Upon the filing of the report, provided for in the last three preceding sections, the commission, from the facts thus reported and any other facts coming to its knowledge bearing upon the question, shall, on the first Monday in September, determine the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the company represented by its property and business in this state. On the first Monday of October, the commission shall certify the amount of the proportion of the authorized capital stock of each such company represented by its property and business in this state, as determined by it, to the auditor of state. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 250, § 113; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 422, § 87; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 2.)

A company organized by concurrent legislation of two states is a domestic corporation in each state. A finding by the taxing officers that such a company is a foreign corporation, and the acceptance of annual reports, does not bar the state from collection of the proper tax.

State v. Covington, etc., Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 55; 18 L. D. 273 (C. P. 1907).

The tax commission is invested with a reasonable discretion in making the determination. Rep. Atty. Gen., 1910-1911, p. 600.

The commission is not required to certify its action by registered mail. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 290.

Effect of erroneous compliance with G. C. §§ 178 to 192. Where a foreign corporation, which neither owned nor used property in the state, by error, in complying with G. C. §178 et seq., reported its entire capital stock as used in the state, the tax commission may permit an amended report to be filed, and, under the authority to consider "other facts coming to its knowledge bearing on the question," may accept the minimum annual fee, and release the corporation from liability for the balance. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 84.

A foreign corporation, which is not subject to the franchise tax, does not become liable therefor merely by reason of a voluntary compliance with G. C. §§ 178-183. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 59, 569.

Method of computing tax. This tax is not based upon the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio, but is based upon the proportion of the total authorized capital stock represented by such property and business. The proportion which the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio bears to the entire property and business of the corporation is the proportion of the capital stock on which the tax is based. If the property owned and used and business transacted in Ohio is $10,000, the entire corporate property and business $20,000, and the authorized capital stock $50,000, the tax would be based upon one-half of its authorized capital stock ($25,000), the Ohio property and business being one-half of the total property and business.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1910-1911, p. 600.

If the entire corporate property and business is in Ohio the tax should be based on the entire authorized capital stock. State v. Fulton, 98 O. S. 350 (1918); 5 O. L. R. 163.

The property and the business of a corporation are both factors in the assessment. The commission can not disregard corporate property outside the state. State v. Coal Co., 17 N. P. n. s. 60 (1914).

Neither "good will" nor "patent rights", separately considered, constitute "property" within the meaning of §§ 5501 and 5502. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 358.

"Business in the state." The word "business" as used in this section is synonymous with the same word as used in §§ 5499 and 183. Sales to Ohio customers made by mail or through travelling salesmen, necessitating interstate transportation of the articles sold, are not "business in the state" although the corporation does other Ohio business. But deliveries to Ohio customers from a stock in the state is Ohio business. The operation of a factory in Ohio is doing business in the state regardless of where the products are sold or transported. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, pp. 460, 2411.

Sales in original packages, in warehouse or stock, are Ohio business. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 679.

Where a foreign corporation has its managerial office in Ohio, in which all orders for goods are received, contracts made, and its book accounts and bills receivable controlled and collected, such book accounts and bills receivable constitute property located in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 403.

A sale in Ohio of goods to be shipped in delivery from outside the state is interstate commerce and not business done in Ohio. But sales of goods stored in Ohio to Ohio customers constitute business done in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 403.

Authorized capital stock. Where the charter of a foreign corporation authorizes the issue of a certain amount of common and a limited amount of preferred stock, an amount of common being reserved for issue only in exchange for preferred, which, after exchange, is retired and not subject to reissue, the "authorized capital stock" is not the sum of the authorized common and preferred, but the sum of the unreserved common and the preferred, or, in other words, the whole of the common stock. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1906.

Section 5503. (Collection. Fee. Minimum.) On or before October fifteenth, the auditor of state shall charge for collection, as herein provided, annually, from such company, in addition to the initial fees otherwise provided for by law, for the privilege of exercising its franchises in this state, a fee of three-twentieths of one per cent. upon the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the corporation represented by property owned and used and business transacted in this state, which fee shall not be less than ten dollars in any case. Such fee shall be payable to the treasurer of state on or before the first day of the following December. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 250, § 114; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 422, § 87; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 2.)

Rate of tax on foreign corporations having no par value stock. § 8728-11.

A foreign corporation which has ceased to do business, but owns property in the state, and has not filed the certificate required by § 11976, should pay the minimum tax under § 5503. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 995.

Section 5504. (Domestic corporations. Hearing. Corrections.) Between the dates herein fixed for the determination of the amount of the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of a domestic corporation and the proportion of the authorized capital stock of a foreign corporation, represented by property owned and used and business transacted by it in this state, and the dates herein fixed for the certification to the auditor of state of such amount or proportion, the commission may, on the application of any person or company interested, or on its own motion, review and correct its findings. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 250, § 115; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 425, § 100; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 382, § 6; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 124, § 6.)

Section 5505. (Receipt.) Upon the payment of the tax or fee, provided for in this act, to the treasurer of state, the treasurer of state shall make out and deliver to the public utility or corporation so paying a receipt for the payment by such public utility or corporation of the tax or fee herein provided for. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 251, § 116; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 424, § 92; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 126, § 4.)

Section 5506. (Taxes and penalties, first lien.) Annually on the last day of the month fixed for the filing of its report with the tax commission of Ohio the fees, taxes and penalties, required to be paid by this act, shall become the first and best lien on all property of a public utility or corporation, whether such property is employed by the public utility or corporation in the prosecution of its business or is in the hands of an assignee, trustee or receiver for the benefit of the creditors and stockholders thereof. Such lien shall continue until such fees, taxes and penalties are paid. (109 v. 94; 102 v. 251, § 117; 101 v. 424, § 93; 97 v. 381, § 5; 95 v. 124, § 5.)

Franchise taxes accruing after the appointment of a receiver, as well as before, are a lien if the receiver continues the corporate business. Gerke Co. v. Kuerze, 7 Ohio App. 37; 26 C. C. n. s. 17 (1916); Morley v. Cleveland Co., 23 C. C. n. s. 295 (1914).

But where the corporate business is not continued, assets in possession of a trustee in bankruptcy are not subject to a lien for franchise taxes accruing after the bankruptcy. State v. Harris, 229 Fed. 892; 14 O. L. R. 95 (C. C. A. Ohio 1916); certiorari denied, 242 U. S. 634.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed against a corporation May 31, and it was adjudged a bankrupt on June 21. Tax for the year was held to be a lien on the corporate assets, although the amount was not ascertained and charged until after the adjudication. Bates v. Archer, 288 Fed. 182 (C. C. A. Ohio 1923).

This section does not signify that the lien is a source of power to tax. The lien merely affords security for collecting a tax otherwise specifically authorized and assessed. State v. Harris, 229 Fed. 892; 14 O. L. R. 95 (1915); certiorari denied, 242 U. S. 634.

Priority of lien. A purchase money mortgage given by a corporation, and a mortgage given by a former owner of the property and assumed by the corporation, have priority over the statutory lien created by this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1822.

Section 5507. (Penalty.) If a public utility or corporation, required to file a report by any provision of this act, fails or neglects to make such report, as required herein, it shall be subject to a penalty of ten dollars per day for each day's omission after the time limited in this act for making such report. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 251, § 118; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 424, § 94; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 381, § 5; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 126, § 5.)

Compromise of penalty, G. C. § 5524.

Section 5508. (Liabilities of foreign corporations. Insurance companies not included in this act.) All foreign corporations, and the officers and agents thereof, doing business in this state, shall be subjected to all the liabilities and restrictions that are, or may be imposed upon corporations of like character, organized under the laws of this state, and shall have no other or greater powers. Every contract made by or on behalf of any such foreign corporation, affecting the liability thereof or relating to its property within this state, before it shall have complied with the provisions of section one hundred and seventy-eight of the General Code, shall be wholly void on its behalf and on behalf of its assigns, but shall be enforceable against it or them. Nothing contained in this section shall be held or construed to apply to insurance corporations, fraternal beneficiary associations, or building and loan associations required by law to report to the superintendent of insurance, nor to repeal, change or modify the provisions of section one hundred and eighty-eight of the General Code. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 251, § 119.)

Acting as a stockholder in an Ohio corporation, or giving assent to changes in its regulations, is not "doing business" in Ohio within the meaning of G. C. §§ 178 or 5508.

Non-compliance with §§ 178 and 183; effect on contracts. A Wisconsin statute, similar to § 5508, has been construed to exclude unilateral contracts like bills, notes, and contracts which have been fully executed outside the state upon which there remains only the obligation of payment. Such contracts are not void as they do not "affect the liability" of the foreign corporation. Catlin v. Schippert, 130 Wis. 642; cited in 20 N. P. n. s. 19, 24.

A contract of sale requiring delivery outside of the state (as, f. o. b. Kansas City, Mo.) is an interstate transaction and not void under § 5508. Vaccine Co. v. Redman, 20 N. P. n. s. 17; 28 L. D. 4 (1917).

Section 5509. (Failure to report or pay tax or fee; effect of. Cancellation of articles.) If a corporation, wherever organized, required by the provisions of this act, to file any report or returns or to pay any tax or fee, either as a public utility or as a corporation, organized under the laws of this state, for profit or as a foreign corporation for profit doing business in this state and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, or as a sleeping car, freight line or equipment company, fails or neglects to make any such report or return or to pay any such tax or fee for ninety days after the time prescribed in this act for making such report or return or for paying such tax or fee, the commission shall certify such fact to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall thereupon cancel the articles of incorporation of any such corporation which is organized under the laws of this state, by appropriate entry upon the margin of the record thereof, or cancel the certificate of authority of any such foreign corporation to do business in this state by proper entry. Thereupon all the powers, privileges and franchises conferred upon such corporations, by such articles of incorporation or by such certificate of authority, shall cease and determine. The secretary of state shall immediately notify such domestic or foreign corporation of the action taken by him. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 251, § 120; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 424, § 97; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 381, § 5.)

See § 5525.

Corporate existence is not wholly terminated by a cancellation of articles under this section, because of the right of reinstatement provided in § 5511. A new corporation cannot be organized with the same name as a corporation whose articles have been cancelled, until after the expiration of the two-year period for reinstatement provided in § 5511. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 48.

Where the articles of a corporation were cancelled under § 5509 and the corporation is subsequently reinstated under § 5511, the corporation is a corporation de facto during the interval between cancellation and reinstatement. One who contracts with the corporation during such interval cannot question its corporate capacity. Goldstein Co. v. Mitchell, 14 Ohio App. 231 (1921). Contra. Package Sales Co. v. Orchard Sales Co., 24 N. P. n. s. 313 (Municipal Court of Cincinnati) holding that officers and directors are personally liable for debts contracted after cancellation of the articles.

After cancellation of articles, no reports need be made and the corporation is not liable for subsequent taxes. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 570.

A certificate of voluntary dissolution may not be filed after cancellation of articles under this section, and before reinstatement under § 5511. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1923, p. —; 1 Ohio Law Abstract, 586.

An erroneous cancellation of articles may be corrected by the tax commission under § 5517. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1512.

The forfeiture of the right of a foreign corporation to do business in a state, under a statute such as § 5509, should be construed as relating to intra-state business only, and not to affect its right to do interstate business. St. Louis, etc., Ry. v. Arkansas, 235 U. S. 350 (1914).

Section 5510. (Penalty.) Any person or persons who shall exercise, or attempt to exercise, any powers, privileges or franchises, under the articles of incorporation or certificate of authority, after the same are cancelled, as provided in section one hundred and twenty of this act [G. C. § 5509], shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 252, § 121.)

See § 5525.

Section 5511. (Reinstatement of corporation.) Any corporation whose articles of incorporation or certificate of authority, to do business in this state, has been cancelled by the secretary of state, as provided in section one hundred and twenty (G. C. Section 5509) of this act, upon the filing, within two years after such cancellation, with the secretary of state, of a certificate from the commission that it has complied with all the requirements of this act and paid all taxes, fees or penalties due from it, and upon the payment to the secretary of state of an additional penalty of one-tenth of one per cent upon the amount of its authorized stock, such penalty not to exceed one hundred dollars nor be less than ten dollars in any case, shall be entitled again to exercise its rights, privileges and franchises in this state, and the secretary of state shall cancel the entry made by him under the provisions of section one hundred and twenty (G. C. Section 5509) of this act, and shall issue his certificate entitling such corporation to exercise its rights, privileges and franchises. (109 v. 94; 102 v. 252, § 122.)

Reinstatement is not authorized after two years from the date of cancellation. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1923, p. —; 1 Ohio Law Abstract, 586.

A corporation is not required to pay franchise taxes for the period between the cancellation of its articles and the application for reinstatement. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 570.

The secretary of state has no authority to remit the penalty imposed by this section. Nor does § 5524 authorize the attorney general to compromise it. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1377.

Section 5512. (Action by attorney general.) In addition to all other remedies for the collection of any taxes or fees due, under the provisions of this act, the attorney general, shall, upon the request of the commission, whenever any taxes, fees or penalties due, under this act, from any public utility or corporation, shall have remained unpaid for a period of ninety days, or whenever any corporation or public utility has failed or neglected for ninety days to make or file any report or return, required by this act, or to pay any penalty for failure to make or file such report or return, apply to the common pleas court of Franklin county, or of any county in the state in which such public utility or corporation is located or has an office or place of business, for an injunction to restrain such public utility or corporation from the transaction of any business within this state, until the payment of such taxes or fees and penalties thereon, or the making and filing of such report or return and payment of penalties for failure to make or file such report or return, and the costs of such application, which shall be fixed by the court. Such petition shall be in the name of the state, and if it is made to appear to the court, upon hearing, that such public utility or corporation has failed and neglected, for ninety days, to pay such taxes, fees or penalties thereon, or to make or file such reports or returns, or to pay such penalties for failure to make or file such reports or returns, such court of common pleas shall grant and issue such injunction. All actions brought under this act shall have precedence over any civil cause of a different nature pending in such court, and the court of common pleas shall always be deemed open for the trial of any such action brought therein. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 252, § 123.)

See § 5525.

Section 5513. (Quo warranto proceedings.) If any corporation fails or neglects to make and file the reports or returns, required by this act, or to pay the penalties provided in this act for failure to make and file such reports or returns, for a period of ninety days after the time prescribed in this act, the attorney general, on the request of the commission, shall commence an action in quo warranto, in the circuit court of Franklin county, or of any county in this state in which such corporation is located or has an office or place of business, to forfeit and annul its privileges and franchises. If the court is satisfied that any such corporation is in default as aforesaid, it shall render judgment ousting such corporation from the exercise of its privileges and franchises within this state, and shall otherwise proceed as provided in Chapter One of Title VIII, Part 3 of the General Code. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 253, § 124; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 424, § 97; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 382, § 5; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 126, § 5.)

Section 5514. (Certified list of new corporations each month by secretary of state to commission.) The secretary of state shall prepare and keep a correct list of all corporations, subject to the provisions of this act, engaged in business within this state. Each month he shall file with the commission a certified report showing all the new corporations, the increase or decrease of the capital stock, or the dissolution of existing corporations, and such other information as the commission requires. For the purpose of obtaining the necessary information, the secretary of state or the commission, shall have access to the records of the offices of the county auditors of the state. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 253, § 125; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 425, § 98; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 382, § 6.)

Section 5515. (Information by county auditors.) Upon request of the secretary of state or the commission, any county auditor shall furnish such information as is shown by the records of his office concerning corporations located within his county, and subject to the provisions of this act. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 253, § 126; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 425, § 99; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 382, § 6; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 126, § 6.)

Section 5516. (Fees; power of commission as to.) For the purpose of determining the amount of fees due from any such corporation, the commission may investigate and determine the facts showing the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the company represented by its property and business in this state. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 253, § 127.)

Section 5516-1. (Extension of time.) The tax commission of Ohio, when it deems the same necessary or advisable, may extend to any corporation or public utility, a further specified time within which to file any report required by law to be filed with the tax commission, in which event the attaching or taking effect of any penalty for failure to file such report or pay its tax or fee into the state treasury shall be extended or postponed accordingly. (March 2, 1911, 102 v. 31.)

Section 5517. (Hearing. Application for review. Correction. Warrant for overpayment.) Any bank, public utility or corporation may be heard by the commission upon the question as to the correctness of any determination, finding or order of the commission after the same has been made. Application to the commission for a review of any determination, finding or order by it made, must be filed in writing within sixty days from the date of the certification thereof by the commission to the proper officer. The commission, upon such application, if it finds the same has been filed within the time limited in this section, may make such correction in its determination, finding or order, as it may deem proper, and its decision in the matter shall be final. Such correction shall be certified to the proper official, who shall correct his records and duplicates in accordance therewith. In case any such bank, public utility or corporation has paid the tax or fee assessed against it under mistake, and such mistake is corrected by the commission, upon application so filed, so that the amount due from such bank, public utility or corporation, under such corrected determination, finding or order, is less than the amount of the taxes or fees paid and if such payment has been made to the county treasurer of the proper county the county auditor shall upon certificate of such correction, as herein provided, draw his warrant on the treasurer, in favor of the bank, public utility or corporation, for the amount so erroneously paid by it. The county treasurer shall thereupon pay such warrant out of any moneys in the general fund of the county not otherwise appropriated. (110 v. 60; June 2, 1911, 102 v. 253, § 128; May 10, 1910, 101 v. 425, § 100.)

The "proper officer" to whom the tax commission should certify corrections is the auditor of state. The state treasurer should also be notified of corrections.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 164, 451.

That part of this section which provides for an appropriation for a refunder of taxes overpaid is said to be in conflict with Art. 2, Sec. 22 of the constitution in that it is not specific and not limited to two years. This does not affect the remainder of the section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 148.

It is said that the tax commission has no authority to entertain an application by a public utility for a review of its determination of value, after the commission has certified its determination to the county auditor. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 647.

An erroneous cancellation of articles by the secretary of state under § 5509 may be corrected by the tax commission under this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1512.

Section 5518. (Insurance companies excepted.) An incorporated company, whether foreign or domestic, owning or operating a public utility in this state, and as such required by law to file reports with the tax commission and to pay an excise tax upon its gross receipts or gross earnings as provided in this act, and insurance, fraternal beneficial, building and loan, bond investment and other corporations, required by law to file annual reports with the superintendent of insurance, shall not be subject to the provisions of sections one hundred and six to one hundred and fifteen, inclusive, of this act [G. C. §§ 5495 to 5504]. 102 v. 254, § 129; 101 v. 425, § 101; 97 v. 382, § 7; 95 v. 127, § 7.)

Public utility companies not engaged in active business should file reports under § 5495 et seq.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1906-1907, pp. 45, 41.

A public utility company, incorporated under Ohio laws, engaged mainly in interstate commerce but having a small income from intrastate business, is taxable on such income and not on its capital stock. If it has no intrastate business, it is taxable on its capital stock. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 600, 2025.

Public utility company, after lease of line or plant to operating company. A railroad corporation, whose line of railroad is operated by another company under a long term lease, is not required to make reports or pay taxes under the Willis law, although it maintains its corporate organization, collects the rent and pays dividends. C. & P. Railroad Co. v. State, 2 Ohio App. 228; 20 C. C. n. s. 61; 26 C. D. 403; reversing, 13 N. P. n. s. 671; motion to certify record overruled, 11 O. L. R. 538; 59 Bull. 112; State v. Little Miami Railroad, 7 Ohio App. 309; 27 C. C. n. s. 154; 28 C. D. 297; affirming, 19 N. P. n. s. 234; motion to certify record overruled, 15 O. L. R. 431; 62 Bull. 444.

In the opinion of the attorney general, the scope of decision of the cases cited above should be limited to so-called "underlying companies". Corporations organized to construct and operate public utilities, but which have not commenced operations, or which have abandoned or sold their public utility business, are liable for the franchise (Willis) tax. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 2015.

Public utility company prior to operation. A railroad company was organized more than six months prior to May, 1912, but did not begin to operate its railroad until June. In May it filed a report under the franchise (Willis) law. The attorney general ruled that the company was liable for the franchise tax but not for an excise tax on its gross receipts for 1912. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 585.

Insurance company. An insurance company, organized for profit, which has not obtained subscriptions for all of its capital stock and has not been licensed by the superintendent of insurance, is subject to the Willis tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 633.

Although an insurance company has reinsured all its risks and is therefore not "required" to make reports to the superintendent of insurance, it is not subject to the franchise (Willis) tax. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 625. Contra. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1945.

Manufacturing company. A manufacturing company which furnishes electric current to consumers, for light, heat or power purposes, is a public utility and should make reports as such and pay an excise tax based on its gross receipts. Its property should be valued by the unit rule. It is not required to make a report or to pay taxes under the Willis law. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 545.

Mutual public utility not using streets. A corporation organized for the sole purpose of furnishing electric current, heat and water to a group of manufacturing establishments, which own all of its stock in proportion to the amount of service rendered to each, and which does not exercise the power of eminent domain or serve the general public, is not a public utility and is subject to the franchise (Willis) tax, but not to the excise tax. State v. Factory Power Co., 16 N. P. R. 545 (1915).

Freight line, sleeping car and equipment companies. Ohio freight line, sleeping car and equipment companies are not taxed on their gross receipts and are liable for the franchise (Willis) tax. Foreign companies, however, are not liable for the franchise tax. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 610.

Section 5519. (Report not required until lapse of six months from date of incorporation.) A corporation shall not be required to file its first annual report under sections 106 to 115 (G. C. 5459 to 5504), inclusive, of this act, until the proper month, hereinbefore provided, for the filing of such report, next following the expiration of six months from the date of filing articles of incorporation or admission to do business in this state. (109 v. 95; 102 v. 254, § 130; 101 v. 425, § 102; 97 v. 382, § 7; 95 v. 127, § 7.)

The exemption of this section does not apply to a corporation which reorganizes under the no-par-value stock law. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 594.

Where capital stock is increased within six months prior to the time of filing the report, the increased stock which is subscribed or issued and outstanding is taxable. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 227; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1606; 4 Dep. Rep. 985. Contra. 5 Opins. Atty. Gen. 865 (1903).

A consolidated corporation need not file a report until after the expiration of six months following the filing of its certificate of consolidation.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1908, p. 83.

Section 5520. (Dissolution no exemption from payment or filing report.) The mere retirement from business or voluntary dissolution of a domestic or foreign corporation, without filing the certificate, provided for in sections eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-four, eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-five and eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-six of the General Code, shall not exempt it from the requirements to make reports and pay fees or taxes in accordance with the provisions of this act. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 254, § 131; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127, § 8.)

Reports by receivers, trustees in bankruptcy and assignees for creditors, see note to § 5495.

Section 5520 relates only to cases of voluntary dissolution. A judgment of dissolution or revocation of charter, in a judicial proceeding, terminates the corporate existence, and there is no further obligation to make reports and pay taxes, although no certificate is filed under § 11975. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 67.

A foreign corporation which has ceased to do business, but owns property in the state, and has not filed the certificate required by § 11976, should pay the minimum tax under § 5503. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 995.

"Retirement from business" under §§ 5520 and 11976 refers to retirement from the exercise of the privilege covered by § 183 et seq. When a corporation retires from business in the state it may have its registration under § 178 et seq. continued. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1172.

Section 5521. (When certificate of dissolution may be filed.) In case of dissolution or revocation of its charter on the part of a domestic corporation, or of the retirement from business in this state, on the part of a foreign corporation, the secretary of state shall not permit a certificate of such action to be filed with him unless the commission shall certify that all reports required to be made to it, have been filed in pursuance of law, and that all taxes or fees and penalties thereon due from such corporation have been paid, and unless such corporation shall produce a certificate from the treasurer of the county wherein the property of such corporation, both tangible and intangible is or was located, showing that all personal property taxes assessed against such corporation, for the then current and previous years, have been paid. (110 v. 250; June 2, 1911, 102 v. 254, § 132; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127, § 8.)

A certificate of the winding up of the affairs of a corporation through bankruptcy proceedings, or a dissolution proceeding under § 11938 et seq., is not entitled to be filed, without a certificate from the tax commission. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 17, 67.

But a judgment of dissolution or revocation, in a judicial proceeding, terminates the corporate existence and ends liability for franchise reports and taxes thereafter, although no certificate is filed at the time under §§ 5520 and 11975. A certificate under § 5521 may thereafter be procured from the tax commission, if the corporation was not delinquent as to reports or taxes up to the date of the judgment. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 67.

A banking corporation, in liquidation by the superintendent of banks, continues liable for franchise reports and taxes until dissolution. If hopelessly insolvent, the superintendent may procure an order of dissolution from the common pleas court of the county in which the bank was located, and file a certificate thereof under § 11976. If there is an equity of assets for stockholders above the debts, the order of dissolution may be procured after the stockholders' meeting provided for in G. C. § 742-11. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1065.

Corporations not for profit are not required to procure certificates from the tax commission, except corporations organized more than six months prior to November, 1910. Under the former law reports were required from corporations not for profit.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 697.

This section does not apply to insurance, fraternal benefit and other corporations required to file reports with the superintendent of insurance. G. C. § 5518.

Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, p. 697.

Section 5522. (Affidavits as to use of money or property in aid of elections. Form prescribed by commission and made part of return.) Every corporation or public utility required, by the provisions of this act, to make returns, statements or reports to the commission, shall file therewith, in such form as the commission may prescribe, an affidavit subscribed and sworn to by a person or officer having knowledge of the facts therein set forth, setting forth that such corporation or public utility has not, during the preceding year, directly or indirectly paid, used or offered, consented or agreed to pay or use, any of its money or property for, or in aid of any political party, committee or organization, or for, or in aid of any candidate for political office or for nomination for any such office, or in any manner used any of its money or property for any political purpose whatever, or for the reimbursement or indemnification of any person or persons for moneys or property so used. Such forms of affidavit as the commission may prescribe shall be attached to or made a part of the return, statement or report required to be made by such corporation or public utility under any provision of this act. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 255, § 133.)

See §§ 8729, 8730.

Section 5523. (Certificate of secretary of state as to foreign corporation doing business without compliance with laws. Prosecution.) When the secretary of state has knowledge that a foreign corporation, organized for profit, and owning or using a part or all of its capital and plant in this state, is doing business in this state without having complied with the laws thereof, he shall certify such fact to the commission. The commission, when it ascertains from such certificate of the secretary of state, or otherwise, that any such foreign corporation is doing business in this state without having complied with the laws thereof, shall certify the same to the attorney general, with the request that he prosecute an action against such foreign corporation for the penalties provided by law, in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, or in any county in which the corporation has an office or place of business. It shall be the duty of the attorney general, upon receipt of such request, to commence and prosecute such an action. On good cause shown, the commission may remit the penalty, or part thereof, incurred by a foreign corporation under the provision of Chapter 2, of Division 1, Title III, Part First, General Code. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 255, § 134.)

See §§ 182, 186, 191.

Section 5524. (Compromise.) With the advice and consent of the commission, the attorney general may, before or after any action for the recovery of fees, taxes or penalties certified to him, as delinquent, under the provisions of this act, compromise or settle any claim for delinquent taxes, fees or penalties so certified.

And all claims compromised or settled as herein provided shall be set forth in the annual report of the tax commission to the general assembly and governor, giving in detail the terms and conditions of such compromise or settlement. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 255, § 135; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 381, § 5; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 126, § 5.)

The word "settle" in this section has been construed to authorize the attorney general, with the advice and consent of the tax commission, to reduce or remit penalties for any good and sufficient reason. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 526.

Section 5525. (Application of preceding sections.) The provisions of sections one hundred and twenty, one hundred and twenty-one, one hundred and twenty-two, one hundred and twenty-three and one hundred and twenty-four of this act [G. C. §§ 5509, 5510, 5511, 5512 and 5513] shall apply to any public utility or corporation which for two years prior to, and for ninety days from and after, the passage of this act, shall fail to pay any taxes or fees or penalties thereon, due from it to the state of Ohio, or to make or file any report or return, required by law, or to pay any penalty provided by law for failure to make or file any report or return required by law. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 259, § 159.)

Section 5650. (Levy to pay bonds given for railroad subscription.) The lawful authorities of a county, city, or township which have subscribed to the capital stock of a railroad company and have issued its bonds or other securities for the payment of such subscription, may levy or cause to be levied, annually, on the taxable property thereof, within five years next before the principal of such bonds, or other securities are payable, if the market price of the stock of such railroad company is less than seventy-five per cent on its par value, such tax, not exceeding one mill on the dollar, as will be sufficient to balance the discount on the railroad stock held by such county, city or township, by the time such bonds may become due. The proceeds of such taxes shall form, with such stock, a sinking fund, and be invested in the purchase of the bonds issued by such county, city or township, or in other safe and productive securities, and be applied only to the payment of the bonds so issued. (R. S. Sec. 2831; 56 v. 175, § 80; S. & C. 1466.)

Section 5672. (Tax a lien upon bank shares. Collection of tax. Penalty.) Taxes assessed on shares of stock, or the value thereof, of a bank or banking association, shall be a lien on such shares from the first Monday of May in each year until they are paid. It shall be the duty of every bank or banking association to collect the taxes due upon its shares of stock from the several owners of such shares, and to pay the same to the treasurer of the county, in which such bank or banking association is located, as other taxes are paid, and any bank or banking association failing to pay the said taxes as herein provided, shall be liable by way of penalty for the gross amount of the taxes due from all the owners of the shares of stock, and for an additional amount of one hundred dollars for every day of delay in the payment of said taxes. (May 2, 1911, 102 v. 91; R. S. Sec. 2839; 64 v. 204, § 6.)

Stock in national banks belonging to nonresidents is taxable in Ohio.
Rep. Atty. Gen., 1911-1912, pp. 592, 610.

Section 5673. (Banks may deduct taxes paid from shareholders; when. Lien.) Such bank or banking association paying to the treasurer of the county in which it is located, the taxes assessed upon its shares, in the hands of its shareholders respectively, as provided in the next preceding section, may deduct the amount thereof from dividends that are due or thereafter become due on such shares, and shall have a lien upon the shares of stock and on all funds in its possession belonging to such shareholders, or which may at any time come into its possession, for reimbursement of the taxes so paid on account of the several shareholders, with legal interest; and such lien may be enforced in any appropriate manner. (May 2, 1911, 102 v. 91; R. S. Sec. 2840; 64 v. 204, § 7.)

Prior to the amendment of 102 v. 91 it was held that taxes on shares of stock in an insolvent bank could not be collected from the assignee for creditors. Irish v. Fancher, 19 C. C. n. s. 11 (1908).

Section 5675. (Agent of express or telegraph company to pay taxes thereof.) The agent of an express or telegraph company shall retain in his hands and pay to the county treasurer, the amount of all taxes assessed against such company. In default of such payment, the treasurer shall collect the tax as in other cases of delinquent personal property tax. When there is more than one such agent of the same company in one county, the agent thereof in the principal city, or village of such county, may assume the payment of such tax, and upon so doing, the other agents in the county shall not be required to retain funds to pay the tax. (R. S. Sec. 2842; 59 v. 91, § 6.)

Section 5676. (Unlawful to act as agent, etc., for certain companies when taxes are unpaid.) If the taxes assessed against an express, telegraph, telephone, or insurance company, in any county in this state, remains due and unpaid to the treasurer of the county, for twenty days after the time provided by law for the payment thereof, no person or corporation, shall act as agent, or transact any business for such company so in default, until the tax, interest, and penalty are paid. (R. S. Sec. 2843; 82 v. 92; R. S. 1880; 59 v. 91, § 7.)

Section 5677. (Railroad company shall not transport anything for such company.) After the default in payment of taxes named in the next preceding section, a railroad company which, directly or indirectly, conveys or carries for such defaulting express, telegraph, telephone, or insurance company, a package of money, merchandise, or other articles, or transmits a telegraphic message, after having notice of such default, for each offense shall forfeit and pay a sum equal to the amount of such tax due and unpaid, with the interest and penalty thereon, to be recovered by an action in the name of the state, in the county where the tax is assessed, with costs of suit. (R. S. Sec. 2843; 82 v. 92; R. S. 1880; 59 v. 91, § 7.)

Section 5888. (Chautauqua assemblies may make rules for government of grounds.) A corporation, organized under the laws of this state, for holding Chautauqua assemblies, or encouraging religion, art, science, literature, the general dissemination of knowledge, or two or more of such purposes, occupying grounds and holding meetings or entertainments thereon for advancing the purpose of its incorporation, through its board of directors or trustees, may make such rules and regulations for the government of such grounds, not inconsistent with the laws of this state, as will promote the purposes for which it is incorporated. (April 10, 1908, 99 v. 90, § 1; R. S. Sec. 7017-10.)

NOTE.—Sections 5889 to 5893, which authorize Chautauqua assemblies, etc., to appoint special police and define their powers, are omitted.

When a corporation which has for its object the owning and holding of land, for the purpose of carrying on religious exercises and meetings on the same, leases a part of such land with restrictive covenants in the lease that lessees "during all meetings would be subject to the rules and regulations of said meeting," and "would use such premises for the purpose of a private dwelling or residence only, except on a special permit from the company," such covenants are valid and binding on the lessees.

Where such lessees make a business of renting rooms, in their buildings on such leased premises, to temporary occupants, and refuse to obtain a special permit from the lessor and refuse to comply with the reasonable requirements of the lessor, in regard to the privilege of so using the leasehold, such use is a breach of the covenant to "use such premises for the purpose of a private dwelling or residence only, except on a special permit from the company."

The refusal to pay a gate fee, during the meetings, for admission to the grounds of the plaintiff on which the buildings of the defendant are situated, the same as charged to all other persons, is a breach of the covenant that the lessees "during all meetings would be subject to the rules and regulations of said meetings."

Park Co. v. Van Dusen, 63 O. S. 183 (1900).

Assessments on members or lot owners must be made by the members, in the absence of a provision of the constitution authorizing the trustees to make the same. An assessment made by the trustees without authority cannot be recovered.

A camp meeting association, authorized by its charter to furnish tents, cottages, and other necessary accommodations and conveniences on the camp grounds, has implied power to provide for the raising of revenue with which to maintain the accommodations. Bradley v. Camp Meeting Assn., 9 Ohio App. 321; reversing, 21 N. P. n. s. 21.

Taxation of grounds. See G. C. § 5349; Davis v. Camp Meeting Assn., 57 O. S. 257.

Section 6373-1. (Providing license for dealers in securities.) Except as otherwise provided in this act, no dealer shall, within this state, dispose or offer to dispose of any stock, stock certificates, bonds, debentures, collateral trust certificates or other similar instruments (all hereinafter termed "securities") evidencing title to or interest in property, issued or executed by any private or quasi-public corporation, co-partnership or association (except corporations not for profit), or by any taxing subdivision of any other state, territory, province or foreign government, without first being licensed so to do as hereinafter provided. (104 v. 110; 103 v. 743, § 1.)

The Ohio Blue Sky law is not in violation of the federal constitution. Hall v. Geiger-Jones Co., 242 U. S. 39; 15 O. L. R. 39 (1917).

This section and section 6343-14 apply to advertisements published in Ohio, offering to sell securities, although the person procuring the publication resides in another state. In the opinion of the attorney general, the law also applies to circulars and letters mailed from another state. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1151.

Sale of stock by "dealer" without complying with "Blue Sky" law is void. A sale or contract to sell stock by a "dealer", without complying with the Blue Sky law, is illegal and void, although not expressly declared void by the statute. Edward v. Ioor, 205 Mich. 617, 172 N. W. 620 (1919); Goodyear v. Meux, 143 Tenn. 287, 228 S. W. 57 (1921).

But where stock, subscribed for before a permit was granted, was issued to, and accepted by, the subscriber after the permit was granted, the subscriber was held liable on the subscription in a suit by the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation. Moore v. Moffatt, 204 Pac. 220 (Cal. 1922).

Unincorporated association. Massachusetts trust. The attorney general has ruled that a dealer's license can not be issued to an unincorporated association which is organized to carry on business in such a manner as to lead the public to believe that it is a corporation and whose intended acts are such as appertain to, or are to be done after, the manner of corporations. The organization in question was modelled after one form of so-called Massachusetts Trusts. It had a fictitious name, transferable shares and annual elections of trustees by the shareholders. The property was held in the names of the trustees. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, pp. 1023, 1065; Elliott's Blue Sky. Laws, p. 706. See also § 12303; for contra opinion, see article by Edward C. Daoust, 18 O. L. R. 526.

Transferable shares of beneficial interest in a "Massachusetts trust" are "securities" under the Blue Sky laws of some other states. Home Lumber Co. v. Hopkins, 107 Kans. 153, 190 Pac. 601 (1920); People v. Clum, 213 Mich. 651; 182 N. W. 136 (1921).

Section 6373-2. (What the term "securities" shall not be deemed to include. What the term "dealer" shall include. Exceptions. Definition of terms.) The term "securities", as used in this act, shall not be deemed to include conveyances of real estate; or, where the same have not been judicially declared invalid, and where, at the time of such sale, there is no default in payment of any part of the interest or principal of the same:

1. Mortgage bonds and notes (other than corporate bonds where more than fifty per cent. of the entire issue is not included in a sale to one purchaser) secured by a bona fide mortgage on real estate;

2. Securities of quasi-public corporations, the issuance of which has been authorized by the public service commission of this state;

3. The stock or obligation of any national bank, or of any bank, trust company or building and loan association, organized under the laws of this state and subject to examination and supervision by the proper authorities thereof.

The term "dealer", as used in this act, shall be deemed to include any person or company, except national banks, disposing, or offering to dispose, of any such security, through agents or otherwise, and any company engaged in the marketing or flotation of its own securities either directly or through agents or underwriters or any stock promotion scheme whatsoever, except:

(a) An owner, not the issuer of the security, who disposes of his own property, for his own account; when such disposal is not made in the course of repeated and successive transactions of a similar character by such owner; or a natural person, other than the underwriter of the security, who is a bona fide owner of the security and disposes of his own property for his own account;

(b) One, who in a trust capacity created by any law of the United States or of this or any other state or by judicial authority, lawfully disposes of any property embraced within such trust;

(c) A bank or trust company, organized under the laws of this state and subject to examination and supervision by the proper authority thereof, selling a security for a licensee, other than the issuer or underwriter thereof, at a commission of not more than two per cent., where such bank or trust company is not a regular dealer in securities;

(d) One, not the issuer, who disposes of securities to a licensee under this act or to a company which, as a part of its regular business, deals in or holds such securities;

(e) A pledgee selling, in the ordinary course of business, a security pledged to him as security for debt in good faith and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act;

(f) The issuer, organized under the laws of this state where the disposal in good faith and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act, is made for the sole account of the issuer, without any commission and at a total expense of not more than two percentum of the proceeds realized therefrom plus five hundred dollars and where no part of the issue to be disposed of is issued, directly or indirectly, in payment for patents, services, good will, or for property not located in this state; provided that the president and secretary, or the incorporators if done before organization, of the issuer shall, prior to such disposal, file with the "commissioner" a written statement setting forth the existence of all such facts and that such issuer is formed for the purpose of doing business within this state.

As used in this act, the term "company" shall include any corporation, co-partnership or association, incorporated or unincorporated, and whenever and wherever organized; "dispose of" shall be construed to mean "sell barter, pledge or assign for a valuable consideration or obtain subscriptions for"; "issuer", the original issuer of the security; and, where the context demands it, words in the present tense include the future tense; in the masculine gender include the feminine and neuter gender; in the singular number include the plural, and in the plural, the singular number; the word "whoever" includes all persons, natural and artificial, principals, agents and employees; "and" may be read "or", and "or" "and". (104 v. 110; 103 v. 743, § 2.)

Dealer. A bank, which purchases bonds for its own account some of which are resold to customers, making fifty or more sales per year, is a "dealer". Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1167.

A foreign corporation, selling a limited amount of its stock in Ohio to its own stockholders, is a "dealer". Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1529.

A corporation, exchanging its stock for property not located in Ohio, is a "dealer". Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 256.

An owner disposing of his own securities, under exception "a" of this section, is not a "dealer". Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 759.

An exchange, by a foreign corporation, of its stock for stock in other companies was held to be a "sale" under the Michigan Blue Sky law. Edward v. Ioor, 205 Mich. 617; 172 N. W. 620; 15 Am. L. R. 256 (1919).

Securities. Trading stamps or coupons are not "securities". Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 697.

Under rulings of the attorney general, the following are "securities": Trust certificates. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 171.

Membership certificates in a corporation engaged in furnishing supplies to its members, the purchasers having no stock in the corporation and no voice in its management. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 352.

The disposal of "interim certificates" evidencing subscriptions to stock of a foreign corporation may be approved by the commissioner. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1360.

Disposal by issuer under paragraph "f". The word "issue", in paragraph "f" of this section, relates only to the particular issue which a company may desire to dispose of, and not to the entire bond, stock or security issues of the applicant corporation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 827.

Disposal by owner not the issuer. It is not a violation of the Blue Sky law for several owners of stock to sell their stock to the same purchaser. Dows v. Schuh, 206 Mich. 133, 172 N. W. 418 (1919).

Sale, by an owner of stock, some of which stood in the names of members of his family, was held not to violate the Michigan Blue Sky law where not made in the course of continued and successive transactions of the same nature. Dursum v. Benedict, 209 Mich. 115, 176 N. W. 459 (1920).

Section 6373-3. (Application for license; filing fee. Information required. Bond. Copy of incorporation articles to be filed. Consent for service.) Before such license shall be issued to any dealer, there shall be filed by him with the commissioner of securities designated in this and the preceding and following sections of this chapter as the "commissioner," together with a filing fee of five dollars, an application for such license, together with information in such form as shall be determined by such "commissioner," setting forth;

(a) The names and addresses of the directors and officers,, if such applicant be a corporation or association, and of all partners, if it be a partnership, and of the person if the applicant be an individual, together with the names and addresses of all agents of such applicant assisting in the disposal of such securities;

(b) Location of the applicant or applicants' principal office and of such principal office in the state, if any;

(c) The general plan, including a detailed statement of the character of the business of said applicant or applicants, together with references thereto, which the "commissioner of securities" shall verify by investigation such as may be deemed necessary in determining the repute in business of such applicant, directors, officers, partners and agents;

(d) Every such applicant shall execute and file a bond to the state of Ohio in such sum in no case to be less than ten thousand dollars and with such surety as the commissioner requires, and shall also execute and file a bond to the state of Ohio in such sum as the commissioner may require, but not to exceed twenty-five hundred dollars with such surety as the commissioner requires, for each agent named in such application or in any supplemental application made thereto. Such bonds shall be filed with the commissioner of securities and kept by him in his office. Such bonds shall be conditioned upon the faithful observance of all of the provisions of this act, and shall also indemnify any purchaser of securities from such dealer or agent who suffers a loss by reason of misrepresentations in the sale of such security by such dealer or agent. Any purchaser claiming to have been damaged by misrepresentation in the sale of any security by such dealer or agent may maintain an action at law against the dealer or agent making such misrepresentations; or both the dealer and agent where the agent makes such misrepresentations; and may join as parties defendant the sureties on the bonds herein provided for.

If the applicant be a corporation organized under the laws of any other state, territory or government, or have its principal place of business therein, it shall also file a copy of its articles of incorporation, certified by the proper officer of such state, territory or government, and of its regulations and by-laws; and if it be an unincorporated association, a certified copy of its articles of association, or deed of settlement.

The applicant at the same time shall also file with said "commissioner" a duly executed written instrument, irrevocably consenting that any action brought against such applicant, arising out of and founded upon the fraudulent disposal of such securities by him or his agents, may be brought in Franklin county, and that, in the event that proper service of process can not be had upon such applicant in such county, service of process made therein by the sheriff of such county, by sending a copy thereof by registered mail, at least thirty days prior to taking judgment in such case, addressed to such applicant at the place of his principal office named in his application or such other place as the applicant may thereafter designate in writing filed with the "commissioner," shall have the same effect as if personally made upon the applicant according to the laws of this state. (110 v. 276; 107 v. 508; 104 v. 110; 103 v. 74, § 3.)

A person selling stock for a "dealer" is its agent and the "dealer" is estopped from defending against his claim for commissions on the ground that the agent has not complied with the Blue Sky law. It is the duty of the "dealer" to register its agent. Lovring v. Duplex Co., 204 Mich. 658, 171 N. W. 374 (1919).
